Pearls From Palestine

The Sower

Matt. XIII: 3—23

THIS is the story the Lord Christ told
In the days of old:
Behold! A sower went forth to sow,
And lo! o'er all the plain
He scattered the golden grain.

Some seed by the wayside fell,
And, sooth to tell,
The fowl's of the air in an hour
Did the seeds devour,
So that no more could it be found.

Some fell on stony ground,
And, having no depth of earth,
Quickly sprang into birth;
But because the soil was dry,
When the sun was hot and high,
They were scorched in the noontide ray
And withered away.

Some seed did fall
Where thorns were thick and tall.
Thin were the blades and few
And, choked by thorns, they grew
But bore no fruit at all.

Some fell on goodly soil
And rewarded the Sower's toil,
Covering the fertile plain
With a wealth of waving grain,
Thirty, sixty, a hundred fold.

Thus did the Lord unfold
The Truth of the tale he told:
The seed is the Word,
Which, when our ears have heard,
Cometh Satan with subtle art
And from the heart,
Like to a thievish bird,
Taketh the Word,
Lest, we the truth receive
And so believe.

They on the rock are they
Who hear the Word with gladness and straightway,
Having not root, can bear no fruit,
And through temptation fall away.

And these are they that sprung
The thorns among:
Hindered by life's affairs
And choked by earthly cares,
No fruit unto perfection can they bring.

And these are they who from good soil do spring:
Who into honest hearts
Receive what God imparts
And bring forth fruits more precious far than gold,
Some thirty, sixty, some an hundred fold.

To sow good seed, that is the sower's part.
What if it take no root within the heart?
Yea, Lord, indeed
Thou sowest good seed.
What if I take no heed,
Or what, if when the tender blade appear
I fail to persevere?
Where were the sheaves to fill the harvest wain?
The sheaves of golden grain?
Lord, be it then my part
So to prepare my heart
Thy truth to hold,
That it may bring forth fruit
a hundred fold.

Lucy Larcom—"A New England Girlhood"

By LILLIAN McCANN

"IF I had opened my eyes upon this planet elsewhere than in this northeastern corner of Massachusetts, elsewhere than on this green, rocky strip of shore between Beverly Ridge and the Misery Islands, it seems to me as if I must have been somebody else, and not myself." So wrote Lucy Larcom in 1889, sixty-five years after her birth on March 5, 1824, in Beverly, where the Larcom theatre now marks the site of her birthplace.

In that sweet and simply told autobiography, "A New England Girlhood," dedicated to her girl-friends in general, she has painted a picture of a girlhood of yᵉ olden time on the North Shore—one that was rich in the healthy ideals and high aspirations of the old-time New Englanders. As an excuse for writing an autobiography, she says: "Our life—which is the best thing we have—is ours only that we may share it with Our Father's family, at their need. If we have anything within us worth giving away, to withhold it is ungenerous; and we cannot look honestly into ourselves without acknowledging with humility our debt to the lives around us for whatever of power or beauty has been poured into ours."

Delightful accounts are given of her childhood, bringing out many of the primitive customs that were still lingering in the old New England towns at that period.

The chapters telling of her early school days in Beverly, about going to "Aunt Hannah's" school room at the tender age of two years, learning her letters and many passages from the Bible, and her love for hymns which she committed, together with the descriptions of her childish explorations in the wood and along the seashore, form a most interesting and fascinating story.

"We were not surfeited, in those days, with what is called pleasure; but we grew up happy and healthy, learning unconsciously the useful lesson of doing without. The birds and blossoms hardly won a gladder or more wholesome life from the air of our homely New England than we did."

Many enjoyable rambles were taken by the little Lucy with a brother who was somewhat older than herself, and who often took her huckleberrying up the Montserrat road, through Cat Swamp, to the edge of Burnt Hills and Beaver Pond. Sometimes he took her on a tramp to the old homestead at "The Farms," for "three or four miles was not thought too long a walk for a healthy child of five years; and that road, in the old time, led through a rural Paradise, beautiful at every season. * * * * We stopped at the Cove Brook to hear the cat-birds sing, and at Mingo's Beach to revel in the sudden surprise of the open sea, and to listen to the chant of the waves, always stronger and grander there than anywhere along the shore. We passed under dark wooded cliffs out into sunny openings, the last of which held under its skirting pines the secret of the prettiest woodpath to us in all the world, the path to the ancestral farmhouse." She says she sometimes felt a little resentment at her fate in not having been born at the old Beverly Farms home-place (now the Gordon Dexter estate), as her father, uncles, aunts and some cousins had been.

"The Road Led Through a Rural Paradise"

"Farther down the road, where the cousins were all grown-up men and women, Aunt Betsey's cordial, old-fashioned hospitality sometimes detained us a day or two; * * * * to our branch of the family 'The Farms' meant 'Uncle David' and 'Aunt Betsey.'"

The Uncle David was her father's favorite brother who lived in the house now standing in Beverly Farms and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. James B. Dow. It stands almost opposite the entrance to "Selwood," the summer home of ex-Senator and Mrs. Albert J. Beveridge. This well-preserved old house was built in 1807 and was purchased from Aunt Betsey by the Dows. The house was partially destroyed by fire the past winter, but not to such an extent as to despoil its original lines. Mrs. Dow's mother was a cousin to Lucy Larcom. A fine old picture of Aunt Betsey is in the possession of Mrs. Dow, who remembers, as a child, the beautiful Miss Larcom who came to visit Aunt Betsey in the old house when it was still in her possession.

In speaking of her home-town, Beverly, as it seemed to her, Miss Larcom says: "It was old, and it seemed old, much older than it does now. There was only one main street, said to have been the first settler's cowpath to Wenham, which might account for its zigzag picturesqueness. All the rest were courts or lanes. The town used to wear a deligthful air of drowsiness, as if she had stretched herself out for an afternoon nap, with her head towards her old mother, Salem, and her whole length reclining towards the sea, till she felt at her feet, through her green robes the dip of the deep water at the Farms. All her elder children recognized in her quiet steady-going ways a maternal unity and strength of character, as of a town that understood her own plans, and had settled down to peaceful, permanent habits.

"The sea was its nearest neighbor, and penetrated to every fireside, claiming close intimacy with every home and heart. The farmers up and down the shore were as much fishermen as farmers; they were as familiar with the Grand Banks of Newfoundland as they were with their own potato-fields."

The story of Lucy Larcom's life in Lowell where she became a mill-girl in her effort to help her widowed mother; her active life in the literary circles and in the magazine, the Lowell Offering, published by the mill-girls; her meeting with Whittier, who became her lifelong friend; the years of school-teaching on the prairies of Illinois; the higher education received in a western seminary; the years spent in teaching in Beverly and at Norton seminary; the editorship of Our Young Folks and her later literary successes, make up the sum total of her life, which, she says, is not a remarkable one, for "she never attempted remarkable things."

Many of her summers in later life she spent in Maine and New Hampshire among the lakes and mountains. From 1866, when in her early 40's, she came to Beverly Farms for six or seven summers. She is remembered by Mrs. Dow as possessing a beautiful figure and making a charming hostess in her sunny little home which was just across from the summer home of Oliver Wendell Holmes at "Beverly Farms-by-the-Depot." This was the only real home of her own that she ever had and her days were spent in the old familiar haunts of her beloved Essex scenes, where she loved the woods and flowers and sea. She was fond of painting flowers as a pleasant pastime.

Among noted visitors who came to the little house were Mary Livermore, Celia Thaxter and Whittier. She was at Beverly Farms when Charles Dickens died in 1870. It was here she wrote that charming little poem "A Strip of Blue"—

"I do not own an inch of land,
But all I see is mine;
The orchards and the mowing-fields,
The lawns and gardens fine.
The winds my tax-collectors are,
They bring me tithes divine,
Wild scents and subtle essences,
A tribute rare and free;
And, more magnificent than all,
My window keeps for me
A glimpse of blue immensity,
A little strip of sea."

She died on April 17, 1893,—23 years ago last month—and is buried in her native Beverly which she had loved for so many years.

Golfer Should be at His Best When 34

AT WHAT age is a golfer at his best? This question has been discussed on numerous occasions, and the consensus of opinion shows that the experts agree on that period of 10 years when a man is between 27 and 37.

It has been asserted that it takes at least five years for one to know very much about golf, but it is unlikely that many can possess in that length of time the mature experience which is necessary in the make-up of a truly great player. By the time a man has reached the age of 27, provided he has started in as a youth or very young man, he should have imbibed a sufficient knowledge of the game to turn his physical powers to account. But players vary both in the matter of temperament and physique. Some develop early, while others give over years to the gradual accumulation of skill and knowledge. If this general opinion is correct, a player should be at his very best at the age of 34.

However, it is worth remarking that because a man is extraordinarily proficient when he has passed 40, even a greater age, and still can beat his younger rivals, it does not follow that he was not better at 30, or would not have been better when much younger had he been in the game at that age. It is likely that the age up to which a man is at his absolute best is higher among the professionals than among amateurs, but only because the incentive of earning a living keeps them up to the mark. Some years ago an eminent British authority observed that no amateur was at his best after the age of 30. It seemed a very extreme and severe remark, but, after all, it is not very wide of the mark. Middle-aged and elderly players need find no discouragement in these observations, for they refer only to golfers of the highest type.

Mrs. Crosby and daughter are planning to take another trip such as they did last year, to the Rockies, to be gone a month or six weeks, while Mr. Crosby and son will attend the Plattsburg camp, in August.

ALL that is necessary to put the final touch on the official opening of the North Shore season—weather and other conditions notwithstanding—is the starting of the daily trips of the Flying Fisherman, the private subscribers' train—between Boston and the North Shore. The first trip from town will be tomorrow, May 6, and the first trip to Boston will be next Monday morning. The Magnolia express will go on this year on June 5.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry F. Sears of 86 Beacon st., Boston, are at Mrs. Sears' estate in Bryn-Mawr, Penn., where they are passing the intermediate season. The place is the Struthers' estate which Mrs. Sears inherited from her late parents. The family will occupy their summer place in Beverly Cove in June.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Lawrence of 59 Commonwealth ave., and their family, are planning to open their country place in Topsfield early this month, for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Matthews of 456 Beacon st., Boston, formerly of the Hamilton colony, are to open their place in Bar Harbor in mid-June. The "ancient house," at Hamilton, which Mr. and Mrs. Matthews had rehabilitated last year for their daughter, Miss Nathalie Matthews, has been leased for a year to Robert H. Reece, who will have it fitted up for bachelor's headquarters. Mr. Matthews' other cottage at Hamilton has been taken for the season by Mr. and Mrs. Childs Frick, son and daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Frick. The Fricks were at Manchester last summer, well up into the autumn, but Mr. Frick desired to get in closer range of the Myopia Hunt club where he spent much of his time playing polo and following the hunt.

Much of the praise for the unbounded success of the Vincent club show, "Hello, Frisco," which was presented at the Wilbur Theatre, Boston, the first of this week, belongs to Miss Louise McAllister, who wrote the play. Miss McAllister appeared as Juanita in the cast. She has a lovely voice and sang with a great deal of charm and manner, especially in "The Fox Trot Lullaby," which she rendered with Miss Anne Means, who took the part of Capt. John Mead in the khaki costume of an American soldier. Miss McAllister wore a lovely gown of pale blue silk in the first act, with a black velvet hat, and in the last act her costume of heavy silk in a true lover's knot design in Dresden colors on a white ground was the most beautiful ball gown on the stage. Other North Shore girls besides these two took part in the show.

Prince has engaged "Tom" McCreery to train for him and is seeking material to bring his stable up to a standard where he can be represented in all the important fixtures. One in the stable now, Fattanta, an English bred hunter, was at Aiken this winter and went there green and for hacking purposes only. He soon showed so well and gave indications of speed so often that it was finally decided to train him for steeplechasing.

Nobody can live longer in peace than his neighbor pleases.

NEW YORK furnished one of the most important weddings of the season, thus far, when, on Tuesday, Miss Ruth Cutting, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Fulton Cutting, and Reginald La Grange Auchincloss, a son of Mrs. Edgar S. Auchincloss, were married in the Chapel of St. George's Church, Stuyvesant square, in the afternoon. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Endicott Peabody of the Groton School. Miss Cutting's only attendant was her sister, Miss Elizabeth McEwen Cutting, and Peter Cooper Bryce was the best man. There were eight ushers. A small reception followed at the Cutting town house, 24 East Sixty-seventh street. Both families have large North Shore connections.

New York, in all of its history, has never heard so much good music presented so well as in the season now coming to a close. There was an increase of about 20 percent in the number of musical entertainments over last year. For some reason this has been a singers' season, and there have been 146 song recitals, almost twice the number of last year. It is estimated that New York has paid out $1,100,000 for the season of music.

Miss Anne T. Morgan is at the head of the "Shakespeare Circus," held today and tomorrow at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, in aid of the Vacation Association work. Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney E. Hutchinson of Philadelphia were in New York for the wedding of Mrs. Mary Pace Groner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Pace, of Richmond, Va., to Lewis Colt Albro, of New York. After a honeymoon spent in Bermuda the couple will make their home in New York.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Wood, Chalmers Wood, Jr., a cousin to the groom, who was best man, and the Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Lawrence Wood. The Misses Harriet A. Post and Nathalie Wood were among the attendants. Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., a cousin of Mr. Post, and Q. A. Shaw McKean, of Boston, were ushers. It was a cherry blossom wedding, the pretty branches forming the chief decorations.

PHILADELPHIA society and North Shore friends are interested in the announcement of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Baird, whose daughter, Miss S. Uytendale Baird, one of the most popular of this season's buds, will be married to Harrison K. Caner, Jr. Mr. Caner is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison K. Caner of Manchester. No date has been set for the wedding. Miss Baird was extensively entertained during her debutante season. She is a clever amateur actress, dances charmingly and sings just as well. In other words, she is quite an accomplished young woman. Most of her life has been at school abroad. Her parents are both well known amateur singers, and are constantly in demand for private musicales, and their rare appearances are always hailed with delight. Miss Baird made her debut at a dansant at the Bellevue-Stratford on December 11, when her grandmother, Mrs. Matthew Baird, was the hostess. The debutante is a granddaughter also of former Justice Charles E. Hendrickson, of the New Jersey supreme court. Mr. and Mrs. Caner will give a dinner-dance at the Philadelphia Country club on May 19 in honor of their son and Miss Baird. Miss Baird's engagement was announced last week while she was playing each night at the Little Theatre in Thomas McKean's new play, "The Secretary."

Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Emlen Hutchinson were among those who entertained at the Ritz-Carlton last week when Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Harrison, Jr., gave the largest dance of the post-lenten week at the hotel. Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury were of the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Pepper.

Walter Jackson Freeman, Jr., was a guest at an Easter cotillon for the younger set.

Mrs. Charles A. Munn, Jr., is interested in the annual pony show which will be held at Wynnewood on the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Clothier, May 24. A dog show will also be held and a new feature will be a doll show with three little girls as the judges of "the prettiest," "the best dressed," "the fattest" and "the cutest" dolls. The idea is that society's youngsters who have neither ponies nor dogs to show have felt more or less "out of it" at the big fete and the doll show will let every one of them in. Mr. Munn will show some of the "movies" taken at Palm Beach and other places this winter.

Learning is an ornament in prosperity, a refuge in adversity and a provision in old age.

WASHINGTON'S Army and Navy League ball was the brilliant event of last week. A military ball with the men in uniform in the minority is a new experience in Washington. Many of the officers stationed there were represented by the women of their families. The President and Mrs. Wilson arrived early in their box in the sail loft ballroom and left early as is their custom. Mrs. Wilson was charming in black velvet with her favorite flower a mauve orchid, in her corsage. Miss Margaret Draper was in pale blue georgette crepe brocaded in orchids. Mrs. Joseph Leiter was a boxholder.

POTOMAC PARK is so lovely now that Washington society, smart and otherwise, has been turning out in force to watch the Washington team play polo. The park, for which ex-President and Mrs. Taft are to be thanked, as it is the result of their tireless efforts, has ten miles of speedway along the river. The road is lined on one side with great weeping willows and Japanese cherry trees, alternating. The cherry trees, which were in full bloom last week, are a constant memorial to Mrs. Taft, who got them there. The first shipment of cherry trees from the flowery kingdom had to be burned and every one remembers both Mrs. Taft's disappointment at this and her satisfaction when the second shipment arrived and was passed upon by the agricultural department. Its planting was made something of a ceremony. The cherry trees and the river and the wonderful beauty of the place make it worth going miles to see, even if one knows no polo. The other day, when the Aiken Tigers and the Washington team were playing a lively game, Mrs. Preston Gibson and Mrs. Joseph Leiter were among the interested on-lookers. Mrs. Leiter had with her her two small sons, Joe, Jr., and Tommy and their little friend, Billy Merriam.

Mrs. Gibson had with her a small powder puff of a dog, Flip, who proved most elusive and caused his mistress much anxiety.

The Joseph Leiters have their home 20 miles out from Washington on the Potomac river and have scarcely used their town house since opening a country home.

No thoroughly occupied man was ever miserable.

CHICAGO Junior Leaguers held the most successful entertainment in their history when they presented the "Follies," a brilliantly staged affair with wonderful dancing. James B. Waller, Jr., and Miss Dorothy L. Leonard were participants. Miss Leonard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Leonard, who have a pretty and artistically located cottage on the extreme end of Eastern Point, Gloucester, next to "Finisterre," the home of the John Clays of Chicago. The League took in $12,000 for their home charities.

Miss Amy Bradley and Miss Helen Bradley of Boston are visiting at the home of Mrs. Russell Tyson on Goethe street. Mrs. Tyson is greatly interested in agriculture for women and at the recent women's agricultural conference at the Art institute gave a talk on "Diversified Farming." Just now she is engaged in endeavoring to establish branches of the American Fund for the French Wounded in near-by towns.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Crane, Jr., of Lake Shore drive are planning a fishing trip to Nippegong, Canada, for about a month. They will go in their private car and live in it while gone.

Mr. and Mrs. George Higginson, Jr., of Astor street, have taken the Bishop villa in Lenox for the summer, and their Winnetka summer home will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Canfield of Lake Shore drive, who had the Furman cottage at Manchester Cove last summer.

MARBLEHEAD cottages and summer estates are letting fully as well this year, if not better, than in any other section of the shore. Rentals are from the middle of this month to well after Labor Day in most cases.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Curtis, Jr. (Edith Roelker), of 8 Willard st., Cambridge, have taken a cottage at Marblehead which they have planned to occupy in June. Last year Mr. and Mrs. Curtis were at Nahant, where they had the cottage of Miss Emma Cary, an aunt of Mr. Curtis.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Leeson of 256 Commonwealth ave., Boston, have leased "Birch Farm" at Marblehead, and are leaving town for the summer the first of June.

Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield of 164 Marlboro st., is spending a couple of weeks in New York, and on her return, May 10, will go directly to Marblehead, where she and Mr. Crowninshield will spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey G. Whitney of Milton have leased a cottage at Marblehead Neck for the summer and will go there early in June.

Negotiations for the sale of a prominent North Shore estate to S. Rosenberg of Brookline have been closed. The property consists of a tract of land, bounded by Ocean street and the boulevard, in Marblehead, and contains 102,380 square feet. Title was given by the heirs of Isaac Sweetser. On the lot is the house familiarly known as the Castle, which was built by Francis Alexander, the famous portrait painter, in 1847, and was afterward purchased by Samuel Joy. It has been the summer home for the Sweetser family for the past forty years. There is an attractive modern residence on the easterly corner of the lot. The new owner will make extensive alterations

Summer folk at Marblehead will find the Western Union Telegraph office changed from the store of Girdler Stacey to its new home in the Odd Fellows block. The earliest summer resident remembers Mr. Stacey as the man in charge of the Marblehead office of the cable company, for he has managed it for the last 35 years. Pressure of his regular business makes it necessary for him to relinquish the cable business.

Sunday train service on the Swampscott and Marblehead branch will be resumed the coming Sunday, May 7.

Robert B. T. Williams, eldest son of the postmaster of Marblehead, will have charge of the store and postoffice at the Neck this summer.

SWAMPSCOTT'S summer resort section—and that means practically all of the seashore town, is gradually getting ready for a season that will let people know the North Shore is alive. It is early yet to expect all of the summerites to be lodged on the shore now, but a surprising large number have been quartered in this section for a fortnight or more.

One of the most charming new summer residences on the Swampscott shore is that being built for Maurice J. Curran of Andover on Atlantic avenue. It is a pretentious structure and will be an ideal summer home. Extensive grounds will lend themselves to development on the estate. Mr. Curran expects to occupy his new home by the latter part of June.

Things are moderately quiet at the Tedesco Country club, but it is only a short time to May 30, when everything will open up "full blast," to use the vernacular. Tomorrow (Saturday) evening Mr. and Mrs. Eugene W. Ong will give a dinner and dancing party to 100 of their friends along the shore and from Boston and Brookline. The Ongs have been down for three weeks at their estate, "Dorrich," on Atlantic avenue. Mr. Ong is now one of the executive heads of the United Fruit Co. Mr. and Mrs. Ong, with the Andrew W. Prestons, parents of Mrs. Ong, are almost daily visitors at the club in midsummer. The two children of the Ongs, Dorothy and Richard, form a part of the nucleus of children who now get their morning sun bath on the Swampscott shore.

The Oakland House, managed by Mr. and Mrs. Mason, will probably open early this year, although the date has not been set as yet. The grounds have been put in excellent condition and minor changes have been made in the hostelry itself. The Little Brown Tea Room, which is on the Oakland grounds, operated by Mrs. Emily Brown, will be open to the public again this summer. It is run for the benefit of the Boston Home for Crippled Children.

"Green Gates," the summer residence of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Vorenberg on Puritan road, is radiant in its spring dress of greenery. It will not be long before the Italian garden on this estate will bloom in all its varicolored splendor. The Vorenbergs, with Fred and Samuel Vorenberg, will come to the shore within a short time.

NAHANT cottagers are opening their houses for the summer, and leases are being made of estates and houses with more activity than usual. The Sears estate has been leased this week to Mrs. Amory A. Lawrence of 61 Commonwealth ave., Boston. The Stackpole house has been leased to Mr. and Mrs. David M. Osborne (Dorothy Dexter) of 122 Bay State Road, Boston. Both these rentals were made through the Boardman office of the Ames Bldg., Boston.

A Plea For Peace

The grey matter has turned white,
And now the mind has lost its sight.
Oh, sure pity the world should be
Enclosed in a warring sea!

No more the heart-beats love for man,
No more the nations, first in van,
Do strive achieve as best they may,—
But fight and burn, destroy and slay.

A star of hope for armies all,
Oh God, do send! Poor creatures call
On Thee to end the awful war:
Thy children wish again for law.

Thy laws devine and golden rule,
To worship Thee and stop the duel,
That soon may peace 'mong men and Thee
Be o'er the earth, we pray to see.

—Jack Hill.

MAGNOLIA, APRIL 15, 1916.

CAPE ANN.—Prospects here for a brisk season for 1916, are bright, the very early applications for houses in various sections of Cape Ann giving encouragement to this fact. In Annisquam, Pigeon Cove, Rockport and East Gloucester, reports come of many rentals and early arrivals of families. The hotel keepers seem pleased over the number of applications that are coming for early accommodations. The diverse attractions that Cape Ann affords for summer residents is now prominently known and every year brings added popularity. Her boating and bathing facilities, the splendid golf courses, the pleasant social life at first-class hotels and golf or yacht club houses, are offered to the choice of the people seeking a summer abiding place. But aside from these privileges, the glory that nature bestows is in views of land and sea. What grander and more majestic can the tourist behold than to stand on the great granite cliffs of the coast and watch the billows break with thunderous passion while above the white crests, the ships are seen riding the deep, blue depths, the white gulls circling in the azure sky? Then in gentler mood, we see on a calm day, from a height clad with bayberry green and the wild roses, a broad stretch of blue, dotted here and there with a white sail, while mingled with the soft voices of the eddying tide the song birds sing happily and our own hearts sing in unison with the Poet Lowell, "What is so rare as a day in June!"

A live organization to work for the completion of the Sandy Bay Breakwater and Harbor of Refuge, Rockport, held an important meeting one day last week in Boston, at the City Club. A campaign which promises to be productive of good results was outlined. Several prominent citizens of Cape Ann were present, and the Secretary of the Gloucester Board of Trade represented the interest of that body. It was decided to have an executive committee, composed of seven members and a general committee of approximately 25, to boom the matter locally and in Washington. John Hays Hammond of Gloucester was chosen chairman of the general committee, with Ralph S. Bauer, president of the Lynn Chamber of Commerce, as chairman of the program committee. Register of Probate Horace H. Atherton, Jr., was selected as secretary of the executive committee. All three gentlemen have consented to serve. Other prominent men of the North Shore, interested, will serve on the committee, among them being Hon. John L. Bates, former Governor of Massachusetts and summer resident of Cape Ann; Calvin Austin, president of the Eastern Steamship Company; William J. Hobbs, vice president of the Boston & Maine railroad and Hon. James E. Cotter, both summer residents of Land's End; Capt. J. Clifford Entwistle of Salem, a former president of the Boston Marine society, besides a number of large shipping men of Boston, who were among those present at the meeting at the Boston City club. The proposed abandonment of the breakwater and harbor of refuge has aroused the maritime interests all along the Atlantic seaboard and all seem to be lending aid to the movement for the completion of the breakwater, contending that the structure in its present state is a menace to navigation and that it should be finished in accordance with the original plans of the Army engineers.

Our fears are usually more numerous than our dangers.

EAST GLOUCESTER.—Mrs. N. H. Weeks and daughters, the Misses Annie M., Florence, and Lela G., of Manchester, N. H., are at their attractive cottage of Spanish architecture, located at Eastern Point.

General Anson G. Mills and family are expected early at "Bayberry Ledge," the large Mills estate near the Eastern Point Golf club grounds.

The Waterman A. Tafts of Arlington have been coming down over the road in their touring car, to their Eastern Point estate, oft and on, and will arrive early, as usual, to open the house. The Taft estate is one of the most attractive at Eastern Point. The house is of stone and stucco, the garage and garden houses being picturesque. The landscape gardening is particularly beautiful in the height of the season.

The Beachcroft on Niles Beach boulevard, is receiving interior improvements including new baths.

Mrs. Grace Buell and son George H. Crosby, who have been spending the winter on Cape Cod, are at Merrill Hall, Eastern Point road and will open their hotel early in June.

Mrs. Mary B. (Jackson) Rathbone of New York City has arrived at her estate "Hacienda," Eastern Point boulevard, for the season.

Captain-Inspector A. Piatt Andrew of the American Ambulance corps in France, a resident of the Eastern Point colony, owning a fine estate here has written home, stating that he has had some moving pictures made of the work of the ambulances. He also sent to the Gloucester Times, an interesting story of the Gloucester car, which was purchased and equipped with the money raised by the people of Gloucester. The letter was written by the driver of the "car 175" and tells of the life and some of the experiences of the drivers of the section on duty during the struggle for the possession of Hartmannsweilerkopf. It is expected that the motion pictures will be shown in this country within a short time, giving an idea of the work at the battle front, among the mountains of Alsace.

Now is the constant syllable ticking from the clock of time.

BASS ROCKS.—The Fred H. Eatons of Lawrence have their cottage on Souther road, Bass Rocks, open for the week, during the school vacation of the children. The family expects to come early in June for the season.

The Macombers of Boston arrive at Bass Rocks today, for the season, at the Smith estate, Brightside road.

Contrary to reports in the large city papers, that the Siamese Legation owns its own summer place here, the minister, Prabha Karavongse and family and the attachés will be comfortably located, however, at Bass Rocks, in the large Harding cottage on Page street, near the golf links, and E. H. Loftus, the English secretary of the embassy will be located with his family on Bass avenue, near the bathing beach. The legation of Siam has been coming to East Gloucester for at least ten years. The first two or three seasons were spent at the Hawthorne Inn, then several summers were spent at Eastern Point, and in desirable houses at Bass Rocks. This section of the North Shore suits the party exactly and it would loathe to make a necessary change. The legation had its own living quarters, occupying a fine large house in Washington, D. C., during the winter. The legation is expected here the latter part of May or the first of June.

The Heistels of Little Rock, Ark., are expected soon to spend the season on Haskell street, near Beach road, Bass Rocks.

Put a coward to his mettle and he will fight the devil.

ANNISQUAM.—Mrs. Alpheus Hyatt, mother of Anna Vaughn Hyatt, the sculptor, Miss A. E. Hyatt another daughter and the children of Mrs. Harriet Mayer, are at Annisquam for the season, from New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter O. Adams of Winchester are at their cottage on Adams Heights, Annisquam, for the summer.

Melbourne Hardwick, the Boston artist and his wife are occupying their studio-cottage, "The Poplars," River road, Annisquam.

Manchester Trust Company

Passed Fifth Anniversary This Week After Period of Remarkable Growth

THE Manchester Trust Co. observed its fifth birthday on Monday of this week. Its five years of existence have been busy ones and have passed quickly for those connected with the institution because of the rapid growth. Starting on May 1, 1911, with a capital stock of $100,000, a surplus of $25,000 and deposits of $50,000 the institution has grown in five years to be one of the stronger of the smaller insititutions of the state. Today the deposits approximate $700,000; the surplus, $38,000 and the assests are $900,000. This steady and strong growth has been one of the most remarkable in the state and for a town of 3000 population the institution is probably in a class by itself.

The highest point reached was last fall when the deposits were close to $900,000 and the assests were over $1,000,000. The deposits are the barometer of a bank. By their rise and fall can usually be told the success of a banking institution. In the case of the Manchester Trust Co., the deposits mount higher during the summer, which is natural in a town of this sort. At that season business is at its best and also the number of depositors is greatly increased by the advent of the summer residents. The high tide of the year is usually reached in November. From the indications at the present time it would appear that another record will be broken this summer.

Since July, 1912, the bank has paid dividends to its stockholders at the annual rate of 4 percent. On Jan. 1, 1916, the dividend was increased to 5%.

At the time the Manchester Trust Co. was started banking was done largely in Salem and Beverly by Manchester people. A great deal of inconvenience was experienced by merchants because of lack of cash. That a need has been filled by the establishment of the Manchester Trust Co. is evidenced by steady growth in efficiency, size and a constantly widening circle of patrons.

A little over a year ago new vaults were installed in the banking quarters. The vaults were of the most modern type and are classed by insurance companies with those in the larger Boston banks. They are absolutely fire and burglar proof. Located within the main vaults are the private safe deposit boxes for the use of the bank's customers. These rent for $5 a year and the service they render is incalculable. An interesting feature of the boxes is the fact they cannot be opened except by two keys, one the property of the Treasurer, and the other of the owner of the box. A storage vault is located beneath the main vault and is made use of by summer residents for the storing of silver, etc. Throughout the banking office the equipment is of the most modern and adapted to the handling with great speed and accuracy a large volume of business. An idea of the volume of business handled during the summer is gained from the information that 300 customers are served daily. In the course of a year there is about one and a half million dollars in currency put into circulation in Manchester, which is handled through the Manchester Trust Co. In April of this year $10,000 interest was paid to depositors in Manchester, representing an increase of $20,000 annually in the resources of the depositors.

A marine panel is to be mounted over the door leading to the directors room, depicting the entrance into Manchester harbor in 1630 of Governor Winthrop's vessel, the Arbella.

The officers of this prosperous, growing institution are Oliver T. Roberts, president; Roger W. Babson and William Hoare, vice presidents; Harry W. Purington, secretary and treasurer. The directors are Roger W. Babson, Dr. G. W. Blaisdell, Michael J. Callahan, Ernest S. Curtis, Everett L. Edmands, Maynard B. Gilman, William Hoare, George L. Knight, Edward A. Lane, F. J. Merrill, Oliver T. Roberts and George F. Willett.

Speaking of the steady growth of the bank since its inception Mr. Purington said, "The Manchester Trust Co. was started primarily for Manchester. We are satisfied that it is fulfilling its mission successfully and regard its growth as evidence of that fact."

Owners of automobiles who have not kept in close touch with motor regulations, new statutes, etc., should realize that if they are riding and their chauffeur should overspeed the car, they may be charged with overspeeding or operating unlawfully as well as the driver himself. This liability exists because it is presumed, on account of his being in the machine and having a general control thereof as registered owner that he knew and allowed his vehicle to be illegally run. Although the authorities usually confine their complaint to the chauffeur, the owner or person in charge of the machine should keep in mind his responsibility, otherwise an unpleasant surprise may await him.

EDITORIAL

ROGER BABSON BELIEVES that it will be to the financial and moral interests of this country to pay Colombia what she asks for the Panama strip that America gained by the revolution of Panama. This new light coming from South America is of interest. The BREEZE has always maintained that despite the fact that Colombia endeavored to exploit both the United States government and the French company at the same time it was a questionable method that we resorted to in finally gaining possession of the district. The price is high and Colombia has not always been inspired by the highest motives; nevertheless the United States is under a natural and moral obligation to settle the bill. The United States is quite pert in its demands for rights from foreign powers; it should be equally alert to the claims other nations have upon us. If there were not the moral responsibilities which we are bound to recognize, the commercial opportunities in Central America makes it imperative upon our Government to cultivate the good will and friendship of those countries. Our attitude to Colombia is open to a dual interpretation and the United States is rich enough and ought to have honor enough to meet the situation.

THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT of the future will have to readjust its idea and workings of the Munroe Doctrine, if Roger Babson's forecasts are true. His judgment seems to be well sustained by the facts. He believes that the A-B-C powers will gradually develop their abilities and powers when the United States government can no longer with any degree of wisdom insist upon the paternal spirit which the Munroe Doctrine involves. The Central States on the other hand are nearer the United States and after the war is over will present vast opportunities for development. As the years go by the United States will have enlarged interests in these countries and the Munroe Doctrine will have an influence. The countries in South America are so much nearer Europe it will be difficult for the United States to establish itself commercially in those districts. Where the trade centers, interest will be centered and the interests of those countries will more and more incline toward Europe. If this be true the sooner the United States cleans house and begins to make friends with the smaller states to the South of Mexico, the better it will be for all.

THE NATIONAL CONVENTION is a little over a month and a half away and yet no one knows who will be nominated for the Presidency by the republican party. Hughes is named, Roosevelt is being boomed, but everyone knows that there is an opportunity for the dark horse.

THE SEED CATALOG has had its day and the hour for the spade and the fork and the rake and the seeds has come.

THE NAVAL PLATTSBURG MOVEMENT is growing constantly. Have you joined?

THE PHILIPPINE ISLAND BILL has been given another check and it is now unlikely that our responsibilities in those islands will be terminated within the next decade at least. The United States government has a duty which it owes to the islanders themselves and to throw them off now or within four years would be reprehensible. It would be like a kindly man and woman assuming the care and responsibilities of a child from some children's friendly society and caring for the child diligently for a number of years, but before the child was able to protect himself in society should turn him adrift unprepared to battle for himself. However kindly the foster parents' original intentions were and however well the child was cared for up to the time he was turned out upon his own resources, the act of abandonment would rob them of all the praise and honor for previous merit. The one act undoes all the merit. As the foster parent is striving to fit the child for the battles of life so the United States is interested or should be interested in caring for the Philippine Islands and when the age of maturity and discretion have come the United States must give them a free hand and liberty. Until they are capable of caring for themselves the United States must care for and protect the islands and islanders. Until that time it will be dishonorable for this government to throw off the responsibilities that now exist.

THE HIGH PRICE OF GASOLINE has put a check upon the use of motors despite the large number upon the road. Many pleasure cars are still out of service and many are being used with economy of gasoline, and that means economy all along the line. The prosperity of every line of automobile products is dependent upon a low cost of gasoline. The automobile dealers know this and are applying themselves diligently to the problem. There will be good come from the high prices if some genius is driven by the attractions of the profits involved to find a new and cheaper motor fuel. The high price of gasoline is a menace to business interests and robs the great middle class of many an hour of pleasure.

AN INTERESTING PHENOMENON is a Southern Democratic newspaper advocating a protective tariff. Since the war has been in progress Southern cotton men have felt the pinch of necessity caused by the scarcity of certain chemicals and dyes and would like to see a tariff sufficiently high to encourage American chemists to build up the dye-making industry in this country. For once Southern newspaper find themselves in accord with Protectionists. Perhaps pressure from the South will obtain the desired results from the present administration which no amount of persuasion from any other source would produce.

THE CITY OF BOSTON is twenty hours nearer the seacoast of Europe than is the city of New York, yet with this handicap New York has been able to take the lead in over-the-ocean business. The transportation interests of Boston are awakening to their opportunity and with such a handicap Boston ought to make progress.

There Are Periods of legislative activities in which investigations, especially investigations of corporations, are as catching as the measles. The complaint has broken out again in the Massachusetts legislature and one bill harrasses the Telephone and Telegraph company with an investigation and the other embarrasses the New Haven road with a proposed forced sale of certain of its holdings. There is no doubt but what there have been many wrongs that may be directly attributed to corporations and their methods; but are not corporations entitled to some rights? Is it not time to call a halt on freak legislation for a while! A truce if you will, giving the corporations an opportunity to recover from the depression that effected every industry at the beginning of the war. No corporation seeks immunity from the law or from the obligations of righteousness, but the will of the people may be as effectively executed by giving corporations an opportunity to adjust themselves to conditions. Massachusetts has always had a reputation for excessive legislation. It will be a good thing for all when biennial meetings of the legislature have been provided for.

Every Year the Careless Observer is wont to say how late the season is and how cold the weather remains and when will summer begin finally, while a consultation of the records show that the averages are being kept up and nature seems to advance rapidly. Last week Friday the ground was covered with snow and on May day the boys were able to find snow enough, in patches, to make snow balls, to molest the passerby; but today the lilacs are throwing the buds and leaves, the horse chestnut buds are swelling rapidly, the swamp maples are a glowing red, and best of all peas are out of the ground and and the forsythia is in bloom. Nature keeps an accurate record that can not be gainsaid and despite the apparent backwardness of the season the official records show that the average daily temperature for April was higher by one half a degree. When this is continued for a whole month its accumulative result shows.

Great Impetus to the Movement for the substitution of electrical locomotives for steam on American railways has been supplied by the success attained in the operation of the St. Paul's electrified division over the summit of the Rocky Mountains. Four months' experience with the new system, over one of the most difficult stretches of track anywhere, has about convinced doubting engineers that electricity as a motive power must supersede steam wherever water power is available for generating current at a low cost. The electrification of the New Haven road between Boston and New York, started some years ago, is gaining headway with moderate speed. It now extends beyond New Haven, on the way from New York, whereas it was Stamford where change of engines on the through trains took place. A more extensive harnessing of the streams and water-falls in the New England hills will be necessary before New England can keep apace with the West in the matter of electric motive power.

The House Has Passed the Rowley small loan bill which prohibits a charge of more than three percent a month on small loans, those under three hundred dollars, and provides penalties for its violation. The bill will probably become law. For years the small loan business has been increasing at a rapid rate and the wrongs possible have not been duly recognized. This new bill will stop much of the injustice which has been possible.

"Take the Tariff out of politics"—Oh, yes, take the salt out of the ocean.

Salem is to Make an extensive campaign this season upon the mosquito. Colonel John E. Spencer will head the war on the pestiferous insect at Juniper where the Juniper Improvement society has already authorized him to purchase a large quantity of oil to spread upon the marshes and lowlands. He plans to organize a campaign which will include the entire city and suburbs in the fight to exterminate the noisome and dangerous pest. Last year Salem suffered from an unusual number of mosquitoes which found breeding places in the many uncovered cellars left by the big fire of two years ago. Not only did the city proper endure an epidemic of mosquitoes, but the swarms spread to other places along the North Shore making it unpleasant for people on summer evenings. With Salem taking hold of the mosquito problem in an active manner the summer people along the North Shore will be heartened in their efforts to make the Shore a "mosquitoless" paradise. The survey, which has been made by an engineer employed to study the mosquito problem, shows that it is possible to rid the North Shore of the pest. It is said that a big fund will be raised to defray the expenses of getting rid of the breeding places of the troublesome insect. The removal of the breeding places will mean not only the wiping out of the mosquito as an annoying insect but as a menace to health as well.

Newspaper Prints of the medals given by Germany to the men on the submarine that torpedoed the Lusitania are appearing in this country. The front of the medal has a picture of the Lusitania sinking in the waves and the other side represents a banking window in Great Britain with the caption "trade over all," It is difficult for the Anglo-Saxon mind to understand the processes of the German mind that would permit its government to recognize such a dastardly deed with such honor. It would be not difficult to understand how the government might chuckle at the success of the enterprise, but to award a medal for the wholesale murder of innocent people,—perish the thought!

There is a Growing Impression all over the world that eventually the Imperial Government will make an attempt to destroy the British navy. It is apparent that the German navy is resting and being kept up to prime in the Kiel Canal while the British navy is in service and deteriorating accordingly. The life of a great ship is limited and as certainly does it wear out, as does an automobile. Will Germany play a waiting game in its naval policy? And the Allies are evidently playing in their military movements.

The Russians Have Been Able to land, safely, four great armies in France and can easily send more troops from her vast resources of men by the same route. The distance traveled and the safety with which the operation was completed is only short of marvelous. It demonstrates emphatically that the Allies are all working together with but one purpose, victory.

The Woolen and Cotton Industries are enjoying a period of prosperity that has not been equalled in a decade. A week rarely goes by but what news reports appear of increased wages that are paid for labor. It is to be hoped that with increased prosperity there will go increased co-operation and good will on the part of operators and operatives.

The Mexican Expedition has developed a growing discontent in the army because of the inadequate aeroplane service that is possible.

FOR THE COLONEL'S LADY

A Graduation Outfit for Twenty-Five Dollars.

LAST week Judy had a little to say to her readers about moderation and simplicity in graduation frocks, and this week she is going to tell them about a graduation outfit that may be purchased at one of Boston's leading stores for twenty-five dollars. This allowance, of course, will not permit indulgence in extreme or luxurious things, but does entitle one to an outfit of surprising daintiness and attractiveness, as well as very good wearing qualities.

For the graduate, who is to buy her whole outfit with $25, let me suggest a net dress, as being much more attractive than anything else she can buy for the money. Even in the very reasonable ones, these little frocks of blond net come in such pretty styles for young girls. Some are trimmed with bands of ribbon, white of course, and with cleverly placed shirring. Many have a triple or long overskirt effect that is pretty and fashionable. One such dress, which had an attractive bodice made with a wide shoulder cape, was priced at $9.50. Another becoming mode was made of Brussels net lace in wide flounces. This was only $8.75. A more expensive frock of the Brussels with flounces and well made tucked sleeves came at $12.50. Nearly all of these were made short-waisted and with ribbon girdles. Net is not only entirely suitable for such an occasion as graduation because of its absolute simplicity, but it is also economical for the girl with limited means because she gets much of the effect of a more expensive dress at a small cost and because blond net and the Brussels net lace launder beautifully,—with care, of course.

Supposing, then, that the girl who graduates has decided upon a net dress, the next consideration must be for something pretty to wear under it. A silk slip seems in many ways to be the best and the most practical. A very good-looking one of China silk with wide, Valenciennes insertion may be had for $5.00, and a petticoat of sateen, plaited, may be bought in the same shop for $1.00.

Even sweet sixteen is not advised to buy her corset for less than $2.00 and if she can afford more, it is worth while to spend it. Shoes and corsets are such an essential part, not only of a girl's clothes, but also of her poise and health, that it seems a pity that they are so often neglected for the sake of a pretty blouse or hat. A very good corset in any of the standard makes can be purchased for $2.00, but be fitted to insure correctness for the particular girl who is wearing it.

For this outfit and for the girl who is doing things simply, cotton knit vest and knickerbockers are advisable. A good vest with either the French top, which is in many ways the most advisable, or the square top may be had for 25 cents and plain knickers for 50 cents.

Shoes and stockings have been left for the last, not because they are relatively unimportant, but because they allow so little variety of choice. They must be white, probably, and not expensive, surely. Under these conditions white canvas pumps with a moderately high, covered heel at $3.50 are the best choice. With them may be worn if the girl insists on silk hose, and very probably she does, white stockings at $1.00 for the pair. If she wishes cotton stockings, excellent ones may be bought for 50 cents.

For the graduation outfit, then, that is all that one could desire in prettiness and simplicity for $25.00, the following schedule is the properly proportioned one:

Dress, $10 to $12; slip, $5; petticoat, $1; hose, $1; vest, 25c; knickerbockers, 50c; corset, $2; shoes, $3.50.

Of course this is variable and it is possible to pay more for the dress and get a Georgette crepe or taffeta dress that is not so thin as a net frock and thus save on the things to be worn underneath. For the class whose girls are to dress alike, too, there are different types of dresses, such as linen, which are favored for this type of graduation dress that may be included in a twenty-five dollar outfit. Of these Judy will speak another week.

YACHTING, GOLF, TENNIS AND OTHER SPORTS Along the NORTH SHORE

YACHTING is to play a most important part in the life of the North Shore this season. The New York Times says of yachting:

"Even with the America's Cup defenders Resolute and Vanitie definitely out of commission for the season and the challenger, Shamrock IV, boxed up in a dock at Brooklyn awaiting the end of the European war, thus eliminating the fleetest of the 'wind-jammers' from the sport, yacht racing this season promises to be the best ever known in this country.

"'The fact that every sailing yacht fit for racing or cruising is to be put in commission this month; that a half dozen new classes of one-design boats have been built by members of different yacht clubs, that yacht brokers are being besieged by would-be-owners who have been disappointed in being able to build boats and now wish to charter, is the best evidence of the unusual interest to be taken in the sport this season,' said James W. Alker, President of the Yacht Racing Association of Long Island Sound, member of the New York Yacht club, and one of the most enthusiastic of amateur sailors. 'To me it looks like the best year we have ever had in sailing-yacht racing, for the interest in the sport is more widespread than I ever knew it, and my experience covers more years than I care to talk much about.'

"Mr. Alker voices the sentiment of yachtsmen generally, none of whom are the least pessimistic over the prospects. Zest will be given to the sport in the New York club, the premier club of the country, by the appearance of a new class of twelve forty-footers, which will take precedence over the fifty-footers which have furnished such excellent sport during the past three seasons, and the thirty-footers, which in the ten years of their existence have furnished some thrilling finishes and the best of experience for the amateurs who stood at the tillers. But eight of the original dozen of this latter class remain in the ownership of members of the New York club, and it is expected that at least six of these will be at the races this season. Of the big fifties a half dozen will be in commission as last season, and among them a repetition of the beautiful aquatic pictures limned at their starts and their rattling finishes of the past seasons are certainties."

From the activities in the Manchester boatyard of Walter B. Calderwood it would appear that the North Shore is to come in for its full share of yachting this summer. The many yachts stored in the yards for the winter are beginning to shed their coverings of canvas preparatory to the springtime scrubbing and painting. Keels have been laid for Richard F. Hoyt's new 21-footer of the extreme racing type and for the "Pam" the trim little craft which will go to Lake Erie when completed and tested. The latter is the property of Commodore H. A. Parsons of the Cleveland Yacht club and was designed by John G. Alden, the Boston naval architect.

At one side of the main shed in the yards workmen are busy on the big barge being built for Boston parties from the designs of Swasey, Raymond & Page, Inc., of Boston. This ponderous craft is 80 feet long and 20 feet wide and will be propelled by immense sweeps. The lines of the boat are "scowlike," but when completed and ornamented it will present an elegant appearance. It will be used in a big pageant in Boston the coming summer. A number of small craft is being overhauled in the yards and the ways at one end of the main shed hold completed power craft awaiting the order of launching.

STEEPLECHASING is being revived with unmistakable interest and enthusiasm. In discussing the subject, Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., one of the most prominent amatuer riders in the country and chairman of the Board of Race Stewards of the Brookline Country club, said: "Those who have followed the sport for any considerable time have, with few exceptions, been satisfied with a thoroughbred or well-bred Virginia hunter, with an extra turn of speed, or a more or less discarded flat racer, with a little extra size and bone, that has been taught to jump. Such horses have almost entirely constituted the steeplechasing stables of this country, and not the 'chasers,' bred for the purpose.

"The fact that a great many of the best-blooded chasers in Europe have been bought by Americans during the last year is the beginning of an era in breeding in the United States which will ultimately make this the greatest steeplechasing country in the world. It is such men as Thomas Hitchcock, Henry W. Bull, Joseph E. Widener, and J. Temple Gwathmey, who will bring this about. They are the most prominent supporters of the present steeplechase movement.

"I have never before noted such enthusiasm over this sport, and I will be keenly disappointed if the meeting over the Clyde Park course on June 15 and 17 does not result in some wonderful racing."

THE Essex County club at Manchester is to be the scene of two important golfing events next month, and possibly other events of importance later in the season. The Women's Eastern Championship will be played at Manchester on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, June 5, 6 and 7; and on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 8, 9 and 10, the Griscom Cup Competition (for women) will be played here. These are two of the biggest events of the season in the golfing world. Players from all parts of the eastern section of the country will be on hand and the event is sure to occasion much social activity.

Manchester Baseball.

The minstrel show tonight, for the benefit of the Manchester baseball team will be a starter of interest in the team for the coming season. It is hoped that the show will be well patronized. The team this year, it is hoped, will be a top-notcher. In addition to the nucleus of the team announced in the Breeze recently there have been no certain additions, although Manager Fritz is negotiating with prospective players. The opening game will be played on Memorial Day in Manchester when the team of the United Shoe machinery will be taken on. The game will be a forenoon affair and should bring out a good crowd.

The field was being put in condition this week by the addition of fresh loom on the diamond, filling up the depressions and making it smooth. A few more days of dry weather and the grounds will be in fine condition.

A colored woman beat Mrs. Twickembury in this: She was telling her qualifications as a lady's maid, and said she had kept house. "Then I suppose you can cook, too?" "Indeed I can, yes'm; and if you'll try me cooking, you'll find it palatial."—Exchange.

Manchester High Team Defeated Hamilton 18 to 3.

Owing to a misunderstanding caused by an unauthorized message from Hamilton, but few people saw the game between the Hamilton and Manchetser high schools at the Essex County club in Manchester on Saturday afternoon. Someone telephoned on Friday that the Hamilton team would not come to Manchester on account of the bad weather. When the full nine made its appearance in Manchester on Saturday it took a little time to round up a team in time for the game. When they were finally rallied, however, the Manchetser boys trimmed their visitors to the tune of 18 to 3. The hitting of Height, Walsh and Francis were features of the game, but the pitching honors belong to Stone of Hamilton, who had 15 strikeouts, and with better support would have made a better showing.

The majority of Manchester's runs were made in the 7th and 8th innings when a combination of hits, and errors by the visitors, sent 11 men over

Summary: 2-base hits, Burns, Height (2), Walsh, Beaton; base on balls off Crafts 2, off Stone 9; struck out by Crafts 6, Francis 1, Stone 15; double play, G. Crafts to Francis to Miguel; umpires, Raymond and Northrup.

Score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Manchester	2	0	1	2	0	2	6	5	*	—18

It is said that more extensive improvements will be made to the tennis courts at the Manchester playgrounds this spring than usual in order to put them in first-class condition. The possibility of a tournament later in the season is being discussed.

Miss Lillian Saco of Lynn has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Saco, Norwood ave.

The preparation of garden plots for the school garden work is being made by Andrew Lee and it is expected that the gardens will be started by Memorial day. Because the North Shore Horticultural society will not hold its exhibit this year the display of products from the school gardens will probably be made in Price school or in Town hall.

"RELIGIOUS BIGOTRY"

SUBJECT OF SERMON AT SUNDAY EVENING SERVICE AT MANCHESTER CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

"Religious Bigotry" was the title of the Sunday evening sermon at the Congregational church, Manchester. Rev. Charles A. Hatch said that the best example of religious tolerance was to be found in the teachings and life of Jesus Christ. He said that bigotry was found among the earliest followers of Christ and told of the answers of Jesus to the narrow ones among the disciples.

"The history of the church is the history of bigotry," he said. "In the second century after Christ the then universal church persecuted its members who did not accept the dogmas of the leaders of the church." He told of the persecutions during the Reformation and of the horrors of the Spanish Inquisition. "Even in the present day there is a religious bigotry that is like a dragon waiting to pounce upon and devour religious liberty," said the speaker.

An anecdote, which is amusing in the present day, was related about a former Congregational minister. The Baptist minister in town was taken ill and was not expected to live. Feeling that he was doing his Christian duty, the Congregational minister called upon the sick man and enjoyed a friendly chat with him. When it came time to leave he remarked, "Now, Mr. ———, if you do not get well this has been a call, but if you recover you may forget about it and need not feel obliged to return the call." A similar anecdote was related about a Baptist clergyman who caused a good deal of mental suffering for a woman in town by telling her that she could not be saved except by immersion. Mr. Hatch said that not only are conservative thinkers bigoted, but often the so-called liberal thinkers are bigoted.

"Bigotry is very common, but is terrible in its effects. Just now, after 19 centuries of Christianity we are putting aside our bigotry and are joining hands as brothers in Christ," he said. He cited as an example of this the Layman's Missionary Movement. Phillips Brooks and Henry Ward Beecher were referred to as examples of men who were Christ-like and liberal. The speaker said those who are most narrow have made the least spiritual attainment.

"When a man is a bigot it is a sign that his spiritual growth has stopped. When a man says he has no use for another's religious belief you may be sure that his spiritual pocketbook is empty. Cardinal Newman as a liberal thinker was able to write 'Lead Kindly Light,' but after taking the faith of the Church of Rome he was so limited by the narrow dogmas that his productions were confined to stilted theological essays. We must not think the Roman Catholic church does not permit the growth of a beautiful spiritual life; it does. But not until the Roman Catholic church throws off its bigotry and narrowness can one within it develop broad lives like the Master's. Before we condemn others let us be sure that we ourselves have something that will stand us in need, in time of trial," Mr. Hatch concluded.

It is a mistaken impression in the minds of many that Roosevelt was repudiated by the vote in the Primaries on Tuesday of last week. Forty percent of the voters in the Republican ranks were for him and the balance were not pledged against him. It merely means that in Massachusetts, as in other states, the Republican voters prefer to wait the turn of events to develop the strongest candidate. Democrats would have it appear otherwise. What happened to the Prohibition vote?

New Yorkers evidently look upon our Congressman Gardner from a widely different angle than we have learned to regard him in Essex County, if the picture labeled "Augustus P. Gardner," printed in the New York Times last Sunday portends anything. The article was headed "Primaries No Clue to Presidential Nominees." Across the top of the page were four pictures, labeled Henry Ford, Augustus P. Gardner, Theodore E. Burton and William Jennings Bryan. While we recognize the countenances of Ford, Burton and Bryan, we can see no resemblance to Gussie Gardner. It's a picture of somebody else. Mistakes sometime happen in such well regulated newspaper families as the mammoth New York Times.

Chief Clarence W. Morgan, whose efforts to get Deputy Chief Daniel F. Sennott of the Boston Fire Department to come to Manchester last Monday evening to address the Brotherhood were successful after several attempts, mentioned to the Boston fireman the fact he had heard of his lecturing in Charlestown some time ago, and as he himself was a native of Charlestown he was interested. Deputy Sennott said that he was also a Charlestown native and comparison of notes by the two men led to the discovery that they had attended Bunker Hill school together although in different grades. They had many mutual acquaintances.

BROTHERHOOD CONCERT.

Ladies' night at the Brotherhood was an unqualified success, an audience which filled the auditorium of the Manchester Baptist church Wednesday evening listening to a splendid program of vocal and instrumental music. The entertainers, the Dvorak Concert Co., Boston, furnished a variety of pleasing numbers which were heartily applauded. Perhaps no special part of the program deserves to be singled out for praise, the numbers being alike meritorious, unless it be the readings of Miss Flora Haviland, which were so well chosen and so effectively rendered as to receive unusual approbation from the audience. Miss Marjory Warren, whose vocal solos delighted, is a resident of Beverly. Miss Edith Roubound, violin, and Ralph Rollins, bass-baritone, received their share of applause.

ODD FELLOWS CELEBRATE.

Magnolia Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Manchester, celebrated the 97th anniversary of Odd Fellowship in Town hall last evening when 300 members and guests were in attendance at an entertainment provided by the Venitian Trio of Boston. In his welcome to those present Nobel Grand John L. Prest told of the start of the order in Baltimore with five members and its growth to its present strength with over 2,000,000 members. The order has invested funds of $70,000,000 and distributes about $2,000,000 in benefits annually.

The entertainment was divided into four parts, the first being in Venitian costumes and the numbers being vocal and instrumental. The second part of the program, which was given in evening dress, was a reading by Miss Helen Andrews, soprano solos by Miss Margaret Elgee and mandocello solo by Frank C. Bradbury. The third part, in which Mr. Bradbury was featured in banjo selections, was devoted to southern melodies, and costumes were in accord. The final part of the program was made up of old-fashioned songs and readings, closing with "Old Lang Syne" by the players and the audience. Ice-cream and cake were served.

The Priest School ball team defeated the sub-freshmen at the club grounds Thursday afternoon 6 to 3.

Mr. O'Flaherty was a well-known figure about town and of late years had been in broken health. Death was due to heart failure.

Mr. O'Flaherty was born in the town of Armore in Ireland. His only surviving relative is a son, whose present home is not known. Requiem mass was celebrated at the Sacred Heart church in Manchester Thursday morning. Burial was in Montserrat.

PHILIP WADE.

CHURCHES

MANCHESTER

The Ladies Social circle will meet next Wednesday evening with Mrs. Alice Joseph, Lincoln st.

Harmony Guild will meet in the Congl. Chapel, Monday evening, May 8, to sew for charity. Everyone come and bring yearbook to be finished.

Next Tuesday evening at the Baptist church vestry the young people of the church will give an entertainment at 8 o'clock, entitled, "The Child in the Midst." An offering will be taken.

On Sunday morning at the Baptist church Rev. A. G. Warner will preach on "The Spiritual Influence of Enthusiasm," and at the evening service on "The Revelators of Character." At each service invitations and pledges will be distributed to any wishing to co-operate in any way with the Billy Sunday evangelistic campaign in Boston.

Delegates appointed at the Baptist Sunday school last Sunday for the annual convention of Salem district of Essex county of Baptist Sunday schools to be held in Lynn next Wednesday, May 10, are as follows: Mrs. Arthur Walker, Mrs. Nellie Rogers, Mrs. Helen Willmonton, Miss Dorothy Bohaker and Abbott Foster.

Tuesday evening was the occasion of great enjoyment on the part of the ladies of the Baptist church. A sociable attended by a large number was doubly enjoyed with the knowledge that a burden of debt against the church building had been lifted by the efforts of the women of the church. Four years ago the women wanted a kitchen added to the church vestry and notes for $700 were given in payment. After four years of effort, during which time money has been raised by a great variety of methods by committees appointed each month, the notes were burned on Tuesday evening, the last payment having been made a short time ago. Mrs. Edward Crowell, president of the Ladies' Aid, and Mrs. Helen Willmonton, treasurer, attended to the ceremony of burning the notes. The feature of the entertainment was a reading by Mrs. Charlotte Brown, "Seven Times Seven." Seven tableaux illustrated the reading. Vocal solos were rendered by Rev. A. G. Warner and Archie Coll. A duet was sung by Mrs. Alice Lee and J. Davis Baker.

Question of Merging Parish and Church Societies.

An important meeting of the First Parish, Manchester, is to be held this evening in the Congl. Chapel, to take action relative to the merging of the Parish with the church society. The meeting is called for 7.30 o'clock.

The benefit dance held in Town hall on Friday evening of last week by the Leap Year Associates was a big success. In addition to an enjoyable evening the dancers had the satisfaction of seeing a substantial fund raised for the benefit of a Manchester woman. Music was by Long's orchestra.

BROTHERHOOD MEETING

Roger W. Babson Related Experiences in Central America and Told of Business Prospects.

A PROPHECY of the future of America's relations with the Latin-American republics was made by Roger W. Babson in his address to the Brotherhood in the Baptist church, Manchester, Monday evening. Instead of closer relations in commerce and diplomacy with the larger nations of South America, Argentina, Brazil and Chile and possibly Peru, Mr. Babson predicted that the coming years would see a wider separation from us on the part of the 'A-B-C-" powers. On the other hand he predicted that between the countries of Central America and the United States a closer bond of unity would be brought about if we profited by our mistakes in the Latin-American republics. in the other Latin-American republics. America is not very highly regarded by the people of the southern republics, who distrust our intentions toward them. Mr. Babson said that it was the duty of Americans to correct by their future conduct these misconceptions.

Mr. Babson has just returned from a tour of the Central American republics where he went on a mission for Secretary of the Treasurer McAdoo. Speaking of the Monroe Doctrine he said that originally it meant the United States would not stand for foreign nations having a military or naval station on this continent. Then these countries got in debt and European nations, who financed them, sent over warships to collect. When this country interferred the creditors asked the United States to assume the responsibility of payment. The present state of the Monroe Doctrine is that we maintain a paternal interest in the affairs of the southern republic and they make no international agreements without our approval. In the future, so far as the larger countries are concerned, less will be heard about the Monroe Doctrine, but the smaller nations will come more and more under our supervision, in Mr. Babson's opinion.

Mr. Babson told of his visit to Colombia and of the attitude of the people toward America. Children in the schools are taught that we are a nation of robbers and that we stole the Panama Canal territory. The payment of the $25,000,000 proposed in the recently adopted treaty will do much to relieve the tension in our relations with that republic, he said. Colombia is rich in rivers, which are chiefly used for transportation. Land and labor is cheap and its principal port, Cartagena, is handy to New York. It is easier for other South American nations to trade in Europe, but Colombia presents opportunities for Americans.

In Costa Rica a greater percentage of the men own their own homes than in any country in the world, Mr. Babson said. The people are prosperous and their moral standards are high. In Honduras, the largest of the Central American republics, conditions are just the opposite. There are only 600,000 people in this large country and they are very indolent. The country is immensely rich in resources.

Nicaragua has little regard for the United States, Mr. Babson said. For the past four years United States marines have patrolled the streets of the cities and had it not been for their presence the recent treaty signed by the two nations would not have been ratified. American marines stood over the natives as they voted, he said. We are unpopular because our marines are supporting the minority party which is in power.

Salvador is the most advanced of the little republics which are coming more and more under the control of the United States. It has been called the "Germany of the Western Hemisphere." Its people are highly efficient, prosperous and moral.

Guatemala was the country described most at length. It has every variety of climate to be found in the United States and as great a variety of crops. Labor is very cheap, but living conditions are in accord. Mr. Babson hired a man to carry his baggage over a trail when he was compelled to make a trip on mule back for 200 miles. At the end of a thirty mile walk with the heavy luggage on his back the man was glad to receive ten cents. He then fed himself out of the money and walked back home thirty miles. Another carrier was late in reaching a train with the baggage and when Mr. Babson returned three days later he found that the man had been kept in jail until his return. The officials would not allow him to pay the man anything for his services because he had been late. Guatemala City, the capital, is 4800 feet above the sea level and the climate is very temperate. Among the prices prevailing in the republic were the following: Porterhouse steak, 10 cents a pound; green peas, 10 cents a peck; eggs, 6 cents a dozen; street car fare, one-half cent. Telegrams may be sent anywhere in Central America for five cents. The prices of imported articles are extremely high. Taxes are six dollars a thousand and the property is assessed for one-twentieth of its value.

"To solve the high cost of living you should work in Manchester day times and sleep in Guatemala nights," said Mr. Babson. The country is favorable to development by Americans and there are good opportunities for investment. He counseled against the exploitation of the country, which has been the curse of the other Latin-American republics. He was in an earthquake while in Guatemala City. Mrs. Babson made the trip with him.

At present the business opportunities are in the larger republics, but after the war they will be competitors with us and there will be a question of the advisability of going into these countries to invest . Guatemala, he said, was the least developed, the most temperate, was nearer the United States and was eventually coming under our dominion.

Concluding Mr. Babson said: "We will lose the big republics, but we will gain the little ones as friends. If you go into them to do business, go with the spirit of service and development, not of exploitation. Put in as much as you take out. In the end you will get only what you put in." Drawing a lesson from the varied cost of labor and living in Guatemala he said: "The high cost of living goes with high wages. You can't eat the pie and have it too. Labor can never get more by decreasing production; it is only by increasing production that we get more."

Mr. Babson has spoken to the Brotherhood on many previous occasions, this being his seventh appearance. There was a large attendance and many friends in the audience sought him out afterwards for a pleasant chat. Mr. Babson's son, Curtis accompanied him to Manchester and was used as a "model" by Mr. Babson to exhibit some native costumes.

No Flower Show This Year.

The North Shore Horticultural society does not propose to hold a flower show this season—the first time in the history of the organization. The society is putting all its efforts into its new home at Manchester, plans for which are now being prepared. The building site is on Summer st., about opposite the railroad station. When plans are ready they will be printed in the Breeze and details given.

MAGNOLIA

Jonathan May, the real estate man, is ill at his home on Western ave.

Mrs. F. F. Story, who has been with relatives in Winchester, has returned to her home on Summer st.

A son was born, Saturday, Apr. 29, to Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Crane, at the Magnolia station.

The usual service will be held Sunday morning at the Village church and the pastor, Rev. Dr. Walter S. Eaton, will deliver the sermon. Communion after the service.

Rev. Edward Abbott Chase gave a lecture on "Through Nature to God," last Sunday evening at the Village church and he attracted a large attendance. The lecture shed new light on an old subject and was very much enjoyed.

The poem printed on another page entitled "A Plea for Peace," was written by Peter J. Hill, who has worked in Magnolia for several years. Most of the lines were written by Mr. Hill when he was on the way back from England in March, when his mind and soul were aflame with the sentiment expressed.

W. A. Nightingale will give an illustrated lecture on the United States Navy, Sunday evening, at 7.30 o'clock. Mr. Nightingale is more than usually well qualified to speak upon this subject that is of such great interest at this time and his stereopticon views, of which there are 175, are not exceptionally good pictures, but cover the most interesting phases of this important subject.

Magnolia summer visitors, as well as the village people, will be interested in the coming of Prof. Lyman F. Brackett of Boston to the Village church here to hold the position of organist from this Sunday through September. Prof. Brackett is an accomplished musician and in addition to his regular church work he will from time to time give free organ recitals which will be announced through the columns of the BREEZE. These will be a great pleasure to the community and the whole village, as well as the church, is most fortunate in securing him for the summer season. This was made possible through the generosity of a friend of the Village church.

At the Congregational church Sunday morning services commemorative of the American Bible Society centennial will be held, with an appropriate sermon by the minister, Rev. F. M. Cutler. The Communion sacrament will be administered. Sunday School at noon. Y. P. S. C. E. meeting at 6.

On each of the past three years the choir of the Topsfield Congregational church, Lyman A. Perkins, director, have visited Wenham and conducted choral services. Observers note that attendance upon these occasions has been larger than upon any other during the entire year, so high is the esteem in which these musicians are held. Next Sunday, May 7, will be the date of their fourth visit to Wenham. The hour will be 7 p. m.

Wednesday and Thursday are the dates when the Home Missionary Societies, four of them, will hold a joint annual meeting in the Park st. church, Boston. These are all national societies, and never before have they combined their sessions. It is a rare opportunity for Congregationalists and others to attend.

On Wednesday afternoon and evening the Essex South Association of Congregational churches, of which Wenham is a member, will meet with the church in Saugus.

Bishop Phillips Brooks was conducting a conference in hot weather. He appeared at one of the sessions in a short alpaca coat. An intimate friend sent a note to him asking if he did not think it a little out of place for the presiding officer to appear in such a garb. MAJESTIC THEATRE, BOSTON.

"The Only Girl," which during its long season in Boston early last winter attracted and charmed multitudes, and which theatregoers pronounced as among the very best of the many products of Victor Herbert as composer, with Henry Blossom as librettist, is again the attraction at the Majestic Theatre, where it was previously presented. The second week begins next Monday, May 8.

Keyed to Victor Herbert's musical gems, sparklings like diamond flashes, "The Only Girl," lives in Boston memory as a jewel of melodious comedy, as one does not easily forget its fascinating waltz theme, "When You're Away," its rousing march song "Here's to the Land we Love," and the rythmic "When Your Ankle Wears the Ball and Chain," along with its many other musical charms.

In story too "The Only Girl" strikes an original note both in theme and treatment, for which praise has been often extolled as being more than a musical farce. Good old summer time prices will prevail, with $1.50 for the best orchestra seats, evenings, and $1.00 for the best seats at the Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

At a certain military hospital a dear old lady could never see that the Tommies objected to her fussing round, and none of the staff had the heart to enlighten her ignorance. "I didn't know you had Russian soldiers here," she said one day. "Russian? We don't," replied the official. "What do you mean?" "At least one is Russian," insisted the old lady. "He told me his name." "Did he?" "Yes, I was asking them about their wounds and what their names were, and this one replied, 'Obuzzoff!'"—Pearson's Weekly.

Lost in the Fields

By Elizabeth Barrett Browning

The little cares that fretted me,
I lost them yesterday
Among the fields above the sea,
Among the winds at play;
Among the lowing of the herds,
The rustling of the trees,
Among the singing of the birds,
The humming of the bees;
The foolish fears of what may happen
I cast them all away
Among the clover-scented grass,
Among the new-mown hay;
Among the husking of the corn.
Where drowsy poppies nod,
Where ill thoughts die and good are born,
Out in the fields with God.

During its early days John Fox, Jr., took a trip in Arkansas. He was concerned at the rate of speed at which the train rounded the sharp curves of the single track. Finally the novelist leaned across the swaying car and inquired: "Say, don't you think this is a bit reckless—going so fast? What if we'd meet another train around one of these curves!" "No feah of that, suh," assured the fellow passenger calmly, "We've got the road's engine on this heah train, suh."—Christian Register.

"My doctor told me I would have to quit eating so much meat." "Did you laugh him to scorn?" "I did at first; but, when he sent in his bill, I found he was right."—Washington Star.

There is something wrong with the man who boasts that he hasn't an enemy in the world.

B. F. Keith's Theatre.

Direct from its sensational two years' run in London, Langdon McCormick's thrilling and sensational railroad melodramma, "The Forest Fire," with Sylvia Bidwell and company of fifteen people, in three big scenes and two tableaux, will head the vaudeville bill offered at B. F. Keith's Theatre, "The Amusement Centre of Boston," the week of May 8th. It is the most startlingly realistic and sensational reproduction of a forest fire in all its terror ever placed upon the stage. The climax of the play comes when a huge locomotive dashes through the blazing forest at a mile a minute clip, while giant timbers and tree trunks fall crashing across the railroad track. This act ran for two years at the London Opera House, and was brought to this country for the Keith Circuit. An excellent bill supports the headliner.

Boston Theatre.

A surprise was sprung at the Boston Theatre last Monday afternoon, which has already become town talk. After the pictures the curtain rises upon a beautiful stage setting, showing a handsome palace looking out into a deep forest. Against this background is presented four vaudeville acts of the very highest class.

Summer Agricultural Schools.

The summer school bulletin of the Mass. Agricultural college has just been issued and contains announcements of the various dates for the summer schools. The summer school for agriculture and country life will be in session from July 3 to 28; school for rural and village teachers, July 12 to 18; organization work for girls and women, July 12 to 18; school for rural clergymen, July 12 to 18; camps for boys and girls, July 3 to 29; poultry convention, 19 to 21. A copy of the bulletin may be obtained by writing to the supervisor of short courses, William D. Hurd, Amherst. A determined effort is being made to get 5,000 fruit growers in the state to join the spraying campaign in an attempt to make 1916 a "better apple year" in the state.

Sags in roof-gutters may act as mosquito breeding places.

Copley Theatre, Boston.

Mary Miles Minter, remembered as the charming original "Littlest Rebel," will open the Copley Theatre, Dartmouth st., Boston, Monday afternoon, May 8, in "The Fairy and the Waif," when that theatre will inaugurate a policy of refined photoplays. Performances will be given afternons and evenings, all seats being reserved.

What Lucy Larcom Has Said of the North Shore in Her Poems

By LILLIAN McCANN

"Cape Ann has her own poets, nightingales
Warbling among her roses, rarely heard,
Except by those who woke that minstrelsy.
Cool coves,
That open to blue breadths of sea; lost roads,
Wandering, bewildered, past forsaken homes,
House and inhabitant forgotten now,
And grass-grown cellar-hollows their sole sign;
Strange rocking-stones a-tilt for centuries;
White lily-ponds and dark magnolia-beds;
Sands that give music to your footstep; pines
Hoarse with forever answering the sea's moan,—
These will awaken to poetic life
In hearts of unborn minstrels."

THE North Shore owes a debt of gratitude to the many poets who have sung of its beauties and charm and to our own Lucy Larcom, in particular, for the beautiful poems in her collection, "Wild Roses of Cape Ann." These poems brought much praise from her contemporaries. Dr. Holmes said that "she was as true a product of our Essex County soil as the bayberry." Longfellow wrote saying: "I have always liked your poetry, and now I like it more than ever."

The collection includes all her poems of her home surroundings and legends of her beloved Cape Ann Side, as the whole region was known in the early days.

The summer visitor to the Cape who believes that "a rose is sweet, no matter where it grows" can appreciate her lines when she says:

"But our wild roses, flavored with the sea,
And colored by the salt winds and much sun
To healthiest intensity of bloom,—
We think the world has none so beautiful.
Even from his serious height, the Puritan
Stooped to their fragance, and recorded them."

The poem "The Lady Arbella" is one of the sweetest. In this she relates the story of Lady Arbella's coming to this country with her husband on the fleet of ships brought over by Governor Winthrop; their anchoring over the Sabbath just off the Beverly shore, then called Bass-River-Side.

"And the wild rose is sweeter on Bass-River-Side
For breathing where once breathed the sweet
English bride."

Again she says: "Dear and gracious spirit! The memory of her brief sojourn here has left New England more truly consecrated ground. Sweetest of womanly pioneers! It is as if an angel in passing on to heaven just touched with her wings this rough coast of ours." The Lady Arbella died within three months after her arrival in this new country.

The lover of the delightful North Shore roads may appreciate these lines:

"When the coast-country, from Bass River east
To Agawam, was known as Cape-Ann-Side,
Up from the ferry ran one winding road
Through pleasant Beverly, past Wenham Lake,
Losing itself in the Chebacco woods
Among a hidden chain of gem-like ponds:
A cow-path, so the ancient gossips say,
Branching upon the left through Ryal-Side,
To Salem Village; and upon the right,
Skirting the seashore down through Jeffrey's Creek
And the magnolia-swamp, to Sandy Bay,
And Pigeon Cove, and sheltered Annisquam.
Thanks to the zig-zag pioneering kine
For picturesque roads, impossible to spoil
By leveling or by straightening!"

Other lines especially interesting are:

"And yet the Ocean weds the shore, sometimes,
With perfect interchange of light and joy;
* * * * * * * * such are the blue sea
And the bright coast that meets within the curves
You follow, loitering around Kettle Cove
And Eagle Head, and past the Singing Sands,
And by the sea-fringed Farms of Beverly.
* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *
Beauty must still have contrast; yonder, see
Two tawny islands, floundering like whales
As near land as they dare—The Miseries—
The Great and Little Misery, made two
By a swift strait the cattle ford at ebb,
Ruminating as they wade: mere lumps of earth;
The least one takes the sea's brunt-buttresses
And bastions worn by the besieging East."

Her descriptions of the ancestral home at Beverly Farms is interesting.

"A sunny, sea-blown cottage-nook was that,—
My father's home, his grandsire's father's home,—
Set where, as from a shoulder, her green cloak
The land trails to the ocean, and begins
The reach of Cape-Ann-Side. Upon the hills
The apple-trees met the descending pines;
Sweet-brier and garden-roses intertwined;
Nature and cultivation joined their hands
To make a home-like place: so buttercups
And daisies, dropped with English grass-seed, grew
Among strange blooms of the aboriginal woods,
And cheered the Pilgrim women with a thought
Of dear haunts left behind;
* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *
A sunny, sea-blown nook, it gathered in
All strays and waifs: loose drifts of slavery,
Stranded in pitiful helplessness, dead weight
Upon their master's hands; * * * not one
Who needed food or shelter turned aside.

Many came from this ancestral home.

"A line of stalwart boys and vigorous girls,
Whose hands were there sole fortune, character
And trust in God their sole inheritance."

In her earlier poems is found one on the light-houses on Baker's Island. She calls them

"Two white angels of the sea,
Guiding wave-worn wanderers home!
Sentinels of hope are ye,
Drenched with sleet, and dashed with foam,
Standing there in lineliness,
Fireside joys for men to keep;
Through the midnight slumberless
That the quiet shore may sleep!"

One of the earlier poems that young people may enjoy on account of the good story it contains touching upon witchcraft days begins:

"You may ride in an hour or two, if you will,
From Halibut Point to Beacon Hill,

With the sea beside you all the way,
Through pleasant places that skirt the Bay;
By Gloucester Harbor and Beverly Beach,
Salem's old steeples, Nahant's long reach,
Blue-bordered Swampscott, and Chelsea's wide
Marshes, laid bare to the drenching tide,
With a glimpse of Saugus spire in the west,
And Malden hills in their dreamy rest."

Her poem "Mistress Hale of Beverly" is also one of special interest in that it tells of the "witchcraft year" and how the "last black shadow of the dreadful witchcraft delusion" had rested over her home town; and how the accusation of the good woman, Mrs. Hale, the wife of the minister of the First Church of Beverly, had broken the spell of the delusion. She says: "Witches were seldom spoken of in the presence of us children. We sometimes overheard a snatch of a witch-story, told in whispers, by the flickering firelight, just as we were being sent off to bed. But, to the older people, those legends were too much like realities, and they preferred not to repeat them." And she adds, that, although "Mistress Hale's house was just across the burying-ground, and Gallows Hill was only two miles away, beyond the bridge," yet she never knew what the "Salem Witchcraft" was until she read of it in her school history.

Lucy Larcom wrote her first rhymes when seven years of age. She has said that "Rich or poor, every child comes into the world with some imperative need of its own, which shapes its individuality.' Her "must have" was poetry. She found poetry everywhere about her. She says: "Poetry is not purchasable material, but an atmosphere in which every life may expand. The children of old New England were always surrounded, it is true, with stubborn matter of fact,—the hand to hand struggle for existence. But that was no hindrance. Poetry must have prose to root itself in; the homelier its earth-spot, the lovelier, by contrast, its heaven-breathing flowers."

Of her friend and summer neighbor at Beverly Farms, Dr. Holmes, she wrote:

"Who is he? His masterly lyrics we know;
We learned in our childhood the charm of his page,
And his verse does not show yet one sign of old age:
Though our own heads may whiten, he makes us feel young
With his songs, through all seasons so cherily sung."

The beauty of the North Shore in the winter time is emphasized in that little poem, "A White World," written at Beverly Farms, January 1, 1873.

"I never knew the world in white
So beautiful could be
As I have seen it here today,
Beside the wintry sea;
A new earth, bride of a new heaven,
Has been revealed to me.

The sunrise blended wave and cloud
In one broad flood of gold,
But touched with rose the world's white robes
In every curve and fold;
While the blue air did over all
Its breath in wonder hold."

IN the everyday discussion of American "preparedness" constant reference is made to the Swiss system of military training. Many advocates of preparedness favor the Swiss method of military service, leading among them being the editors of the Outlook from which excerpts from a recent article on "The Swiss Soldier," written by Jean Martin of the editorial staff of the Journal De Genève, are taken. The value of the Swiss system pointed out by Mr. Martin is in its great educational as well as defensive qualities. The spirit of nationalism and patriotism generated by the training system of the little Helvetian republic is regarded as one of the chief points in favor of the system. The following points are made by Mr. Martin:

"The year 1870 had shown the insufficiency of our army organization. Forty-four years of assiduous toil gave time enough to make of that organization, not a perfect instrument—it might be extravagant to pretend this—but one may say at least a sufficiently perfected mechanism to insure the country's defense. What is the Swiss army system? It is that of universal military service, obligatory on all citizens. If a medical commission declares a citizen ineligible he must pay a tax, of which the proceeds go towards military defense expenses. ****

"At nineteen years of age every Swiss must submit himself to a so-called sanitary inspection. This means, however, a double examination, mental as well as physical. The results of these examinations are published every year. The twenty-two cantons which compose the Republic are classified according to the averages obtained. This gives a healthy rivalry to all of the cantons and induces them to perfect the gymnastic and civic instruction in their schools.*

"In sixty-seven days the Swiss lad learns many things. First of all he learns to obey. This is not the easiest task in the world, because, like the good republican he is, he wants to have his little say on everything, to express his opinions at all times, and in particular to criticise the authorities whenever he can.*

"The young soldier forms part of a section and a company of recruits. He lives no longer by himself, self-centered in his own fantasies; he is part of a great family, a new family for him, the army. The great family makes demands upon him which at first may astonish him. ****

"The school of recruits comes to an end with the maneuvers. These take place generally in the mountains, because the ruggedness of the country makes it more interesting from a military point of view. Such a setting for the maneuvers also makes the greatest impression on the young citizen.

"Now for the officers. They are all chosen from the troops. Every Swiss officer has to begin by doing his soldier's service. This is a desirable principle, and from it there is no exception made in our country. Every officer's grade may bring supplementary duties which may be legally imposed. ****

"But you will doubtless ask, 'Does not your country suffer economically because so many men are taken from their ordinary work?' In ordinary times the Swiss public suffers little. The Recruit service of sixty-seven days' duration is at an age when the young citizen can without grave inconvenience leave his occupation for two months. As to the annual repetition courses, they are so very short (thirteen days) that their effect on commerce, industry, and agriculture is not noticeable; for twenty to twenty-eight years of age one can give up thirteen days a year to the country's defense. ****

"Even in this troubled period, Switzerland, though entirely surrounded by belligerent nations, can continue to live protected by the rampart of her army. Despite any defects in organization, despite any errors, despite any infelicitous action, she has, up to the present, risen above the dangers of the world war. And if she has been able to do this, I do not hesitate to declare that it has principally been because of an army organization according to the system of universal and obligatory military service.

"In such manner we have put into practice this principle, 'If one wishes to be well defended, one must defend one's self.'"

AMONG the cottage rentals reported this week is the James Lee house at Magnolia to Mrs. John E. Lancaster and family of Worcester—Miss Rosamond and John E. Lancaster, Jr.—who were at the Oceanside last year. They will come about the middle of June for a three months' stay. Miss Lancaster was one of the most popular of the younger set at Magnolia last season and she played a prominent part in the social life at Palm Beach this last winter.

Mrs. J. L. Chalifoux of 377 Wilder st., Lowell, who had the Underwood cottage at Magnolia last year, has leased the Richards M. Bradley residence on Smith's Point, Manchester, for the summer. Her son Harold L. Chalifoux will spend most of the summer with her. Mrs. John Chess Ellsworth of South Bend, Ind., is a daughter. The Ellsworths have recently bought the Dr. Tenney cottage, "Wayside," at Manchester Cove. Mr. and Mrs. Richards M. Bradley have kept their house at Manchester open all winter for week-ends and will be here more or less until June, when they go to the country for the hot weather months.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Barbour (Rosamond Pierce) of 12 Hereford st., Boston, will occupy the Frank Seabury house at Beverly Farms this summer. The H. P. McKean, Jrs., have been spending the winter there while their own house at the Willow Tree Farm has been moved back from the highway, to the edge of a beautiful grove on the extensive grounds, and all changed over and enlarged. The Walter Hunnewells had the Seabury house last year. They will probably return to Beverly Farms this summer, occupying another house.

Alexander Cumnock of Lowell has leased the O. M. Fields cottage on the Lothrop Boulevard, Beverly, for the summer. This and the other rentals above were made through the Boardman office of Boston and Manchester, who report an unusual demand for North Shore estates this year.

THE workroom for the American Fund for French wounded which was carried on so successfully on the North Shore last season, first at Mrs. W. D. Denégre's coach-house, West Manchester, and later, in the early autumn, at Mrs. E. S. Grew's coach-house, will be reopened the first of June and Mrs. Grew has again most kindly given her coach-house at West Manchester for this purpose. The need and suffering in French hospitals is greater than ever, and the demand increases for surgical supplies; therefore an appeal is being made for personal service and financial aid to the residents of the North Shore to continue this work. The meetings will be held on Mondays and Thursdays, from 10 to 1, beginning on Thursday, June 1st. Money is very much needed to purchase the materials. Checks can be made payable and sent to Miss Harriet Rantoul, treasurer, Beverly Farms. The committee has been reorganized in the following manner: Mrs. Russell Codman, chairman; Mrs. M. G. Haughton, secretary; Miss Harriet Rantoul, treasurer; Mrs. Robert S. Bradley, Mrs. Lester Leland, Mrs. Henry S. Grew, 2d, Mrs. George Lyman and Miss Alice Thorndike.

Mrs. R. H. Fitz and family are closing their town residence at 18 Arlington st., Boston, this week, and are occupying their house at West Manchester for the summer, Saturday.

Mrs. Chas. S. Hanks is at her house in West Manchester for the season.

The Clark cottage, corner Blossom Lane and Masconomo st., Manchester, has been rented for the summer, through the office of Meredith & Grew, Boston, but not to Samuel Felton, 3d, as reported in some quarters.

The Augustus Hemenway house at Smith's Point, Manchester, has been leased for the summer to a Chicago family. The Heaton cottage at Beverly Farms has also been leased,—to a Boston family.

SO successful was the Navy Festival held last summer on the Haven estate at Beverly Farms, in aid of the Navy Y. M. C. A. building fund, plans are already well underway for an entertainment of some sort this year. The affair will be of an entirely different nature than the Festival and will be held on Mr. Amos A. Lawrence's place, at Beaver Pond, off Essex st., Beverly. Details will be given later, as to the form of entertainment. June 17 has been spoken of as the date, but it may not be held until Saturday, July 1. Mr. Lawrence's grounds are so charmingly located amid beautiful trees on the edge of Beaver Pond, it will be admirably suited to an out-door fete such as is planned.

POETRY has come again to its own. The renaissance of poetry is upon us. It is being read everywhere now. It is said that in the hospitals and trenches young men are reading poetry who never before had any use for it. Laurence Hausman, the English poet, dramatist and mystic, who is visiting America, says this new enthusiasm for poetry is born of the "Great Struggle." He says the war has awakened the spirituality of the world, and in literature its most conspicuous manifestation is for poetry, and more and more poetry is being written and read and appreciated in England today than has been the case for many years.

This is also true of America, where magazines of poetry are now being published successfully. At first these magazines were thought to be impractical here in busy America. "America's Golden Age in Poetry" is the subject of a recent article in one of the magazines.

One of our leading poets and editors says: "from the great amount of attention which poetry is having in the press both by quotations and by comment it seems a fair deduction that not only is the interest in poetry extensive but also that it is constantly increasing."

Of course the deplorable part of all this is the number of would-be poets who will rise to the surface.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Palmer Gavit of Albany were in Manchester yesterday making preliminary arrangements for opening the Stevens cottage the last of this month.

Louis Baer and family of Botson are opening "Buena Vista," their attractive summer home in Manchester, next Thursday.

WASHINGTON is having a week's entertainment at the Octagon House in aid of wounded French soldiers this week during the horse show. The tableaux which were given at Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont's Newport home last summer were a feature on Monday night. Mrs. Charles A. Munn, Jr., of the North Shore represented War.

Mrs. Henry C. Perkins will assist at the flower booth at the benefit for the Washington Diet Kitchen, May 20.

Judge William H. Moore of New York was at the Willard this week while attending the horse show. He was a guest at the Metropolitan club last Friday night at a dinner given in honor of the judges, officers and directors of the association by Gen. James A. Buchanan, U. S. A., president of the National Capital horse show.

The wedding of Miss Harriet Southerland, daughter of Admiral and Mrs. Wm. H. H. Southerland, and J. Butler Wright, will take place on May 27 at the home of the bride. It will be witnessed by only the immediate family.

NEW YORK

Mrs. James Henry Lancashire was a boxholder at the recent annual entertainment given by the pupils of Miss Spence's school at the Plaza hotel ballroom for the benefit of a home charity. Two plays were given and Miss Lila Lancashire took part in the large chorus.

In the death of Edward J. De Coppet, New York has lost one of the best known patrons of music in the city. He was the founder of the Flongaley Quartet, which sang mostly for his own private enjoyment, besides often appearing in public. His summers were usually spent abroad. The De Coppet family spent last season at Pride's Crossing.

William Shakespeare sat with Queen Elizabeth and saw his characters pass by at the gorgeous pageant or circus as it was called, arranged by Miss Anne Morgan and given last Friday night by the members of the Vacation Association at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory. After the performance the Bard of Avon was introduced to the circus managers and the fashionable throng of boxholders.

We think our civilization near its meridian, but we are yet only at the cock-crowing and the morning star.—Emerson.

DETROIT had a May Day bridge party in which over 400 participated in aid of the National Plant, Flower and Fruit guild. Miss Doris McMillan and Miss Catherine Remick assisted among other of the winter debutantes.

Blessed is he who has found his work; let him ask no other blessedness.—Carlyle.

CHICAGO Woman's City Club gave a luncheon last week at the Auditorium Hotel and heard an address by George Coleman, president of the Boston city council. The progressive West heard from the conservative East the up-to-date way to run a city under the non-partisan system. Mr. Coleman gave the women of Boston credit for much of the reform work done in their city, stating that the Boston Woman's City Club, organized with three members ten years ago, now has a membership of almost 7,000, with a waiting list of 800.

Mrs. Russell Tyson, who will be at Lake Forest for the summer, will continue in charge of the French War Shop, whose promoters are most anxious to keep it open during the summer.

Mrs. R. T. Crane, Jr., is on the committee assisting with the preparations for the great suffrage parade of June 7. Plans are being made for a convention ball and garden party on the day before at the Harold McCormick place on the Lake Shore drive.

At the French war relief meeting last week a march was played on the organ which had been composed by Mrs. William H. Hubbard, who frequently visits at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Robert Means, of Beverly Farms. Mrs. Hubbard has divers accomplishments, besides being an author of much music and a skilled performer she is also an amateur actor of ability. She has recently sold her fine estate in Lake Forest adjoining the E. S. Moores. Other daughters besides Mrs. Means are Mrs. Harry Cooke, Jr., and Mrs. Robert Lee, all members of the Junior League.

Mrs. James B. Waller, who summers at Coolidge's Pt., Manchester, gave a luncheon last week for her house guest, Mrs. Roswell Miller of New York.

The Daughters of the British Empire, of Illinois, will celebrate "Victoria Day," May 20, with a luncheon at the Auditorium Hotel. Patronesses include Mrs. Arthur Meeker and Mrs. John Clay.

The wonderful concert given by the Russian choir at Mandel hall last Tuesday afternoon was attended by a large deputation of society folk, among whom were Mrs. R. T. Crane, Jr., Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Mrs. Arthur Meeker, and Miss Suzette Ryerson. This Russian choir is one of Charles R. Crane's pet protéges. Its only rival is the biological laboratory at Wood's Hole, Mass.—a wonderful institution. Each of these widely differing enterprises is indebted to Mr. Crane for an enthusiastic and generous support—financial and moral—which much enlarges the sphere of both. He brought these Russian singers over, at his own expense, from the musical conservatory at Moscow, and presented them to the Russian church in New York.

INTEREST in the Plattsburg, N. Y., military training camp for civilians increases as the time of the opening draws near. Enrollment at the present time indicates that the camp this year will far outreach the proportions of last year's camp. The first Senior Camp will be held June 5 until July 2. This includes graduates of colleges and universities under 45 years of age and other citizens between 21 and 45 who have qualifications or experience equivalent to such an education. The next camp will be the Junior division which will include college undergraduates, graduates of colleges in 1916, High School Seniors or private school students of equal rank and graduates of secondary schools under 21 years of age. The Junior camp will be held from July 5 to August 8 and if there are sufficient applications another Junior camp may be held. Other camps for the Senior division will be held July 12 to August 8, August 10 to Sept. 6 and Sept. 8 to Oct. 5. Each recruit furnishes his uniform and personal equipment and makes a small deposit to cover the cost of mess and any damage to Government property. All camp equipment is furnished by the U. S. Government. The camp site and lighting is furnished by the City of Plattsburg.

AN appeal is made to the admirers of Nathaniel Hawthorne to assist in the erection of a memorial to that famed author. Every year hundreds of people visit the scenes of his labors in Salem and wonder why no more fitting memorial remains of him than the run-down buildings which he made famous in his literary works. This wonder oft expressed has at last borne fruit and the Hawthorne Memorial Association is behind a movement to raise funds to erect a bronze statue in one of Salem's new parks. An honorary committee "representing the world of letters" has given its endorsement to the project: Francis H. Appleton, S. Barradell-Smith, James M. Barrie, John Burroughs, George W. Cable, Joseph H. Choate, Sidney Colvin, William W. Ellsworth, William C. Endicott, William H. SWAMPSCOTT summer residents are willing to be urged to the Shore by the weather, which is improving every day. Cottagers continue to come down to this bend of the North Shore with a continuity that indicates a season that will be far from dull.

George F. Schrafft of Boston is down on the shore for the season. Mr. Schrafft and family are at the Bond cottage on Puritan lane, near the New Ocean House, this summer.

Frederick H. Wick and family of Framingham have arrived at Swampscott for the summer. The place, "Grasshead," is very picturesquely located on Little's Point.

A new auto bus will meet every train and bring Tedesco members to the club, starting Saturday, May 27. Formerly a carriage or a touring car filled this need.

The staging around the New Ocean House addition is being removed and although most people thought it would not be ready for this season it will be finished in time for occupancy by July 15. The work on the seven-story, year-round addition has been rushed and a perfectly appointed hostelry will be the result of the enterprise of the president of this concern, E. R. Grabow.

Early season social affairs at the Tedesco Country club are on the increase. Wednesday Mrs. L. M. Atherton of Phillips Beach entertained a party of 18 friends at luncheon and whist. The same afternoon Mrs. F. C. Spinney of the Swampscott colony entertained four ladies at luncheon and cards at the club.

A feature at Tedesco this summer will be trap-shooting on the recently acquired Porter property, east of the clubhouse. Eugene W. Ong is the inspiration of this idea for the club and the snapping of rifles at clay pigeons will give a semi-preparedness atmosphere to the sports there.

Golf events at Tedesco start on May 30, Memorial Day. The 18-hole course will be opened to the members within 10 days; at present the nine-hole course is being used.

The tea room at the club is being entirely refurnished in a dark color scheme this summer which is pleasing to the eye. A committee of three ladies, Mrs. C. H. Conway, Mrs. W. M. Bunting and Mrs. W. M. Creighton are superintending the work and choosing the various decorative features of this cooling spot. Draperies, screens, chairs and brac-a-brac are to be of a flower design, of a soft-toned dark hue. This is the coolest spot in the clubhouse in summer and has a capacity of 70 persons grouped about dainty little tables. It looks directly out upon the golf course, from an elevated viewpoint.

George L. Bowdoin, who was golf instructor at Tedesco last season, is at the club again this summer.

Vincent Astor, who was on the shore for some time last summer while he was learning to run his aeroplane at the Burgess factory, is expected down on the Swampscott shore again within a few days. He likes this section immensely, in fact, quite as much as his estate at Rhinebeck, N. Y., where he amuses himself between his flying boat, yacht and his numerous motors. He and his young wife were familiar figures all along the shore last summer.

NAHANT.—Mr. and Mrs. Homer B. Richardson of Marlboro street, Boston, have leased for the coming months the attractive Dabney villa at Nahant, where they are expecting to make things very pleasant for Mrs. Richardson's daughter, Miss M. Frances Clark, whom they presented last winter. This will make the Richardsons' third season at Nahant, and they are delightfully anticipating the coming months. Miss Clark's most intimate friend, Miss Sallie Sherburne of Beacon street, goes with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Sherburne, to their country home at Marblehead in June.

CLIFTON'S summer colony has a few new houses in it this season and practically all of the residents who have been coming there for years will be down on the shore within a fortnight, only a few awaiting the close of schools.

Ralph H. Whitney of Dorchester, with Mrs. Whitney and their two children, have moved down to their Humphrey street cottage for the season.

Dr. F. W. O'Reilly of Lynn is at the Cook cottage.

The new home of Mrs. Edith Partridge, off Isburg road, is nearly ready for occupancy.

MARBLEHEAD'S spurt of cottage renting during the last month keeps up at a rapid pace and real estate dealers and those who have cottages to rent are wreathed in smiling faces.

Gardner R. Hathaway, who handles the bulk of Marblehead's summer property both on the neck and mainland, reports many rentals for the season.

John J. Martin of Boston, ex-president of the Mass. Real Estate Exchange, has rented a house on the town side.

Other Hathaway rentals are:

Fred R. Beebe of Weston in the Cheever cottage on Highland avenue.

Miss M. C. Dana of Boston, at the Burlen cottage, 'Neck.

G. K. Simmonds of Fitchburg at the Graves cottage, Harbor View.

Judge David Leventritt of New York in "Reycroft," Peach's Point, formerly occupied by C. M. Hewitt, who died at Palm Beach last winter.

Frank P. Munroe of Marblehead, the Russell cottage on the 'Neck.

Miss Elizabeth E. Dana of Cambridge, at the Dunlop, Ferry lane, cottage.

Wendell L. Nichols of Brookline at the Ross Parker cottage.

B. Devereux Barker of Boston is building an attractive stucco house with blue slate roof on the ocean side of the 'Neck for occupancy this summer.

A. J. Walker is constructing a new stucco house on Follet street.

William T. Aldrich's new summer home on Peach's Point is nearing completion.

The addition to the Corinthian Yacht club on the 'Neck will be entirely finished within a few days. It will give many more chambers and an enlarged dining room.

Commodore Charles B. Wheelock of the Corinthian Y. C., opened his summer place on the 'Neck last week.

Richard E. Traiser, one of Marblehead's old-time summer residents, has bought the schooner "Whileaway," with Marblehead as its home port.

George Lee of the Corinthian, who formerly owned the "Italia," has a new Class P boat for this year's races. The "Italia" has been remodeled and a new deck house added.

F. W. Jones will open his Qualitye Shoppe next Monday. This is a favorite of the summer contingent.

With The Action of the members of the Orthodox Congregational church and the First Parish of Manchester in merging the two into one organization the last trace of the old Parish of Colonial days disappears. In recent years the Parish has been so nearly identical with the Church that its organization has been absorbed.

When in 1645 the little settlement at "Jeffry's Creeke" became the Town of Manchester, the Parish and Town were practically one. The Town hired the minister and voted money for his salary. The Parish Meeting was the Town Meeting of a later day. Gradually as the community grew in numbers there was some dissension in the Parish, but that in the passing years luckily disappeared. Then in the march of progress the affairs of the Town gradually passed out of the hands of the Parish. With the breaking up of the Parish and with the growth of other denominations, its members dwindled until gradually it came to embody practically the membership of the Congregational church.

The history of the Parish in the early days is the history of the Town of Manchester. In its general outline it differs but little from the history of any of the first towns along this coast. The earliest account of a meeting in the town for worship is purely traditional, it being related that the first service was held under a tree on "Gale's Point." In its early days the Parish passed the same strict laws of conduct and its administration was like that of a dozen other early New England settlements. Up until Jan. 12, 1792, there appears to have been no division of authority in this town, but after that date the control of the Parish over the affairs of the town gradually diminished although it continued in effect until a comparatively recent date.

The advantages which arose from the close administration of the affairs of the church and town by the Parish in the early days of the town are unquestionable, just as the administration of government today is most advantageously carried on independently of any church affiliation. In the day when people were of one accord in religious belief Parish administration of affairs was beneficial, but with the growth in number of religious sects it proved to be ineffective. Manchester is one of the last towns in New England in which the Parish has been absorbed by the Church.

The One-Cent-a-Gallon Substitute for gasoline keeps popping up and makes an interesting topic for conversation; but despite the rumors which bear some of the evidences of veracity the fact has not yet been demonstrated. There are several important chemical problems to solve before the fluid proposed can be made possible. Have those chemical discoveries been made? The gasoline consuming public is watchfully waiting and economizing on gasoline.

The Laborers along the Shore have twice demanded increases in wages and have received them. Remember when the contractor sends in your bill that the twenty percent increase apparent is due to an additional labor cost.

Every One Is Anxiously Awaiting the decision of the republican national convention. Who will lead the party to victory? The election of a President is not a question of personalities; it is a question of principles. The republican party for generations has stood for certain principles and forms of government. Those principles are now to be voted upon. The next four years must be important ones to the American people. The republican party has always stood for protection and a high tariff for protective purposes. There have been certain academic arguments for free trade that have been accepted by many quite carelessly, inheritances from the economists of the past; but the present demands a new study of the situation. The war doubtlessly will be settled within the next year or so and in the readjustment period of reconstruction that must follow the Government must protect the industries of America from the encroachments of old world competition. The policies of the democratic party do not meet the need of the situation, that is apparent.

The Eighteenth of May is the anniversary of the first peace conference at The Hague and in consequence is celebrated as "Peace and Arbitration Day." While the poor old dove of peace presents a rather bedraggled appearance in these stormy days, it is a fact that America is justified in keeping the day as ever. Perhaps there is a double justice in America's remembering the day for she alone of the great nations is at peace, Mexican relations always excepted. The most ardent advocate of preparedness is such only because he believes it is the best means of insuring peace. Hence everyone, whatever his present policy regarding America's part in relation to war may be, may observe this day in thankfulness for our present peace and in prayer for its continuance.

Harvard Undergraduates are interested in the naval training cruise for civilians which will be held this summer in connection with the maneuvers of the Atlantic Squadron of the U. S. Navy. A committee has been organized from the members of each class to arouse interest and enthusiasm and to get recruits. Among the eight members of the committee appears the name of Jack Merrill, Harvard '19, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Warren Merrill of Manchester. The Harvard committee is one of the sub-committees working in conjunction with the general committee of the Naval League of which John L. Saltonstall of Beverly is chairman. Mr. Merrill is one of the Harvard men who will go on the cruise in August.

In Six Years Boston University has more than doubled its number of students. The University presents an admirable course, is conveniently located and is developing an esprit de corps that is destined to increase.

An Efficient Committee is at work preparing for a "preparedness parade" to be arranged for the last Saturday in this month in Boston. As usual, of course, the criticism has been severe and the work has been hindered by adverse comment. These come from the anti-militaristic critics and from organized pacificists. The opposition appears trivial. They belong in the same category with the antagonists of school drill. There never has been the slightest danger of militaristic ideas or ideals being communicated by the old school drills or by the preparedness movement. In fact, school drills have cured many a boy of militaristic tendencies and the thirst for military adventure. Three years of stiff drill has taken the glamor off the "profession" and in the words of a boy, "he had all he wanted of it." On the other hand military drill in school teaches neatness, team work, mass action and, not least of all, obedience to authority. In the school curriculum there does not exist a more potent and influential course than that of military training and it should be continued. As to preparedness parades and militarism there cannot be the slightest danger. On the contrary the very sight of young men parading, as will be done in Boston soon, will visualize the awful effects of the carnage abroad, instead of entrenching militarism. There will be, of course, careless livers, shallow thinkers, minds carried away by passing whims, who never will nor can live deeply, who will see only the glitter of shining arms and the stir of marching men and mistake the parade for military service. They cannot see behind the marching hosts of men the spirit of war, murder, class enmity, international jealously, commercial rivalry and strife. The thinking man's imagination will be stirred. It will be possible for him to visualize the results of war abroad. He will not be deceived. Militarism! America deceived into Militarism? By a preparedness parade? Not when one stops to think that more men than will be in line that day now lie beneath the sod, crushed by the spirit of militarism. Militarism indeed, when one considers that more hearts are aching than the number of people who will see that parade! Let every friend of a friend who marches in the line stop to think what it might mean if those men were off to the front; if war were at our very door and bloodshed was the carnival of vice on our native soil. It is too true: America has been dead to the sufferings of war. This generation does not know what war means. It cannot understand. How can it understand what war means? America is removed from the war; it has made money from ammunition, war supplies and high freight rates. The war has meant prosperity. America must stop to think. The preparedness parade should present such a psychological opportunity. What does militarism mean? It means death, sorrow, suffering. Let militarism die, but preparedness continue. The parade should be encouraged and the people taught to see back of the long files of young men the horrors of possible war and the frightfulness of slaughter.

The President has very skilfully answered the German communication and avoided the raising of issues not bearing directly upon the question discussed. In refusing to consider the culpability of any other nation he wrote, "Responsibility in such matters is single, not joint; absolute, not relative." There is no avoiding his meaning.

The Clean-Up Campaign has been unusually successful. The North Shore never needs to be prodded to its task. It has the will and finds a way.

The Baseball Season has begun with its healthful, invigorating influence, the more welcome because of the long winter.

The Suspicion Grows upon us that were peace to be declared in Europe within the next few months we would hear much less of preparedness argument than we have heard during the past winter. A good many of the talkers for preparedness, who have come to the front in the past few months, would soon be found advocating universal disarmament and wanting America to take the lead. Many seem to have missed the essential point in the preparedness program. Preparedness should not be for today or tomorrow; but as long as nations arm, America should be prepared to defend its shores, its homes and its commerce. Many are led to favor better defensive armament in these days of stress who would be found decrying the necessity of it in a year or so. The most radical estimates show that it would take about three years to adequately prepare this nation for defense. By that time the European war will be over we hope. Those overnight advocates of preparedness who think we should be prepared to take our part in the European conflict should recall the history of the wars in which America has engaged. It has not been when other nations were at war that we have been embroiled, but at times when Europe has been practically at peace. Europe is too busy today with its own troubles to bother America, but ten years from now things may be different. It is not for the present so much as the future that we must prepare.

The Silver Lining of the European war cloud is found in America. Just as the present war is without precedent for magnitude of military operations, number of countries involved and wonderful machinery of destruction, so without precedent in history has been the charity, sympathy and the aid extended to the suffering peoples of Europe by America. America, a land where people of every race in the world have found a home, possesses a heart which feels for all who are innocent sufferers in the great struggle. America has played next kin to every stricken land in that it has devoted millions of dollars and hundreds of men and woemn toward the relief of the hungry, the homeless, the sick, the wounded and the bereaved victims of the god of war. Boston alone has come to the aid of the sufferers abroad to the amount of $1,401,848.83 for various charities and funds.

The Shipping Interests have been enjoying an unexpected as well as an unprecedented period of prosperity. Every schooner that is ready for sea is in service and a ready sail is always possible at premium prices. The ship-building enterprises are busily preparing for the future. America sacrificed her shipping interests many years ago, but the opportunity has come again. Will the opportunity be seized?

The Governor Has Signed the bill which prohibits dealers in alcoholic liquors delivering in No-Licence territories. The bill has been advocated for years and now becomes law. It increases the value of the pony express licences and make it possible for the authorities in No-License territories to control the importation of liquors.

The Printers and Stationers have been feeling the increased costs of paper and inks for over a year, but when Mr. Average Citizen wakes up some fair morning to find he must pay two cents for his "penny" daily he will appreciate the fact that the war has affected the paper market.

The British Cabinet has finally decided to introduce a bill providing for compulsory service for all men of military age. There is every reason to believe that when introduced the bill will be passed.

It Isn't Your Town, It's You

If you want to live in the kind of a town
Like the kind of a town you like,
You needn't slip your clothes in a grip
And start on a long, long hike.

You'll only find what you left behind,
For there's nothing that's really new.
It's a knock at yourself when you knock your town.
It isn't your town—it's you.

Real towns are not made by men afraid
Lest somebody else gets ahead.
When everyone works and nobody shirks
You can raise a town from the dead.

And if while you make your personal stake
Your neighbor can make one, too,
Your town will be what you want to see.
It isn't your town—it's YOU!

—From Columbus (Miss.) Newspaper.

CAPE ANN folk are taking more or less interest, historically and sentimentally, in preserving and protecting whatever rights the city of Gloucester may have in the extinct village—Dogtown Common. The Gloucester Times comments editorially on the matter as follows:

"The time has certainly arrived when the City of Gloucester should take the steps necessary to preserve and protect whatever rights it may have in that portion of its territory which is known to its people as Dogtown Commons. That the city has certain rights there has never been disputed and that these rights may be lost to the inhabitants of Gloucester is sure to happen unless some definite action is taken to consereve them. On several occasions former city governments have endeavored to start something that would lead up to some definite information as to what rights the city might have and to have those rights well defined, but it has seemed that every time anything has been attempted something has blocked the attempt. Why this has happened has never been definitely understood.

"The present council did well last evening to take steps to instruct the proper officials to handle the proposition, and they should start and proceed until the job is finished and the city should know just where it is as far as its rights are concerned and these officials should be given to understand that nothing must interfere with a prompt solution of the problem presented. It will probably take considerable time to do these things, but that should make no difference. Stumbling blocks may be placed in the way by parties who may not want the rights of the city defined and established. Never mind these stumbling blocks; they must not retard in any way the progress nor prevent the proper solution of the questions involved. It should be distinctly understood and appreciated that it is not the purpose of the city to take away any rights that other parties might have in this territory, but simply to define the rights if any that the inhabitants of Gloucester may have and then to protect those rights not alone for the people of the present generation, but for those who may come after.

"One of the most interesting among the many places on the Cape is Dogtown and it could be made by reason of easy access an objective point to be visited not only by our own people, but by the many visitors who come here during the summer months. The view from the heights of Dogtown in all directions is superb, but far more interesting than the view is the place itself, its deserted cellars around which are woven the traditions of the deserted village. It teems with romance which has been the subject of song and story. It still keeps hidden in its unwritten history so much of mystery that it will ever appeal to the imagination, and ever recurrent visits to its environs, but deepens these mysteries.

"The City of Gloucester must preserve and conserve all that belongs to it in this wild and romanic tract of land and nothing should stand in the way of keeping for those who are to come after us Dogtown Commons with its history and its traditions."

It's a poor brand of charity that sticks to the fingers.

IT is doubtful whether there will be a prettier or more interesting figure at the North Shore, the coming summer, than Miss Uytendale Baird, whose engagement to Harrison K. Caner, Jr., was announced recently. Miss Baird is to pay an extended visit to her future parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison K. Caner, at "Felsenmeer," Manchester, and that she will be widely entertained and feted goes without saying. The Caners are delighted at their son's selection of a fiancee, and Mrs. Caner has issued a large number of invitations for her dinner dance in compliment to Miss Baird on the evening of Friday, May 19. Miss Baird was of the past winter's most successful debutantes in the Quaker City. She made her bow at a tea dansant at the Bellevue-Stratford, given by her grandparents, which was largely attended. In addition to exceptional good looks, Miss Baird is an accomplished musician and linguist, and her dancing is quite worthy the professional stage. The date of the wedding has not yet been decided upon.

Norman Prince, who is serving as a military aviator in France, has received an official citation from the French government, according to information received at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Prince of East Wenham. The citation is believed to have been made for two articles by young Prince on military aviation, published in the United States, whose influence was said to be valuable to the cause of the entente allies. Prince is serving in the same aerial squardon as Elliot Cowdin, the New Yorker who was recently decorated for bravery. Prince has been awarded "Le Croix de Guerre," and has been twice mentioned in the despatches. Three such mentions carry with them the "Medaille Militaire," which corresponds to the English Victoria Cross.

WILBUR THEATRE, BOSTON.

The Wilbur Theatre has closed the past week to provide for the rehearsals and elaborate preparations for the new musical comedy production which will be made by the Shuberts on Monday evening, May 15. It is entitled "A Brazilian Honeymoon" and will serve to bring back to Boston Miss Marguerite Namara, so recently seen on the same stage in "Alone at Last." She is cast for the prima donna role. The cast contains the names of many well known and much liked artists, among them being Frances Demarest, whose name is familiar to musical comedy patrons. There is also Dolly Castles, as blonde and dainty as ever; Miss Marion Ballou, Raymond and Caverly, who have been drafted from vaudeville; L. A. Simon, who also comes from the two a day field; Hal Forde, remembered for his excellent work in "Adele," "Made In America," and "The Greatest Nation"; Clifton Webb, John H. Goldsworthy, Shep Camp, Jeanne Cartier, Kathleen George, Kitty Collier, Nora White, Phillip Dunning, Lester Scharff and others.

MAJESTIC THEATRE, BOSTON.

After the longest run of any attraction in the history of Boston, 30 weeks, with 360 performances, or one for more than every week day in the year, that mighty Griffith spectacle, "The Birth of a Nation," generally conceded to be the world's greatest theatrical production, closed its Boston engagement at the Majestic Theatre October 30 last. Ever since then it has been touring New England and playing to record-breaking business, and at the first opportunity comes back to resume the phenomenal Boston run which has already well eclipsed all records. This remarkable attraction has now returned to the Majestic Theatre, the scene of its great success during September and October last fall, opening with the matinee and evening performances Saturday, May 13. The engagement will be a limited one, and the mammoth spectacle will be given every afternoon and evening at the Majestic until further notice.

The Oriental music incidental to the production is rendered by 350 musicians, and 3,500 costumes are worn in the various actions of the pageant.

The Barnum & Bailey Circus is larger this saeson than ever before and require 89 cars to transport it. It carries 1,400 persons, 785 horses and a greatly enlarged menagerie of 108 cages and 41 elephants.

Fashion and Household Suggestions

FOR THE COLONEL'S LADY

The Fifty Dollar Graduation Outfit.

LAST week Judy told her readers about the simplest of all simple outfits for the girl graduate, the cost of which was not over twenty-five dollars. This week she will give a schedule for an outfit that is equally simple, but more expensive, the extra money being put into quality rather than ostentation. As the type of dress chosen will have much to do with the style and cost of her other things, it is, perhaps, wise for the girl who is graduating to consider that first. For the very inexpensive dress Judy recommended blond net,—for the higher priced frock she suggests Georgette crepe or taffeta or a combination of the two, with taffeta as the better choice. A taffeta dress, well made and of a good quality, may be had for $25.00. The advantage of a taffeta frock of reasonably heavy quality is that with it only one petticoat is necessary, and an excellent one of white taffeta with a double, plaited ruffle is in the shops for $6.95.

The fifty-dollar allowance will permit the purchasing of much more attractive under things than the twenty-five dollar limit, of course, but they may still be as charming in their simplicity and girlishness. An envelope chemise of white taffeta comes at $5.00 and its Callot edge and hemstitching that make up its only trimming are the acme of good taste. If the girl prefers something with more trimming there are at this price a wide variety of good chemises of embroidered linen or of crepe de chine and lace. A silk vest may not be thought too extravagant with this type of graduation things and one with a little embroidery and the French top may be had for $1.50.

To keep things in their proper proportions, the girl who can pay $1.50 for a silk vest, can well afford to buy a corset at $5.00,—a good investment and one to be recommended whenever possible. The fact that the corset costs $5.00, however, will not guarantee its fit or suitability, so as much care must be taken in its selection as in the buying of a cheaper one.

Shoes Are Important.

THEN, finally, there are the very important (the most important, some folk think) considerations of shoes and hose. The latter are easily disposed of,—they must be white and silk, it goes without saying. A pair of really good silk stocking may be had for $1.50. The shoes need a little more thought. Presupposing that they are to be white, we still must ask ourselves whether they must be kid, high or low heel, pump or high boot. This year high shoes are so popular that many white kid boots are being bought for graduation, but slippers seem so much more attractive on a young girl and so much more economical, if they must do duty for parties and dances throughout the summer and, possibly, throughout the next winter, that they are to be preferred in the average case. The fifty-dollar limit leaves only $5.00 for shoes, but some very attractive white kid street pumps come with moderate or high heel at that price. The girl may prefer to economize elsewhere and buy a more expensive pair of shoes at, let us say, $7.00 or $8.00 (and this may be done if she wishes, for this scale has been very generous), but a good pair may be had for $5.00.

Following is the schedule: taffeta dress, $25.00; white silk petticoat, $6.95; taffeta or crepe de chine chemise, $5.00; Italian silk vest, $1.50; white silk hose, $1.50; shoes, $5.00; corset, $5.00. This makes the total $49.95.

STRAWBERRY CHARLOTTE—One-third box gelatine, 1-3 cup cold water, 1-3 cup boiling water, 1 cup sugar, juice of 1 lemon, 1 pint fresh strawberries, 3 egg whites. Line a mold with lady fingers or pieces of sponge cake. Soak the gelatine in the cold water until soft and then pour on the boiling water and add the sugar and the lemon juice. Mash and rub the strawberries through a sieve and add to the mixture. Cool in a pan of cold water. When the jelly begins to harden, beat until light and add the stiffly beaten whites of eggs until stiff enough to drop. Pour into the mold. Serve with whipped cream piled on top after the charlotte is removed from the mold.—Mrs. Lincoln.

Strawberry Delight—This is a delicious variation of strawberry sundae. Vanilla ice-cream is used. Beat 1 cup of heavy cream until light, adding sugar to taste and half a teaspoonful orange extract. Mash and sweeten, strain a box of strawberries with the exception of a few of the best. Cut these in halves lengthwise and put on ice. Serve in glasses putting one tablespoonful of the strawberry in first, adding ice-cream, then whipped cream and a few of the chilled strawberries and serve at once.

Strawberry Puffs—One pint flour, 2 teaspoonfuls baking powder, salt, 1 cupful milk. Make a dough of this and drop alternating spoonfuls of the dough and strawberries in cups. Steam for twenty minutes and serve with the following sauce: 2 tablespoonfuls butter, 1 cupful of powdered sugar, lemon juice. Cream the butter and sugar and add the lemon juice. Beat in as many crushed berries as the mixture will hold. Serve cold on the hot puffs.

Strawberry Salad—Use the delicate inner leaves of the lettuce for this salad. Make cups of two leaves for each portion; heap strawberries in the middle, dust with powdered sugar and serve with mayonnaise dressing.

Strawberry Jelly—One-half box gelatine, ½ cup cold water, ½ cup boiling water, 1 quart strawberries, 1 cupful sugar and juice 1 lemon. Soak the gelatine in the cold water and add the boiling water, to this add the strawberries, crushed and mixed with the sugar and lemon juice. Strain and mold in a porcelain dish. Serve with whipped cream.

Strawberry Shortcake—One quart sifted flour, 1 teaspoonful salt, 1 teaspoonful pulverized soda, 2 teaspoonfuls cream of tartar, 1 large tablespoonful butter. Mix in the order given, rubbing in the butter with the finger tips, add gradually sweet milk to make a soft dough (about a pint). Toss on a well floured board, touching with the hands as little as possible, and cut in two sections. Put these in the baking pan, one on top of the other and with plenty of butter between, and bake about 15 minutes in a very hot oven. Have ready a box of strawberries, washed, hulled and crushed. Sweeten and add ½ pint heavy cream. Serve the shortcake very hot with the strawberry mixture between and on top.

YACHTING, GOLF, TENNIS AND OTHER SPORTS Along the NORTH SHORE

THIS year's cruise of the Eastern Yacht club will be started from Marblehead later than has been the custom for a number of seasons past. Usually the fleet is in Maine waters July 4, but instead this summer the annual regatta of the club will be sailed off Halfway Rock that day.

Thus the fleet will rendezvous the following day at Marblehead. Starting from that port Thursday, July 6, the fleet will race 72 miles to Peak's Island. July 7 the run will be to Boothbay Harbor, 28½ miles; July 8, from Boothbay to Whitehead, 33 miles.

Sunday, July 9, the fleet will proceed at will from Camden to Islesboro. The remaining racing runs of the cruise are as follows: July 10, Islesboro to North Haven, 25 miles; July 11, North Haven to Swans Island, 25 miles; July 12, Swans Island to Northeast Harbor, 18 miles; July 13, Northeast Harbor to Bar Harbor, 22½ miles.

The cruise will be disbanded at Bar Harbor with colors, and afterward there will be the annual cruise dinner. The Norman Cups are offered for a race back from Bar Harbor to Marblehead, starting Friday, July 14.

The other dates of the racing schedule of the club are: June 24, special open race for yachts under 46 feet rating: Saturday, July 1, invitation ocean race for Vanderbilt Cup, Newport to Marblehead; July 1, annual regatta, Puritan Cup; July 29, special open regatta for yachts under 46 feet rating, and August 8, special open regatta for yachts under 46 feet rating.

Two pretty craft recently overhauled and now receiving the finishing touches before launching from Walter B. Calderwood's boatyard in Manchester are the "Edjako," a 30-footer belonging to S. A. Raymond of Gloucester, and Ingersoll Amory's power yacht, the "Cheechako." The latter will be launched sometime in the course of a few days.

WHEN the dedicatory exercises of the new buildings of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology are held in June the most spectacular feature of the ceremonials is to be the embarkation of President MacLaurin, the officials of the institute and state and city for the voyage across the Charles River Basin from the foot of Dartmouth st., Boston.

Preceding the official party will march an army of Romans, crusaders, explorers and other forward moving men with emblematic banners representing the Tech spirit. The idea for this part of the pageant originated with Ralph Adams Cram, senior professor of architecture at the institute. It is reminiscent of the Doges of Venice, who went out in their wondrously decorated barge of state, Bucentoro, to wed the Adriatic.

The bucentaur, "Tech," is nearly 100 feet long and 20 feet beam. The ship was designed by Swasey, Raymond & Page, Boston, marine architects; the decorative proportions by Mr. Cram and the sculpture by Hugh Cairns, instructor of clay modeling at the institute. The prow is to be adorned with the beaver, the greatest builder, and the totem of the institute. On the forward deck will stand a figure bearing the torch of learning. Fifty students who have competed for the honor will man the ship with immense sweeps. Panels to decorate the bow are Neptune, holding the trident, Nereids, and Amphitritons. Aft are to be dolphins and cupids, mermaids, seashells, seaweed and fish. The entire craft will be covered with gold paint.

The barge will have a special interest to Manchester people as it is in the process of construction at the present time in Walter B. Calderwood's boatyard.

An efficient health officer is a good community investment.

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL.

Hamilton has had no better luck with Manchester High School on its home grounds last Saturday than when it met Manchester over here the week before, Manchester winning the second game 15 to 3. Neither team played a very good fielding game, but Manchester out-batted the Hamilton boys all the way. Until the seventh inning, when Hamilton got over a lone tally, Manchester held its opponents scoreless. The hitting of Beaton and Height were the real features of the game. The score:

The club is now seeking to raise money to carry on its work and Manchester people are given an oportunity to show their appreciation by filling the Town hall to overflowing tonight for the entertainment.

Work on the rebuilding of the highway from George A. Priest school to the Beverly line is being pushed along daily. The entire length of the road from the corner of Bridge, Pine and Central streets is torn up by the workmen engaged in reconstruction. The highway is blocked from the corner westward as far as the point where Bridge and Bennett sts. meet. Beyond that point the highway is passable for a space wide enough for one vehicle to pass at a time. Traffic is diverted by way of Bennett st. At the corner of Bridge, Pine and Central streets the work of installing the granite crubstones was in progress yesterday. Practically all of the drains have been built or are under way, and in a few days it is expected work can be started on the the re-surfacing. About 60 men are employed at present on the job. Most of the road contractors in this vicinity have been hindered to some extent by labor troubles, but so far A. G. Tomasello & Son, who have the Manchester contract, have not been bothered to any great extent. Last Monday three or four of the men asked for more pay and it was granted them without argument.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Knight have been spending the week at North Sutton, N. H.

Mrs. Mary Stanley returned Monday from Springfield where she had been for several weeks with her grandchildren. She was with her sister in Chelsea over Sunday.

Officer Bullock took one of the Italian workmen on building the highway on Bridge street to his home in Beverly Tuesday afternoon in the ambulance. The man was suffering with fits and was not injured, as many people thought.

A ball game between the Priest school team and the second grammar school team at the playground Tuesday afternoon resulted in a 6 to 1 victory for the former team. The game was the first one at the playground this spring and there were about 250 children at the grounds, the game marking the opening of the playground season.

School Garden Competitions—Schedule of Prizes Issued.

The North Shore Horticultural society has issued its schedule of prizes for school gardens of the North Shore. When it was determined to abandon all thoughts of continuing the regular exhibitions this season, it was decided that the valuable work being done by the society to foster the culture of flowers and vegetables among the younger generation could not be abandoned, and so the society will arrange for an exhibition of flowers and vegetables from the school gardens along the North Shore, the time and place of exhibition to be announced later.

The committee on School Gardens is composed of Herbert Shaw, chairman; John Jaffrey, Patrick Gilmore, Murdo Mackay, Alfred Rogers, James O'Kane and Frank Foster (secretary).

The society is offering silver and bronze medals to the schools making the best showing of a table of flowers and vegetables arranged for effect, grown by school children, the table to be arranged by supervisor. Open to all schools along the North Shore.

There are two special classes for the best school garden in Manchester, one by children over 12, the other by children under 12.

Then there are ten classes listed under flowers and twelve under vegetables, in which cash prizes are given. Open to any school boy or girl along the North Shore.

VOTED TO MERGE PARISH WITH CHURCH

The First Parish, Manchester, voted at a special meeting called for the purpose, last Friday evening, to merge with the church society (Orthodox Congl. church), voting unanimously on all the questions. The action is contingent upon the church voting to accept the merger.

The merging of the Parish with the Church is important in that the church since the earliest days has been controlled in a financial and material way by the Parish. Manchester is one of the last towns to make this change.

It was voted to "authorize the Parish Committee to execute and deliver a deed of all the real estate that it now holds in fee, or in which it has an interest, contingent or absolute, running to the Orthodox Congl. church."

The Parish Committee was also authorized "to execute and deliver a bill of sale of all its personal property that it now holds, or in which it has an interest, to the Orthodox Congl. church."

Also "to assign to the Orthodox Congl. church all its rights, title and interest in any fund or funds, notes, or other evidences of indebtedness or value, now in its possession, or which may come into its possession by devise or bequest by any party or parties."

The consideration of the above transfers and assignments constitutes a liquidation of all indebtedness of the Parish to the Church.

Greater Honesty Needed.

An appeal for greater honesty in all walks of life was made in the evening sermon at the Manchester Congregational church on Sunday by the pastor, Rev. Charles A. Hatch.

"I have heard it said that it is impossible for a business man to be efficient and successful and live the Christian life," said Mr. Hatch. "Men tell me that it is difficult to be honest and be successful. I have known men to lose profits rather than commit a dishonest act and I believe it is possible for a man to be in business and live the higher calling of God in Jesus Christ. He may not become rich, he may not have a beautiful home and give his children a good education, but he will have one of the grandest possessions, a clear conscience."

Mr. Hatch said that there was room for the elevation of the legal profession and a wonderful opportunity for physicians to do Christian service. "Many doctors today walk into your house, put a thermometer into your mouth, feel your pulse and charge you $2.00 and feel they have done their duty," he said.

More public school teachers should teach for the love of the profession than for the "almighty dollar," as many do now. Many other occupations were mentioned which could be improved by honesty of purpose and by Christian living.

Manchester Brotherhood.

The annual concert of the Manchester Brotherhood will be held in Town hall, Wednesday evening, May 17. The entertainers will be the Lafayette Male Quartet of Boston, accompanied by a reader. The program for the Brotherhood entertainment will be entirely new and a new reader will be brought with the singers. Tickets for the entertainment will be on sale at the drug stores at 25 cents.

50-Ride Books Nearly Gone.

The supply of 50-ride books to Boston which were purchased in large numbers by ticket agencies and others about a year ago when the books were abolished by the Boston & Maine, is rapidly becoming exhausted. Although hundreds of these ticket books were sold, there are but few left.

In March, 1915, the receipts at the Manchester railroad office were $9750 as compared with $2400 in a normal month, showing how great was the demand for tickets.

The time is near when passengers to Boston will be obliged to purchase their tickets at the railroad office and pay a few cents more than is now being charged by the ticket agents. Frank W. Bell purchased 260 tickets just before they were abolished at a cost of $19.65 a ticket,—a total of over $5000. He had about 40 left this week, and they are going fast.

Mock Trial.

Members of the Christian Endeavor society enjoyed a mock trial in the Chapel, Manchester, on Saturday evening, about thirty being present to hear the trial. John Bohaker answered an indictment charging him with the theft of an automobile. It was also charged that in the progress of a joy-ride the car was wrecked. Grafton Owens was the prosecuting attorney and Abbott Foster defended the accused. Rev. Charles A. Hatch acted as judge. Following the examination of a number of witnesses who presented amusing and conflicting evidence the case went to the jury composed of the following: Mrs. Charles A. Hatch, Misses Doris Knoerr, Hattie Pike, Helen Beaton, Ruth Brown and Ruth Olsen. Sidney Peters, attired as a policeman preserved order in the court-room. After a lengthy deliberation the jury reported a verdict of not guilty.

Two ladies—each with her child—visited the Chicago Art Museum. As they passed the "Winged Victory" the little boy exclaimed, "Huh! She ain't got no head." "Sh!" the horrified little girl replied. "That's Art—she don't need none!"—Harper's Magazine.

While Jane, the new maid, was taking her first lesson on arranging the dining-table, some one in the basement kitchen put something upon the dumb-waiter below. "What's that noise?" asked Jane, quickly. "Why, that's the dumb-waiter," responded her mistress. "Well," said Jane, "he's a-scratchin' to git out."—Collier's.

The First Shot was Fired Monday
Night by Manchester
Firemen in their protest

Against the action of the Selectmen in appointing two new members on the board of fire engineers. The shot will be heard 'round the town ere the year is out, say they.

x-x-x

Probably nothing has stirred Manchester so much in recent years as the increasing of the number of engineers in the fire department by the Board of Selectmen. It was a "bolt from the blue" for the members of the fire department and immediately became the subject of general discussion about town. Instead of blowing over, with the talk of a few days, the feeling among the men in the department and their friends has been intensified during the past two weeks. Another element is the refusal of the Selectmen to offer an explanation for the increase in the number of engineers. The reason the department feels that some explanation should be forthcoming is that the general tendency of the times in municipal administration is toward cutting down rather than increasing the size of board of control of departments.

The fact that one appointee was not a member of the department adds something to the aggravation the men in the department feel. They maintain that if the increase in the number of men was necessary to the best interests of the town the additional engineers should have been appointed from among the men in the department. They say that the appointment of an outsider looks as if there were no capable men in the department, and object to the inference.

The silence maintained by the Selectmen is regarded as evidence that they consider they were acting for the best interests of the town and fire department in making the additional appointments. When asked for a statement of the reason for the increase in the number of engineers Chairman Knight of the Board of Selectmen said that it was a matter between the Board and the fire department and that he did not care to enter into any controversy over the appointments. Mr. Knight added that there was enough business demanding his attention without getting into controversies over appointments.

From other sources it is learned that the reason assigned for the two additional appointments was to "inject young blood" into the department to increase its efficiency.

At a recent meeting of the Story High School Alumni, Manchester, there was some discussion in regard to disbanding. A committee was appointed to consider the advisability of holding a reunion and of trying to interest the members in the organization in order that it might be in some way held intact. The committee has definitely decided to hold a reunion some time during the week of June 5. It is expected that Friday, June 9, will be the date. There will be a short entertainment by members of the Alumni, followed by dancing. It is hoped the members of the organization will not allow it to be disbanded through lack of interest, but will show a spirit of co-operation in keeping the organization alive. There is talk of holding frequent meetings during the winter with special features for each occasion. If this was carried into effect the Alumni association could and would become active. Without doubt arrangements could be made for the use of the Assembly hall at Price school for meetings. If every member attends the reunion and shows the proper interest we are sure the officers will do their part toward keeping it alive.

Today is always the best day to clean up.

BASEBALL MINSTRELS

Home Talent Assisted Witch City Troupe in Excellent Show On Friday Night.

Manchester turned out a good attendance in support of its baseball team at the minstrel show on Friday evening. An audience which nearly filled Town hall to its capacity witnessed an entertainment by the Witch City Minstrel troupe assisted by a local quartet. Popular songs, sentimental ballads and lively "end" jokes comprised the entertainment. There was not a dull moment in the show. The only marring feature of the entire performance was a collection of "jokes" which could have been omitted without detracting anything from the value of the entertainment.

Before the curtain rose for the opening chorus a quartet composed of Roland Knight, Abbott Hoare, Arnold Rathmell and George Sargent sang "When Good Fellows Get Together." The members of the troupe, particularly the interlocutor, Jerome Crowley, were good singers and put lots of snap into the vocal numbers. Charles E. Hutchinson and Sam Boyle, the end men furnished the spice of the show with clever witticisms about local people between the songs. The program follows:

Opening Chorus:
"Under Southern Skies"
"Moonlight on the Mississippi"
"William Tell"
"Are You from Dixie?"
"Quaker Down in Quaker Town"
"On the Road to Dublin Town"
Tenor Solo, "Because You are Mine Sweetheart" Larry Knowlton
Baritone Solo, "Mother Machree," Jerome Crowley
End Song, "You'd never know that Home Town of Mine" Chas. E. Hutchinson Tenor Solo, "The Little Road that Leads Back Home" Ralph Teague
Bass Solo, Gus Mallard
Duet, Messrs. Boyle and Hutchinson
Baritone Solo, "Good Bye, Good Luck, God Bless You" Edward Soper
Contra Tenor Solo, "My Wild Irish Rose" Chas. Splaine
End Song, "Beans, Beans, Beans" Sam Boyle
Witch City Quartet
Messrs. Knowlton, Teague, Crowley, Mallard
Closing Chorus:
"When Its Orange Blossom Time in Loveland"
"Alabama Jubilee"
"Swett Kentucky Lady"
At the Piano E. J. Mackey

After the curtain had fallen at the close of the minstrel show the local quartet sang "Annie Laurie" and responded to an encore with a Southern melody. A substantial sum was netted for the treasury of the baseball association. If Manchester gives as good support throughout the season to the team as it gave Friday night's entertainment we are sure of a successful season.

Manchester Firemen Elect.

The Firemen's Relief association, Manchester, held its annual meeting at the Fire Station Monday evening. James Hoare, former chief, was re-elected president; Clarence W. Morgan, present chief, vice president; Raymond C. Allen, treasurer; Frank L. Floyd, clerk, to succeed Samuel L. Wheaton. The executive board was elected as follows: President and clerk, ex-officiis, Granville Crombie, Ellery L. Rogers and Chas. W. Sawyer.

The only death during the year was Chas. O. Howe, to whose widow the $50 benefit was paid. There are now some 70 members, and there is in the treasury over $1700. The $1 a year dues from the members, together with occasional gifts of money from townspeople, keeps the treasury in fair standing.

WENHAM

Wenham is glad to welcome Dr. Phillips home again after a term of service with the Harvard medical unit in the British army. The doctor is looking sun-burned and healthy. So modest is he that it is only with the greatest difficulty that he can be induced to tell his war experiences.

Last week the Wenham scouts added another to their list of victories at baseball, when they crossed bats with the Beverly Dane st. scouts. Wenham's percentage is 100 after playing five games. Through the assistance of the school committee, the boys were able to make improvements at the school grounds—a new backstop, seats, etc. On Monday the scouts did their bit at "cleaning up" the town, assuming as their share the burning of papers, and general smoothing up of the Arbor st. dump. Tuesday evening they met in the chapel for instruction and pleasure. Next Saturday they will hike to Brookby farm, as guests of Mrs. E. B. Cole.

Members of the Junior society of Christian Endeavor recently devoted two evenings to work for seamen, preparing twelve "first-aid" bags, and gathering an immense amount of magazines. The Juniors paid a fraternal visit to the Dane st. Juniors last Sunday afternoon.

Gov. McCall's signing of the liquor transportation bill last week brought gratification to Wenham churchmen. The local church, through its department of social service, and its C. E. society, had made several moves to bring influence to bear upon the legislature during the two years' fight for this law.

Wenham ladies have organized a special aid society for American preparedness. The movement started in the meeting of the village improvement society at the residence of Mrs. John Phillips. On Wednesday a public meeting was held in the Town hall, addressed by Mr. Sinclair Kennedy. This society is affiliated with the Red Cross, the National Civic Federation, the National Security League, and the League to Enforce Peace. Wenham boys have their scout troop, the men enjoy their rifle range, and now the ladies assume a share in the movement.

Thursday's town meeting considered important themes. The warrant contained articles on purchasing motor fire appartus, on surveying the new Pingree park, and on introducing town water.

Dea. A. W. Dodge, Mrs. Luther W. Batchelder, Mrs. Maria C. Durgin, and Rev. F. M. Cutler represented the Congregational church at the meeting of the Essex South association in Saugus Wednesday.

Summer Safety and Care of Furs

FURS are too valuable to be put carelessly out of the way. Have them properly brushed and treated for the removal of any possible injurious agents like moth deposits and dust.

SERVICE

"Service" doesn't mean merely waiting on you promptly and delivering purchases on time. Our "Service" starts long before that point is reached. For instance, we could have held off our purchases for this spring (as many merchants have) and been forced to pay higher prices and in turn raise our prices. But that isn't our idea of best "service."

So we anticipated our needs far ahead and placed our orders early. That's why we can now offer many lines of merchandise at the old low prices and save you money.

The MAY SALE OF LINGERIE

EMBRACES very attractive assortments. Winsome new styles and excellent qualities which at these May Sale prices are value extraordinary.

JUNE brides will be especially interested in these pretty garments. The unmistakable economies will be welcome to every woman who appreciates the comfort of ample supplies of dainty Summer underwear.

IN planning for this event, particular attention was given to style selection. We aimed at such a diversity as would ensure a certain degree of exclusiveness. This exclusiveness is especially emphasized in the collections to be placed on sale Wednesday.

WHILST assortments at each price are quite ample, there are but a few dozens of any one style.

Interesting Meeting Under Red Cross Auspices Next Sunday

A remarkably interesting meeting is to be held under the auspices of the Essex County Chapter of the American Red Cross on Sunday, May 14, 4 p. m., in the City hall, Beverly.

It is to welcome and hear an address from the Red Cross nurse, Miss Mary E. Gladwin, Dr. Richard Pearson Strong presiding. Miss Gladwin went with the first Red Cross Hospital unit to Serbia in 1914, and worked there during the whole time that Dr. Ryan remained going through three captures of Belgrade, and the typhus epidemic.

She was formerly superintendent of the Beverly Hospital, since which time Miss Gladwin also spent six months at the Japanese hospital in Hiroshima during the Russo-Japanese war. Miss Gladwin comes from Ohio by invitation of Miss Louisa P. Loring this time to attend the graduation exercises of the Beverly hospital Training School, Saturday evening. After the Red Cross meeting on Sunday, she returns immediately the following day to her work in Ohio.

Dr. Strong the world renowned head of that wonderful sanitary commission to Serbia and of the Bubonic plague commission to Manchuria, has kindly consented to preside at this meeting.

The public is cordially invited, and it is a rare occasion, not only for Essex County, but for all who can manage to attend from other parts.

B. F. Keith's Theatre.

America's representative German dialect comedian, Sam Bernard, one of the most popular and funniest comedians on the legitimate stage will make his vaudeville debut at B. F. Keith's Theatre, the week of May 15th, as he appeared in the varieties twenty-five years ago. Thousands of playgoers have laughed at Mr. Bernard in "The Rich Mr. Hoggenheimer," and his other successes. His vaudeville specialty is one of the biggest hits of this season on the B. F. Keith Circuit. Surrounding this brilliant star from the legitimate stage will be Dorothy Regal, the star telephone girl of "A Telephone Tangle," and her company of farceurs in a brand-new comedy act, and other splendid features.

Mrs. Brindle—Now, Mary, I want you to be careful. This is some very old table linen—been in the family for over two hundred years, and—

Mary—Aw, sure, ma'am, you need't worry. I won't tell a soul, and it looks as good as new, anyway.—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

North Shore Aviation Unit

Godfrey L. Cabot of Beverly Farms, who is Forming One, Tells of What He Hopes to See Accomplished

GODFREY L. CABOT, who is taking a great interest in preparedness, especially the aviation problem, and who, as president of the Aero Club of New England, was largely instrumental in having the State of Massachusetts undertake to maintain an aeroplane provided that the club secured enough public subscriptions for its purchase, is preparing to start an aviation corps on the North Shore. Mr. Cabot, whose summer home is at Beverly Farms, has leased Gooseberry Island and has placed it at the disposal of the United States Army, the militia, the navy and friends who desire to attain proficiency in target gunnery and bomb practice with aeroplanes. An effort was made at first to start a branch of the naval militia at Marblehead, but the selectmen were unwilling to sign the necessary petition without the sanction of a town meeting.

SEAPLANE RESTING ON THE WATER

A town meeting was held and voted unanimously in favor of the plan, after addresses by Greeley S. Curtis and others interested in aviation. Meanwhile, however, other selectmen had come into office and through the opposition of two of them the petition has not yet been signed. Nevertheless, it is thought that by another method it will be possible to start an aviation unit.

The plan calls for a unit of twenty-three men, with five aviators and two machines. Mr. Cabot has bought the ground and is to build a hangar on the western end of Mystery Island, off the Manchester-Beverly Farms shore. Mr. Cabot has one machine and another available at the Burgess plant at Marblehead. It is hoped that this small beginning will lead to a large number of privately-built and owned seaplanes being maintained along the Massachusetts coast, with a large number of aviators who will pursue the art with a view to its military uses. Mr. Cabot recently has been flying at Pensacola, Fla., and while there the armored cruiser North Carolina returned from a practise cruise at Guantanamo, Cuba, where here gunfire was directed by aviators flying back and forth at right angles to the direction of the target.

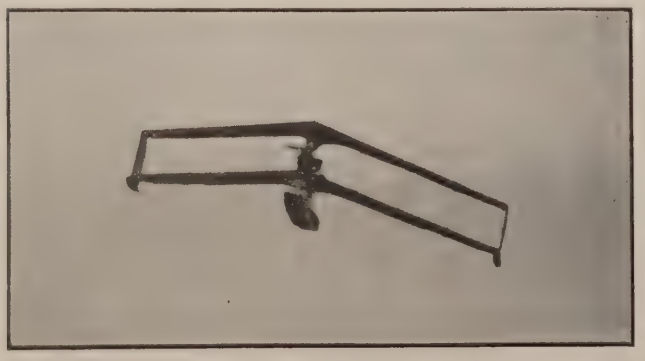

"It might, perhaps, be indiscreet," said Mr. Cabot, "to give the exact distance, size of target and percentage of hits recorded, but it may be said in a general way that at a distance where the surface of the water would not be in sight and with guns of not over ten inches a percentage of hits was obtained incomparably greater than a much nearer range in Santiago, July 3, 1898, which marked at that time the high-water record of efficiency in this regard.

"An expenditure of about $3,800,000 would secure for twenty-four warships officers and the needful equipment. It would mean for each one torpedo-carrying aeroplane, two high-speed fighting machines and two spotting and patrol aeroplanes, with a catapult, storage facilities and hoists, as well as the required spare parts for all of the apparatus. For personnel there would be required on each vessel five aviators who would be commissioned officers and twenty-two enlisted men, making a total of 120 commissioned officers and 2640 men. At present we have not quite enough equipment for two ships.

"Suppose a fleet or vessel which is not equipped to put an aviator into the air under the conditions which obtain at the time of combat is opposed to a fleet or ship which can put aviators into the air. Such a situation might either be due to the possession of aeroplanes on one side and their absence on the other, or to the superior apparatus on one side for launching aeroplanes direct from the deck or, to speak more correctly, from the apparatus carried on the battleships, when the other side was without such apparatus or its aviators or enlisted men lacked the skill needful to launch or operate them under the conditions at the time.

IN ACTION—JUST LEAVING THE SURFACE

IN MID-AIR—AT A MILE A MINUTE

"The result would be that the vessel or vessels furnished with aviation control could, with equally good gunmanship and similar guns, begin to hit the adverse fleet of vessels long before they themselves were in danger of anything more than chance shots. Under average sea conditions seaplanes cannot rise from the surface of the sea because it is not sufficiently smooth in the open ocean. Hence the need of a catapult to throw the aviators, one after another, into the air at flying speed, for a skilful aviator in the air at flying speed at a height of thirty feet above the water can continue to fly and render efficient service not only under average conditions but under conditions much worse than the average.

"Let us now suppose that it is an individual ship which has aviation control, opposed to a fleet without aviation control. By reason of the immense disparity in numbers the fleet succeeds in getting within efficient range of the individual vessels. As the battle progresses the smoke from their funnels and from the guns (by no means negligent) is likely to obscure the vision of the men in the topmasts and continue the advantage given by the aviators to the weaker force, even after the range is near enough to be effective with clear air and the use of ordinary range-finders. If, now, the single vessel can put an island or fogbank between itself and the enemy, or if either of the forces is in the fog the vessel assisted by aviators will be greatly helped. A fog bank seldom is so high as to prevent the smoke of battleships or hot air from their funnels from being visible to aviators. Therefore, if in fog, aviators could attack with torpedoes with little danger of being hit themselves.

"Let each one of the readers consider what, if anything, he can do as an individual to induce Congress to grasp this vital oportunity at this critical period in our international relations. The ironclad, machine-gun, torpedo, the submarine, the flying machine, were all first successfully put in use by Americans; have all been within the grasp of this country under such conditions as would have made it possible to keep America in the lead. And in each case foreign governments have greedily seized the opportunity first offered to our Congress. Nor is Congress one whit to blame, for Congress is simply a mirror, or, to be more accurate, a composite photograph of Congress's constituency. If individual voters will make known to Congress that they're alive to strengthening national defence and put the United States in the lead, then Congress will do the rest.

"It is probably physically impossible for the United States in five years to take the lead as a naval power or as a military power on land, so far as the construction of battleships is concerned, but it is perfectly possible and with an expenditure not so great as one year's pensions, to place the United States in the lead in air-fighting craft. Certainly we ought not to be content with less than one per cent of these craft, as at present."—Boston Transcript.

(The pictures used with this article were taken for the BREEZE at Marblehead two years ago this spring. While progress has been made in the development of the seaplane the contour and general appearance of the machines are practically the same today as in 1914.—ED.)

Fox Hunting In America Ever on the Increase

A SPORT that is yearly assuming greater proportions is that of "following the hounds." Numbers of prominent men in kindred lines of sport have become foxhound enthusiasts and welcome members of the dog fancy, for fox hunting is actually but a branch of the dog fancy, combining also a love for the horse. It is a branch capable, however, of being developed to such magnitude as to become a distinct line of sport.

Too much encouragement cannot be given to the various hunts, for they are also stanch supporters of the bench shows.

Taking the dog end of fox hunting only, Americans in the few brief years since they undertook the breeding and the hunting of foxhounds have established a record that can be contested only by the Boston terrier. The American foxhound, as he is today, stands as a monument to that group of enthusiasts who, daring all opposition, brought to this country one of England's oldest sports and the English foxhound. Having the whole weight of centuries of tradition to bear did not daunt those who undertook the evolution of the American foxhound. Today he is supreme, and only lacks the number of organized hunts.

Credit also must be given to the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association, for it has brought the horse and dog lover together in a sport where both stand on a par. It is the governing body, and has approved the following recognized hunts for 1916:—Brandywine Hounds, Chester Valley Hunt, Elkridge Hunt club, Essex Foxhounds, Glen Arden Hunt, Glen Moore Hunt, Grafton Hounds, Green Spring Valley Hunt, Groose Point Hunt club, Huntingdon Valley Hunt, Middleburg Hunt, Middlesex Foxhounds, Millbrook Hunt, Mr. Riddle's Hounds, Myopia Hunt, Montpelier Hounds, Mr. Winston's Hounds, Norfolk Hunt club, Orange County Hunt, Piedmont Foxhounds, Pickering Hunt, Radnor Hunt, Romlik Hounds, Shelburne Hounds, Smithtown Hunt club, Watchung Hunt, Warrenton Hunt and White Marsh Valley Hunt.

Many of these packs number only American foxhounds, while others have English and American hounds. Some are very active, notable among them being the Myopia Hunt, the Piedmont Foxhounds, winners at the New York show this year with their dog pack; the Essex Foxhounds and the Millbrook Hunt. The war has brought forcibly to the attention of the entire world the fact that the horses and the riders who had received their training in the "trivial" occupation of following the hounds were of cardinal necessity. A sport bringing out that which is best in dog, horse and man should be encouraged. The growing list of recognized hunts speaks for itself.

THE BOSTON OFFICE of the department of commerce, lighthouse service, is making inquiries through various organizations identified with maritime interests regarding public opinion toward changing the light on Marblehead Neck and replacing it with a flashing light on Marblehead rock.

No one can live in such fashion that he need make no compromises between the ideal and the practical. That is because nature draws no hard-and-fast lines. We all seek the better; no one can reach the best.—Exchange.

A man may select his own companions, but his relations are always thrust upon him.

One of the events in which members of society are taking great interest is the musicale which Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury will give the Sunday afternoon after the Devon Horse Show. The affair will take place at the Stotesburys' new home in Chestnut Hill, and many of their friends will welcome the opportunity to visit the estate.

Prejudice is like a flaw in a mirror, it occasions objects to be presented to the mind in distorted forms.

CHICAGO'S big event of recent date was the war song concert or campfire on such a vast scale that the seating capacity of the Auditorium was taxed. The affair was arranged as a benefit for the Country Home for Convalescent Children. Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Moore and Mrs. Arthur Meeker with her little daughter, Mary, were among those present.

CHICAGO people are already filling up their lists of house guests for the convention week in June. Mr. and Mrs. George Higginson, Jr., of Astor street, will entertain relatives from Boston, and Eliot Wadsworth, who was with the Rockefeller unit in Serbia. Mr. and Mrs. R. H. McCormick will have with them Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Douglas Robinson (Dorothy Jordan) and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lydig of New York. The Higginsons will leave for their summer home in Lenox immediately after the convention, their two young daughters going on before. Meanwhile the suffragists are working "to beat the band" to make their parade and convention ball a success. Mrs. Medill McCormick, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank and Miss Suzette Ryerson are the spellbinders from fashionable society who are making several speeches a day to arouse enthusiasm. The garden of the Harold McCormick house on Lake Shore drive will be the setting for the ball and garden party. Mrs. Arthur Meeker, chairman of the reception committee, is getting up a most imposing list of out-of-town guests who will grace the ball with the splendor of their names. Mrs. George Higginson has charge of the invitation committee. Patronesses for the ball include Mrs. R. T. Crane, Jr., Mrs. Hobart C. Chatfield-Taylor, Mrs. Charles B. Pike, and a long list of others socially prominent. Volunteers for the parade are beginning to emerge from all walks of life and are being heralded from distant states.

Life is not so short but there is always time enough for courtesy.—Emerson.

WASHINGTON'S horse show marked the gathering of many people who are prominent on the North Shore. Mrs. Wm. Hitt drove Bountiful, a Judge Moore entry, and carried off the blue ribbon. She displayed exceptionally fine horsewomanship and although pressed hard by her competitor, never once lost her composure during the many times that she was sent around the ring in a final effort to show that Bountiful was blue ribbon material. She was dressed in a very smart gown of black georgette crepe with white trimmings. Mrs. Wm. F. Draper and Mr. and Mrs. Henry May were boxholders. Mrs. Draper was in black and white and Miss Draper wore a blue and gray flowered summer dress. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter had with them Miss Julia Meyer, Mrs. Wm. F. Coombs and Thomas Spring-Rice. Miss Meyer wore a modish striped foulard in shades of brown with a white lace fichue and a small hat with a high crown in the darker brown with wings of light brown. Mrs. Hunt Slater and Mrs. Larz Anderson were in box parties. Mrs. Leiter was seen one day of the show dressed in a stunning white tailored suit of serge with a large pink hat. Mrs. Henry Cleveland Perkins was seen in a becoming black and white silk gown. Mrs. John R. Williams, Mrs. Leiter's mother, was among the visitors one day. Other winners of interest to the North Shore were Mrs. Charles A. Munn, Jr., who took a second prize on Mrs. Borden Harriman's The Boss, and E. T. Stotesbury Minnie Allerton, who came home a winner among the roadsters.

President and Mrs. Wilson were hosts at a large reception on the White House lawn last Tuesday from 5 to 7 in the afternoon. Washington society in its various circles was well represented. Mrs. Wilson was lovely in pale gray satin and stood beneath an elm tree to greet the guests. Mrs. Wm. Draper, Ambassador Thomas Nelson Page, and the Italian Ambassador and Countess di Cellere were among the guests. The Countess was dressed in cream satin and had a full length black satin cape hung from a white cloth yoke and wore a black picture hat.

Parasols made an attractive color scheme at the Washington horse show. The last day was ideal and the warm spring sunshine brought out the many new and stylish models of the season. Parasols are occupying an important place in the wardrobe of the girl of 1916, and one sees many unusual ones bearing little semblance, save in shape, to the practical sun shade of days past. Made of chiffon, tulle, or silk, some are wide and flat like a Japanese umbrella, while others, shaped like a dome, are reminiscent of the days of Antony and Cleopatra. They are elaborately trimmed with ruffles of lace, startling designs embroidered in silk or beads, and often ornamented with bands of velvet or ostrich.

A mutual understanding is ever the firmest chain.

ANOTHER North Shore resident has been honored by the French government. Beverly Rantoul son of the Hon. Robert S. Rantoul of Salem and a summer resident at Beverly Farms, has been honored with the "Croix de Guerre" of France, the equivalent of the Victoria Cross of England, for services with the Allies. Mr. Rantoul has been with the American ambulance in France and the honor bestowed gives much pleasure to his many friends in this section. The information is conveyed in a letter from France dated April 28, which follows:

"Our work is a great deal the same, except eight days out of twenty, we run for the first Post of Secour and that is one damn shell after another. You have to keep your wits, as you can time them more or less. The trouble is that there are parts of the road in plain sight of German batteries. As a matter of principle, they shell it just so often; then this country is full of French batteries and they are after them as well. Some days it is a continual roar; as the shells go over, you casually say, that is for this town or that town, you get to know the music of different kinds of shell and act accordingly.

"It is a wicked war, everything goes into the army, cutting down lots of their woods to make trenches and dug-outs (bomb proof); we sleep, eat and keep our cars in one. They are wonderfully constructed, some iron, then logs, stones about six or seven feet thick. Unless a shell hits them squarely they stop shrapnel and eclat.

"Good deal of warfare in the air here also—very interesting to see them chase each other firing all the time, both from the aeros and bills. Lots of shrapnel fell near me the other day, so I just got under my car until they passed on; never had good fortune to see them bring one down. The latest addition is a dirigible, out about every night, flash lights on it, shooting at it. You hardly forget for an instant that it is war.

"You may be pleased to know that I have been recommended for the Croix de Guerre (same as Victoria Cross), and very little doubt but what they will give it to me with a kiss on both cheeks. I feel very proud of it because it is heralded and everywhere I go the officers congratulate me.

"A shell exploded about ten feet from the ambulance while going for wounded, hit her in about a dozen places, didn't touch me at all. The Medicin Auxiliar, who goes with you (as the wounded are brought right out, we generally have to wait for them) was either knocked off or jumped, I went right over him but did no damage. Then one of my wounded was dead when they got to me, the other we took. On the way in we got shelled more or less for about six miles.

"It certainly has the effect of making a Ford go, but with it all is a ghastly feeling, wondering if they will get you.

"Well I must go out now. You little know how your letters are appreciated. "BEVERLY."

Information About Swimming—For Women

NO doubt there are a goodly number of persons who love the water and yet magnify the difficulties which prevent them from learning the secrets or enjoying the benefits, and for such these lines are written.

Do you fear the force of the wind,
The plash of the rain?
Go face them and fight them,
Be savage again.
Go hungry and cold like the wolf,
Go wade like the crane;
The palms of your hands will harden;
The skin on your face will tan;
You'll be hungry and ragged and weary,
But you'll walk like a man.

"IF you want to be a swimmer, get a wash basin full of water, bob your face up and down in it, reversing the usual manner of breathing, and you have the most important lesson in swimming. Any woman flung into the ocean by submarine warfare, motorboat accident or even from an upset canoe can save her life if she will do absolutely nothing but lie perfectly still on the water until help comes."

This is the advice of George H. Corsan of the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A., who has taught more than 250,000 persons to swim in the United States and Canada. He said, recently: "that 99 per cent of the cases of drowning are due to the lack of knowledge of proper breathing in the water. I have never known of a person's drowning from cramps alone. Upon being thrown in the water the first thing a non-swimmer does is to struggle and flop around in the wildest manner.

"The thing to do and the one real chance to keep afloat till help comes is to lie perfectly flat on the back, legs and feet together and well extended, arms to the side and with the back of the head well submerged. Above all, inhale through the mouth and exhale through the nose, entirely reversing the manner of breathing on land. I have known of many cases where a person has been drowned when apparently provided with a good life preserver. In these cases the foam from the waves dashing in the mouth has caused strangulation. A woman can float more easily than a man, and I wish this idea could be vividly impressed upon all of them."

THE National Women's Life-saving League, an active organization with a membership of more than 1500 and branches in several states, is conducting a country-wide campaign to have fair natatores take up and play water soccer.

The officials of the association fully agree with the college directors of physical education, who recently went on record as advocating athletic games in preference to formal gymnasium or natatorium work, and they believe soccer to be an ideal indoor sport for the sex.

Soccer turns work into fun. And the officials say that they have yet to see the girl who didn't become an enthusiast after once trying it.

And along with this comes water baseball which promises to become a popular aquatic sport. It is just as exciting and just as interesting as the great American pastime on land. Two or three snappy games were played last season in the North Shore Swimming Pool at Magnolia.

Water polo is a clever game that savors of football, but in water baseball we have a game that will delight all, and is bound to become a popular pastime at all our famous bathing resorts.

MARBLEHEAD summer residents, who are already down on the shore are treated almost daily to interesting demonstrations of the flying war boats which are tried out in the harbor. One of the North Shore's best known men, Godfrey L. Cabot, president of the Aero Club of New England, is fostering the development of aviation detachments of both Massachusetts and Virginia. He is flying about over the Neck and down Salem bay practically every sunny day. Mr. Cabot has done considerable to further the cause of military aviation and has offered to give one dollar for every nine dollars raised to acquire an aeroplane for the national guard of West Virginia. He has also sent the Aero Club of America a check for $1000 to start a fund to help pay the expenses of sending an aviator with an aeroplane from state to state to help the militia organize aviation corps.

Many of the early summer residents are to take part in the annual tag day in Marblehead in aid of the North Shore Babies' hospital. This year it comes on Saturday, June 3. Many of the summer colony have loaned their motors to facilitate the transportation of the many fair workers for the cause.

The yacht clubs will open officially a week from Saturday, on the 27th. Special features in the entertainment line will mark the initial enjoyment of the long season.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rothwell of Boston are down at "All View," their Harbor avenue cottage, on the Neck for the summer.

That Sundays are getting to be busy days on the Neck was shown last week, when there were 40 to luncheon at the Sea Gull.

SWAMPSCOTT has suffered a bit from the changeable weather of the past week, although several more cottagers become settled on that part of the shore.

Things are moderately busy at the Tedesco Country club, where Swampscott vacation folk spend their leisure moments.

Members of Tedesco have become enthusiastic over the prospects of trap shooting, work on the trap being started this week. A small recreation pavilion with an eight-foot piazza will look out on the lawn of the Porter property, recently purchased for the trap shooting and the clay pigeons will be popped from there. The members seem to catch on to the preparedness atmosphere in this sport and even the ladies who frequent the club say they will make good use of the opportunity to learn how to master the intricacies of a rifle. The pavilion will be fitted with a stove, so that in early spring and late fall the sport can be enjoyed with comfort.

Four or five vacancies in the membership of the Tedesco club have been filled, it is understood, and the lucky new members will be announced in the 1916 year book, which will be out soon.

The eight tennis courts at Tedesco have been retopped and are in perfect readiness for play this season.

The full 18-hole golf course was opened last Saturday. Some of the golf tournaments are scheduled to start May 30. That will be a big day at the club. Dancing afternoon and evening will be a magnet to bring many members to the club on the holiday.

MANCHESTER and Beverly Farms cottages are practically all rented for the season, according to the statements of real estate men. And what is true of these two places is equally true of many other resorts along the North Shore. In Beverly, Magnolia, all along the Cape Ann shore, and at Swampscott, Marblehead and Nahant there is a big demand for cottages this year—bigger than for years and years. It is going to be a big season on the North Shore; that much is assured.

Mrs. J. T. Harihan of the Blackstone Hotel, Chicago, has leased the Augustus Hemenway stone cottage, Smith's Point, Manchester, for the summer.

At Manchester also the James Means cottage has been leased for the season to the Walter H. Holbrooks of Newton.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris Livermore (Mildred Stimson) of 16 Charles River Square, Boston, have leased the Luke "Apple Orchard Cottage" at Beverly Farms for the summer. This, as well as the three mentioned above, was rented through the Boardman agency of Boston and Manchester.

The Clark cottage on Blossom Lane, Manchester, has been leased through the office of Meredith & Grew to Strafford Wentworth, whose winter home is in Milton. The same brokers leased the Rotch cottage to Mrs. Thomas B. Gannett, Sr., earlier in the season and represented the owner in the lease of the large Harris Cottage near-by to Mrs. E. L. Beck, of Mexico City, who has already arrived for the summer.

Saint Peter's Episcopal church, Beverly, was the scene of a pretty May wedding Tuesday evening when Miss Susan Harvey Wales, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Rogers Wales of 23 Washington street, Beverly, and granddaughter of Mrs. John Wales of Beacon street, Boston, and of Mrs. A. F. Harvey of Beacon street, Brookline, became the bride of Herbert Duncan Rollason, third son of the late Rev. Alfred and Mrs. Rollason of Cambridge, England. The nuptials were witnessed by many relatives and friends from Greater Boston cities and towns. The ceremony took place at 6.30 and was performed by the Rev. E. J. V. Huiginn.

Mrs. S. Reed Anthony and family have arrived at Beverly Farms this week.

There were a number of arrivals at Tunipoo Inn, Beverly Farms, the past week. The Inn provides many attractive features for the visitor to the North Shore; it is homelike, well located, with bathing beaches, woodland and splendid motor roads for the convenience of its guests. The tea room connected proved a popular feature last year, and it doubtless will again this season.

A Little Song of Comfort

O turn thine eyes,
Dear heart, from wintry skies
To where a wherry, laden deep
With daffodils
From the southern isles, from isles of sleep,
Her saffron spills
On the low-lying meads.

Look where she looses to the sere
And rustling reeds
The cuckoo of another year—
Where on the golden tides of air
She shoots her dim and purple nets,
Sweetly to snare
The sense with hope of violets.

Warm from the West
A breath
Hath blown aside the veil of death—
Where last year's nest
Waits the remoulding of a mother breast!
Turn then thine eyes,
O tender soul, to brightening skies.

EAST GLOUCESTER.—Nearly every other day brings some cottager along to this section of the North Shore, where the spring has developed into its beauty of leaf and blossom. The hotel proprietors are busy getting their houses in order for the reception of early guests. The Fair View hotel, the oldest resort along the Shore, opened this week and week-end guests will be eleven people from the private school of Miss Mary Church, of Boston, accompanied by Miss Church. The first permanent guests are Mrs. Herman Tuttle and daughter, Miss Margaret Tuttle of Boston.

Mrs. Ada Savage Reid, widow of the late General George Croghan Reid, of Washington, D. C., accompanied by her niece, Miss Nina Stockton, have arrived at "Heathercrest," the Reid estate at Eastern Point.

The Sleeper family of Boston has arrived at Eastern Point, joining Henry Davis Sleeper, at "Beauport," the Sleeper estate.

Langdon Gillette, the actor, accompanied by his bride of two months, have arrived here from New York city, to the MacCready cottage on Grape Vine Road. Mrs. Gillette was Miss Ayune MacCready, an attractive blonde, a popular member of the Eastern Point colony, who can play tennis and sail her own yacht. She is a member of the Gloucester Yacht club. Mrs. Gillette was formerly a guest of the Hawthorne Inn, but some years ago had her own cottage erected, besides a small bungalow on Grape Vine Road in the vicinity of Hotel Delphine.

Horace DeY. Lentz of Maunch Chunk, Pa., who last year purchased a tract of land on the height, above Mt. Pleasant avenue, and near the Weiss estate, from Ex-Mayor Patch, has enlarged his holdings by purchasing two additional tracts on Marble street, 50 by 94 feet of the Spurr estate and 90 by 94 feet of the Comeau estate. Mr. Lentz will build at East Gloucester in a short time.

Hayley Lever, the artist of New York city, has taken a studio on Mt. Pleasant avenue again this season and is located there with his wife and son.

There is more style about some boarding houses than there is grub.

BASS ROCKS.—Many of the cottage residents of this colony are expected the coming week. Dr. Octavius T. Howe and Dr. and Mrs. George P. Howe of Boston, are occupying their pleasant cottage on Souther and Brier roads, Bass Rocks, for the season. The Sears Condits of Boston are comfortably located in the Way cottage on Page street. Mrs. Ellis Mendell and family are in their cottage on Atlantic Road.

Miss Emily McGuckin of New York city is at her cottage at Bass Rocks, on Haskell street, near the edge of the golf links.

The Edward B. Westons of Dayton, O., and Boston, have arrived at their beautiful cottage "Waverolea," near Atlantic avenue. Mr. Weston is president of the Weston Paper and Manufacturing company.

The Southgates are expected in a few days, to occupy their large cottage on Atlantic avenue, near the rocks.

Mrs. Seth Mendell is at the Mendell cottage, Atlantic avenue, Bass Rocks. Mr. Mendell, who is president of the Perry Mason corporation, publishers of The Youth's Companion, comes later in the season for a sojourn.

ROCKPORT.—It was expected that some of the warships would visit Sandy Bay Harbor of Refuge in the early summer, as some officers of the ships were making inquiries of hotel proprietors for accommodations for their families. The feeling is not so promising now that Secretary Daniels recently gave orders for the New Jersey, Rhode Island and Nebraska to remain at the Charlestown navy yard and the transferring of many of the crews to other vessels.

Rev. Peter McMillan of Dover, N. J., has opened his cottage for the season.

The Grants of Boston have arrived at their Pigeon Cove cottage for a few weks. Miss Dora Lloyd of Boston, who has been spending the winter in the West, was a week-end guest of the Grants.

There were nearly a hundred college girls from Wellesley and Dana Hall, at Straitsmouth Inn, over last week-end. "The Breakers" cottage was not only open for the entertainment of the guests, but the Inn furnished plenty of room and enjoyment.

ANNISQUAM.—The pleasant weather of last week-end brought a goodly number of cottagers here for a visit. Gradually, the permanent residents for the summer are taking possession of their cottages.

Commodore Harry H. Wiggin of the Annisquam Yacht club, accompanied by his two sons, Sherburne and Morrill, of Brookline, spent the week-end at their Annisquam cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Jelly and son Donald, of Salem expect to occupy their Annisquam cottage for the season, this Saturday.

O. E. Shephard and family of Brookline have been at their Norwood's Heights cottage for a few days.

Miss Mabel E. Houghton of Boston, has been entertaining a house party at her cottage on Chester square, Annisquam.

Mrs. J. B. Williams and daughters of Cambridge occupy their cottage in the Hermit Ledge colony oft and on, and later will come for the summer.

Among those annual summer residents noticed at Annisquam last week-end were: Mr. and Mrs. William J. Day of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Davis W. Clark and four sons, of Brookline; Miss Charlotte A. Munster, of Waltham; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Damon of Newton.

The Search for "El Dorado"—Smithsonian Pamphlet Describes Early Maps Relating to It.

THE name "El Dorado," which dates back to the first part of the 16th century, is Spanish for "the gilded one," and an abbreviation for "the gilded man" (el hombre dorado). It was first applied to a native South American ruler or priest who, so early Spanish writers state, was gilded at a certain annual ceremony and then bathed in a lake near Santa Fe de Bogota, Colombia. The name next came to signify a legendary golden city, also called Manoa or Omoa, much sought after but never found. Later it was used to indicate a mythical country somewhere in South America where gold and precious stones were to be found in great abundance, and for which many expeditions searched in vain, among them those of Ordaz, Orellana, von Hutten, Quesada, and Sir Walter Raleigh. Today El Dorado is used metaphorically to designate a place where wealth can be rapidly acquired.

A phamphlet just issued by the Smithsonian Institution relates to the recent investigations of Dr. Rudolf Schuller, who writes on two sixteenth-century maps which relate to the Ordaz and Dortal expeditions in search of El Dorado. The first map he attributes to Oviedo, placing the date after 1542, and the latter, which is anonymous, Dr. Schuller believes to have made about 1560.

Diego de Ordaz, a former companion of Cortez, also credited as the first person to ascend the great volcano Popocatepetl near the City of Mexico, was granted a tract of land in South America by the Spanish Crown in 1530. His concession was for the colonization of the then very indefinite district of Maranon on the mainland. Ordaz sailed for South America, October 20, 1531, with 450 men in three vessels; he was met at the Canaries by another vessel and 150 men, but owing to severe storms the Admiral's ship was the only one to reach the coast in the neighborhood of the mouth of the Amazon. Thence he sailed northward to Paria, where he found and captured a fort built by Antonio Sedeno, justly claiming that this fort was on his concession where Sedeno had no right. Being dissatisfied with the region of the mouths of the Amazon and the coast of southern Guiana, however, Ordaz abandoned all attempts to colonize there and sailed north to the mouths of the Orinoco to explore the delta.

Two of the inscriptions on the old Spanish map refer to this exploring expedition, which set out from Paria on June 23, 1532, with 280 men, 18 horses and one mule, in seven galleys, and finally arrived at an Indian village called Huyapari or Aruacay. A translation of the legend reads: "The large village of Huyapari is situated two leagues inland from the Orinoco." According to Indian informants the source of the river was in a large lake lying in the mountains, the route to which lay through a province called Meta, where gold was abundant. This was El Dorado.

But the second legend inscribed above the mountains in the upper-right-hand corner of the map, informs us that "Ordaz could not pass this chain of mountains (by the river), on account of the bad condition of the water, and from this mountain he returned down the same river to the sea." Another inscription states that "To this side (west of the mountains), or the other end of this rock, Christians had not (yet) come," while an added note by the cartographer Oviedo mentions the accident on the return trip from the expedition in search of Meta—El Dorado—"Ordaz's large canoe remained (here) on dry (land)."

Although he later tried an overland route, Ordaz never located El Dorado; he suffered misfortune, lost his holdings in South America, and finally died on the way to Spain in 1533.

In 1533 Geronimo Dortal, treasurer of the Ordaz expedition, was granted the position formerly held by Ordaz, and also made governor of Paria. Shortly after his arrival, in 1534, Dortal equipped a new expedition to search for the famous Meta—El Dorado—under the command of Alonso de Herrera, a former lieutenant of Ordaz, and the itinerary of his ill-fated voyage is described on Oviedo's map in several legends, the last of which tells pathetically of his end: "Here they killed Alonso de Herrera, lieutenant of Governor Dortal; and to this place came afterwards the said Dortal and found true marks of the death of the aforesaid Herrera; and there were found among other things, a little bell and a tin-cup."

In 1536, about a year after Herrera's death, Dortal organized another expedition which is said to have discovered the domain of the female chief Orocomay, an independent community of Indian women, located on Oviedo's map between the Huyapari and the Barrancas rivers. This legend reads: "Here are the villages and domain of Queen Orocomay, who employs only females." Similar Amazons were also reported by Orellana in 1542, but today science does not credit such communities to South America.

One other legend relating to El Dorado reads: "Beyond these chains of mountains of the river Huyapari, there are vast plains which are believed to be the land of Peru, and the Indians say that beyond these chains of mountains there are great treasures and much gold." Contrary to some students of history Dr. Schuller places the date of this early map as after 1542, believing that it could not have been made until two or three years after the latest date recorded.

The second map, showing the rivers Amazon and Orinoco and the adjacent shores, is believed by Dr. Schuller to date about 1560. It includes two references to the Ordaz expedition on 1532, and much other interesting information to students of geography and history.

The region where on other maps is generally shown the legendary lake of Manoa, is here occupied by the following inscription: "This chain of mountains extends from the kingdom (of New Granada) and from Peru; in Peru it is rich in silver; and in the kingdom it is rich in gold; and this is what they call El Dorado."

The author feels that: "The influence of El Dorado and other similar traditions of genuine Indian origin, on the cartography of South America during the second half of the 16th century has not yet been studied with the care and attention which such an important historical and geographical question deserves."

The Red Cross Society has had a large task on its hands with the European situation to meet, the work in the Chinese flooded districts and in Mexico, but considering the obstacles that have had to be surmounted the work has been done well. On Sunday the Essex County Red Cross society made a report through Dr. Strong and Miss May Gladwin at a Beverly mass meeing. The addresses were thrilling in their description of the work done abroad. Miss Louisa P. Loring, secretary for Essex County, has been indefatigable in her work for the society since the war began and the meeting was arranged under her direction. The society should have the generous support of the public financially and morally.

The Public Library building commission appointed to build the Beverly Farms Public Library has nearly completed its work and soon the building will be turned over to the Library Commissioners. The work has been well done, the plans well executed and the building is a credit to the city and to the commission. Beverly Farms has long needed a library building, for the facilities presented in the old building were inadequate to meet the demands of so important a centre. The new building will be used much more than the old. It is a wise city that plans its expenditures to provide adequate library facilities.

Prosperity is Apparent everywhere. In a decade there has not been such a demand for summer homes on the Shore. Most of the regular summer visitors are planning to open their own homes and such as are planning trips have had no trouble in renting their property readily at good prices . Everything points to a good season and a long one. Already the shore cottagers are beginning to open and the season is now begun.

Beverly Rantoul of Salem and Beverly Farms has had an interesting experience as a volunteer ambulance driver. Driving on an open road under peace conditions and driving an ambulance over a road fired upon regularly by German guns present different experiences. He well deserves the Croix de Guerre, for which he has been recommended.

The Commencement Season is coming on rapidly. Many schools have already ended their work and the examination periods have begun. Boston University is planning a gala season, Technology will dedicate its new buildings and Harvard will have the yard replanted and the Commencement exercises will be held in the open air.

The War Has Done More for New England's summer industry than it has for the motor trade or the munition makers. Americans are learning to see America first; no one has seen America who has not seen the North Shore.

Cambridge by Dilatory Tactics has lost the Tabernacle. But then, Billy Sunday will be more at home on the ball grounds.

The League to Enforce Peace, which is holding its annual convention in the city of Washington, has had a remarkable development during the past year because of the sane appeal which has been made. It would be folly to consider for a moment that any public movement in America could in any way meet the demands of the present war situation. The nations at war alone can meet this problem. The League is looking far into the future when the war is ended and order begins to come out of chaos. Progress is being made slowly, but it is not unreasonable to believe that before the next fifty years have passed some better way will have been devised to avoid war, settle international problems, to formulate international laws, to solve problems of international trade and to throw international diplomacy into the open. The league's program is not perfect, but it is blazing a trail. It required many years to solve the governmental problem which has made a republic possible, but the republican form of government is an accomplished fact. The republican form of government has many faults, but it is an advance over monarchies or limited and constitutional monarchies. The League to Enfore Peace may be obliged to change its policy, but its purpose leads forward. It is to be hoped that here is the seed, which once well planted will grow.

The Laror Troubles on the Railroads do not seem to end. Early in the week the clerks made representations to the New Haven road and a strike was averted. On the Boston & Maine railroad the track workers and foremen presented a grievance which is now being considered. Everyone wishes labor to have its just rewards. The unfortunate element in the situation is that the railroad business has been such as to make it impossible for the roads to make ends meet financially. The railroads have been having hard times and it is to be hoped that the prosperty which is apparently coming will tend to develop the prosperity of roads to such a degree as to make it possible for them to correct any injustices to their employees and deal justly with their stockholders by the payment of a reasonable return on their investment. The railroads have had ten trying years, but there is a turn in the road and the future should be brighter than the immediate past.

The Gasoline War continues despite the agitation of news journals and the investigations of legislatures. The people need the fuel, the great companies have the supply and the public pays the bill. No real reason has been advanced yet to explain the abnormal increases in the price of gasoline. If the price of gasoline will only inspire some genius to discover a cheap substitute the rise will have not been without good results.

When Forced by the Circumstances of life to put up with erratic self-willed people who persist in annoying the work you are endeavoring to do, it will be well to remember that of the 275,000 feeble-minded people in the United States only twenty-eight thousand of them are confined in institutions. Someone has to put up with the rest of them.

The United States Government has a case against Great Britain to which President Wilson is now addressing himself. Sometime ago he warned the British government through our representative. The negotiations were not continued because of the seriousness of the German American diplomatic problem. Now that is out of the way the United States will demand of Great Britain more considerate treatment of our mails. The problem is not simple by any means, but there do not lurk in it any serious possibilities. The issues will be readily adjusted and the good relations of the two countries will continue unaltered.

The Exchange of Notes between this government and Germany has practically ended and Germany has conceded the points demanded by President Wilson. It has taken time, required much patience; but the President has won his point, without this country being forced to sever diplomatic relations with Germany. The situation presented was the most serious diplomatic problem put up to any President since Lincoln and the President has been able to maintain the dignity of the nation, and save the laws of nations from being wrecked by German submarines. Everyone is thankful at the turn of events.

The Preparedness Movement has developed a tremendous momentum. Last Saturday for hours the marchers were in line in New York city and the parade was declared a success. In Boston a week from tomorrow a similar parade will be held. The people are thoroughly aroused to the dangers of unpreparedness. If now the same enthusiasm could be aroused to prevent the development of the militaristic spirit the movement will have been truly successful. To arouse enthusiasm for preparedness and to avoid the dangers of militarism presents a problem for this generation.

The Battle Around Verdun rages, day after day and week after week, without any appreciable gains being made by the Prussian arms. No announcement of their ultimate purpose has been made and it is difficult to understand the reason for the Prussian persistance at this point. The lives lost have been great and the capture of Verdun itself does not appear worth it. Verdun appears to be the Dardanelles of the Prussians.

The New York Supreme Court has rendered a decision that will have a far reaching effect. A well known woman on alighting from a Pullman car in a station stepped upon an icy platform, slipped and broke an ankle. She sued the Pullman Company and the railroad and lost. The Supreme Court declared that the defendants were not to be held responsible for conditions resulting from the weather.

Despite the Fact that the interned German merchant marine would yield valuable prizes to this nation without the discharge of a gun the negotiations were maintained upon the high grounds of humanitarian rights. The United States government has not been seeking a quarrel, but has been seeking right for righteousness and peace.

When the War is Over and the story of the effort to take Paris is written a large place will be accorded to Russia. It was the sudden launching of the Russian army that assisted the French in their victorious stand at the Marne.

Rumors of Peace keep coming up in the despatches from across the ocean and "all Europe is talking peace." There are, however, no signs of an immediate peace, alas!

"Preparedness Has Found its way into state legislation—notably in New York," says The Outlook. "The legislature of New York State has adjourned, leaving for the Governor's approval or disapproval five military bills. Three of these have to do with the State militia. The other two bills relate to the physical and military training of boys and girls. One of these bills, known as the Welsh Bill, is good in that it provides for an experiment worth trying; the other known as the Slater Bill, is bad and ought to be vetoed.

"The Welsh Bill provides that after the first of next September all boys and girls over eight years of age in public and private elementary and secondary schools of the State shall receive physical training. This shall include not only training in physical posture and bearing, mental and physical alertness, and so on, but also training that will develop 'self-control, disciplined initiative, sense of duty, and spirit of co-operation under leadership.' The courses of instruction shall be determined by the Regents in conference with the Military Training Commission."

Let it be Hoped now that Carranza is strong enough to carry out the agreements made with and the promises made to our governement. If a stable native government once gains control of Mexico one great step toward a peaceful adjustment of the difficulties there will have been taken.

THE Outlook says: "The 'Plattsburg idea' is growing. It originated, we believe, with Major-General Leonard Wood. Its primary purpose is to train men in civil life by giving them instruction in summer camps so that we should have in this country a reserve body of civilians competent to furnish officers for volunteer regiments in time of military need. It is a volunteer and civilian movement, although it has the approval and supervision of the War Department of the Federal Government. It is a successful attempt to put into practice by voluntary action the principles of military and civic training which the Swiss people have adopted as a part of their fundamental political structure. These military training camps, which are popularly known as "Plattsburg Camps," because of the great success last summer of the camp at Plattsburg, New York, are peculiarly American because they are at once voluntary, civil, and military. Although promoted by associations of citizens, they are directed and managed by the Federal Government, through the War Department. The function of the citizens' associations is to distribute information, arouse public interest, and obtain the volunteers; the function of the War Department is to have control of the moral, intellectual, military, and disciplinary education in the camp.

"As originally planned, an age limit was set for the Plattsburg camps this summer. No applicant under eighteen or over forty-five was to be accepted. But some of the headmasters of the prominent preparatory schools of the country believed that school-boys under eighteen years of age should receive the benefits provided by the Plattsburg camps. Under the leadership of Dr. Drury, of St. Paul's School, Concord, New Hampshire, a committee was organized some weeks ago to plan a training camp for school-boys between fifteen and eighteen. The plan has been approved by General Wood and by the War Department, and such a camp will be maintained on the Government reservation at Fort Terry, on Plum Island, Long Island Sound, New York. The Fort Terry Camp is an extension of the Plattsburg idea and will be managed on the same basis and under the same general regulations as the camps at Plattsburg. It will be held from July 6 to August 10, inclusive."

Fashion and Household Suggestions

FOR THE COLONEL'S LADY

Sport Clothes for Summer.

THE leaning of woman towards out-of-door clothes, "sports" clothes, in fact, has become more and more marked in the last few seasons. There was first of all the sport coat that enjoyed a popularity of an unusual length of time. This useful (although, it must be confessed, somewhat overworked) garment was supplemented with sport hats, sport skirts, and sport (oh, very sport!) shoes. Thus, it has come to pass that fair woman wears tennis and golf clothes, notwithstanding the fact that she may play these strenuous games but indifferently, if, indeed, at all. Sports clothes this season have stepped over the boundary of simple cotton skirts, panama hats, and belted, wool coats into the charming and fascinating land of striped and checked silk skirts of many colors, beautifully textured, hand painted hats, and bewilderingly cut silk or jersey coats. Shoes are all (and more) than suitability demands. For the woman whose summer is to be spent in the country or at the shore, sport clothes are giving the answer to a vexing question, and to the woman with the slender income they are indeed a godsend.

Let us consider, first, the sport suit, which may be pressed into service for the occasional trip to town, if it so happens that milady has chosen it of conservative material. The best material for the sport suit is, almost without question, jersey cloth. This practical goods may be found in every shade from the most shrieking cerise to the obscure heather shades. In the rose, blue and bright green shades it is wonderfully smart and becoming and adds much to the attractiveness of the tennis court or of the golf course. The less conspicuous mixtures in green, brown and blue, are more desirable from the practical standpoint, however, as they will prove to be less tiresome if to be worn a great deal. There is no doubt that the sport suit is a good investment for the out-of-door woman, even if her means are limited. These suits come in every conceivable model from the most fantastic to the simplest Norfolk, and all are delightful, when filling their own little niches.

The Sport Skirt.

THE sport skirt will prove of more general interest, perhaps, since there is no doubt that every woman will have not one, but several for the warm months. For every woman there is every type of sport skirt, too, ranging from the conservatively cut, tremendously practical white skirt of linen or gabardine, let us say, to the very full, puffed-pocketed striped skirt of jersey silk or of heavy tub satin. And all the way between we find them, hundreds upon hundreds of them, flannel, wool, velours, duvetyn, and cotton made up into appealing and practical skirts. Just a word about the general characteristics of the sport skirt for 1916. Many of the plainer ones depend upon the belt, which is wide and cleverly fastened, for smartness. Pockets there are of new shapes and sizes. Some skirts are finished about the top with an upstanding frill. Skirts for really active wear are not too full, but the more formal (if the word may be used) ones are very full. All are short.

And with these skirts must be worn something becoming, something smart in the way of a sweater or coat. Luxurious silk sweaters in exquisite shades are holding their own for this season, but they can never wholly take the place of a wool sweater. One of the best looking, as well as the most comfortable, sweaters seen in the shops this year was of closely woven, light weight jersey wool, in blue with cuffs, collar, pockets, belt and buttons of white it was more than usually attractive. This sweater came in the other desirable shades of the season, rose, green, and gold, for instance. Just to show how beautiful a sweater may be without having any of the homely qualities of warmth or durability the same shop had an imported sweater of brushed silk. This one was longer than the jersey, had a sash with tasseled ends instead of the severe, buttoned belt, wide revers and an upstanding collar and gathered sleeves. Sport coats are being shown in duvetyn and wool velours in the most becoming shades of rose imaginable, and also in wool cheviots, and a few in corduroy.

Just a little about the sport shoes, which are to be the most elaborate we have ever seen, as has been the way of all boots for a year and more. The sport shoes may be pumps, oxfords or boots. They may be made of buckskin, leather or canvas and may be all white, white combined with black, tan, gray, green and snakeskin effects. New sneaker pumps have moderately high or even very high heels of rubber and soles of rubber. Interesting are the sandal-like pumps which are made of white buckskin in combination with gray for the back and the straps of the pumps. The "snakeskin" shoes are the most daring things that even bootmakers have shown to a novelty-loving American public. They are bewildering in color and cut, and will, probably, attain a considerable popularity with lovers of the bizarre before the summer is over. The color effect is usually repeated in the trimming of the hat,—to give a raison d'etre, mayhap.

Mid-Day Dishes for May.

OF all the dishes of spring, probably none is more agreeable to the jaded palate than asparagus. It is one of the first of the green things for the table and after the need for purchasing the more expensive hot-house kind is over, our own gardens may supply us with this delicacy until late in the summer. The best known manner of serving asparagus is undoubtedly "on toast," but there is still a delicious way and an indifferent way of preparing this. The delicious way is to dip the toast in the water in which the asparagus has been boiled and then serve very hot in the usual manner and with plenty of good butter; the indifferent way—well, who is interested in the indifferent way, anyway?

Asparagus omelet is delicious. The asparagus is boiled until tender and the tips cut in small pieces, these are mixed with four well-beaten eggs and seasoned with salt and pepper. This mixture is poured into an omelet pan, well buttered, and stirred until thick. When ready to serve it is folded over and served with clear brown gravy.

Salad is always appreciated, especially for luncheon, as it is not only refreshing, but easy to prepare unless one attempts the more elaborate sort. The following chicken salad is as simple as can be to prepare and is always good. Take breast meat, cut in small pieces, mix with an almost equal amount of celery, also cut fine. Mix this with mayonnaise dressing and serve on fresh, crisp lettuce leaves. Apple is a pleasing addition to the salad if desired.

Ripe tomatoes used alone or in combination with other ingredients make excellent salad. Tomatoes and cucumbers served on lettuce and with mayonnaise are very good. Tomatoes may be combined with cold meats, perferably veal, and mayonnaise dressing for a substantial salad. Meat and tomatoes should both be cut into dice and mixed well with the dressing and served with lettuce.

Stuffed tomatoes have for long been favorites and at this time of the year, mushrooms make particularly acceptable forcemeat. To prepare the tomatoes for stuffing, cut a slice from the stem end, scoop out the seeds, sprinkle the inside with salt and invert. Let them drain for about twenty minutes. Then fill with the following mixture: 2 tablespoonfuls butter, 2 teaspoonfuls minced onion, cooked together with 1 cup fresh mushrooms, sliced. Saute for ten minutes, add 1 cup breadcrumbs, and season rather highly with salt and pepper, then place in the tomatoes with buttered crumbs sprinkled over the top. Bake in a buttered dish at least half an hour. Serve hot.

YACHTING, GOLF, TENNIS AND OTHER SPORTS Along the NORTH SHORE

YACHTING.—The clubhouse of the Corinthian Yacht club at Marblehead will be opened for the season at noon Saturday, May 27. Since the house was closed last season, the building has been enlarged by adding a new billiard-room and sleeping rooms at the southern end. This was made necessary for carrying out the plans of taking part of the old dining-room for a ladies' department.

Commodore Herbert M. Sears' big auxiliary schooner Constellation will soon be ready to go into commission for the summer. Since the return of the yacht the first of April from a two months' cruise in the West Indies, the schooner has received a thorough overhauling. Several port bow plates have been renewed and the paint has been chipped off the entire topsides, as she is to be painted black once more, instead of the white topsides put on for the southern cruise.

J. L. Saltonstall's patrol cruiser under construction at Lawley's will be ready for service in about one month, delay having been met in delivery of materials. This boat is described as one of the finest examples of moderately heavy construction ever built at the Neponset yard.

The regatta committee of the Boston Yacht club has announced the schedule of races of the club for the 1916 season as follows: June 17, open race, Hull; Aug. 9, open race, Marblehead; Aug 17, 18 and 19, open races, Hull. Also the club will cruise down Maine, the itinerary of which will be announced later, from July 15 to 22 with the rendezvous at Marblehead. Championship prizes will be awarded by the club in Class P, Bar Harbor 31-foot class, Class R, and first and second special rating classes, to qualify for which a boat must start in at least four of the club's scheduled races. Charles P. Curtis, whose various sonder boats under the name of Ellen have been challengers and defenders for the Boston Yacht club in the Quincy Challenge Cup for a number of years past, is to defend this trophy for the club with his 31-rater Ellen, formerly the Valiant. In the Manhasset Bay Challenge Cup match off Greenwich, Conn, the last of August the club will be represented by Commodore Allen C. Jones' flagship the "P" class racer, Nutmeg III.

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL

Saturday's game between Story High School and Dummer Academy at the Manchester playground was marred by the many errors which both teams were guilty of, Manchester being the worst offender and paying the penalty of a 13 to 7 defeat. It was the first game lost by the local high school team this season and although facing a superior team in age and experience Manchester would have had a show of winning but for the inexcusable errors in the early part of the game. Features were home runs by Rush of Dummer, and Chadwick and Beaton of Manchester. Bohaker stopped Barbour of the Dummer team from making a homer by plunging into the brook in center to field a long fly.

One side of Central street from Bridge and Pine streets to the corner of School st. was torn up this week by A. G. Tomasello & Son in preparation for re-surfacing the road. An emergency traffic squad of three men are stationed one at each end of the torn-up road and one in the middle, to direct traffic along that portion of the highway. Although work on the surface of the highway was just commenced this week the installing of the drainage system has been practically completed. The contract calls for the entire completion of the road from the Priest school to the Beverly line by Wednesday, June 28, which allows 33 more working days in which to complete the work.

The internal troubles of China are described in letters received from Henry F. Merrill, a Manchester boy and a graduate of M. I. T. in 1914, by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Merrill of Bridge st. In one letter recently received the young man, who is on the Board of Conservancy and is stationed at Shameen, China, he tells of the revolt of the province of Kwangtung. During the days which followed its declaration of independence Chinese cruisers in the harbor threatened to shell Canton and the removal of valuables to Shameen was considered necessary. A bomb was thrown at a hospital a few hundred feet from the office where Mr. Merrill was located. He witnessed fighting between the soldiers and rioters. He has a poor opinion of the Chinese soldiers, most of them being coolies recently enlisted and they are careless in their handling of firearms. The U. S. S. Wilmington lies off Shameen and foreigners feel safe as the Chinese have learned to have a wholesome regard for the gunboats of the foreigners.

SOCIETY NOTES

Prominent among the new-comers to the North Shore this year will be Mr. and Mrs. Reginald De Koven of New York city, who are to occupy Amos A. Lawrence's beautiful estate, at Beaver Pond, Beverly, during July and August. Mr. De Koven is prominently identified with music interests, and is best known, perhaps, through his production of Robin Hood. He has written another opera, which has been accepted and will be produced next season. He is one of the directors of the Metropolitan Opera Co., and some years ago he conducted a Symphony Orchestra in Washington.

PARENT-TEACHER MEETING

Speaker from Association to Abolish War is for Peace at Any Cost.

MANCHESTER has heard many sides of the preparedness question presented during the past winter, but until Wednesday evening it had yet to hear a "peace at any price" advocate. Rev. Wilbur K. Thomas of Roxbury, who spoke to the members of the Parent-Teacher association in Price school hall, Manchester, on Wednesday, presented some phases of "preparedness" seldom discussed these days. In his introductory remarks Mr. Thomas said that he was "not neutral on the question of peace." He explained that the views he expressed were his own convictions and that he was perfectly willing to have others differ with him.

Mr. Thomas said there was a universal demand for peace after seeing the horrors of war. "We all look forward to the day when there will be no more wars, when there will be a parliament of peace, a federation of the world." He said practically all the newspapers and magazines in the country were advocating preparedness and the advocates varied from those who believed in moderate preparedness for defense to those who wanted our forces strong enough to withstand the combined attack of two or three countries.

"Usually the man who shouts loudest for preparedness wants to send someone else's boy," he said. "How many of those, who will march in the preparedness parade in Boston on May 27, will end up at the recruiting station? I believe the way to the peace of the world is not through preparedness, but through disarmament and the substitution of constructive service. Wars may be avoided by cultivating a spirit of friendliness among nations."

All of the European nations were prepared at the outbreak of the war, and had been for years, yet that did not prevent war, he said. Going over the history of the great nations, Mr. Thomas said that each in her day was prepared in a military way and that to this was largely due the downfall of each. "What reason have we to believe that we shall exist as a nation 1000 years from now unless we change our course of action?" he asked.

He said that preparedness caused the war with Spain. Politicians would use the military power on some pretext for agression if we were prepared. "Civilized men should reason and not fight," continued Mr. Thomas. "My boy is worth more to me than Hearst's oil wells in Mexico." He said that the Mexican agitation was due to the Hearst papers.

"The price of one battleship would build 1000 churches, buy 5000 farms, or send 40,000 men and women to college for a year. Preparedness must be regarded as a source of irritation and be removed. We must substitute constructive service. We have stripped the Mexicans of their land and our financiers have stripped them of their property. One thousand school teachers would do more to cultivate good will than would 100,000 soldiers to kill.

"I know our shores are defenseless, I know our army is inadequate for defense. You could put our standing army in the Yale stadium. I will not say that we would not be devastated if we are not prepared. We may be destroyed as a nation, but the loss will not be so great and in the end we will get peace. To me the Red in our flag stands for the mistakes and bloodshed of the past, White for the purity and peace we strive for, and Blue the hope of Heaven."

Before and after the address of Mr. Thomas the pupils of the 8th grade sang. The first selection was "Strew Fairest Flowers," and the concluding numbers were "Oars are Plashing Lightly" and Soldiers of Peace." Misses Lila McEachern and Janet Height were the pianists. Misses Mary Knight and Janet Height sang a duet and the soloists were Misses Mary Knight and Myrtle Lethbridge.

His beard of snow
Heaves with the heaving of his breast.

BROTHERHOOD CONCERT

Lafayette Quartet of Boston Makes Its Second Appearance in Manchester.

THE annual concert of the Brotherhood was held in Town hall, Manchester, Wednesday evening. There was a good attendance in spite of other gatherings on the same evening. The Lafayette quartet of Boston made its second appearance in Manchester this season and gave a very fine entertainment. Mrs. Wilmer Dearborn Carter, the reader, was not with the quartet on the occasion of their former appearance at the Baptist church at the guest night of the Friendship Circle, but is a valuable addition to the company of entertainers. The quartet is composed of Frank Craigie, Roy L. Patch, John Blum and Charles Brown. Mrs. A. Wachendorf Lewis was the accompanist. The program follows:

Quartet, "Lo, the Sun," Scott
"Weigh the Anchor"
Reading, "Americanizing of Andre Francois"

John Blum
Quartet, "The Indian's Bride," Reed
"Elfman" Gibson

LITTLE MORE VARIETY IN BAND CONCERT PROGRAMS SUGGESTED.

Editor North Shore Breeze:

For several summers we have been listening to very enjoyable concerts here in Manchester by a band from a neighboring city. These concerts have not only attracted nearly all of our townspeople, but many from surrounding towns. There is only one thing to be said about these concerts —they are getting monotonous. We hear the same pieces year after year. In fact sometimes we even hear the same number two or three times in a season. Could it not be suggested to the leader that a little wider variety in numbers would be appreciated? Or why can we not have some "Request" numbers so that the music loving townspeople could express their wishes?

Hoping that some benefit can be derived from this suggestion before the programs are arranged, I am,

"A MANCHESTER MUSIC-LOVER."

Theatres
BOSTON

WILBUR THEATRE, BOSTON.

On Monday last the Messrs. Shubert presented their new musical comedy, "A Brazilian Honeymoon" at the Wilbur Theatre, Boston. It had been in preparation for several weeks and will remain at the Wilbur for a limited engagement. It has proved a big musical hit.

The book is by that noted librettist, Edgar Smith; Winterberg and Romberg are responsible for the score; Matthew Woodward has written the lyrics, and last but not least their combined efforts are to be crowned by that charming and winning of younger prima donnas, Marguerite Namara who achieved such success in "Alone at Last."

The cast includes Frances Demarest, Hal Forde, John Goldsworthy, Louis A. Simon, Raymond and Caverly, Dolly Castles, Clifton Webb, Marion Ballou, Shep Camp, Philip Dunning, Lester Scharff, Jeanne Cartier, Kathleen George, Katharine Collier, Nora White and a big chorus. This engagement is played at special summer prices, with $1.50 as the highest price for best seats in the evening, and $1 for the best seats in the Wednesday matinee.

MAJESTIC THEATRE, BOSTON.

"The Birth of a Nation," that D. W. Griffith mighty spectacle, which has resumed its interrupted engagement of last September and October at the Majestic Theatre, is going along as though nothing had happened to interfere with the longest run, by several weeks, of any theatrical attraction in the history of the Boston stage. The crowds flock to see it every afternoon and evening now, in the 31st week of its Boston engagement, just as enthusiastically as ever. Figured out on the basis of one performance each week day "The Birth of a Nation" has now been appearing here for over one solid year. Greater Boston figures a population of about two million, and then there is all of New England beside, and moreover, it is a well known fact that thousands of people have enjoyed this most wonderful production ever made on the American stage so well that they have gone to see it twice and more times, and so it is easily demonstrated that there are many more housefuls of theatregoers still awaiting the opportunity of seeing "The Birth of a Nation."

Howard Stanley fell from a height double that of the other, but landed on his feet. His injuries were received during the fall when his hands scraped along the rough wall. The men were taken to their homes in a taxi; Dr. Tyler attended them.

Arbella Club Play.

The Arbella club was greeted by a crowded house last Friday evening when the Arbella players presented "The Ladies of Cranford" in the Manchester Town hall.

The girls are to be congratulated on the success of their undertaking. Some forty-two of them took part in the evening's program and everyone was letter perfect. It was a good wholesome entertainment, and Manchester feels proud of its girls, who can put on a two-hour entertainment with such merit.

The little play occupied the first part of the evening, the following being the cast of character:

Miss Matilda Jenkyns, the Rector's daughter, Mildred Peart
Miss Mary Smith, her visitor, Ethel Spry
Miss Jessie Brown, a new resident, Hester Rust
Miss Pole, a friend to Miss Jenkyns, Esther Northrup
Mrs. Forrester, born a Tyrrell, Elisabeth Jewett
Miss Betty Barker, a retired milliner, Abbie Floyd
The Hon. Mrs. Jamieson, a leader in Society, Fannie Knight
Martha, maid to Miss Jenkyns, Ruth Spry
Peggy, maid to Miss Barker, Mary Gray
Customers:
Mrs. Purkis, a country woman, Ruth Brooks
Little Susan, her daughter, Elizabeth Cappello
Jennie, a country girl, Alice Flaherty

The second part of the program, musical throughout, was of even greater enjoyment. The program follows:

"Santa Lucia" Glee Club
"Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" Marion Lations, Helen Cheever, Helen Knight, Claudia Wilson
"Sur Le Pont D'Avignon" ("On the Bridge of Avignon") Antonette Vidal, Pauline Semons, Melissa Stanley, Clara Corrin
"Comin' Tro the Rye" Emily Ferreira
"O Du Liebes Augustin" ("O Thou Dearest Maiden Mine") Beatrice Long, Violet Read, Doris Knoerr, Mary Gillis
"Madam, Will You Walk?" Emily Ferreira, Clara Corrin
"Miss Nancy's Gown" Glee Club

The girls raised something over $100, which will go toward the expense of the annual Christmas tree on the Common, and toward the series of Arbella concerts, which were so much enjoyed the past winter. The girls made their own costumes.

x-x-x

An idea of the amount of work to be done in the reconstruction of Bridge and Central streets, Manchester, may be gained from the fact that some 900 loads of gravel and filling have already been taken from trenches dug in connection with the drainage—before any work is done on the street itself, and in cutting down the grade between Ashland ave. and Pine st. This has been hauled to Masconomo park for filling at a cost of $1 a load. The material is excellent for this purpose—better than any put on the park in the past, it is said.

Masconomo Park, by the way, is looking good. It is a blessing to the town that it can afford to fill in this marsh right in the heart of the village, and replace it with a beauty spot such as Masconomo Park will surely be long before another generation shall have passed. The town is building for the future, and ought not to stop here. The work should be continued—a little, year after year. Dividends are already being paid; the investment will prove a good one as time goes on. The flowers and shrubs, the green grass and walks and trees—all add their jot and tittle to the pleasures of living. We hope some day to see a beautiful prominade, starting up toward the railroad bridge, and swinging down to Beach street, along the edge of Masconomo Park, encircling the basin between the park and the Smith Farm, and coming out over on Proctor street somewhere. Manchester has a wonderful opportunity here. Plans are already under way to put a new street across the Smith Farm property from Beach to Proctor streets, we understand, and when the matter is brought before the town for acceptance it ought to go through without a dissenting voice.

x-x-x

The work which the North Shore Horticultural society is doing in fostering the growing of flowers and vegetables by school children is praiseworthy. It has resulted in creating an interest in agriculture and horticulture among children at just the right age. The method, competition, induces more youngsters to take an interest in gardening than would persuasion or coercion. The children will in many cases get an experience from their little garden plots that will be useful to them a little later and may lead to a wider field of activity in gardening.

BROTHERHOOD MEETING

Sinclair Kennedy of Brookline Talked of Plattsburg Idea and Preparedness.

Sinclair Kennedy of Brookline, a graduate of the Plattsburg training camp, spoke to about 100 members of the Brotherhood in the Manchester Baptist church vestry on Monday evening. Mr. Kennedy is no half-way advocate of "preparedness for peace," but favors "preparedness for war." At the outset he pictured a dark future for America unless she was prepared. He referred to the hymn which was sung at the beginning of the meeting, "Work for the Night is Coming," as very appropriate.

"Appeals have been made to us to aid Belgian babies, Polish babies and even German babies," he said, "but I want to say a word for American babies."

All wars are fought for the protection of women and children, Mr. Kennedy said. In the days of the cave men when the woman called to her man for protection he ventured forth to combat neighboring tribes with a stone axe. Today all the skill and science of modern civilization is used in warfare, and if the woman does not call to the man two years ahead of time she need not call at all. It will be too late.

"It is humiliating to know that we are enjoying our local self-government only because of the protection afforded us by the British fleet. It is futile to count on that protection to last forever."

Speaking of the "Plattsburg idea," Mr. Kennedy said that it embodied more than the physical bounds of the military camp. "It is an aspiration on the part of the men who graduate from the camp to arouse Americans to the fact that a man's duties to his country come before the privileges which he enjoys," he said.

Mr. Kennedy recommends that the men on the coast join the naval training cruise rather than the Plattsburg camp and leave the military training to the men from the inland states. He discussed the possibilities of defense with America's present facilities and compared them to those of the little Swiss republic. In Switzerland at an expense of one-twentieth of what our standing army and national guard costs us they mobilized an army of 100,000 men in 24 hours after war threatened and had 300,000 more men on the way. America can mobilize according to the best estimates 90,000 trained men in 30 days. Mr. Kennedy said he was glad to note the work being done by the Essex county men in rifle practice.

He described the life in the training camp, spoke highly of the sanitary conditions, food and the benefits of the training. The stereopticon was used to illustrate the talk. During the question period Mr. Kennedy was asked if he did not believe that any suitable preparedness program was hopeless under the present administration. Mr. Kennedy said that the trouble was not with the Administration, but was due to the lack of support by Congress and the public. He asked how many had written their Congressman asking him to support preparedness measures and the President in international relations.

Refreshments of crackers and cheese and cocoa were served at the conclusion of the discussion.

Raymond, the two-year-old son of Mail Carrier Hodgdon, Bridge st., narrowly escaped serious injury to his eye Sunday, when a dog belonging at the H. L. Higginson estate jumped at him while the youngster was playing in the yard of Mr. Cruickshank, and grabbed the little fellow by the nose, severely lacerating his face in several places, missing the eye by a fraction of an inch. Although probably not of a serious nature, it was necessary to have the wounds cauterized.

HEARING TODAY.

The Interstate Commerce Commission is to hold a hearing at New York, at the Assembly Room of the Merchants' association in the Woolworth building, today, for the purpose of giving shippers and carriers another opportunity to discuss the changes that should be made in the present forms of bills of lading.

This matter has been before the Commission for several years and during the early part of April there was a meeting in Washington at which a great many of the differences between the shippers and the carriers were ironed out. There remain, however, several sections in the bill of lading upon which there seems to be a wide difference of opinion; the carriers' proposition not meeting with the approval of the shippers, or being too drastic in some cases to suit them.

John J. Burke, Esq., is spending much of his time these days at Concord, N. H., as one of the attorneys in the famous Major Ralph G. Carpenter divorce suit. What a pity that beautiful Magnolia should be dragged into this disgrace and shame!

Mrs. A. C. Thornton and her daughter, Mary, who have spent most of the winter at "The Brunswick" in Boston, are expected to arrive tomorrow for the season at their summer home off Magnolia ave. Both mother and daughter, who have been coming here for many years, have always taken a lively interest not only in the place, but also in its residents, identifying themselves with the interests of the public library, village church, public schools and all that pertains to the welfare of Magnolia and its inhabitants.

About nine o'clock Monday night a fire was discovered in the little cottage on the Shore road owned by Edwin Foster and but for the prompt action of the fire department, not only the cottage, but also the Women's clubhouse, which is located next to it, would doubtless have been destroyed. The origin of the fire is still a mystery.

Walter Barrett of 9 Blake court, East Gloucester, a driver for Walter Cressy, the contractor, had a thrilling experience, and also a very narrow escape at the crossing leading to the freight yard a short distance east of the Magnolia depot, Tuesday afternoon, when the American Express train due here shortly after 5, running express from Manchester to Gloucester, struck a dump cart which Barrett was driving. Fortunately neither the driver nor horses were injured, although the cart was demolished. The cart was used to haul crushed stone from the freight for use on the new state highway.

VILLAGE CHURCH

Dr. L. Lincoln Wirt Lectures in Magnolia on "In the Wake of the War."

DR. L. LINCOLN WIRT of Wellesley Hills delivered a most stirring lecture on the European war and its consequences at the Village church, Magnolia, last Sunday evening. His subject was "In the Wake of the War" and the little church was filled to its capacity with an audience that listened intently to Dr. Wirt's vivid word pictures of scenes in the war zone.

Dr. Wirt sailed from New York about a year ago on the first of May, the same day that the ill-fated Lusitania departed from port. He was booked to sail on the Lusitania, but at the last moment was influenced to sail by another route. When he arrived in London sometime later he found his friends mourning his death, as his name was included in the list of Lusitania victims. Dr. Wirt was in Rome when Italy decided to go to war. He described the dramatic scenes on the streets of the Eternal City as 100,000 war-mad Italians waited for the decision of the king.

"The next day," he said, "Along the line of battle from Flanders to the snows of Switzerland the Italian flags intermingled with those of the Allies and millions of men thundered the chorus of 'The Marseillaise' in defiance to the Germans. And over the hills appeared the spiked helmets of the Germans. They saw the battle-flags of Italy, knew she had thrown her lot with the enemy, and hurled back in answer their 'Wacht Am Rhine.' Think of it 6,000,000 men singing their battle songs in derision."

Dr. Wirt told of conditions in London during three successive air raids by the Zeppelins and of the state of mind of the people. He crossed the English channel on the twin vessel of the Sussex which was sunk by a submarine recently. Air craft of every type were circling overhead, the periscopes of the submarines (Allies') were cutting the water and in the distance huge dreadnoughts were maneuvering. As land was approached masses of troops were visible marching on the beaches. Dr. Wirt was loud in the praises of the French soldier. Not one of them had any complaint to make. They fought courageously and never criticized. In every other land America was denounced and ridiculed as "too proud to fight," but in France there was the most friendly feeling expressed for America.

In England the better educated people approved of the attitude of America in regard to the war and said, "We look to America to keep her hands clean and in the end to lead us out of this." He described the means used to get young men in England to enlist and told of the catch phrases used. In a cemetery he saw written on the wall by some wag, "Wake up, your King and Country need you."

Dr. Wirt was with the American Ambulance corps in France and said that of all the wounded brought in to the hospitals only five percent were injured by bullets. The balance were the victims of gas bombs, liquid fire, hand grenades or other devises which modern civilization has devised.

He described the destruction occasioned by the big shells, the effects of the fighting upon the men in the trenches and of the horrible methods of destruction used by both sides. He said:

"This war will settle nothing. At the close of it they will be where they started. Neither side will have gained anything and the losses will be inestimable. In a whole year there has been no gain on either side."

He said Henry Ford was called a Don Quixotte by the people of this country and rediculed because of the voyage of the Oscar II, but that the very ridicule had been the very means of carrying around the world the news of the voyage. The men in the trenches cheered when they heard of the trip and "today the thrones of Europe are tottering because of the 'Peace Argosy' of the modern Don Quixotte." Two names would go down in history as the world's greatest protestants, said Dr. Wirt, those of John Brown and of Henry Ford.

Dr. Wirt ridiculed the idea of Japan's ever attacking America and said that no nation in the world had ships enough to land more than a quarter of million of men on our shores and in the space of two months which must elapse before reinforcements could arrive, he said the 100 million Americans would have disposed of an invading army. Germany and England would lay for and watch each other until the end of time, he said, so that there was nothing for us to fear from either of them. He approved the preparedness program of the present administration and is in favor of a "league to enforce peace."

A woman who had some knowledge of baseball took a friend to a championship contest. "Isn't that fine?" said the first. "We have a man on every base." Why, that's nothing," said the friend; "so have they."—Everybody's.

Unfamiliar Quotations

ONE is often tempted to suggest that those who pester our police superintendents with confessions of murder might very wisely be taken at their word and executed, except in the few cases in which a real murderer is seeking to be relieved of his guilt by confession and expiation.

—Shaw: "First Aid to Critics."

The mother of the family stood in the reception hall, with her eyes fixed on the applicant for a position. "Why were you discharged from your last place?" she asked. "Because I sometimes forgot to wash the children, mem." "O mother," came the chorus from the children hanging over the stairs, "please engage her!"—Household Words.

A young man who had received the privilege of shooting over the land of a farmer got rather close once or twice to the home grounds. Later in the day, he met the farmer. "You've had pretty good luck," said the farmer. "Well, no," said the young man, hesitatingly. "I haven't had any luck at all." "Yes, you have," repeated the farmer. "This morning you just missed my best Shorthorn."—Country Gentleman.

Ex-President Cleveland was once driven to a great gathering when a tremendous storm was raging. The hailstones rattled on the roof of the carriage. Meanwhile a band, undismayed, began to play. "That is the most realistic music I have ever heard," said the President to a friend in the carriage. "What are they playing?" "'Hail to the Chief,'" said Mr. Cleveland, "and they are playing it with real hail!"—Sacred Heart Review.

A Buffalo man stopped a newsboy in New York, saying: "See here, son, I want to find the Blank National Bank. "I'll give you half a dollar if you direct me to it." With a grin the boy replied, "All right, come along," and he led the man to a building half a block away. The man paid the promised fee, remarking, however, "That was half a dollar easily earned," "Sure!" responded the lad. "But you mustn't fergit that bank directors is paid high in Noo-Yawk."—Exchange.

"That man," said Mrs. Twickembury, "should be sentenced to solitary refinement.—Exchange.

U. S. GOOD ENOUGH FOR HIM

MANCHESTER MAN HOME ON STEAMER CHASED BY GERMAN WARSHIP.

Philip Sherman arrived in Manchester last week after several month's service in the employ of the Fabre Line Steamship Co., where he has been acting as hostler in the transportation of horses from this country to Bordeaux, France.

The following is an account of the return trip of the Venezia, which docked at South Brooklyn, N. Y., on Sunday of last week:

The Venezia was on her way back from Bordeaux in ballast. having on board beside the officers and crew, 40 Americans, who had been acting as hostlers on the trip to France.

On April 29, when the ship was about 700 miles east of Cape Race a ship painted war-ship gray was sighted about four miles away to port.

This ship stood down toward the Venezia and while still at a great distance fired a gun.

The captain immediately ordered full speed ahead and every available man was put to work at the furnace to make all steam possible. Meanwhile another and even larger ship was sighted on the starboard, about three miles away and some of the crew declared they saw the shapes of two submarines with her.

The Venezia, however, was soon making good speed and distanced the supposed commerce destroyers although they continued firing at intervals at her.

Mr. Sherman has made several trips across this winter and before he has witnessed the ship being chased by submarines. He says he is of the opinion the good old U. S. A., is good enough for him from now out.

"There's no danger," said the doctor. "It's only a carbuncle coming on the back of your neck. But you must keep your eye on it!"—Exchange.

BARNUM & BAILEY CIRCUS.

The day of all days in the calendar of the small boy has almost arrived and the youngsters of this vicinity are anxiously counting the hours until circus day. It looks now as though a large percentage of the population, both young and old, will be present at one of the performances when the Barnum & Bailey Greatest Show on Earth exhibits in Boston, on week of May 29.

Not in several years has so much local interest been evinced in a circus event as has been displayed this season in the coming exhibition of the Barnum & Bailey Circus. The principal feature is the new Oriental, spectacular pageant, "Persia, or the Pageants of The Thousand and One Nights." This great display, which is portrayed by 1,350 persons, and hundreds of horses, elephants and camels, depicts in pageantry the famous tales of the Arabian Nights. In New York city, where this pageant was produced for the first time this spring, it was announced the most gorgeous and stupendous Oriental display ever presented in America.

Hoping to be the first to relate some unwelcome news the youth rushed into the house and said:

"Father, I had a fight with Percy Raymond today."

"I know you did," replied the father soberly. "Mr. Raymond came to see me about it."

"Well," said the son, "I hope you came out as well as I did."—Ladies' Home Journal.

THE DEACON'S DAMAGED LOT

THE Deacon sat daily, in mood irate, on the topmost rail of the pasture gate, revolving of Bible words his fill, as Doctor Holmes says that Deacons will.

Brickbats he scarcely cared to shy, but he shook his fist as the trains went by, and told how, if he weren't a Deacon, he'd fix that "9.43" or that "2.16." For the Deacon harked back to ancient days when the cows, through that gateway, strolled out to graze,—since the day that his forebears, wife and man, moved across Bass River for old Cape Ann. To smooth out the seams in Endecott's sway, when five old-time planters were slow to obey,—that all in accord might forever abide,—each was granted a home by the Great Pond's Side.

But peace in these confines shall not prevail! Freight trains, ponderous and noisy, their solitudes trail, and, puffing and screaming, each passenger crew whisks, alas! back and forth, where the pumpkin-vines grew!

Hard luck for the Deacon. He sits on the fence and checks off, as they go, their confounded contents. But a fact he discovers that gives him great cheer, with a promised release ere the end of the year! The travelers he counts in each swift-rushing train are the same, day by day, seen again and again! They're employed by the railroad to fill every seat, and secure good reports when the shareholders meet.

So there sits the Deacon, still shaking his fist. Such nonsence can't last when the profits are missed. Steel rails will come up and rail-fences come down, and the smoke-snorting engines abandon the town!

Then back to the good days of Endecott! Each farmer shall rest in his own corner lot. No more steel nor fence-rails will the Deacon abide, but repose, undisturbed, by the Great Pond's Side!—OBEDIAH OLDSCHOOL, in Salem Observer, Saturday, May 13, 1916.

The Romance of Shoemaking

A Marvelous Tale—The Birth of the Industry in This Land was in New England and On Our Own North Shore

KATHERINE GAUSS

AS a general rule one does not connect romance with shoemaking, but it is, nevertheless, a truly marvelous tale, this rise of the shoemaking industry in the eastern part of New England. From the time of the settlement of the first small colonies on these shores, this section has corraled the leather business and has built up a system of shoemaking that is far ahead of that of any other country.

When the early settlers came over from England, each man brought with him good bark-tanned leather and also four pairs of stout boots. However, with a country as rough and rocky as ours was, it was not long before this supply was exhausted. On the occasional ships arriving from the old country, leather supplies were brought and even though the colonists took to making moccasins of buckskin leather, the total supply of footwear was soon exhausted.

Then the first shoemakers began to put in an appearance, for truly necessity is the mother of operation as well as invention, and these men made the rounds of the country-side, with their leather on their backs, and made shoes for the family. Finally these shoemakers were granted land in the various towns where they settled and they grew quite well-to-do in their trade; finally many of them were able to open shoe shops, making the shoes for a whole town.

The early settlers were jacks-of-all-trades; they hunted deer, bear and other creatures of the woods, ate the flesh for food, and made the pelts into leather for articles of clothing. Farmers raised cattle, sheep and goats, and ate their flesh, and tanned the pelts into leather in pits in their own yards, using the bark from the nearby trees. Thus the early settlers began to be their own shoemakers.

In New England it was common for these early settlers to combine the occupations of farming, fishing and shoemaking. During the stormy weather the farmers were unable to cultivate the soil, and the fishermen were unable to go to sea, and so they gathered in little workshops, most of them placed at the rear of the dwelling, and they made shoes, first for themselves, then for their families, then for the neighbors, and if many rainy days or cold days came during the year, oftentimes there would be enough shoes to sell to the people of the near-by town.

Now the early shoemakers' shop, a model of which is in the garden of the Essex Institute, Salem, was put to use about the middle of the 19th century and was called a "ten-footer" because it usually measured about 10 feet in length and 10 feet in width. They were generally finished off about 6½ feet high and the garret, left unfinished, became a common receptacle for all kinds of litter. Usually about six persons could work comfortably in this house, which held nothing but the benches, stove and shoemakers' kits.

These little shops were the meeting places on rainy days and in the long winter evenings of the men of the town and here many heated questions were discussed and many grave situations passed upon. The minister's recent sermon and the latest political news were topics of debate. Often one shoemaker would pause in his work to read aloud from a newspaper or a book. It has been said that the printers and the shoemakers of those times, were the most learned men of their time. Roger Sherman, signer of the Declaration of Independence, studied from open books as he made shoes in one of these shops. Henry Wilson, "The Natick Cobbler," who became vice-president of the United States, mastered the rudiments of debating by discussing problems of the day with fellow shoemakers in Natick shops.

There were also many good musicians among those shoemakers of other days and the fame of "The Musical Shoemakers" of Salem still lingers in the minds of the older inhabitants. These shoemakers entertained themselves and visitors with music while they worked. One day, so the story runs, the manager of a circus then in town, heard of the "Musical Shoemakers," contracted with them for a goodly sum and they closed their shop for the summer and went with the circus.

Shoemaking in the olden days was not always one sweet song; through poor ventilation, stale tobacco fumes, cramped positions necessary, and foul odors from the shop-tub, used for soaking leather, consumption was spread with great rapidity and many were the deaths among those who plied this trade. The shoemakers commonly drank liquors in those days and it was customary to serve grog in all these little shops. This habit, too, tended to weaken otherwise strong men.

The manner of conducting the shoe business fifty years ago was very unlike the methods of today. In those days, when the shoe shops had multiplied all over eastern Masachusetts, there was a person known as the "bag boss." A dozen or two dozen pairs of shoes were packed in a bag and taken to Boston to be traded off for whatever could be got in exchange. As there were no steam cars running, the methods of carrying these bags of shoes to Boston were as various as the circumstances of the "bag bosses." Some took them in a pack on the back and trudged off to town, making the trip last two days, returning the second day, with the supplies or leather gotten in exchange for the shoes. Others took the pack on horseback, considering the trip a good day's journey. Others went by stage coach and oftener than not, when a bag boss was a man of means, the trip was made by private carriage.

Only within the last thirty years has come the great revolutions in the shoe business throughout the country. The stitching machine was the first great invention, the work of Elias Howe of Lynn. Soon after the installation of these machines, the factory system was gradually introduced. One by one the little shoemakers' shops were abandoned, as the factories of the manufacturers were enlarged and fitted up so that the work, both of the stitchers and makers, might be done under the supervision of the employers.

Then came invention after invention, all tending to make the shoes more perfect and simpler to make. But perhaps the second greatest invention was the McKay machine for stitching the bottoms. This machine took the place, in a large degree, of the ancient method of the old-time shoemaker, as, with the shoe held on his knee by the stirrup, and his awl in his hand, his picture has come down to us from a remote antiquity.

Another interesting development: Up to 1840 paper shoe boxes were unknown, but after this date shoe boxes came into general use and as shoe trade increased, the practice of double packing fine shoes, first in paper boxes, which were then packed in wooden cases, became general.

Despite the rapid development in shoe machinery, still, there was yet to come some sort of arrangement for pattern cutting. Up to this time there were only a few styles of shoes, all made on the same general last, and needless to say, that oftentimes the fit was not exactly perfect. No single machine was sufficient to meet the various requirements of the unequal and irregular proportions found in human feet.

As late as 1871 Israel G. Sutherland began the business of pattern making. He was an excellent mechanic and saw what was required to make the improvements more perfect. He carefully studied the subject and with the assistance of other skilled mechanics he devised a system of models which were well nigh perfect and suited to the ever different human foot. Thus the three great steps in American shoemaking were taken, with the many smaller improvements which have tended to make up a perfect system of factory shoemaking.

There is nothing surprising in this wonderful growth of the leather business in New England; the results are those naturally coming from a business which was established by the need of the people and the success was assured from the earliest beginnings. Capital was attracted to it, genius of our people, skill of our mechanics and enterprise of the men interested served to carry along to the top-notch of success the product of the machines in the factories of the manufacturers.

No wonder is it, then, that the shoemaking industry of the country centers in the New England states, with our own Lynn, Salem and Beverly leading as shoemaking and leather centers. North Shoe visitors often regard it a rare privilege to visit some of the vast factories in this vicinity while they are on from the West and South.

Preparedness and Common Sense

GIFFORD PINCHOT

CERTAIN pacificists assure us that Preparedness is useless because there is no danger of war. Do they know, or are they merely asking us to accept their guess in a matter which vitally concerns the safety and welfare of the Nation? Millions of pacificists in the past have given the same assurance, and have been mistaken. Wars have come in spite of them. England was full of people who affirmed that the present war was impossible up to the very moment of its breaking out, and who opposed with all their might any increase in armament until war actually began. Preparedness is insurance against war. It is not militarism, and must not be confused with it. Militarism is making ready for aggressive war. Any one who believes that the people of the United States can be driven or dragged into aggressive militarism must have forgotten the whole trend of our history, and in particular our recent voluntary retirement from Cuba.

The pacificists assure us that such military training as the Swiss people are giving themselves endangers democracy, and that our young men will be hurt by learning to obey. But neither democracy nor personal independence have been injured in Switzerland, which is the most democratic country of Europe. Universal military service in New Zealand and Australia goes hand in hand with the most thorough-going labor-controlled democracy on earth.

The American people have a way of reaching common sense decisions after long and often bitter discussion. There is hope that this is about to happen in the present case. The reasonable advocates of National defense and the reasonable pacifists seem to be on the verge of a reasonable agreement of views. For example, the papers of April 23 report that Henry Ford said, in an interview in New York: "I believe in reasonable Preparedness, and I wouldn't object to an army of say 250,000 men. Less than a week before this statement of Ford's, I asked Colonel Roosevelt what he would consider reasonable Preparedness. He replied: "The second navy in the world and an army of 250,000 men."

In this case, pacificist and advocate of Preparedness are in agreement as to the size of a reasonable army. An army of 250,000 men means one soldier to about 430 people. There is one policeman for every 416 people in Philadelphia, and one to every 429 people in New York. To me at least an army of that proportionate size carries with it no threat that militarism is about to overwhelm democracy.

Last year I was in Belgium. What I saw there I will never forget. No sacrifice can be too great to prevent our people or any part of them from being ruled by foreign bayonets. Talk is always cheap, but never cheaper than when it sets guesses and wishes against the tremendous facts of the world war. Guessing and wishing are no defense. Guessing and wishing can not even keep the peace between our citizens. The force behind the law does that. How then can we trust them to keep the peace between the Nations? I am for Preparedness because I believe it offers the best chance to escape war. It is cheap insurance at the price.

AMID THE VARIED INTERESTS and contests involved by the war it is difficult to keep in mind all of the issues arising. One cannot think of the war as a single-barreled affair. Its ramifications are varied and in the issue of the conflict hang the destinies of the entire world, America included. At present, however, the world interests are focussed upon Ireland and Italy. The Irish difficulty has but little bearing upon the main issues involved. Italy, however, is now fighting a war for national existence and maintenance of the national unity so dearly purchased by the struggles of the late years of the last centuries. Upon the success of her army against Austria her whole future is dependent. The world war is being fought and every step is being contested fiercely and no concessions made without a struggle. Will Italy win against Austria? To the Italian this is a more personal problem than the possible victory of Allies against Germany.

THE Manchester Red Cross workroom, which was such a success last season, will open again this summer in the casino of the Masconomo. The first meeting will be on Tuesday, June 27, from 10 to 1 o'clock, and the meetings will continue every Tuesday morning during the summer. Last year the meetings were on Tuesdays and Fridays, and the object was to prepare hospital supplies for European needs. This year, however, the work will be entirely for our United States Military Relief, for which it is felt there is such a vital need. The committee this year is organized with Miss Louisa P. Loring as chairman; Mrs. Boylston A. Beal, secretary, and Mrs. Gardiner M. Lane as treasurer.

THE wedding in Emmanuel Episcopal church, Manchester, last Saturday noon, of Miss Rosamond Eliot and Frederick M. Burnham was the first of a number of weddings to take place on the North Shore this summer, and it was the initial social event of the 1916 season. The Rev. Endicott Peabody, D. D., headmaster of Groton School, conducted the ceremony. Miss Eliot is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amory Eliot, who make their year-round home at Manchester. She is a member of the Vincent Club and of the 1912-1913 Sewing Circle. Her two sisters are Mrs. Alfred Codman and Mrs. Richard S. Lovering, the latter also of the Manchester year-round colony. Mr. Burnham is the son of William A. Burnham of Boston and Manchester and is a member of the Somerset, Tennis and Racquet and Essex County clubs. Miss Eliot was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of the traditional satin and lace. The material was duchesse satin of a heavy, lustrous quality, and the frock was built on princess lines. The foot of the skirt was irregular in outline, cut in points, under which showed the slip of lace, and there was a long, square train. The bodice had a V-shaped neck and long sleeves of lace. A distinguishing feature of the gown was the court train of lace, wonderful heirloom lace, which hung from the shoulders over the satin train, and over that fell the superb lace veil, almost like a third train. There was more than a suggestion of sentiment to the veil, for it was worn by the bride's two sisters, Mrs. Codman and Mrs. Lovering, on the occasion of their marriages. Miss Eliot carried no flowers. She had a single attendant, Mrs. Henry St. John Smith (Constance Wharton), at whose wedding Miss Eliot was a bridesmaid last year. Mrs. Smith wore a gown of gray and buff and a leghorn hat covered with American Beauty roses. She carried a bouquet of the same flowers. William A. Burnahm, Jr., attended his brother as best man, and the ushers were Samuel Eliot, brother of the bride; Charles E. Cotting, Jr., William D. Sohier, Jr., William De Ford Beal, and Roger Cutler, all of Boston; Chester G. Burden, John Kean and Richard Whitney, all of New York; John Shillito of Cincinnati, O., and Francis Gilbert of Utica, N. Y., the entire party being Harvard '11 classmates of the bridegroom. The church was decorated with American Beauty roses and a profusion of greenery. After the ceremony, there was a wedding breakfast at "Wildwood," Mr. and Mrs. Eliot's summer home in Manchester, where the decorations also consisted largely of American Beauty roses. There was a distinguished gathering of relatives and friends of the young couple at the wedding, others coming for the reception. Mr. and Mrs. Burnham plan to make their year-round home in Manchester, having leased the Proctor cottage on Sea street, for a three-year term.

REGINALD DE KOVEN of New York, who has leased Amos A. Lawrence's beautiful estate at Beaver Pond, Beverly, for July and August, composed the music for the new opera to be produced by the Metropolitan Opera company next season. The opera will be "The Canterbury Pilgrims," the book of which was written by Percy Mackaye. "The Canterbury Pilgrims," is taken from the "Canterbury Tales" of Chaucer. The book was written by Mackaye several years ago and was produced as a pageant at the Gloucester Day celebration on August 4, 1909, at Stage Fort Park, Gloucester, one of the biggest affairs ever taking place on the North Shore, and which was attended by President Taft. De Koven, who wrote "Robin Hood" and other light operas, adapted the play as a good libretto for an opera in English. He returned from Europe this spring with the completed score.

Mr. Amos A. Lawrence's estate at Beaver Pond, off Essex street, Beverly (Montserrat), will offer a most picturesque setting for a function of this kind. The wooded drives and paths and the grounds about the house will be illuminated and the shore of the pond will be outlined with hundreds of lights. Illinois followed by adopting an elephant, Wyoming a buffalo, Colorado a mountain goat, Utah a porcupine, Idaho a black bear, Oregon a cinnamon bear, Washington an eagle, Arizona a lisard, Kansas a pig, Montana a mountain lion and Nevada a mustang.

Mr. and Mrs. Wirt L. Thompson, who spent the latter part of last season in the cottage on the Sydney E. Hutchinson place at Beverly Farms, were among those who entertained at dinner last Thursday at the Huntington Valley Country club.

WASHINGTON'S Chevy Chase camp of the national service school for women gave the title of captain to Miss Francisè Williams, sister of Mrs. Joseph Leiter, when she finished her two weeks' course as a "rookie." She made a good record for general soldierly qualities and for her aptitude at signaling. She is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. John R. Williams and has spent much of her life at army posts.

Little Joe Leiter, Jr., was one of the star riders for gameness on his pony which did not behave well at the Washington Horse Show. Joe, Jr., is not more than 5 or 6 years old and had taken his first riding lesson only about a week before. He was bitterly disappointed that he did not get a ribbon and Mrs. Leiter said that next year she thought she would offer a lot of little silver cups so that none of the children who went into the ring need be disappointed.

MARBLEHEAD resorters are said to be interested in having another "movie" house in the seaside town this summer. Going to the "movies" is a regular diversion for the summer folk and they would like a more congenial place to go. William L. Terhune of Phillips Beach, formerly of Clifton and prominent in the activities of the Clifton Improvement association, is said to be the prime mover in the proposed theatre. The picture house, will, it is understood, be built and operated by a corporation formed under Massachusetts laws and nearly all of the stock has already been subscribed, most of it at Phillips Beach and Marblehead. Last fall the project was put forth, but when the promoters and owners of the land could not come to terms the venture fell through.

Vincent Astor was a welcome visitor to the Marblehead shore this week, when he came down in his yacht, the "Norma," from New York especially to try out the new aeroplane built at the Burgess Co. yards in that town for the New York naval militia. On Sunday last Mr. Astor made a successful flight, in spite of strong easterly winds; residents of the Neck saw him make 70 miles an hour through the air. Officers of the New York state militia, headed by Capt. Reginald L. Foster, witnessed the flight. The machine will be used for training purposes this summer in New York waters.

William H. Joyce, chairman of the house committee of the Corinthian Yacht club, and Mrs. Joyce, are at their Neck summer place for the season.

Oliver Hart Bronson of New Haven, who has accepted the pastorate of the Tabernacle church in Salem, has taken the Cutter house on Harbor avenue, the Neck, for the season. He will reside in Salem in the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Munroe, with their daughter Elizabeth W., are down at the Wheelock cottage on Nashua avenue, the Neck. Mr. Munroe is treasurer of Technology.

Summer residents who have arrived on the Marblehead Neck shore for the last few days include: George W. Dittman, Cincinnati, the Weston house, Follett street; Wendell L. Nichols, Brookline, the Ross Parker house, Nanepashemet street; Miss Elizabeth E. Dane, Cambridge, Dunlap cottage, Ferry street; Frederick R. Beebe, Weston, the Cheever cottage, Highland avenue; Frank P. Munroe at Russell cottage, Highland avenue.

Marblehead residents are interested over the coming wedding on Thursday, June 1, of Thomas Amory Lee, Harvard '15, now a practising attorney of Topeka, Kansas, and Miss Mary Helen Shirer, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Hampton Lafayette Shirer of Topeka. Mr. Lee's great, great, grandfather was Col. William R. Lee of Revolutionary war period and whose former home, opposite Abbott hall in Marblehead, is visited by many sightseers each summer. Mr. Lee was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Waldo P. Ballard at the Lee mansion last summer when he was writing an historical sketch of his famous forebears.

A party of Wellesley girls spent the last week-end at the Col. Wm. R. Lee mansion.

At the Rock-Mere hotel, Marblehead, today are 60 young ladies from Bradford Academy, who will remain over Memorial Day. The girls came to this hostelry last year and were so pleased with their stay on the shore that they decided to come again this season. Miss Laura Knott, principal of the school, chaperones them. Many of the girls are from the far west and a trip to the shore in such delightful surroundings is a treat for them. Many of them come later in the season to the Rock-Mere with their parents.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Graydon Stetson of Beacon street, Brookline, are going to Marblehead Neck for the season in mid-June and will be at Sea Gull cottage. The Stetsons are putting their new boat, Abeona 3d, into commission the last of the current month and intend to spend much of their time in cruising. Mr. Stetson goes to the Plattsburg camp for the month of September.

Miss M. Corinna Dana of the Tuileries, Boston, is to be at Marblehead Neck the coming summer, having leased the Burlen cottage. Miss Elizabeth Ellery Dana of Cambridge has also rented a cottage in that vicinity for the coming months, and Mr. and Mrs. Wendell L. Nichols of Summer road, Brookline, will occupy the Ross Parker cottage on the Neck. Mr. and Mrs. Nichols recently returned from an automobile trip to Washington.

No education is more needed than the education for economy and the elimination of waste.—Christian Register.

CLIFTON always has its full quota of early summer visitors. True, there are now no hotels there to attract, but wooded streets, the wide, clear outlook into the sea and its accessibility to "town" and to the country clubs make it one of the most popular resorts.

An idea of how families are coming to Clifton is shown by the following list of those most recently arriving there:

W. H. Dunbar of Malden, "Bellavista."

Ernest E. Nelson, at the Thomas cottage at Clifton Heights.

R. M. Boutwell, for a short stay at the Heights. His cottage is leased for the season to John D. Drum of Brookline.

C. A. Phillips of Chicago for a short sojourn at Clifton Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Habick of Roxbury, with their children, George E., and Henry J., at their Surf street cottage.

W. W. Willis, president of the Chesapeake & Ohio Coal Co., at one of the Hunting cottages, the Heights.

W. B. Jackson of Winnetka, Ill., at the Lord cottage.

Mrs. Henry S. Jones and family of Waltham at the Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. Summerfield Hagerty of New York city at "Gun Rock Point," Clifton.

Sidney S. Conrad at "Maplewood," Atlantic avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. William Converse Chick of Boston at "Dike Rock."

If the devil has a private car it must be a submarine

SWAMPSCOTT summer residents will be on the Shore in large numbers over the extended week-end, many coming down today and staying over Memorial Day, next Tuesday. This holiday always brings many more families down for the entire season. The next detachment, if such it might be called, comes on June 17, and from then the season is on in full swing. All that is needed, as in other parts of the Shore, is plenty of warm weather, which makes the shore a more comfortable place than the city. More Western people are noted on this part of the Shore than ever.

On Memorial Day at the Tedesco Country club there will probably be a larger gathering than last year, when there were 200 present for dinner and dancing. There will be dancing afternoon and evening with special luncheon and dinner.

Wednesday evening at Tedesco about 40 members of the Harvard club gathered at the clubhouse, had dinner and listened to a Preparedness talk by one of their members who was at Plattsburg last summer.

Among the arrivals on the Swampscott shore the last few days are:

Ludwig Eisemann of Boston at "Sea Bend," Puritan road.

Mrs. Charles H. Bond of Boston, at "Peace Haven," on Puritan road.

Jeremiah Williams of Boston, on Atlantic avenue, Beach Bluff.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Vorenberg and Fred and Samuel Vorenberg at Lincoln House avenue.

Col. E. F. Ladd of Boston, at Phillips avenue, Phillips Beach.

Willard F. Spalding at Phillips Beach.

Mrs. Richard Evelyn Byrd of Washington, the wife of Lieut. Byrd, U. S. N., is making a short visit with her mother, Mrs. Joseph Ames of Brookline, at Swampscott.

Mr. and Mrs. Elisha W. Cobb of the Hotel Somerset, Boston, are at the Hot Springs of Virginia for a few weeks. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Cobb will go to their summer home at Phillips Beach, Swampscott.

MISS EDITH DEACON of 186 Commonwealth ave., Boston, will spend the summer on the North Shore, having leased through the office of T. Dennie Boardman, Reginald and R. deB. Boardman, the Clarke residence at West Manchester. She will take occupancy the last week in June.

Oswald Kunhardt, German consul at Boston, will spend the summer at the Stoops residence, 92 School st., Manchester. He arrived yesterday.

The Misses Evelyn, Frances, Mabel and Maud Sturgis of 63 Beacon st., Boston, are among the week's arrivals, at Manchester. Their house, "Rookwood," is located amid the woods, off Summer st., Manchester Cove.

Wm. A. Tucker and family arrived last Saturday from New York and are located at their attractive summer home on Norton's Point, Manchester, for the summer.

Richard Dana Skinner of 65 Sparks st., Cambridge, has bought the Harvey Childs house at Manchester Cove. Repairs and alterations are being made by Roberts & Hoare of Manchester, and it is expected the work will be completed by the second week in June. Mr. Skinner is a nephew of Richard H. Dana, who summers at Manchester.

HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION.

Welcome news to the merchants and motorists of Manchester and vicinity is the announcement that the end of another week will see the completion of re-building of the highway in the center of the Town of Manchester—barring unfavorable weather. Work is being rushed as rapidly as possible during pleasant weather. Crushed stone has been placed on one-half the road from the junction of Bennett, Pine and Bridge sts. to the postoffice. Steam rollers have been at work packing down the stone in preparation for the application of the asphalt. The first coating was given the road at the junction of Bridge and Bennett streets yesterday and it is expected that by tomorrow (Saturday) night the surfacing of one-half the street will be completed as far as Lee's corner.

If bad weather does not interfere the work will be completed as far as the postoffice by Memorial day. Immediately after the asphalt coat has been applied to the south side of the road, work on the bed of the other side will be commenced and it is expected that by Saturday night of next week the entire road from Priest school to the westerly junction of Bennett and Bridge st. will be completed. When that stretch of road is done, operations will be pushed on the West Manchester end of the highway. Nothing except a continued period of bad weather will hold up the work at this stage. The construction will be pushed along every pleasant day from now on, including Sundays and holidays. It is said that unless something unforeseen occurs the work will be entirely completed by the 28th of June, as called for under the contract.

BASS ROCKS.— There are many players daily on the Bass Rocks Golf links. Some of the improvements on the greens have not quite been completed, but this does not hinder the playing over the fine 18-hole course.

The family of Dr. William Jarvie of Montclair, N. J., has arrived at the Jarvie estate, Bass Rocks, for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh J. Dennin of Jacksonville, Fla., have arrived at "Wyoming," the Dennin estate on Beach road, Bass Rocks.

The new Roman court, on the golf links side of the Ralph W. Dundas estate is being completed. Work was started a year ago on the court. A stone wall surrounds the court while trees and shrubs are located in the inside. The tennis court will be surrounded by a large number of tall, white pillars, with a cement surface for the ground.

Next Week—June 2—the Big "First-of-June" issue of the North Shore Breeze will appear. A copy will reach every resident of the North Shore from Nahant to Newburyport. Are you to be represented it its advertising columns, Mr. Merchant? Have you yet awakened to the possibilities of the Breeze as the most powerful and forceful medium for reaching the North Shore summer visitors?

The Old-Time Spelling Bee

Folks nowadays don't have much fun
  Compared to what we had
Back in the old Fourth Reader days,
  When girls in gingham clad,
With pigtails hanging down their backs
  (It all comes home to me),
With boys in top boots met and held
  An old-time spelling bee.

The teachers took a turn about
  Pronouncing as we spelled,
And when one missed a word, it was
  The "trapper" who excelled;
Ah, that was life,—the spelling match—
  Salt of the earth were we
Who took part in such battles as
  The old-time spelling bee.

But, ah, that braid of golden hair,
  The snow, the moonlight pale—
The homeward ride—the yielding waist—
  And Love's sweet oft-told tale!
And ah, the lovelight in those eyes
  (Not seen on land or sea),
God bless the hallowed memories of
  The old-time spelling bee.

EAST GLOUCESTER.—One more week will make a decided difference in the appearance of things in this locality. Already, five of the hotels have opened with several guests at each and proprietors of tea rooms and stores are arriving to make plans for the season. The first of June always brings the early comers who usually delight their souls with the beauty of the place at this time of year. Things point to a prosperous season. The yachting season will be a good one. Boats have been uncovered at the yards and are appearing fresh with new paint and fittings. The first meeting of the season, of the Gloucester Yacht club was held last week at the club house on Rocky Neck. A fine schedule for the regular races will soon appear. Special interest is being taken and all the boats owned by summer residents will be entered.

The opening of hill property of the Patch estate, by leading a road through the beautiful orchard, is encouraging building in that locality. Already, a cottage is being erected at the end of the read. The site was purchased of Mr. Patch by C. H. Clark of Newton Centre, an editor of a manufacturing journal in Boston. Mr. Clark is having a house of Dutch colonial design and it has assumed proportions. Walter A. Kline of Boston is the contractor. The house will contain a living room 40x18 feet, dining room 14x14 feet, kitchen 12x13 feet, halls, pantries, etc., on the first floor and four large bed rooms and baths on the second floor, besides a sleeping porch 31x14 feet. A front piazza will extend 30 feet, and it will be 10 feet in width. The house will be completed by July 4th for its owner.

Operations have begun for the large pretentious summer mansion for Mr. and Mrs. William E. Atwood of Boston, on the extensive property purchased a year ago of the Patch estate, to the northward of the old orchard. The Atwoods have secured one of the most picturesque sites in East Gloucester. Large granite boulders surrounded by natural green and flowers are on a slope and a beautiful pond is located on the property which will abound with blossoming water plants. The mansion will be so built, that an arch spanning a distance of over 60 feet between two mammoth boulders will be left under the house. Besides the mansion there will be a studio of old English design. Work on the studio is being pushed first and the dwelling house will be raised gradually after the Atwoods have been settled in the studio to watch operations in building. Cram and Ferguson of Boston and New York are the architects and J. T. Wilson of Nahant is the contractor for building and Linehan of Pride's Crossing has the extensive stone work. The studio will include a room 36x52 feet, running up to the roof, in height, and off the studio will be a hall, toilet and two dressing rooms. The building will be of plaster and wood with a wood shingle roof. The artistic taste of Mr. Atwood will assure a most attractive place.

Mrs. Susan A. Wood and daughter, Miss Naomi Wood of Philadelphia, have arrived at their estate on Eastern Point road, for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Taylor of Morristown, N. J., are located at their cottage on Grape Vine road.

A. H. Atkins, the Boston sculptor is registered at the Hotel Delphine.

The Stewarts of Washington have taken "Bramble ledge" the big cottage of George O. Stacy at Eastern Point, near the Sleeper and Andrew estates.

Charles A. Stewart, Boston agent of the Cunard Steamship line, who last season was at Bass Rocks, has taken one of the W. J. Little cottages at Eastern Point, near "The Ramparts," for this season.

The Hotel Delphine, Simpson A. Lyle, proprietor, has opened for the season and those registered during the past week are: Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Wilson of Springfield; Mrs. Ellen Hobbs of Lowell; Miss R. G. Allen, Miss M. K. Baker, Miss S. M. L. Wales, Boston; Mrs. M. B. Broth, M. G. Osborn, S. M. Osborn, Pawtucket, R. I., Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Bloom, New York City; Mrs. H. S. Lovejoy, Branford, Ct.; Mrs. F. B. Lovell, Miss W. H. Johnstone, Germantown, Pa.

Mrs. Horace Tinker of New York has taken the Frank P. Wonson cottage at Grape Vine Cove, for the season.

Mrs. Elizabeth Spalding and daughter, of Brookline, arrive the coming week at the Davis house, "Orchard Heights," Mt. Pleasant avenue, for the season. The Spaldings last season occupied the summer cottage of the late authoress, Elizabeth Stuart (Phelps) Ward, at Eastern Point.

The Harbor View hotel on Eastern Point road, has opened its doors for the season and several permanent and transient guests have registered.

Anyone can be successful as a hunter—for trouble.

ROCKPORT.—Prospects for the visit of the warships here during the summer, seem higher. Rear Admiral Coffman is in command of the third division of the Atlantic fleet and his flagship is the U. S. S. Virginia. Rear Admiral Coffman's wife is occupying the Hosmer cottage, near Turk's Head Inn, Land's End, Rockport, having arrived with the servants to open the house, last Saturday.

Miss Emily A. Moulton of Charlestown has opened her Pigeon Cove estate, "Meadowcliff" on Phillips avenue.

The Ferdinand Rodliffs of Lowell have arrived at their Pigeon Cove cottage.

Example is stronger than precept; a good man's life often teaches more than his words.

EDITORIAL

TOMORROW THE ORGANIZED ENDEAVOR to present the demands of New England for a reasonable preparedness will be made. The time honored agency, a parade, will be the method used. Pacificists are registering there objections; but why? Preparedness and pacificism may be one in purpose and result. No sane man of this generation believes in war, blood-shed or the demoralization of mortal conflict. Were not the priceless inheritances of America won by enduring hardship, severe fighting and mortal conflict? What of the French and Indian wars? What shall we say of the Revolution? Shall this generation so soon forget the lessons of the Civil War? Preparedness means merely an organized effort on the part of the men and women of the present age to express their determination that the inheritances of this nation shall not be jeopardized by slothful unpreparedness and that they are willing to defend this country and its inherited institutions at the point of the bayonet if necessary? Who can forget that the Battle of Verdun is still being fought and is yet to be won! Can Americans forget Belgium? Preparedness does not mean militarism. A preparedness parade need not necessarily be an assembly of thoughtless folk passing in review. In every movement there must be planners. The pacificist propaganda is one of the most reprehensible in the whole country when it comes to organized efforts without a great following. Reprehensible is not meant as a condemnation; the word is used because in the pacificist view the preparedness movement is reprehensible because organized. If organization involves reprehensible what can be said of the great peace endowment? Neither organization is reprehensible. This is a land of freedom and ideas must govern. Both parties may organize and reorganize, but the American people are discerning. They can and will think for themselves. The two movements serve as a check, the one upon the other. Preparedness needs to be saved from the perils of militarism and the pacifist movement needs to be saved from the calumny and danger of slothful inertia. There is no doubt that many careless, shallow men will view the parade and even march in line, but in the main the demonstration will be thought provocative and compel discussion.

THE SEASON AT TUCK'S POINT will soon be opened and the citizens of Manchester will be seeking that pleasant little spot near the sea for recreation, rest and pleasure. The thoughtful, far-seeing man who made the preservation of this park possible will be remembered for many a generation. Manchester is fortunate in having such a recreation area and picnic ground.

THE OWNERS OF ESTATES and greenhouses should remember the Grand Army of the Republic upon Memorial Day. The season is backward and the supply of spring flowers is limited; every donation that is made will be appreciated. Go through the green house and see what you can spare for Memorial Day flowers.

ATTEND CHURCH ON SUNDAY and unite with the veterans in honoring the memory of the dead.

ON TUESDAY NEXT we pay tribute to the great armies of our heroes and commemorate their virtues and deeds of valor with ceremonies, fitting and appropriate. The debt of America to its "boys in blue" can never be repaid. To the thousands whose graves will be planted with the stars and stripes on Tuesday by their comrades of old, to those who lie in unknown graves in the Southland and to those, who with fast-thinning ranks will march in honor of the departed, honor and glory is due. As each passing year fresh flowers are planted on their graves so should we keep them fresh in our memory. On this one day we will pause in our labors and give thought of the honor we owe our heroes and in some humble way show our gratitude to them. It is the least we can do.

A BOSTONIAN CLAIMS that he has solved the problem of utilizing crude oil. His motor engine uses kerosene, completely, it is claimed and without carbonization. A carburetor is not used, but the charge of kerosene is utilized in the explosive chamber and utilized efficiently there. If the commercial article proves to be as efficient as the experimental engines a great step has been made. The new commercial motors will be made for marine purposes. The automobile motor has not yet been successfully constructed.

THE DIFFICULTIES over the affairs of the Boston & Maine Railroad are being solved. It is an intricate problem that demands careful and accurate work in reorganization. The plans have not yet been fully developed, but there is no doubt that the future means much for the Boston & Maine. There is a turn in the road and the period of reconstruction is already here.

TWO CROSS-THE-CONTINENT TRIPS ended this week. A motor made a record trip in six days, ten hours and fifty minutes. On a wager a man walked backward from California to New York and won twenty thousand dollars. Neither adventure gave evidence of much intelligence. What availeth it!

IT MIGHT BE WELL to consider what the destinies of America would have been if the Civil War had not been won by the North. What would America's relation have been to the present struggle? Did the success of the North delay by a generation the terrific world struggle.

THE ACUTENESS OF THE LABOR CONDITIONS in the east is shown by the dearth of men in the shipping fields of service. Steamers are paying heavy demurrage because there are not men enough to load the grain that is awaiting transportation. The war again!

SPRING HAS BEEN STUBBORNLY refusing to show itself this year. But it will redeem itself soon. It is time for the sun to dispel the clouds and for the east wind to change its peregrinations.

THERE IS ONE PLEASING and reverent custom that is being kept, and that is the honoring of the flag of the nation by the lifted hat when it passes in a procession.

Four Hundred Thousand Men in fighting mood have been threatening an attack upon the American public for some time. The blow, which has several times been averted, has in it more present danger than has the bogey of a foreign invasion. The threatened concerted strike of the men in the train service of all of the railroads of the country would more effectively cripple the nation than would a war, and it is nearer at hand. And the pitiful aspect of the affair is the absolute helplessness of the public to intervene in its own behalf. There is little justice in the latest request of the men in the train service. They ask for an eight-hour day, but that is not what they want; the manner in which the demand is framed is misleading. Men in the train service of the railroads work on a ten-hour day schedule and are the best paid workmen of any class in the country. They would be the first to protest if compelled to work but eight hours a day. What their demand really means is that they want an increase in pay of twenty-five percent, or ten hours pay for every eight hours they work. The men in the train service are notoriously unsympathetic with the other workers in the railroad service, many of whom are outrageously underpaid in comparison with the men in the motive department. If the railroads of the country were in such a prosperous condition as to be able to stand an added expense of $100,000,000 a year, the public might be but little interested in the controversy between the men and the roads. As the case stands the granting of the demands would mean an increase in freight and passenger rates sufficient to cover the increased cost of operation. And that the public must pay. The consequences to the public if the differences are not arbitrated or if the men do not withdraw their unreasonable demands, are appalling.

One-Cent Letter Postage is again attracting the attention of Congress, 50 bills calling for the inauguration of a one-cent rate on local delivery letters having been introduced. Many newspapers throughout the country are advocating the lower rate, and the inauguration of a so-called "zone" system for the transportation of periodical literature of all kinds. It is proposed, and will become part of the readjustment of postage rates when such are made, that a zone system be established so that a certain rate shall be charged for all classes of publication for the first fifty miles, another for 50 to 150 miles, another for 150 to 300 miles, and so up to a haul which would extend across the continent. In this way the publishers of big magazines would be required to pay the government what it actually costs to transport their product.

The Futile Life Destroying Drive still continues in the world's greatest battle at Verdun in France. First the Teutons and then the French attain a slight victory at terrific expense only to lose again. It appears to be a deadlock with the fighting continued. There are rumors of peace, but the contest around Verdun does not seem to indicate that there are hopes for the immediate present.

The Periodic Shifts In Values that are noted in the prices of many stocks makes it all the more desirable that men of small means should learn to consult with experts when making investments. There is nothing safer than an old-fashioned savings account.

A Week of Parades,—preparedness, circus and memorial processions.

All Roads Lead to Boston tomorrow.

Some Denominations Have Forbidden the clergymen of its churches to marry certain divorced persons in the interests of higher morality and the maintenance of the New Testament standard of home life. In convention assembled the Baptists discussed the great question and a resolution "denouncing" the clergyman who marries certain divorced persons was amended to read "disapproved." This does not mean that the attitude of the Baptist church has changed in any way on the great question of divorce. The resolution merely reveals the organic power of the Church. The Baptist principles are democratic and every church is a self-governing unit and no church organization exists that can censure the clergyman of any church except for gross immorality. The national convention is an association of churches and therefore has no governing or regulating power and consequently it cannot "denounce;" it can only "disapprove," but the spirit of the organization is registered against remarriage of culpable persons who seek to remarry.

The New England Reform Society that maintains the Talitha Cumi Maternity Home and Hospital in Jamaica Plain, Boston, has just completed eighty years of successful work and its annual report is a creditable record of a year of valuable service. The home cares for unmarried girls who are "facing the sadness and shame of unmarried motherhood and to furnish such care for both the soul and body that these wayward young hearts shall be turned back from their first terrible step in the downward path, and awakened to the hope of a new and better future." The hospital has a strong board of directors, among them names familiar on the North Shore. The hospital is doing a wonderful work in its chosen field of service and deserves the commendation, co-operation and financial support of the public.

The Affairs in Mexico are in competent hands, but the differences of ideals makes it difficult for our representatives to arrange satisfactory terms with that government. It is difficult for men of refinement to come to an agreement at times, but when civilization endeavors to make an arrangement with a state part way along the road to civilization the problem is acute. This is really the key to all our difficulties in Mexico. America can afford to and must be patient.

The Mexican School Teachers who came on a visit to the United States confess now that they feared to come and that they are surprised at the cordial reception which they received. Such expeditions would help the Mexican people more than military exploitations.

Fashion and Household Suggestions

FOR THE COLONEL'S LADY

THAT there should be indignation on the part of some American club women at the suggestion that the delegates to the biennial meeting of the Federation of Women's Clubs should be told how to dress has proved most amusing to Washington, where not only women, but men, are frequently told what to wear for various occasions.

The uniforms worn at Mrs. Wilson's garden party were by order of the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy, otherwise they would not have been worn at all, yet these hundred or more defenders of the nation, from second lieutenants to brigadier generals and rear admirals, feel no resentment toward Secretary of War Baker or Secretary of the Navy Daniels.

There are people in high places who think a greater regulation of feminine attire in Washington would be a good thing, just as at the European capitals, where women of the official circle are as definitely instructed in the length of their trains or the height of their collars or styles of coiffures as are our army, navy and marine officers who are told not only what uniform to wear, but how to wear everything pertaining thereto, from hats to spurs.

A White House garden party on a May day is naturally the place to wear one's newest and prettiest afternoon frock, even without the competition of officers in uniform. Mrs. Wilson herself set this example when she received on the lawn just south of the White House in a charming new gown of silver gray taffeta, short and bouffant, with a skirt obviously cut in long lines, then looped at the sides to give a distinct panier effect and also produce an irregular hem, as the skirt was several inches longer back and front than at the sides. The bodice was long waisted and close fitting, with its front a fall of cream lace and gray chiffon. The sleeves were of elbow length. A gray tulle and braid hat trimmed in gray ostrich, gray shoes and hosiery made this one of the most stylish costumes the new mistress of the White House has yet worn.

Other well-known and well-gowned matrons giving indorsement to what may be called the taffeta revival include Mrs. Robert Lansing, wife of the secretary of state, and Mme. Jusserand, wife of the French ambassador, who have extremely smart demi-toilettes in this material.

With silks of every variety in great demand, small wonder the old-time foulard should be with us once again. Thus far few foulard gowns have appeared, but one of the few is a very becoming and modish costume worn by Mrs. Marshall, wife of the vice president. The color is dark blue, almost black, with a polkadot of white slightly smaller than a dime. The skirt is short and round with a very slight overdrapery and the bodice high-necked and long-sleeved with a V front finished in becoming frills of white net.

Madame Riano, wife of the Spanish ambassador, and Mrs. Joseph Leiter are excellent exponents of the new waistcoat in a contrasting color worn with the smart tailored suits, which are usually black, dark blue or one of the new light browns. Madame Riano's black suit, which she wore at the horse show, has its waistcoat and the lining in a rich blue.

Mrs. Leiter's very becoming dark blue serge has its waistcoat of continental buff satin, made in two long straight lines, from shoulder to several inches below the normal waist line. Her coat fits closely in the back, put in loose enough in front to show its lining of yellow and blue. Her hat is a broad-brimmed, low-crowned black sailor, with its brim fringed in ostrich. Mrs. Leiter's low shoes were black patent leather and her hosiery the color of her waistcoat.

Most Washington women of fashion wear plain-colored shoes and slippers, with only an occasional contrast in the hosiery.

Mushrooms as a Spring Dish.

THE common mushroom, which is cultivated for the market is usually raised in hot-houses, but is also found wild. It is a member of the same family, however, as the poisonous "death cup" and one needs to be very proficient in determining the different species of this family, for many of the characteristics are so similar that none but he who has made a study of it may distinguish with any certainty between the edible and the poisonous. The exception is the mushroom known as the puffball which grows very plentifully along the North Shore and which may be distinguished by the amateur. This belongs to a family in which there is no known poisonous species.

The flavor of mushroms depends so much upon the preparation for cooking that this seems to call for a few words here. The cleaning is, of course, the first step and also the one where the cook too many times makes a mistake. Mushrooms should not be washed, as the soaking in water takes away the flavor. When the end of the stalk has been cut away, the cap should be wiped with a damp cloth and the skin removed by peeling. This should be done with the fingers and the peel should be very, very thin. Stems and caps should be cooked separately, as the former (in the common mushroom) are so tough as to require a longer cooking. Different varieties of mushrooms need different methods of cooking. The flavor may be brought out by sauteing before the final cooking and the color may be kept by squeezing on a little lemon juice.

Stewed Mushrooms are a favorite dish, easily and quickly prepared. Saute the caps, peeled and, if large, broken in pieces, in hot butter. Place in a saucepan with cream enough to about half cover, cover the pan and let simmer about twenty minutes. Milk or stock may take the place of the cream and a little roux added when the mushrooms are nearly cooked. Serve on crackers or toast. Mushroom Toasts are really only a variation of stewed mushrooms. The mushrooms are minced fine and stewed with cream and pepper and salt. When cooked, they are piled on rounds of toast, sprinkled with Parmesan cheese and browned.

IT is expected that the big barge to be used for the Technology pageant in Boston next month will be launched from Calderwood's boatyard, Manchester, some time next week. Nearly all of the decorative figures have been put in place by the workmen during the past two weeks. The problem of launching the heavy barge, which is about 100 feet long and 20 feet beam and is constructed of heavy timbers, promises to be a difficult one. Luckily there will be an extra high tide next week and the feat may be accomplished without much trouble. The wealth of classic decorations which adorn the craft are beautiful in the extreme and when covered with the coat of gold paint will be decidedly effective. A pointed bow has been built for the barge since the first of the week, which adds to the appearance of the boat and will make the problem of towing it to Boston less difficult.

Scalloped Mushrooms make a splendid luncheon or supper dish. Peel the mushrooms and break in pieces. Saute in hot butter. To two cupfuls of mushrooms, add three tablespoonfuls of flour and one-half teaspoonful parsley. Cook and stir until smooth and then add one cupful cream. Stir until it has reached the boiling point, then let simmer ten minutes. Season with salt, paprika and a little lemon juice. Remove from the fire and add the yolk of an egg beaten with two tablespoonfuls cream. Fill buttered shells or a buttered baking dish with the mixture. Stir one-third cup melted butter and one cup cracker crumbs together and sprinkle over the mushrooms. Brown in the oven and serve very hot.

The Misses Clarke have rented their house at West Manchester for the summer to Miss Edith Deacon of Boston, and they will go to their farm in Ashfield, Mass., as soon as schools close, June 23.

Mrs. Mary Irons, who has been keeping house for her brother-in-law, Wm. Fleming, since her sister's death, left the first of this week to spend the summer in Nova Scotia. During her absence Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Cool will live at Mr. Fleming's.

It is generally reported that the firemen are bent on placing a candidate—one from their ranks—in the field for selectman next town election. There will be a state and presidential election before then,—but these are trivial matters compared to their issue, they assert.

Arrangements have all been completed for the High School Alumni reunion which will take place June 8th at the Town hall. A very pleasant evening is assured and the entertainment which will take up the first part of the evening is so varied that it will please everyone. There will be vocal and instrumental music, a reader or two and something novel is promised in solo dancing. General dancing will follow the entertainment. This reunion promises to be a very enjoyable affair and everyone entitled to should attend. To create interest the committee has been very liberal and will allow all Story High School graduates, whether Alumni members or not to attend and each one entited to a ticket will be allowed to purchase one guest ticket in addition. Tickets may be procured from Mrs. G. W. Blaisdell or Miss Bessie Lethbridge at the small price of 25c.

Passes 83d Birthday.

Julius F. Rabardy, informally observed his 83d birthday at his home in Central st., Manchester, on Monday of this week. A number of friends and relatives called to extend congratulations. Camp 149, S. of V., in accordance with its custom in regard to veterans, sent Mr. Rabardy a handsome birthday cake. Mr. Rabardy is in splendid health for a man of his age, being the oldest Civil War veteran in Manchester.

Mr. Rabardy is a native of France. Coming to this country at the time of the Civil War he served in the Union army and was wounded at the battle of Antietam. Returning to Manchester he has since made his home here. He at one time published the Beetle and Wage, a local paper. He cast his first vote for Abraham Lincoln and for a long time continued to support the policies of the Republican party. Later, however, he became convinced that in Prohibition was the salvation of the country and has been an ardent supporter of that party.

Mr. Rabardy is not in favor of Preparedness. He declares that war is a failure, that it settles nothing. He sees perilous times ahead for this country unless it acts cautiously in this matter. For that reason he is a follower of President Wilson, although he has never voted the Democratic ticket in his life heretofore.

Mr. Rabardy gets about remarkably well for one of his age and enjoys working in his little garden. He spends many hours upon an enclosed piazza ovedlooking the inner harbor.

Patriotic Bodies Honor Comrade Edwin P. Stanley

OVER two hundred persons paid their respects to Junior Vice Department Commander Edwin P. Stanley at the reception tendered him by the patriotic orders of Manchester in the Town hall, Manchester, Friday evening. The hall was decorated with American flags, palms and cut flowers. Heading the receiving line was Town Clerk Alfred S. Jewett, patriotic instructor of Allen Post, G. A. R., the next in line being Edwin P. Stanley, the newly elected department officer in whose honor the function was held. The others in the receiving line were F. A. Mole, of No. Adams, Department Commander; Edward S. Knight, chairman of the Manchester Board of Selectmen; Senior Vice Department Commander Denny of Worcester; Mrs. Lou Stuart Wadsworth of Boston, Past Department President of the Woman's Relief Corps and president of the Aid Association for the Old Soldier's Home; Enoch Crombie, Commander Allen Post; Mrs. Barbara Cook, President of Allen Relief Corps of Manchester; O. J. Seabold, or Arlington, Department Press Correspondent, S. of V., and John L. Prest, Commander Col. Woodbury Camp, S. of V., Manchester.

Members of the G. A. R. posts, Woman's Relief corps and of Camps of Sons of Veterans from Gloucester, Essex, Beverly, Salem and Danvers attended the reception and greeted the new department officer.

After everyone had paid his respects to the Department officials, Mrs. Raymond C. Allen sang "The Star Spangled Banner," Miss Helen Cheever playing an accompaniment. Edward S. Knight extended the welcome of Manchester to the visitors and paid tribute to Mr. Stanley. Mr. Knight spoke of the beauties and natural resources of Manchester which have led to its becoming one of the wealthiest summer resorts in America. He spoke of its civic development, which compared favorably with larger cities. "Some of our young men went away and others have remained here in Manchester and have filled positions of trust in our village. Of the latter I know of none of greater worth than my friend Edwin P. Stanley, who has recently received this honor at the hands of his comrades."

Alfred S. Jewett told of a life-long friendship with Mr. Stanley. He told of the enlistment in '61, of Mr. Stanley's service during the war, of his imprisonment and his final return to Manchester where for nearly 30 years he has been Town Treasurer.

Department Commander Mole brought the greetings and tribute of the Department of Massachusetts to the new officer. He said that he had met Mr. Stanley at Gettysburg and learned to love and respect him. He pointed out that Mr. Stanley would in the course of two years be elevated to the office of Commander of the Department of Massachusetts "the best department in the G. A. R."

Press Correspondent Seabold paid tribute to Mr. Stanley and complimented the local camp of Sons of Veterans upon their flourishing condition. A solo by Mrs. Frank G. Cheever followed. Senior Vice Commander of the Department, Mr Denny, said that as the officers of the Department knew the new Junior Vice Commander better, the better they liked him. He spoke about the services of the soldiers of '61 to '65 and spoke of the European war of today. He declared that the President should be backed up by a united country in his international relations. "I have no patience with those people who oppose preparedness," he said. "We did not raise our boys primarily to be soldiers, but God help us if our boys don't come to the front in time of need. The boys of today, however, are just as courageous as the boys of '61 and we have nothing to fear."

Mrs. Wadsworth extended the greetings of the association she represents and told of the work being done for the old soldiers. Assistant Quartermaster-general Weatherby prophesied a splendid success for Mr. Stanley in his new office and in the succeeding offices he will hold. He said that today there are 9,086 members of the department, but in two years when Mr. Stanley will head the department the number will have melted away to about 7,500. He also made a plea for preparedness.

In conclusion Post Commander Enoch Crombie pinned the badge of the junior vice commander upon Mr. Stanley, who in reply to the presentation speech of Mr. Crombie said he would do his best to fulfil the duties of his office with credit to his Post, the Town and himself. A solo by Mrs. J. W. Lee, "The End of a Perfect Day," and remarks by Francis M. Stanwood concluded the program. Refreshments were served. Long's orchestra provided music.

MANCHESTER CHURCHES

Special union memorial services will be held in the Congl. church next Sunday morning at 10.45 o'clock. The sermon will be preached by the pastor, Rev. Charles A. Hatch. Special music, appropriate to the occasion, will be rendered by the choir. An anthem, "Gloria," will precede the sermon. Following it the choir will sing, "To Thee, O Country," and Mrs. Sargent will sing a solo. A male quartet will sing, "Tenting Tonight." The following patriotic organizations will attend in a body: Allen Post, G. A. R; Allen Relief Corps; Col. Woodbury Camp, S. of V., and the Boy Scouts.

There will be no morning service at the Baptist church next Sunday, the congregation uniting with the Congl. church for the annual memorial service. The Sunday school will meet as usual and Rev. A. G. Warner will preach in the evening on "Heroes and Hero Worship."

Mansfield once made a vigorous objection to a couple of scene-shifters, who, after some laborious work in the flies, came to the stage breathing heavily as a result of their exertions. Mansfield nearly froze them with a look. Then he summoned Quinn. "The breathing of those men annoys me," he said. "I'd answer to the law if I stopped it," was the ready response of the Irishman.—Christian Register.

The fact may have no significance, but there were 22 births recorded in Manchester in the first four months of the year. What is significant about the list is the absence of the old well-known New England names. It denotes the make-up of the citizenry of the next generation.

"Industry Sunk by Submarine." Headline in Boston newspaper. What we would like to know is did the submarine crawl upon the land like a sea serpent or did the industry leave its place upon the shores and float about in the sea. Or just what did happen. However, upon reading the print below it was found that the title only meant a vessel with a cognomen Industry, had been sunk. Oh, that's different!

Drivers of automobiles should exercise more care in sounding their horns when approaching a corner or coming out of an alley way into the highway. Aside from the danger of injuring pedestrians it is to the car owner's advantage to avoid wrecking his own machine at the same time he demolishes another car through careless operation. In the remaining days until the work on the highways along the Shore is completed travel will be more or less difficult and it behooves everyone to be a little cautious and use more than ordinary care in observing the rules of the road.

It was certainly with no idea of race discrimination that Maxwell Norman of Hamilton, a well-known resident of the North Shore, advertised for a gardener of particular nationality for his home estate. His postscript to the advertisement, "No Irish or Germans need apply," stirred up a considerable furore among certain Boston newspapers, that criticised Mr. Norman for his discrimination. As a matter of fact, Mr. Norman has explained, it was farthest from his intention to make any discrimination because of the race of the prospective gardener, but experience had taught him that Irishmen and Germans in his employ did not make the most satisfactory gardeners. He preferred Scotch, and got one.

Here is the method used by the Rev. Carey W. Chamberlain of the First Baptist church of Beverly to draw men to his Sunday evening meetings. Mr. Chamberlain is a golf enthusiast and a member of the Wenham Golf club. Golf players have received this letter:

"My Dear Sir—I am interested in golf and have been a 'dubber' at it for several years. I am much interested in golfers and count a good many of the Beverly players as my friends.

"I have recently read two books on the game, and reading them has made me want to talk golf to my fellow players. I am inviting the members of the Wenham Golf club and the United Shoe Machinery Golf club to attend the First Baptist church on Sunday evening, May 28, at 7 o'clock. I shall preach about "Some Important Factors in Playing the Game." I hope that you will come. Your wives and sweethearts are included in the invitation. Just come, sit where you please, and feel entirely at home.

Yours truly,
CAREY W. CHAMBERLAIN.

FRIARS' FROLIC.

The Friars' Frolic in Boston on Wednesday afternoon and night will take place at the Boston Opera House instead of the Hollis Street Theatre, as originally announced. The inquiries regarding the prices and the opening of the box office sale of seats was so overwhelming that the larger theatre was secured. The performance will be the combined effort of the most distinguished authors, composers, comedians, song-writers, and vaudevillians that has ever been seen in this country, and it has been very aptly termed "$1,000,000 worth of vaudeville."

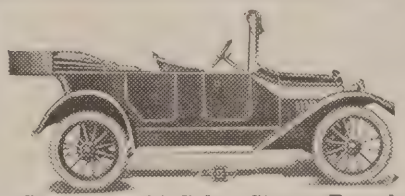

COPLEY THEATRE.

An opportunity to view the most stupendous and magnificent motion picture production of the year, that of the Incomparable Pavlowa, supported by her complete Russian Ballet and over 500 people, in the famed "Dumb Girl of Portici" under conditions more attractive and appropriate than it will be seen anywhere else in this country, will be given the public, beginning Thursday night, June 1st, at the Copley Theatre, Dartmouth street, off Copley square, Boston. In addition to the picture, the music of Auber's opera, upon which it is founded, will be played by the well known Renfrew Women's Orchestra, led by Belle Yeaton Renfrew. There will be performances every afternoon at 2.15 and each evening throughout the week.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.

A double-featured bill of star vaudeville attractions, headed by the Jack Wilson Trio and Albert Whelan, the Australian entertainer, will be offered at B. F. Keith's Theatre, the week of May 29th. Jack Wilson is one of the most famous blackface comedians in the world. He has recently closed a long and successful run at the New York Winter Garden, and has returned to vaudeville, his first love. Mr. Wilson will burlesque all the acts that precede him on the bill, as has been his custom, and everyone can rest assured of a long and hearty laugh. After seven years absence from America, Albert Whelan, the celebrated Australian entertainer, musician, whistler, ranconteur and mimic, will make his return to Boston with a new act.

The surrounding bill includes "The Little Stranger," a comedy of the Southern race-tracks, with Paul Dullzell and an all-star cast; Emmet DeVoy and company in the uproariously funny comedy success, "His Wife's Mother;" George McKay and Ottie Ardine in "On Broadway."

Tomorrow's game at the playground will be between Story High school and the Crescent's of Gloucester. The game scheduled with Groveland for Memorial Day has been cancelled because the Manchester school board refused the students permission to play on that day. The game will probably be played in Groveland the following day.

The sub-Freshman team, after a half-dozen successive defeats at the hands of the Grammar school team, succeeded in turning the tables last Friday afternoon and defeated the Priest school boys 3 to 1 at the playground.

The driver of a Metz car was the first victim of a traffic blockade where the road is being rebuilt in Central square. While backing out of the way of another machine Saturday afternoon one of the rear wheels came off. No other injury was done to the car or its occupant, whose name was not learned.

Story High School defeated Manning school of Ipswich at the Brook st. diamond, Manchester, last Saturday afternoon 4 to 3. In spite of adverse decisions on the bases by Umpire Serrat of Ipswich, who suffers from near-sightedness at convenient intervals, the Manchester boys were able to overcome a two-run lead early in the game and come out of the fray with colors flying. Part of the game was played in rain, which threatened to stop playing at one stage and made fielding difficult. The score:

Miss Ethel P. May has rented her "Brown" bungalow to John Ruby for the season.

A. R. Willard of Boston will occupy the Williams house off Magnolia ave. for the season.

Miss E. C. McVickar of Providence, R. I., has engaged through Jonathan May, agent, the Malonson house on Norman ave.

The Shaw house on Norman ave., has been rented to Newcomb Carlton, president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, of N. Y. City.

Mr. and Mrs. John Philip Koehler, who are occupying the "Gray" bungalow on Western ave., are rejoicing over the birth of a boy on May 17.

On Monday Mrs. D. C. Ballou, her three children and maid left for Skagway, Alaska, to join her husband, who is so well and favorably known in this vicinity. Last Friday night a party of Mrs. Ballou's friends met at the Women's clubhouse to say their "Goody-bye" to her. Edward Ballou has engaged a room at the Men's clubhouse and will make his home there for the present.

Rev. Dr. Walter S. Eaton will preach in the Village church next Sunday at 10.45 a. m. and at 7. 30 p. m. "The Recompense of Sacrifice" will be the subject of the morning sermon. To this service the Magnolia veterans of the Civil War have been invited. In the evening the subject will be, "A Hero of Modern Times." Prof. Lyman F. Brackett will give an organ recital the first fifteen minutes of the evening service.

Recently the writer heard one say, "Do you not love the trees? And does it not hurt you when you see them cut and mangled?" The bark on that beautiful maple tree on Magnolia ave. would not have been cut off by some careless or vicious person if he had loved the trees as does the writer's friend. Who, in authority, will give this bleeding tree, that is a friend to us all, the attention and care that it now needs? Strange that anyone should ever, in the least degree, mar the beauty of this famous and delightful village by the sea!

Frederick W. Eaton, who some time since met with an accident, has practically recovered from his severe burns and is now visiting his parents at the parsonage, having arrived from the city hospital, North Adams, on Monday of this week. Mr. Eaton will return to Worcester, where he is employed as an electrical engineer by the Connecticut River Transmission Company, early next week.

The Men's Club will open for the season Tuesday, May 30. There will be the usual dance in the evening from 8 o'clock to 11.30. Gentlemen's tickets, twenty-five cents, ladies', fifteen cents. Membership for the season will be one dollar as usual. The bowling allies, on which have been installed "leatheroid" bed plates, will be opened for the season. Ladies welcome Wednesday and Saturday evenings of each week. The restaurant will open June 16. The club will be in charge of Fred Dunbar until the arrival of Rev. F. J. Libby about the first week in July.

MAJESTIC THEATRE, BOSTON.

"The Birth of a Nation," that D. W. Griffith mighty spectacle, which was the forerunner of the elaborate feature photo-play productions which occupy such a conspicuous place on the "legitimate" stage today, starts on its 33rd week in Boston next Monday afternoon at the Majestic Theatre. It is given with all these picturesque and illuminating accessories which have always characterized its presentations in this city and every large city in America, and patrons still enjoy the advantage of that large symphony orchestra which furnishes an adequate musical accompaniment so necessary to a perfect appreciation of the enthralling story which is told, although the prices are on a more popular scale than heretofore.

The thrilling and realistic scenes in "The Birth of a Nation" which depict the development and progress of the United States of America as a nation, before the Civil War, during it, and immediately after it, during the reconstruction period furnish ideal subjects for dramatic presentation.

Gardner of New York, secretary of the general board of religious education, delivered an address on the "Christian Nurture Course." He was followed by Rev. Frank R. Luce, rector of Christ Church of Hamilton, whose subject was, "The Purposes of Teaching." The choir sang several selections during the service. Included among the delegates were the following rectors of the Episcopal churches in the North Shore district:

The Hadley property, corner of Hart st. and Greenwood ave., which was advertised to be sold at auction last Saturday afternoon was not sold. The sale was withdrawn by the administrator of the estate.

Former Senator Beveridge Memorial Day Speaker.

It has been definitely settled that former Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indianapolis, now a Beverly Farms resident, will deliver the Memorial Day address at the Baptist church next Tuesday evening. Mr. Beveridge was invited some time ago by Preston Post, G. A. R., but owing to the uncertainty of his plans the matter was not decided finally until Tuesday. Beverly Farms people are fortunate to have this opportunity of hearing Mr. Beveridge on such an occasion.

Its the baby that lives that counts.

Beverly Sidewalks.

Every Alderman in Beverly is attempting to secure as much of the sidewalk improvement for his ward as possible. The discussion of sidewalks at the meeting of the Board of Aldermen in Beverly last Monday evening is of interest to Beverly Farms residents. The majority of the committee on public finance and aid reported in favor of the installation of an artificial sidewalk on Elliott street, Ward Five, Alderman Connolly dissenting.

Alderman Connolly said that there was only $1700 left in the sidewalk appropriation now. He did not think that a sidewalk was needed there, there was about 250 feet that could be put in repair at a very small expense.

"We are going too fast" said the alderman from Ward Six. "We have passed orders for 2740 feet of curbing in Ward One, 2052 feet in Ward Two, 1458 in Ward Three, 2934 in Ward Four and 3289 feet in Ward Five."

As the alderman stopped there, alderman Thompson of Ward Five asked him how much in Ward Six.

Alderman Connolly said, "Ward Six doesn't get anything that she isn't entitled to, in proportion to what she turns in to the city government. I believe the city charter should be amended so that all the aldermen should be elected at large the same as the school committee are, then there would not be so much selfishness or discrimination. Ward Six has 1926 feet, but that is provided in a special appropriation." The matter was referred to the finance committee.

Park at New Library.

Misses Katherine P. and Louisa P. Loring, through Alderman Thomas D. Connolly, have asked for a park at the new Beverly Farms Library. It is their desire to complete the grading and set out a hedge along the street line on Hale st., to install a gateway and to provide for a light over the gateway from the street. It is also proposed to move the band stand to a location nearer the G. A. R. hall and set close to it the flag pole which was taken from the Square some time ago. The city has been asked to bear the expense of setting up the pole and moving the band stand.

Larger Postal Savings Will Now be Accepted.

Larger postal savings deposits will now be accepted at the post office This is made possible by an important amendment to the Postal Savings Act just approved by President Wilson. A postal savings depositor may now have an account amounting to $1,000 upon which interest will be paid. Formerly $500 was the maximum amount he could have to his credit This enlargement of postal savings facilities will be very gratifying to thousands of depositors who have already reached the old $500 limit and are anxious to entrust more of their savings to Uncle Sam. Another feature of the amendment that will avoid further embarrassment to the public and to postal officials is the doing away with the limit on the amount that could be accepted from a depositor monthly. Under the old law only $100 could be deposited in a calendar month. The amendment abolishes this restriction. While the Postal Savings System has already proved a signal success as is shown by the fact that more than half-a-million depositors have over eighty million dollars standing to their credit, still it has fallen short of meeting the full demands of the public because of the restrictions which have now been eliminated. Postmaster General Burleson and Third Assistant Postmaster General Dockery have been tireless in their efforts to secure a modification of the limitations and the new liberalizing legislation is particularly gratifying to them.

AIM TO PREVENT ACCIDENTS AT GRADE CROSSINGS.

An important step was taken by the American Railway association at its semi-annual meeting at the Biltmore in New York last Friday. Specific standards for protecting grade crossings were adopted and a special committee for the prevention of accidents at grade crossings was authorized to meet with a committee of the National Association of Railway Commissioners and to join them in recommending standards to be followed and to secure legislation in all states requiring compliance with such standards. Five specific practices were recommended for the adoption of public service commissions and other authorities. These five recommendations include uniform approach warning signs; uniform color of light for night indication; uniform use of circular disc, about 16 inches in diameter, with the word, "Stop," painted upon it instead of the varicolored crossing flags; painting of crossing gates with alternating black and white stripes like a barber pole, and the adoption of uniform rules for the regulation of street and highway traffic by watchmen and flagmen. The report of the special committee that made an exhaustive investigation of railway accidents in this country shows that grade crossing accidents have increased 1000 percent in the last five years. This has been largely due to the increase in auto traffic. The prevention of the accidents is an economic problem with the railroads as well as a moral obligation. Suits for damages are expensive and few roads can now afford them. The public should welcome and co-operate with any endeavor to make travel safer.

JUNIOR POULTRY DAY.

Tomorrow will be taken up at the Essex County Agricultural school at Hathorne by the program for Junior Poultry Day. There will be talks by professors from Mass. Agricultural College and by instructors at the Essex County school. The talks will be illustrated by apparatus, equipment and fowl at the school. There is a fine chance for boys and girls interested in poultry-raising to get their questions answered and to receive help in overcoming their difficulties.

A bashful young Scot had no courage to speak for himself. At last one Sabbath night he said, "Jane, do you ken I were here Monday night?" "Aye." "And I were here Wednesday and Thursday?" "Aye." "And once more on Friday and again last night?" "So you were." "And here I am tonight." "Yes." Finally, in desperation, "Woman, do you no smell a rat?"—Rural New Yorker.

Table Silver and China for Summer Homes

In fitting up a summer home, whether it is to be a modest cottage or a large house, it is essential that the table appointments be neat and inviting, especially if one is to entertain very much.

Naturally, you do not wish to subject your sterling silver and fine China to the hard usage of summer housekeeping; therefore the following suggestions may interest you:

Silver

We suggest a pattern of substantial silver plate for your summer home. Many of the plated patterns are so well made now that they have all the appearance of a sterling pattern and the reinforcement on the backs of the forks and spoons in the places where the greatest wear comes, insures long service under hard usage.

The plated patterns are, of course, much less expensive than sterling patterns. It is really surprising what one may buy in plated ware for $10, $15 or $20. Notwithstanding the tremendous rise in the price of silver, our forethought in buying makes it possible for you to obtain at our Store, silverware for your summer place at extremely moderate prices, considering the present market conditions.

China

We have a number of attractive dinnerware patterns suitable for the summer home. These are priced by the piece in order that you may select only those pieces you prefer to use and thus eliminate the ones usually consigned to the top shelf. The set you select may be for any number of persons you choose.

In addition to our stock of China, this department also features an interesting collection of reasonably-priced stemware as well as a number of novel things—flower bowls; bird houses, baths, shelters; aquariums, etc.—designed especially for summer home decoration.

Altogether, you will find our China and Cut Glass Dept. of decided interest.

We most cordially invite you to visit our Store if only to "look around."

Manchester, Famous Among America's Watering Places

Beautiful Scenery, Wonderful Bathing Beach, Landlocked Harbor, Smooth Motor Roads and Woodland Drives Offer a Few of the Attractions

TO WANDER for a day among the many beauty spots in the vicinity of Manchester with their rare woodland scenery, balanced by choice glimpses of the ocean's blue among the trees, is a delight never to be forgotten. While drinking in the wondrous natural beauties of the surroundings it is hard to realize that for over two hundred years they went practically unappreciated. Who was the first keen observer of the scenic beauty of the North Shore is an unrecorded fact. It is evident that none of the early settlers found much to be desired in the picturesque scenery of the section. Theirs was a problem of existence, not of enjoyment. But even the succeeding generations appear to have been blind to the beauties and the possiblities of the North Shore.

As a matter of fact it was not until well along in the last century that the poetic beauty of this region commenced to be realized. What the land of wondrous scenery awaited was a poet with the vision of Whittier, who would sing to the less romantic souls of the natural charm of surroundings. Back in 1835 the celebrated Harriet Martineau, as guest of Hon. Stephen C. Phillips of Salem, rode to Manchester and was so impressed as to exclaim, "It is enough to make a poor man envious."

The pioneer of "summer residents" of Manchester was Richard H. Dana, the poet, who in 1845 purchased thirty acres between the county road and the waterfront, bordering on what is now known as Dana's Beach (private). The land was covered with a luxuriant forest growth and in its seclusion he built the first summer house of this section of the North Shore, if not the first famous Biarritz, the summer resort of Napoleon III. on the entire shore. Charles Sumner declared the Dana summer home superior in location and scenery to the Succeeding generations of the illustrious family have made Manchester their summer home. With the Dana estate as the nucleus the summer colony rapidly grew until today Manchester is among the most fashionable of America's watering places.

The coming of the summer resident has worked wonders in the development of Manchester. The visitor to the little village by the sea is amply repaid, in the coin he seeks, for the benefits he brings to the town. Beautiful scenery, a wonderful bathing beach, a landlocked harbor, smooth motor roads winding along the shore and amid the woodlands, are a measure of the advantages of Manchester as a summer resort. The summer resident has unquestionably brought prosperity to Manchester and made possible its development into one of the most modern towns of its size in the country.

The increased wealth of the Town of Manchester has made it possible for the construction of miles of splendid motor roads, the expenditure this year to be over $68,000 in building or repairing highways. Manchester spends $10,000 yearly for its street lighting system, which is second to none. There is not an overhead wire in the town—telephone or electric. A new and highly efficient sewer system was recently installed. Over $100,000 has been spent in developing Manchester harbor which is one of the best on the North Shore. There are public landings convenient to the railroad station, the postoffice, the "Eaglehead" at Manchester, the Summer Home of Mrs. James McMillan of Washington. Surrounded by Trees and Rocks, the Ocean Washing its Foundations.

Manchester Yacht club and to the shopping center of the town.

While Manchester has received these later blessings through its increased resources it has never lost sight of the fact that it was originally its wonderful natural beauty that brought to it hundreds of seekers after rest amid the beauties of nature. For that reason the people of Manchester spend a good deal of time and money in the development of these natural resources. A goodly sum is spent each year for the care of the famed Singing Beach, for the upkeep of the harbor, the provision of a source of pure water supply and a high pressure water system, and the maintenance and enlargement of public parks. Manchester has added the modern and material blessings while retaining the natural and the beautiful.

New Public Library Building at Beverly Farms

Beverly Farms New Public Library

BEVERLY FARMS is proud of its newest institution, its public library. The Beverly Farms public library is one of the most attractive types of modern community building in Eastern Massachusetts. It was built through the generosity of Misses Katherine P. and Louisa P. Loring of Pride's Crossing, who gave the site, and the City of Beverly which appropriated $30,000 for the construction. The building is absolutely fireproof throughout. It is of brick and terra cotta construction and the style of architecture is colonial.

Besides the land given by the Misses Loring the city bought another lot adjoining which it is now being urged to use for a public park as proposed at the time of purchase. The park will give an ideal setting for the new library building. The library sets back 35 feet from Vine st., has a frontage of 60 feet and when the grounds are completed will be one of the beauty spots of Beverly Farms.

The main floor contains the reading room for adults and children, the librarian's room and the stack room. In the basement a comfortable hall, with a seating capacity of 150, is located. There is a stage at one end, making the building ideal for all sorts of community activity. The building has a modern heating and lighting system and is up-to-date in every particular.

Since 1893 there had been a branch library at Beverly Farms when the books which were used for the "Neighbor's Library," collected by Mrs. Henry Whitman and those that Miss Louisa P. Loring of "Burn-Side," Pride's Crossing had circulated from her home, were given to Beverly. Beverly was then operating under the town form of government and the gift was made on condition that the town provide a reading room, magazines and a librarian. For a long time the library was maintained in the Grand Army hall, Central square, but many additions to the library had created cramped conditions. The new library is handy to Central square and is a decided assest to the Farms.

New Residences and Recent Improvements Along the North Shore

CHARLES ELMER ALEXANDER

(Reprinted from BOSTON EVENING TRANSCRIPT of May 20, 1916)

Handsome Residence for Wm. A. Gardner

PRIDE'S CROSSING.—Work has been started on the foundation of a house for William Amory Gardner, of Groton, who eventually will have one of the finest places along the North Shore. It is to be built on the Gardner estate on Hale street, directly opposite Mingo Beach, about halfway between Chapman's corner at Beverly Cove and Pride's Crossing. A house built long ago on this site was recently demolished to make way for the new residence. Mr. Gardner, as a boy and young man, used to spend his summers there, as did his younger brother, Congressman Augustus P. Gardner, of Hamilton and Washington. Formerly, for some years their uncle, the late John L. Gardner, and their aunt, Mrs. Gardner, made this place their summer home.

The site is ideal for a summer home, as the beach and nearby surroundings make a fine setting and the views across the water are widespread. The house, in its high situation, will suggest a castle, as it is to be constructed of stone and its main part will be high and square on top and on the waterfront it will be five stories, including a mezzanine story and a basement. It has been planned by Henry Richards, an architect of Gardiner, Me., and the work is to be carried out by W. F. Ross Company, of Cambridge, as general contractors.

This mansion will be so constructed that it will have a most substantial look, gained not only through the use of stone, but because of its general design. The central portion of several stories with its square top will be flanked by right and left wings, one for rooms for the master's portion of the house and the other the service department. On the water side there will be a broad terrace upon which the drawing room will open and this terrace will be carried, at less width, across the elevation and massive stone steps will lead to a lower terrace. It all will be finished with a heavy balustrade of ornamental design. The two wings will have a pitched roof, the lines broken by dormer windows, and at the end of each wing there will be a broad chimney. Throughout the house the windows will be out of the usual, with leaded panes in mullion treatment, and the range of windows on the various stories has been varied as to groups, so that a quaint appearance will be gained. Some of the more important windows, those in the dining room and drawing room, especially, are of the Tudor type. The treatment of the big chimneys is also suggestive of that period.

The main entrance, with its spandrel-arched doorway, will be reached by an avenue to be built from the main highway leading to what might appear to be the rear of the house, if the elevation facing the highway and water be considered as the front. The entrance and stairway halls will be of big size, the main hall about fifty feet long by twelve or more wide. From it will open the library, about twenty by tyenty-four feet in size, and the drawing room, thirty-four by twenty-four feet in dimensions. On the opposite side will be the dining room, twenty-seven by twenty-four feet in size. All of these will have deep fireplaces. The stairway hall, twenty-eight by eighteen feet in dimensions, will show an ornamental stairway with square turnings. Coat and other rooms make up this lower floor. The halls will be marble tiled and the walls will be panelled in an ornamental way. In the larger wing will be the general service part of the house, including a kitchen, laundry, servants' hall, butler's rooms and other equipment, all opening upon a long corridor.

On the second floor will be a large hall and gallery of stone construction, a master's suite of several rooms, guests' rooms with baths and dressing rooms, a boudoir, while in the wing will be the housekeeper's rooms, and other rooms for use of servants. The mezzanine floor will contain rooms and baths for use of guests, a sewing room and several service rooms. The third floor will not be finished until some future time, but it is spacious enough to provide several good-sized chambers, baths, storage and other rooms.

The interior finish planned by Mr. Ross, the contractor, will be notably in keeping with the solid character of the exterior. The drawing room will be panelled about two-thirds up and the various doorways, extending to the ceiling, will be of the Tudor style, with considerable carving in the arches. Some of the windows show similar treatment. The panels of the hall, dining room and library will add immensely to the appearance of these places, as will mantels everywhere, of carved stone in impressive designs, with fluted columns and other details of finish. It is not expected that the house will be finished until about a year from this time, or perhaps a little earlier.

Here and There at Pride's

EACH season finds usually some new work in the general improvement of the H. C. Frick estate at Pride's Crossing, where just now a small cottage is nearing completion for use by the gardener. It is just off of Hale street and is placed near the extensive kitchen and other gardens which form so important a part of this big estate. The cottage is of modest size, with plastered exterior and "snub-nosed" gabled roof. It contains about the usual plan of rooms found in houses for its intended purpose. It was built by Howard A. Doane of Pride's Crossing and the stone and masonry work, including the building of a short avenue from the main highway, of stone construction, was done by the J. H. Linehan Construction Company of Pride's.

A new wall with entrance posts is being built to enclose the Oliver Ames estate on Hale street at Pride's Crossing. It is a reproduction of the wall originally built when the mansion on the estate was erected, is of concrete foundation and plaster finish and has a substantial look. It has been built by J. T. Wilson & Son, Inc., of Nahant. A new forecourt is a part of the plan of improvement.

At "Swiftmoor," at Pride's Crossing, the summer residence of Mr. and Mrs. Aksel C. P. Wichfeld of Washington, D. C., some improvement of the interior has been made, especially in the kitchen and service part of the large mansion. These changes have been made by J. T. Wilson & Sons, Inc., of Nahant. The tennis courts have been rebuilt and some other work on the extensive grounds has been carried out by the J. H. Linehan Construction Company of Pride's Crossing.

Along the Beverly Shore

A NOTABLE addition to the house of John L. Saltonstall on Hale street at Beverly is in the form of a music room about 25 feet in dimensions, which is finished in green and gold and is decorated and furnished in the period of Louis Seize. It has deep windows and in its whole appearance is exceptionally attractive. At one end there are steps leading to a terrace and rose garden. The music room was designed by Richardson, Barott & Richardson, the Boston architects.

Improvements which mark the estate of A. Koshland on Ober street in Beverly, near the Burgess Point section, include a new garage and greenhouses, as well as minor changes in the house. The garage and greenhouses are placed in the garden on the opposite side of the highway from the residence. The garage is of two stories, with pitched roof and dormer windows, and is of brick and cement construction. It provides room for four cars and has the usual modern equipment for their proper care. The building includes, entirely separated, a tenement for use of the chauffeur. The greenhouses, about 60 feet by 25 in dimensions, include a grapery, vinery, a melon house, and section for salad vegetables. Driveways have been changed, requiring the felling of a few trees, and there has been replanting of trees and shrubbery, and other work of minor character. The changes were planned by Berry & Davidson, Boston architects, and were carried out by William Galloupe of Beverly.

New Residence for Miss Amory About Finished

BEVERLY FARMS has this season only one new house among the summer residences, that built for Miss Susan C. Amory of Marlboro street, Boston, from plans by Andrews, Jacques & Rantoul, the Boston architects. It is on the former property of Mrs. Frederic Dexter and is situated just off of Hale street, near the Allen Curtis place at the corner of Hale and Oak streets. The house is of the English cottage type, with gabled roof and plastered exterior. Its main entrance shows simple yet effective treatment, its porch with fluted columns and a pediment. Windows with shutters give a quaint look to the house. Its first floor provides for Miss Amory a small hall with stairs inconspicuously placed, a spacious living room, a library of good size and dining room, each having an ample fireplace. That in the dining room is in a corner and opposite is an old-fashioned corner cupboard. One end of this room shows a rounded bay window with numerous very small leaded panes. There is a glazed-in porch, or sun room. The service department, kitchen, butler's rooms, laundry, etc., have been carefully planned. The second floor gives the owner four chambers, two baths, a sleeping porch and linen closet, as well as rooms for servants' use. The third floor is an unfinished attic. The interior finish is thoroughly in keeping with the attractive exterior appearance of the cottage. Much work on the surrounding grounds to make a terrace has been done and there will be a formal garden, with lawns, shrubbery and flower plats. There is a garage and chauffeur's cottage corresponding in finish to the house. There is space for two cars and the tenement is conveniently planned. Well-grown trees near the house lend their value to its situation. E. A. Abbott Company of Boston has done the building, grading and other work of carrying out the plans of the architects. The house forms a notable addition to the summer cottages at Beverly Farms.

To Build on the Old Lee Estate

PLANS have been made for a summer residence at Beverly Farms for Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dobyne of Bay State road, Boston, whose place will be just off of West street, a part of the original Henry Lee estate. The house will be between the old-time Lee mansion and the comparatively new and attractive house of R. Paul Snelling. The plans have been prepared by Smith & Warren, Boston architects, and work is about to begin. A new avenue from West street, just beyond the bathing beach, has been constructed and a wall of plaster finish, with square posts, each surmounted by a ball, marks the entrance to the estate. The Dobyne residence will be of two and a half stories, with gabled roof, showing big chimneys, and the windows will have many small panes of glass. Directly over the front entrance there will be a series of four windows and above these a dormer breaks the roof line. A brick chimney of big proportions rises in an ornamental way beside the front door. From a small vestibule, the main hall and stairs are reached. A long living room with an alcoved fireplace has been planned, with a loggia adjoining, to connect with a terrace and garden, to be provided with a pool, basin and other features. The dining room will be ample in size, with deep fireplace, and connecting there will be a flower room. The long L will contain the service part, which has been carefully planned. On the second floor there is a master's suite of several rooms, and from a long corridor three rooms and the baths are reached, intended for use of guests. Rooms for maids are in the L. The exterior finish will be of brick with architectual stone trimmings and the house will be attractive, when completed.

McKean Place Greatly Improved

FROM plans by Richardson, Barott & Richardson, Boston architects, changes have been made for H. P. McKean, Jr., on Hart street, at Beverly Farms. The old-time house there has been removed to a new site and has been enlarged, and in its new setting among pine trees is more advantageously placed. From Grape Vine road a new avenue has been built, winding in and out under the trees. In the changes in the house effort has been made to secure the effect of the old-time mansions in Salem and elsewhere in Essex County. The new entrance hall, with fireplace, and a large living room, also with deep fireplace, are first impressions, and there has been gained from the rooms formerly used as a parlor and a library a big hall with floor of old-time slate, the flags measuring about three by four feet, and there is a wonderful stairway of Colonial design, the vamp mahogany rail and the uprights of which came from the old Lee mansion in Salem, the home of the grandfather of Mrs. McKean, who before her marriage was Miss Elizabeth P. Lee. Panels which are used in the finish of the room and an old corner cupboard also came from the same Salem mansion, as did the panels which in part finish the various rooms. From the dining room one reaches a glass enclosed piazza, above which there is a sleeping porch. A new wing for the service part of the house is among the changes, and its various rooms have been carefully planned, including its second floor for use of servants. The changes provide on the second floor a new day and also a night nursery, a children's dressing room and a kitchenette for their welfare, adjoining a nurse's room. A new master's bedroom and bath and a like suite for guests have been gained in the addition. On the third floor, in addition to a large storage room, there are two bed rooms, a bath and a child's room, which is planned with everything on a small scale to especially interest children. The exterior is of the Colonial farmhouse type, the doorway of modest design with columns supporting a pediment. Small panes for the casement windows and a big chimney which at its base indoors is ten feet square, are distinguishing features. The broad foot-faced shingles are painted white. The work is nearing a finish under Job F. Hurlburt of Beverly Farms.

Other Changes at the Farms

ON the J. A. Lowell Blake place at Beverly Farms, situated near the West Manchester line, a new garage has been built which is a little out of the usual. It is of two stories with hip roof of slate, in graduated widths, in English effect, and plastered exterior finish, on terra cotta tiles, and takes on an old-time old-stone effect. It will accommodate three cars. An outside stairway of stone leads to an upper stone-paved piazza opening upon several rooms comfortably planned for use by a chauffeur. Trellises add to the appearance of the building. The work is nearly finished, under the direction of the Holt-Fairchild Company, Boston. The little creek which runs through this estate has been crossed by a bridge of stone and oak timber designed by Boston architects, Richardson, Barott & Richardson, who planned the garage. Connolly Bros., of Beverly Farms, built the bridge.

A house on Hale street at Beverly Farms, which was purchased last year by Dr. J. H. Lancashire, of Manchester, has been remodelled to make it more comfortable and also far more attractive than in the past for purposes of summer occupancy. It is situated near the residence of Dr. Lancashire's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. E. Laurence White, on Grove street, just off of Hale street, whose picturesque house was new last year. The remodelled house gains new piazzas and several new rooms, with considerable change of arrangement of the interior. The work has been done by Roberts & Hoare, of Manchester.

Manchester's Changes Are Not Many

WORK is well along on the foundations of the new house to be built at Manchester for William H. Coolidge of Newton Centre, whose summer estate is on Summer street, so near the Magnolia line that it seems really a part of Magnolia village rather than the Manchester colony of residences. It was formerly the old-time Blynman farm and until Mr. Coolidge bought the place the Hotel Blynman stood on the site. Since last summer Mr. Coolidge's former house has been divided into three sections and removed to a point farther along Summer street, on a section of what was formerly the Kettle Cove Golf club grounds, where it has been put together with considerable remodelling and improvement.

The new house for Mr. Coolidge will be imposing in appearance, built from plans by Charles M. Baker, a Boston architect, and carried out by E. A. Abbott Company of Boston. It will be of stucco exterior finish and its long-pitched roof will show various gables. An ornamental main entrance and small-paned windows will be features. The first floor will give the owner a small vestibule leading to a large hall, perhaps forty by twenty or more feet in dimensions, with a deep fireplace. The stairs have square midway landings. A reception room, a den, a library of spacious size, provided with a deep window alcove, a fine fireplace and other features and a large dining room and a breakfast room with tiled floor will make up the main part of the lower story. There will be a fine loggia between the library and dining room and at one end of the house will be found a covered piazza. The butler's quarters and general service department have been well planned, as have the various rooms for servants. The second story will provide three or four master's bedrooms with baths and dressing rooms, a sewing room, a sitting room of good size, several chambers with baths for guests, and the third floor will contain several rooms for maids' use and a storage room.

Foster Cottage Undergoes Changes

FOR Reginald Foster, the present owner of what formerly was the Bulkeley Wells estate on Coolidge Point in Manchester, Roberts & Hoare have added a new dining room which is of big size, designed by William G. Rantoul of Boston. It adds much to the general appearance of the house. The room is about thirty feet long and fifteen wide, with oval ends and panelled walls, a deep fireplace forming one end, the opposite of which is wholly of windows. A new glazed-in piazza with tiled floor adjoins and there is a wide terrace reached by steps leading from a lobby opening upon the dining room and the den, which room is octagonal in shape.

Lancashire Residence Improved

MUCH has been done to change the interior as well as exterior appearance of Dr. J. H. Lancashire's fine summer residence in Manchester, formerly the home of the late Charles Head, the Boston banker, for whom the house originally was erected. It is in the Dana's Beach section, off of Summer street, the highway leading to Magnolia. A new library has been gained and is twice the former size, with panelled walls, the doorways showing fluted pilasters; more of these mark the big fireplace, which is especially well designed. The room, by demolishing two smaller ones, gains 22 feet over its former length. Upstairs, changes have been made in the chambers, which now have panelled walls, for one improvement. The service part of the house has undergone alterations to make it thoroughly modern in its general equipment. The changes were all planned by the Boston architects, Bigelow & Wadsworth, and were carried out by Roberts & Hoare of Manchester.

The garage on the George R. White estate, "Lilliothea," on Smith's Point in Manchester, has been made fireproof and fitted with tiled floors and in various other ways has undergone improvement. It formerly was a stable, until converted to its present use from plans by Lawrence & Wambolt, the Boston architects.

Changes at West Manchester

GORDON ABBOTT'S summer residence at Glass Head, West Manchester, has undergone notable improvements whereby the first floor is almost like new, its big living room having a deep fireplace, beamed ceiling and casement windows. The library, which is circular in shape, shows a floor of stone flags and two rooms with intervening bath have been arranged for use of guests. They open upon a porch. The hall shows minor changes for the better and a new dining porch has been gained, with cement walls, tiled floor and glazed-in sides. A new laundry and other small changes make more complete the service department. Small alterations have been made also on the second floor. A new feature is a terrace having a flag-stone pavement. The changes were planned by H. M. Hanson of Gloucester, and were carried out by Roberts & Hoare of Manchester.

A brick addition to the William Hooper residence on Bridge street in West Manchester provides a new service department thoroughly well planned. The wing is of two stories and eventually the main part of the house, now of clapboards, will be veneered with brick so that the entire house will show this exterior finish. The family part of the house is later to be remodelled. These changes, which were carried out by Roberts & Hoare, were planned by Mrs. Hooper to meet her own ideas of certain desired improvements.

(Changes at Hamilton and Wenham, Ipswich, Topsfield, and Magnolia next week. ED.)

Who is Happier Than the Bride?

No price is set on the lavish summer;
June may be had by the poorest comer.

IT IS June on the North Shore.

And what is so rare as a day in June?
Then, if ever, come perfect days;
Then Heaven tries the earth if it be in tune,
And over it softly her warm ear lays:
Whether we look, or weather we listen,
We hear life murmur, or see it glisten;

'Tis as easy now for the heart to be true
As for grass to be green or skies to be blue,—
'Tis the natural way of living.

Again Lowell says:

Now is the high-tide of the year,
And whatever of life hath ebbed away
Comes flooding back with a ripply cheer,
Into every bare inlet and creek and bay;
Now the heart is so full that a drop overfills it,
We are happy now because God wills it.

Who is happier than the brides of the season? The North Shore has had a goodly number of the season's weddings. Before Easter we chronicled twenty-five weddings as taking place with North Shore connections, beginning with the wedding which really opened last year's social affairs on the Shore—that of Miss Hope Norman and Elliot Cowdin Bacon of New York, at St. Peter's Episcopal Church in Beverly; and ending with the wedding of March 1st, when Miss Elizabeth Prescott Bigelow became the bride of Dr. Frank Martin of Baltimore, Md.

The North Shore was interested in the wedding on April 8th of Miss Dorothy Morgan and Paul Graham Courtney in the Arlington street church in Boston. The maid of honor, Miss Miriam Mason, is also one of the prospective brides of June.

The wedding of Miss Grace Meeker and Ambrose C. Cramer of Chicago, followed on April 12th in the Chicago home of the Meekers. The Arthur Meekers have been North Shore residents oft and on for years. They will be at Beverly Farms this season.

In Philadelphia on April 15, the marriage of Miss Emily Wharton Sinkler to Nicholas Roosevelt took place. Mrs. Roosevelt is a niece of Miss Caroline Sinkler of Eastern Point, Gloucester.

Among the New York weddings which particularly interested the North Shore were several of the Easter week. April 27th was the date of the wedding of Miss Irene Langhorne Gibson to George B. Post, Jr.

Miss Barbara Thaw was married to Lieutenant Scott B. Macfarlane, U. S. N., on April 28, in New York.

April 29 marked two weddings of interest, one in New York, when Miss Elizabeth B. Wood of the Annisquam colony was married to John Cyrus Distler, Jr., of Baltimore; and the wedding of Miss Ellen du Pont to Holliday Meeds, Jr., at Wilmington, Del.

The first May wedding was on the second day when Miss Ruth Cutting, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Fulton Cutting, became the bride of Reginald Le Grange Auchincloss, a son of Mrs. Edgar S. Auchincloss, in New York. Both families have large North Shore connections.

The next wedding, May 20, took place in Manchester at the Emmanuel Episcopal church. With this wedding of Miss Rosamond Eliot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amory Eliot, and Frederick M. Burnham, the social life on the North Shore was opened for the season of 1916. The bride had one attendant—Mrs. Henry St. John Smith (Constance Wharton). Wm. A. Burnham, Jr., was his brother's best man. A wedding breakfast and reception followed at "Wildwood," the Eliot home at Old Neck, Manchester.

The Washington wedding on May 27th, of Miss Harriet Southerland, daughter of Admiral and Mrs. Wm. H. H. Southerland, and J. Butler Wright was of interest to North Shore society, for the Southerlands have long been identified with the social life at Magnolia and Nahant.

This week has been a week of wedding festivities for the North Shore. On Tuesday, May 30, in St. John's Church, Beverly Farms, a wedding of wide interest took place, when Miss Josephine Rantoul, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Rantoul, of Boston and Beverly Farms, was married to Henry Alexander Murray, Jr., of New York. The maid of honor was Miss Harriet Dexter.

On Wednesday, May 31, the wedding of Miss Ruth Harrington, daughter of Mrs. Francis B. Harrington, of Boston and Ipswich, and Robert Haydock, of Milton, took place in Boston.

The week has closed with another wedding of wide interest among North Shore colonies. Yesterday, June 1, Miss Elizabeth Hope Bancroft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hale Bancroft, of Boston and Beverly, became the bride of Alexander Winsor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Winsor, of Boston and Cataumet. The wedding took place in Beverly where the Bancrofts have a fine old homestead, "Hale Farm."

These interesting weddings bring to mind that most interesting of all times to the friends concerned—the time of the engagement announcement. Miss Josephine Rantoul made her announcement at a tea one afternoon last July at her home in Beverly Farms. During the first week of August three engagements interested society in many circles. Miss Eleanor Fabyan's engagement to Theodore Frothingham, Jr.; Miss Elizabeth Hope Bancroft's to Alexander Winsor; and Miss Miriam Mason's to Franklin H. Trumbull. The Fabyan-Frothingham wedding took place in Boston in the Old South Church during the week of Thanksgiving. Miss Mason and Mr. Trumbull will be married in the Church of the Ascension in Ipswich, Thursday, June 15, at 3 p. m.

Another June wedding will be that of Miss Phyllis Sears and Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., at Beverly Farms on the 20th. Their engagement was announced in the early spring.

At the country place of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Newbold, at Hyde Park, N. Y., Miss Mary E. Newbold will be married to William Gerald Dare Morgan, son of Mrs. William Dare Morgan, of 26 Washington Square North, New York, tomorrow. Miss Newbold has many prominent relatives on the North Shore.

On June 10 the wedding of Miss Helen Morgan Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Pierson Hamilton, of New York, to Police Commissioner Arthur Woods, of New York, will be of interest in prominent circles on the North Shore. The wedding will take place at 1 o'clock in the private chapel on the Hamilton estate, Table Rock, at Sterlington, N. Y., and will be followed by a breakfast and large reception. Miss Hamilton's uncle, Bishop Rhinelander of Philadelphia, will officiate. Bishop and Mrs. P. M. Rhinelander (Helen Hamilton) spend their summers at Rockport in the Land's End colony.

Sept. 19, in the Agassiz home at Hamilton, the wedding of Miss Marie Dallas Agassiz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Agassiz, and Cornelius Conway Felton, of Haverford, Pa., will take place.

If a man looks sharply and attentively, he shall see Fortune; for though she is blind she is not invisible.—Bacon.

ENGAGEMENTS of interest to the North Shore colonies:

Miss Helen Lancashire, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Lancashire, of New York and Manchester, to Umberto M. Coletti, of New York.

Miss S. Uytendale Baird, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Baird, of Philadelphia, to Harrison K. Caner, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison K. Caner, of Philadelphia and Manchester.

Miss Mary Orme, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon S. Orme, of New Orleans, to Donald Markle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvan Markle, of Hazelton, Pa., and a nephew of John Markle of New York and Manchester.

Miss Corinna Searle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Searle, of Boston and Ipswich, to Harold D. Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Howard Walker, of Boston.

Miss Louise McAllister, daughter of Mrs. Hall McAllister, of Boston and the North Shore, to Nevil Ford, of Chestnut Hill.

Miss Caroline W. Foster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. W. Foster, of Boston and Marblehead, to Theodore Sizer, of New York.

Miss Christine Snelling, daughter of Mrs. Russell G. Fessenden, of Boston and Marblehead, to Loring Wilkins Coleman, of Chicago.

Miss Margaret Stackpole, daughter of Mrs. Henry Stackpole, of Cambridge and Nahant, to George C. Cutler, Jr., of Brookline.

A careless song, with a little nonsense in it now and then, does not misbecome a monarch.—Walpole.

ONE of the North Shore's well known and well situated little tea shops has changed ownership since last season. The Fernery, located in the edge of Salem's shopping district, was purchased by Mrs. Marjorie W. Scrivin early in the year. Mrs. Scrivin, who is the widow of the late Curtis W. Scrivin, long connected with the S. S. Pierce Co., has had the shop extensively altered and renovated. Delicious luncheons, afternoon teas and dainty suppers are served amid pleasing surroundings. In connection with the tea room is a food shop where every variety of delicious home cooking is sold. In addition to the dainty cakes, pies and wholesome bread, delicious home-made candies are displayed. Luncheons for auto parties are a feature. The Fernery makes a specialty of its lobster salad sandwiches. Lunches are delivered at a slight extra expense. Sightseers in historic Salem find in the Fernery a convenient and cozy place to stop and rest.

CHICAGO during convention week will prove a magnet for persons prominent socially, and many of the North Shore residents will be found among the throngs at the meetings of the week. A number of dinner parties will precede the convention ball and garden party to be given by the Chicago Equal Suffrage association on Tuesday evening, June 6, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Fowler McCormick in honor of the distinguished visitors to the convention. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker will give a dinner for their house party of guests whom they will take to the ball. Mr. and Mrs. Medill McCormick will give a dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth. Mrs. John Borden will entertain and Judge and Mrs. J. M. Dickinson will give a dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson of Boston. On June 8, Mr. and Mrs. George Higginson give a dinner for Major Henry Higginson of Boston and their other house guests. The R. T. Crane, Jrs., will not be in Chicago and their intended guests, the Cornelius Vanderbilts of New York, will be with a large party of friends at the Blackstone.

The largest dinner given the evening before the ball will be by Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick. She is to entertain a hundred women at her residence in East Huron street. Many of her guests will be visiting suffragists and wives of convention delegates and republican leaders. It will be an unique and interesting affair. Women are learning the art of dining together and giving to such dinners the same significance and brilliancy as inheres to men's dinners.

The convention ball in the McCormick gardens is to be a Hindoo fete. There will be a big yellow tent for supper and another one for dancing and music. The lights will glow, not through the conventional Chinese lanterns, but through what will look like big, translucent oranges.

One of the striking features of the suffrage parade will be "the wedge," an imposing arrangement of stunning looking women with Mrs. Hobart Chatfield-Taylor at the head of the wedge. Behind her will be two women. Behind these three, and so on. In the wedge will be Mrs. Lawrence Armour, Mrs. James Ward Thorn, Mrs. Geo. Higginson and many others.

Among other notables present will be Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Mrs. Marshall Field, Countess Gizycka, who has many North Shore friends, Robert Grant, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond and Mr. and Mrs. John Newbold. From Washington will be many interesting women.

Mrs. Henry C. Corbin, who in 1908 headed a group of ten prominent women of society contributing $10,000 to the general fund in Mr. Taft's campaign for the Presidency, again will go to Chicago for the nominating convention. Mrs. Corbin's sisters, the Misses Mary E. and Josephine B. Patten, will be with her.

NAHANT.—Mrs. Thomas Dwight, widow of the late Dr. Thomas Dwight, of 235 Beacon st., Boston, and Nahant, has the sympathy of her many friends in the loss of her daughter, Sister Mary Philip, of the Notre Dame Convent, who died suddenly last Sunday week at Andover, where the order has been recently established. Miss Veronica Dwight of 73 Beacon st., Boston, is an aunt of Sister Mary Philip. Miss Margaret Dwight is a sister and Joseph Dwight a brother. Sister Mary Philip entered the order in Germany about three years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer B. Richardson and Mrs. Richardson's daughter, Miss M. Frances Clark, a debutante of this winter, will go to Nahant June 6 for the season and will occupy the Dabney villa.

Mr. and Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall Tuckerman of 9 Hereford st., Boston, are at their Nahant home for the season.

THE following rentals are reported this week through the office of T. Dennie Boardman, Reginald and R. deB. Boardman of Boston and Manchester:

The A. L. Daniels cottage at Beverly Farms to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Peabody (Marian Lawrence) of 302 Berkeley st., Boston. This is the cottage occupied last year by Mrs. W. G. Fitch of New York.

Mrs. E. W. McCoomb of Washington has leased the so-called Luke Meadow cottage at Beverly Farms.

At Magnolia the Jay K. Secors of Toledo, Ohio, who have long been guests at the Oceanside hotel, have leased the Morrill and Chas. Warren houses.

F. Blackwood Fay and family of 192 Commonwealth ave., Boston, are to have the Edward G. Black house on the hill off Sea street, Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brattle Gannett (Dorothy Draper) of Boston are established at their attractive villa at Manchester for the season. They will remain until well along into the autumn as last year. Mr. Gannett's mother, who has the Clark cottage across the way, will arrive about June 15.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Warren of Boston have arrived at "Singingdune," their summer home in Manchester, near Singing Beach, for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Sydney E. Hutchinson and family of Philadelphia are late in coming to their Beverly Farms estate for the summer. They had the house opened several weeks ago, but have been detained in Philadelphia because of the serious illness of their little seven year old daughter, Nathalie, who was operated upon. Just as soon as the little Miss's condition will permit, she will be brought on to the seashore. The Hutchinson residence, "Sydith Terrace" is on the edge of West Beach. The cottage across the highway, belonging to Mr. Hutchinson, will be occupied this summer by his sister, and family.

THE NAVY FESTIVAL to be held on Fourth of July Eve.—Monday evening, July 3—at Amos A. Lawrence's estate, Beaver Pond, Beverly, will be the grandest affair of the kind ever held on the North Shore. The details are in charge of a committee of ten, of which Mr. Lawrence is chairman. To begin with it will be entirely different from the big Festival held last summer on the Haven estate, Beverly Farms. There will be no sale, nor booths. This will be an evening affair starting with dinner in a mammoth tent at about $2.50 a plate. Dancing will follow—also out of doors, on specially constructed dancing floors. Two bands will be provided—one brass, the other strings. Music will keep up continuously. Shortly after eight fireworks will start, all around the pond, which will be outlined with lanterns. This ought to prove a splendid arrangement for fireworks, as the pond is sufficiently large to insure against rockets, etc., coming across the pond. From the various points the fireworks will be directed toward the center of the pond. Dancing will continue long after the fireworks are over and a supper will be served at midnight. Admission to the festival, it is understood, will be $5. Entrance to the grounds will be by Dodge street, on account of the better facilities for parking than by the Essex street entrance to the estate.

Mrs. Charles M. Hewitt and daughter are among the prominent Chicago people to spend the summer on the North Shore. They are to occupy the F. M. Stanwood residence on Smith's Point, Manchester, the lease having been made this week. It is said that Mrs. Marshall Field of Chicago, who has a beautiful country estate at Lake Forest, Ill., has been on the North Shore the last week looking over some of the very few cottages remaining unleased.

THE second North Shore wedding this season was that of Miss Josephine Rantoul and Henry Alexander Murray, Jr., of New York, which took place Tuesday noon in St. John's Episcopal Church, Beverly Farms. The interior of the little church was beautifully decorated with early summer blossoms, white lilacs and pink peonies being used in quantities with beautiful effect. Miss Rantoul is the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Rantoul, whose Boston home is at 30 Fairfield street, and who have a seashore home at Beverly Farms. She is a member of the 1913 Sewing Circle and was presented at a ball at the Copley-Plaza three seasons ago. Mr. Murray is a Harvard '15 man, and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Alexander Murray of New York, who have a summer home at the Thousand Islands.

Two clergymen conducted the ceremony, Rev. Endicott Peabody, D. D., headmaster of Groton School, and Rev. Neilson Poe Carey, rector of the parish. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin with touches of real old lace. Her veil of tulle was fastened with a spray of orange blossoms, and her bouquet was of lilies of the valley. Her bridesmaids were Miss Eleanor Rantoul, Miss Olivia Ames, Miss Elaine Denégre, Miss Natalie Thayer, Miss Caroline Fessenden, Miss Elizabeth DeFord and Miss Cornelia Fiske. They wore white muslin with pink hats of tulle, and carried large clusters of pink roses.

Mr. Murray had for his best man, his brother, Cecil Dunmore Murray of the Harvard class of '16. The ushers were David Percy Morgan, Jr., Joseph Walker, 3d., and John King Hodges of New York; Robert H. I. Gammell of Providence, R. I.; Bernard Shirley Carter of Cambridge; Robert C. Cobb and Henry De Ford, Jr., of Brookline; T. Jefferson Coolidge, 3d., Lawrence Hemenway, Frederick J. Bradlee, Jr., Samuel K. Lothrop, Charles A. Coolidge, Jr., and Paul G. Courtney of Boston; Bartlett Harwood of Newton, and Franklin Trumbull and Walter H. Trumbull, Jr., of Salem.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at Mr. Rantoul's seashore home in West street, where the bride and bridegroom received against an artistic background of blue larkspur. The future home of Mr. and Mrs. Murray will be 129 East Sixty-Ninth street, New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Culbertson of Louisville, Ky., are among the late arrivals at Manchester Cove.

Mr. and Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, 2d (Naneen Mitchell), and family are settled at their country home in Beverly Farms for the summer, after a winter at their farm in Virginia. Mr. Shaw has been playing polo at Long Island the past week.

For a generation the fashion center of Boston has pointed in the direction of Driscoll's, 715 Boylston st. Their showing of the season's latest styles in gowns, millinery, sport clothes, suits, sweaters, etc., is always a marvel to the fashion and style seeker. North Shore people are only an hour's ride by motor from Driscoll's which is located on Boylston st., just across from the Hotel Lenox.

Dobyne of 139 Bay State Road, Boston, who are having a beautiful new summer place built at Beverly Farms, will spend the summer at one of the Oceanside hotel cottages, Magnolia, so as to keep in close touch with the work on their house and grounds. They have bought a portion of the Henry Lee estate, near West Beach, and already have started the work of construction.

Mrs. Chas. A. Munn, after a winter in Florida, and visits to Washington and Radnor, Pa., with the Chas. A. Munn, Jrs., will arrive at her Manchester residence next Monday or Tuesday. The Munn home is always the scene of much life, and is the Mecca for the young people, friends of the family. Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Munn, Jr. (Mary Astor Paul) and children will be on to spend part of the summer. Gurnee Munn and his bride of a year ago—Marie Louise Wanamaker—will also spend much of the summer at Manchester. The two daughters, Mrs. Reginald Boardman and Mrs. Chas. M. Amory live nearby—at West Manchester.

E. Palmer Gavit and family of Albany, N. Y., have opened the Stevens house on Smith's Point, Manchester, for the season.

ALL of the old friends and patrons of the little Wenham Tea House, "Sign of the Tabby Cat and the Tea Kettle," will be pleased to know that they will only have to go just around the corner from the old house to find the newest and most interesting tea room and woman's exchange in New England. The Wenham Village Improvement Society with its efficient corps of workers, led by its popular president, Miss Helen C. Burnham, has toiled unceasingly the past winter to bring to as near perfection as is possible this new house, which has every convenience and many unique and attractive features. As you enter the Tea Room you find a large room with a simple Colonial fireplace. At one end of the room is the Woman's Exchange with its quaint little glass cases and closets, which will hold many types of woman's work, of a high standard. At the other end is a glass enclosed room to be used for card or luncheon parties. Doors lead into a large screened porch where those who prefer to be out of doors can be served. The artistic frieze, which has been painted by a well known artist, is alone worth going to see. The Society is pleased to welcome its friends, old and new, to this social centre. The opening date is set for Monday, June 10.

"Eaglehead," the beautiful summer estate of Mrs. James McMillan of Washington, has been opened for the season. Mrs. McMillan herself will arrive within a few days.

George Nixon Black and Chas. B. Pitman, 57 Beacon st., Boston, are among the week's arrivals at Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander S. Porter, Jr., came to Manchester Memorial Day and left their two little children with the latter's mother, Mrs. Edward Wigglesworth, while they are on a visit to their new summer home at Brooklin, Me. Mrs. Wigglesworth will leave Manchester in July, as usual, for her mountain home at Jackson, N. H.

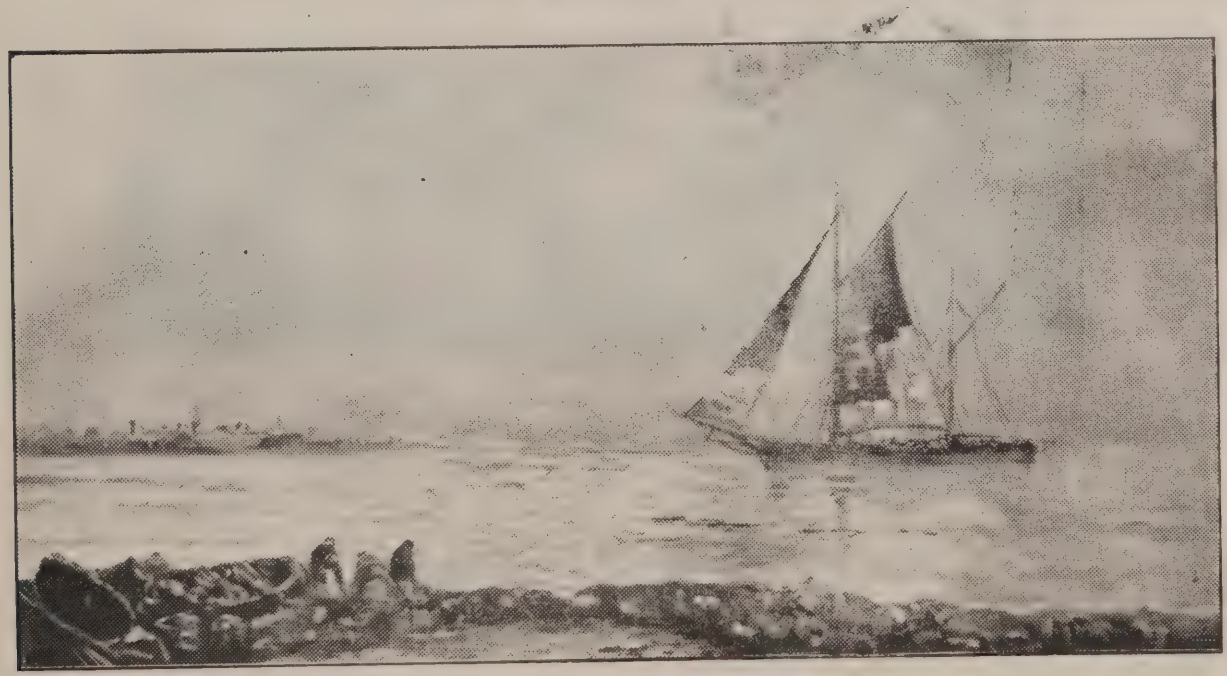

NOTWITHSTANDING the long procession of weddings planned for the near future, one already hears of important events of this description arranged for the early autumn. Among them none seems to be more interesting than that of Miss Marie Dallas Agassiz, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rodolphe M. Agassiz, and Cornelius Conway Felton of Philadelphia, which will be celebrated in September at the country home of the bride's parents at Hamilton. Miss Agassiz, as everyone knows, was one of the most admired and successful debutantes of two or three winters ago, making her bow at a brilliant dance given by her uncle, Maximilian Agassiz, at the Copley-Plaza, Boston. The young girl is extremely attractive, having much of the good looks and delightful personality of her mother, who as Marie Scott of Philadelphia was considered among the most beautiful girls of her year. Sister-debutantes of Miss Agassiz are Mrs. Junius S. Morgan, Jr. (Louise Converse), Mrs. Augustus S. Cobb (Christine Converse), Mrs. Benjamin Edwards Cole, 2d (Nancy Sheafe), Miss Phyllis Sears, whose marraige to Bayard Tuckerman will be an important event of the near future, and the Misses Sophia Beyland, Edith Sigourney, Corinna Searle, Ruth Cheney, Martha Thorndike, Sabra Batchelder, Charlotte Baylies, Helen Draper and scores more of that set. Mr. Felton will be graduated from Harvard in June, and ranks among the prominent athletes of the college. Mr. Felton's brother, Samuel M. Felton, 3d, married Anne Nelson several years ago, and now resides on Brimmer st., Boston.

A. C. Burrage, Jr., and family are established in the S. Parker Bremer home, on the tip end of Smith's Point, Manchester, for the summer. They arrived Wednesday from their farm on the South Shore.

Building Operations and Improvements Along the Marblehead Shore

DIRECTLY on the water front at Marblehead Neck there has been built for Paul Crocker, of Fitchburg, a "bachelor's bungalow," which, while of this general type of building, is constructed of brick and therefore is unusual for a bungalow. It is situated on Ocean avenue, well back from the highway and at the entrance to the driveway a garage has been built. The bungalow, which is of only one story, with a low, hip roof of slate, shows two front projections between which is a paved porch, with pergola top, supported by brick columns. On the water front there is a small brick porch, uncovered. The interior provides the owner with comfortable bachelor quarters for his own and guests' use, and with rooms for his butler. The garage, also of brick, is a larger building, as it has a second story with two or three rooms for a chauffeur; below these there is a large billiard room. The garage will accommodate two cars and has a most modern equipment and finish. Considerable work has been done on the surrounding grounds. Mr. Crocker's work was planned by Page & Frothingham, Boston architects, and was carried out by Gascoigne & Goddard, Inc., of Boston.

House is of English Type

FROM plans by Henry F. Keyes, a Boston architect, a house is nearing completion at Marblehead Neck for B. Devereux Barker, of Boston, whose place adjoins that of Paul Crocker, on Ocean avenue. It is of the English cottage type, with low roof showing merely an "eyebrow" window to break its length. The simple porch at the entrance shows a hood, also "eyebrow" in treatment. The windows just at the left of the doorway are ornamental and afford light for the stairway hall. The exterior is of plastered finish. From the square hall one reaches a living room of good size and from this there is a large sun room, brick tiled with a deep, rounded bay window end. Each room is provided with a fireplace. The rooms are separated only by a spandrel arch. The dining room, which has an unusual fireplace of carefully-selected field stone, opens onto a piazza overlooking the rocks and the water. There is the customary service department, planned for efficiency. The second floor has five bedrooms of good size and three baths. Fine views are obtained from all windows of the house. It has been built by the George A. Fuller Company.

Bungalow and Greenhouse Built

FOR Richard E. Traiser, whose summer cottage on Ocean avenue at Marblehead Neck is one of the most picturesque on that shore, a gardener's bungalow has been built, as well as a greenhouse. The cottage is of stucco exterior finish and shows a snub-nosed gabled roof. Quaint windows with shutters and an attractive doorway are of interest. The interior provides a well-arranged tenement and there is a brick-paved piazza. The greenhouse is about 75 by 25 feet in size, with all modern equipment introduced. The work for Mr. Traiser was planned by Peare & Quiner, Boston architects, and was carried out by Thomas Snow of Marblehead.

Will Join Marblehead Neck Colony

GROUND is being broken, with considerable blasting necessary, for a bungalow at Marblehead Neck for Samuel D. Stevens, from plans by Charles M. Baker and Allen W. Jackson of Boston. It is to be situated on Foster street, not far from the causeway connecting the Neck with Devereux. It will be of two stories with pitched roof, a part of which extends much like the old-time "lean-to" fashion to form a cover for the modest entrance. It will have a stucco outside finish. A small hall with stairway, living room and dining room, also a breakfast room, a bed room and bath, with the usual kitchen department, will occupy the first floor. The second will contain three large chambers, two baths and two rooms and a bath for maids. Two sleeping balconies are provided. Across the front a piazza will be placed to extend around the side to the dining room. A small garage is included in the plans. A new driveway from the highway involves removal of much rock. The work on the grounds and foundation is in the hands of John W. Duff, of Boston.

Remodelling Well-Known Residence

THE Frederick Fletcher house on Foster street, at the Neck, is in process of extensive remodelling, to about double its former size by means of two new wings, placed at an angle with the main part. The roofs are gambrel. The place was formerly the Charles W. Parker estate and Mr. Fletcher, after becoming its new owner, carried out considerable work last summer, when the stable was rebuilt and made into an attractive summer cottage, well placed on the harbor front. In addition, a large garage was built on the estate. The remodelling of the house this season will give a large living room with a cove ceiling and provided with a fireplace, a small square hall with square-turned stairway, and on the second floor a large bed room with dressing room and bath. The other wing increases the service department and provides rooms and bath on the second floor. There are enlarged piazzas on the water side. The exterior is treated with a plaster finish, to replace the former clapboards. The front entrance has been changed in part. A small garage just completed is of a single story and is shingled all over. It has room for two cars and a workshop. Mr. Fletcher's architect is E. L. Phillips, of Gloucester, and Jabish Doane of Marblehead is doing the work.

Is on Lighthouse Point

ON THE lighthouse point of Marblehead Neck a house is under construction for Rev. Charles A. Bidwell of Brookline, from plans by Nathan Douglas, a Cambridge architect. It occupies the site of a small cottage long on the ground which has been removed just back of its former position. The new house is of two stories with hip roof, and is placed high and is of Colonial style, with two tall fluted pillars at the front entrance to support a gabled pediment on the roof line. The outside finish is of plaster. Covered and uncovered piazzas surround three sides. A living room, with its big fireplace, extends wholly across the front, the main entrance opening directly into it, without a vestibule. This room is provided with nine or ten windows, so sunlight is freely admitted and views are widespread. There is a modest dining room and the servants' rooms beyond. The second floor is reached from a stairway almost hidden between the living and dining rooms. There are several good-sized chambers, bath and other rooms. R. W. Prescott of Danvers is the builder.—(Reprinted from Boston Transcript.)

MARBLEHEAD started its yachting season with last Saturday and the holiday, when both Corinthian and Eastern Yacht clubs opened their doors for the summer. The Corinthian is a better place than ever for yachtsmen and their friends, for the addition which gives ladies' quarters and an enlarged dining room makes a wonderful improvement.

Saturday the burgees and national colors were hoisted, salutes were fired and the yachting season was on. The eastern end of the former dining room, shut off from the remainder of the clubhouse by large sliding doors, has been set apart for a ladies' dining room. In the rear of this part, the old serving room has been remodelled into a reception room. There is also a new piazza. On special occasions now, the entire front of the house can be used as one large dining room and also for dancing. The billiard room is transformed into a lounge and there is a large landscape window, with an excellent view down the harbor. At the southern end is an addition for the billiard room. There are three panels at the southern end of this room by Worden Wood, all marine views. The centerpiece shows a race of the 31-raters. Companion paintings show three of the international sonder boats and three American cup sloops built in 1914. Over the new billiard room are six new chambers. There are two new entrances, one to the ladies' section and another through the chart room to the office.

The Corinthian racing season opens June 10 and closes Sept. 16. The annual mid-summer series will come from August 10 to 12. July and August the usual Monday evening band concerts will be given with dinner dances Friday evenings. The new ladies' section was opened last Saturday.

One of the finest boats that has touched the water this year will fly the Eastern Yacht club flag this summer. It is the new steel oil-burning yacht of A. H. Marks of Akron, O. It is being finished at City island, New York. Mr. Marks has a beautiful summer home at Marblehead.

Frederick C. Fletcher of Brookline has bought from the estate of Charles W. Parker on Foster street, Marblehead Neck, 24,140 feet of land and buildings. This is in the best section of the Neck resort property.

C. A. de Giers of New York, an aviator connected with the Burgess Co., and Mrs. de Giers, are stopping at Glover Inn for the season.

Thomas J. Campbell of Gardiner, former half-back on the Harvard eleven, is at the Glover Mansion. He is interested in the building of aeroplanes.

The stay of Vincent Astor on the Marblehead shore was of value to him, as he was much pleased with the new seaplane built for the New York naval brigade, of which he is an interested member. Mr. Astor expects to come down on the shore again before many weeks.

The Oceanside hotel opened for the season last Saturday.

Summer residents of the Neck can now avail themselves of evening ferry service to the mainland.

John H. Childs of New York is down on the Neck for this summer.

Among recent arrivals on the Neck: James M. Rothwell of Brookline; Franklin P. Gowing of Brookline; William T. Ulman of Boston; and Henry W. Patterson of Boston.

Marblehead keeps up its quest for improvements. Representative John N. Osborne of Marblehead and Town Clerk W. T. Litchman, Park Commissioner John

T. Adams and James E. Graves, were before the board of harbor and land commissioners last Friday to urge that the commission allow, out of its appropriation of $250,000, a sufficient sum to dredge Little Harbor in Marblehead. The Marblehead delegation simply stated that they had presented the case fully at the previous hearing to increase the appropriation from $150,000 to $250,000, and asked the commision to include their project when the quarter million is divided up. There was no opposition and the matter was taken under advisement.

Mrs. Edwin Arthur Shuman, "Mollhurst," Marblehead Neck, president of the Philomatheia Club, is to be tendered a luncheon by her fellew members at the Hotel Vendome, on Monday, June 5th. Mrs. Shuman is gracefully qualified by natural gifts for the position she occupies, and is able to render with splendid spontaneity those services essential to the conduct of her office as president of the club.

NAHANT shows this season little in the way of changes and nothing as important as the two houses—the Richards and the Clark places—built last season. The Arthur Perry estate at Willow road and Cliff street has undergone some improvement, from plans by Bellows & Aldrich of Boston, whereby Mr. Perry secures a greatly-enlarged living room, a new stairway of Colonial design and circular in shape, a deep bay to extend the den, new French doors, and minor changes to make the lower floor far more attractive and comfortable than heretofore, with new baths, sewing and dressing rooms on the second floor. The hall and the living room, the latter gained by knocking two rooms into one, have been panelled to the ceiling and show an ornamental plastered cornice. The work is about completed by J. T. Wilson & Son, Inc., of Nahant. The grounds have been much improved from plans by Arthur A. Shurtleff, the Boston landscape architect.

Elsewhere at Nahant, one finds a slight addition to the residence of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, at East Point, where a new room has been gained; a commodious sleeping porch added to the Samuel Eliot Guild place; terraced gardens with latticed arbors on the W. K. Richardson place; a dining-room extension, new baths and sleeping porch for the residence of Douglas Thomas on Winter street, and minor improvements on the former Wilson cottage, recently bought by Louis Bacon. All these changes have been brought about by J. T. Wilson & Son, Inc., who have to some extent remodelled for L. C. Goodhue the cottage on High street which was owned by Dr. Augustus Thorndike and purchased by Mr. Goodhue. The same Nahant builders have done considerable work to improve the Alfred Dabney cottage for its new owner, J. Harleston Parker, the Boston architect. New chambers, a deep bay window overlooking the water and other interior changes have been made which will give added comfort to the occupants. "Edgehill," on Nahant road, shows a new entrance porch of attractive design, with tiled floor, and a large bay window has been built above this. New walks add to the improvements of the place.—Boston Transcript.

Notably Fine Residence at Swampscott

UNDOUBTEDLY, among the more important work this season on the North Shore is the house in process of building for Herbert E. Gale of Haverhill, together with much incidental work, on his new estate in Swampscott. It was formerly a part of the extensive Lodge estate, situated off of the old-time Puritan road, about midway between Tedesco Point and Little's Point. The situation is ideal for a summer residence, with picturesque rocks in the foreground where the water dashes up and with a few scattered pines and other trees lending their value to the scene. A group of well-grown elms at one side of an extensive terrace, now in process of building, is a natural advantage which Mr. Gale secures in his purchase of the property.

The house, which is nearing completion, is from plans by a Boston architect, J. Williams Beal, and it will take its place among the more notable of North Shore residences. It is two stories and a half in height, with low, overhanging roof of red tiles. The exterior construction is wholly of rough stone which in the past formed a massive wall, and which, demolished, furnished enough material for constructing the house. The building is long in its main portion, and it has a long L, placed at an angle. This part, the service wing, is of stone construction on the first story, like the main part, and above it is finished in plaster, half-timbered. There are "eyebrow" windows to break the long lines of the tiled roof and little iron balconies, semi-circular in form, mark the windows of the second story and add a quaint look to the house. The several chimneys are big in size and of stone construction. On the terrace side a sun room projects from the main part and this shows massive corner pillars of stone.

The main entrance is modest in its plan, with a heavy oak and iron marquee. Above a quaint bay window and treatment of other windows help to emphasize the English type of house which this one suggests. Two sections on the front project a little from the main part. The impression, as one approaches the house to the forecourt, by way of a beautiful avenue of well-grown, tall elms, is that of a house of solid, dignified character, built for endurance.

A small vestibule opens upon a spacious hall of great length which at one end turns, forming a big alcove and at the other end broadens and becomes octagon in shape, from which there is an exit to the terrace, with entrances to the dining room and the living room. The stairs, well-planned, are in an alcove of the hall.

The living room is of big size, with high stud, beamed ceiling and curbed cornice. A large fireplace at one end is duplicated at the opposite end of the long room. From this room one reaches a big sun room, with a tiled floor like that which finishes the long wide hall. There is also a spacious library, with fireplace. This room commands a view of the avenue leading to the house and the forecourt. The dining room is long, with octagonal ends. It has a generous fireplace. Wide doors open upon the terrace and the windows afford ample sunlight and views of the water. The butler's serving room and pantry, the kitchen, laundry and general service part, in the wing of the house, are most complete and embody all the latest sanitary ideas and improvements for facilitating service. The kitchen is largely finished in enamelled white tiles and has a big hotel range, with a hood. On the second floor of this wing are numerous small bed rooms and baths for the use of servants, a linen room, clothes presses, etc.

The second story of the main part of the house has a broad hall, from which open various master's bedrooms with connecting baths and dressing rooms, and a sleeping porch is gained over the sun parlor of the first floor. All of these chambers are so placed that they will have the full benefit of the sunshine and will afford splendid views of the water. The third floor shows one immense finished room and several storage rooms. All of the interior finish throughout the house is notably fine, and while the rooms are spacious, the thought of comfort has not been overlooked in the plans of the architect.

Extensive work is in progress on the surrounding grounds and retaining walls, and terraces, steps leading to them, and much else will make the place eventually one of the finest estates for summer residence of those skirting the North Shore.

A stable long on the grounds, placed near the main highway, Puritan road, is being remodelled and about doubled in size for a stable and separate garage for Mr. Gale. It is finished with the latest improvements introduced in the contruction of buildings for such purposes. There will be also a modest tenement for use of the chauffeur.

"Rock Lodge" Rebuilt

REMODELLING of the estate known as "Rock Lodge," on Puritan road, Swampscott, the summer home of J. R. Morse and family of Boston, gives an entirely new appearance to the cottage. It formerly was the home of the late Walter Tracy Dana. The roof lines now are of the gambrel type, and the exterior finish of plaster, with roof of green slate, greatly improves the house. A sun parlor has been extended from the piazzas, and semi-circular windows give a quaint look to the place. The interior changes make the house practically a new one, and the hall and stairway, in Colonial treatment, the living room, dining room and den are well planned. The servants' part also is made modern. The second floor is entirely rearranged, to give six large bed rooms, three baths and dressing rooms. Berry & Davidson of Boston planned the remodelling, which has been carried out by William Galloupe. It is about finished.—Boston Transcript.

New Ocean House, Swampscott

NOTABLE among the hotel improvements along the North Shore this year is the big annex to the New Ocean House at Swampscott. The new steel structure is well along toward completion and will be ready for occupancy along toward the first of July. In addition to the erection of this fine new annex, which will be open the year around, many improvements have been made to the surrounding buildings and grounds. All of the old buildings in the rear of the hotel have been either demolished or moved to new locations on the side nearest Puritan road. The old structures have been remodelled and new ones built. When the landscape work has been completed in the next few days the rear entrance will be equally attractive as the front. The new annex is a model of modern hotel construction. It is seven stories high and has 66 rooms and 66 private bathrooms. All except 12 rooms have an ocean view and each room is supplied with a telephone and steam heat. The furniture of the rooms will be of early English style.

The main floor lobby will be furnished in old English, the parlor in colonial and the reception room in Adam, black and white. Rugs for the public rooms, private rooms and halls are designed especially for the new hotel and are manufactured by special order.

The building is connected with the main house by the tea rooms on the east front.

The many improvements to the property lying on the opposite side of Puritan road will greatly enhance the view from the hotel. The sea wall has been extended some distance along the beach and the lot squared off so that there is ample room for the wide concrete walks and esplanade similar to that overlooking the Charles river in Boston.

The entire rear grounds have been laid out by a landscape architect and a broad lawn with handsome trees, shrubs and flowering plants will soon cover the former bare spots. The former service buildings have been removed to the northwest section of the New Ocean House estate and include a women's dormitory, bachelors' quarters, men's dormitory, laundry and engine house. A fireproof garage adjacent to the hotel will be a great benefit this season. It will have a capacity of 100 cars and is to be open for service the entire year.

The new annex, "Whitehall," will be used as a winter resort from Sept. 15 until June 15 of each year. The annex will be run independently throughout the year and there will be a fixed charge by the day which will include apartment, meals and service of every kind, valet, shoes, etc. Tipping is not permitted, so that a uniform excellent service is maintained. The New Ocean House will open on June 15 with the gathering of the General Federation of Women's clubs of the United States, followed by the annual convention of the New England Banker's association and the convention of the Mass. State Pharmaceutical association. The house will be open for regular guests on June 24 and many reservations already have been made.

THE day has long since gone by when the style shops of the smaller cities must follow weeks behind the latest fashions. Today the millinery creations in the smaller cities are the last word in the head-dresser's art. Daily style service keeps the modiste informed of the hourly changes of the great style centers in New York and abroad. One of the most charmingly appointed and up-to-date style shops on the North Shore is that of Madame George in the Strand Theatre Building, Lynn.

Among the midsummer styles shown at Madame George's shop are a goodly number of small white shapes. These are trimmed with shaded flowers in the lighter tints combined with colored wheat. Colored wheat is also used exclusively; one white sailor had the edge covered with the same in four different colors. A designer, who is undoubtedly in close touch with Nature has covered the crown of a white sailor with pastelle wheat, banded around the center with white faille ribbon. SWAMPSCOTT summer life is beginning to trot along at its own increasing little pace until June 17th. Then the gradual work of assembling a five months' community of seashore lovers will have been completed and social activities will go on as they have for many seasons past, although apparently a little livelier than in the two just passed. For the shore is "looking up" this year. Prosperity seems to have at least knocked at the doors of most of the Shore's lovers.

Mr. and Mrs. Percival B. Palmer and their daughter, Mrs. F. H. Warren, will leave their Chicago home tomorrow en route for their summer home in Swampscott.

At the Tedesco Country club the summer social pot is beginning to boil. Memorial Day quite a delegation of the summer folk was down at the clubhouse. There was dancing in the afternoon, with music by Toye's orchestra, and Sharpe's orchestra played for the dancers in the evening. There were 100 to luncheon and double that number stayed to dinner.

Chester Humphries, chairman of the tennis committee at Tedesco, is arranging for the regular matches and announces features in the form of special prizes.

G. W. Church of Boston has moved down to the Swampscott shore for the summer.

A few days ago Miss Katherine Squires entertained a party of 14 at bridge and tea at the Tedesco club. The Squires are, as usual, stopping at the Bellevue, closing their town house several days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Peabody and family, who are frequently among the merry parties at the Tedesco, have come down from their Comomnwealth avenue home to the shore. They are at Marblehead Neck.

Frank Gair Macomber of Boston is a recently elected member of the Tedesco club. He is prominent in the Hub a marine underwriter.

Mrs. C. Sandmeyer and two daughters of Lincoln, Ill., entertained a little party at the Tedesco club this week. Last year they were at the New Ocean House for the season and will probably make that their summer abode again this year.

Mrs. W. W. Appleton of Haverhill entertained a party of eight at Tedesco a few days ago. At the club last evening Dr. and Mrs. Lahey of Boston gave a dance and supper to many of their friends.

This evening the board of governors of Tedesco are holding their monthly meeting and dinner at the club.

F. M. Sawtelle, secretary of Tedesco, and H. B. Ingalls of the grounds committee, and several others are leaving for Plattsburg tomorrow.

The Mass. Real Estate Exchange will hold a reunion and field day at Tedesco on Thursday, June 8. Prescott Bigelow, Jr., is chairman of the day's events.

George A. Dill plans to move to the shore within a few days.

M. T. Dowling is at Little's Point, Swampscott, for the season.

Changes made in the road from the Tedesco club in the rear will admit of better parking space for autos when the present space is crowded on band concert and other special nights.

Two orchestras have been engaged for the dancing at the Tedesco on June 17.

Next Tuesday, June 6, the New England Hardware association holds an outing at the Tedesco club. The hardware men always have a jolly time, especially those who play golf. Last year several beautiful trophies were won by those in the golf sweepstakes.

The golf tourney at the links of the Tedesco club on Memorial Day was a golf ball sweepstakes affair. A. N. Blake had the low gross with a well-played 85 and he and E. Tillotson were in a tie for the low net with 75, the former being allowed a 10 handicap and the latter 2; P. E. Fitzpatrick with 91-15-76 and Col. Ladd with 97-20-77 were close on the heels of the winners.

S. M. Spofford of Boston is at the Kelsey house this summer. Mr. and Mrs. Kelsey are at the Bellevue.

Morris Rosenthal of Boston has arrived at his summer home at the Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Boyd come down to the Clifton bend of the Swampscott colony today.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Williams are down at Clifton from the Somerset, Boston, where they have been for the winter. Mr. Williams has not been in the best of health the last few months, but was able to be moved down on the shore.

The Acme of the Modern Market

VISITORS to the North Shore this season who heed the counsel of all health authorities to "visit the source of your food supply" and find their way to the many big provision houses supplying the North Shore will find in the new J. B. Blood market in Silsbee st., Lynn, the acme of the modern sanitary market. The new store is located in the heart of Lynn's business section just a step from the B. & M. station. The outward appearance of the new structure, which was opened to the public in March, is simple in design, the outer walls being of brick and trimmed with gray stone. The market proper has two floors besides the basement. An adjoining ell on Ellis st. has three floors and is the same height as the rest of the building. An excellent ventilation system provides a steady current of fresh air.

The floor of the main part of the store is red tile, presenting a marked contrast to the marble-topped counters of dark hued Circassian walnut and the huge white supporting columns. Inverted lighting is used throughout. Over one thousand feet of counters are in sight of the main entrance. Hydraulic elevators connect each counter with the basement and operating plant, and displays on the counters are covered with glass. A balcony over the main entrance provides spacious rest quarters for shoppers and is tastefully furnished. Direct telephone connections with the Summer st. store allow shoppers to order from the balcony for delivery from Summer st.

Comparisons are the method by which a degree of perfection may be determined, but they are not always safe to make, especially in the case of mercantile establishments. However, it is safe to say that nowhere in New England can there be found a more completely equipped, up-to-date food store than the new Silsbee st. market. Every department is the last word in efficiency and there is nothing too modern nor too novel to have a place in this splendid establishment. Perhaps the most striking thing about the new market is the operating method. Each department, by its direct connection by elevator with the basement and the storage rooms above, is kept supplied in exact proportion to the demand. This accounts for the uniform display and the economy of service.

On the Ellis street side of the main floor the first department as one passes to the right from the main entrance is the fish department. Running water and an automatic pipe system for cooling assure absolute freshness and cleanliness of the product. All varieties of sea food are temptingly displayed in white tile tanks. The cutting benches are of ocean-green tile which produces a pleasant suggestion in connection with the sea products. In glass cases on the left center of the Ellis st. entrance and paralleling that street are appetizing displays of meats of all kinds. As needed, all meats are sent by the lifts fresh from the refrigerating plant on the floor above. Departments for tea, coffee and cocoa are found on parallel counters and to the rear is a department for butter, cheese, eggs, fresh cream and milk.

To the left of the main entrance is the enclosed cashier's office and the telephone switchboard. From this switchboard telephone connections may be made to the various departments of the store. To the left of the entrance is the demonstration department. On this side running toward the rear is one of the most splendid of fruit and vegetable departments of which a provision store can boast. Here all varieties of fruits and vegetables may be found in season fresh from the garden or orchard. In fact there is no seasonal limit to the products of this department for in winter hothouse products will be provided. The store boasts a complete bakery department rivalling the best bakery anywhere, in point of variety and excellence of products. The rear of the store is devoted to the grocery and canned goods departments.

In a balcony to the rear of the store and opposite the rest quarters at the front is the kitchen furnishing department. Here every utensil used in the culinary art may be found, the display making a store in itself and presenting an astonishing array of crockery, graniteware and other utensils.

On the second floor above the market is the replenishing department and although not open to the public its splendid order and spick-and-span neatness are not even outranked by the excellent arrangement and cleanliness of the selling floor below. On this floor are the storage and stock rooms, one of the larger for the storage of beef having a capacity of more than three carloads. There are four great refrigerating rooms and meat cutting rooms. There is direct connection with the counters below eliminating any necessity for portage. On this floor the offices of the firm are located.

In the basement are located the cold storage rooms of the dairy department directly connected, as in the case of the other departments, with the counters on the floor above. On this floor is also located the two big operating plants. One operates the hydraulic lifts and the big freight elevators which operate from the receiving platform in the Ellis st. ell to the storage floors; the other plant operates the automatic pipe cooling system.

In the ell is located a small emergency hospital, rest rooms for women employes and smoking rooms for the men. There are also locker rooms where employes may keep their personal effects, a lunch room and a reading room. On the ground floor of the ell is the receiving platform of cement. While it would pay everyone to visit this splendid new market, there are doubtless those near to Lynn who will avail themselves of the unexcelled delivery facilities of the Blood market, trusting to the excellent reputation of this old established Lynn firm which has just rounded out its 35th year. To those farther away on the North Shore it is worth a visit, from the viewpoint of education if no other. The market is easily accessible by the many splendid North Shore motor roads leading into Lynn as well as convenient to the railroad station for those who make the visit by rail.

Strand, at Lynn, One of Most Beautiful Playhouses in New England

SINCE last summer an important addition to the theatres of the North Shore has been made by the erection of the Strand theatre in

MR. MOE MARK
PRESIDENT STRAND THEATRE CO., LYNN

Lynn, the management and policy of which is the same as the world-famous Strand theatre on Broadway, New York. Mr. Moe Mark, vice president of the New York Strand, is president of the Strand theatre company of Lynn, and the new playhouse is conducted under his personal supervision. Associated with him is Allen B. Newhall, who has had many years of successful experience in local theatrical interests. He is house manager of the Lynn Strand.

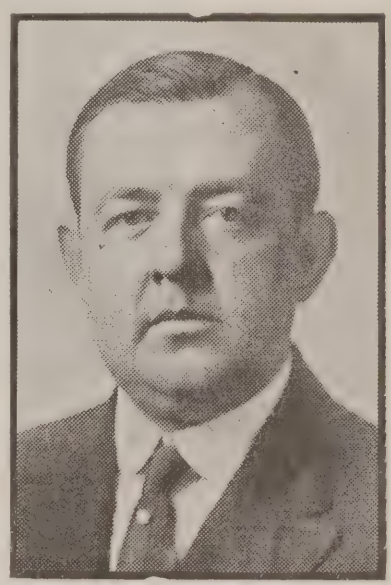

This new theatre is one of the most beautiful playhouses in New England. It cost $250,000 exclusive of the cost of its site, which by way of historical interest, fronts on three main thoroughfares, Union, Mulberry and Blake streets, where years ago was located Lynn's first public place of amusement, Thompson's Opera House, later remodelled into the old Sagamore hotel after its partial destruction by fire. An admirable feature of such a location is that the exits on all three sides open directly onto the street, affording an element of safety in case of emergency that few theatres of the country possess. A modern ventilation system makes possible a constant change of air keeping the house cool and sweet at all periods of the hot weather months. Many other facilities are also provided for the personal comfort and convenience of patrons. Some of the attractive features of the interiors are the magnificent stage settings, patterned after the New York Strand, wondrous lighting effects, stage fountain electrically illuminated, gold fibre screen assuring exquisite pictures of cameo distinctness, balcony loges for exclusive theatre parties, perfect sight line from all boxes, an electrically operated pipe organ costing $25,000, an orchestra of twelve musicians and a corps of uniformed attendants disciplined to give every attention to patrons.

The principal pictures shown are those of the famous Paramount program. These are augmented by the best of the Triangle Fine Arts, Metro, Chaplin Mutual, and Keystone comedies. Musical numbers are interspersed by musicians direct from the New York Strand. Changes of program take place Mondays, Thursdays and Sundays. Performances are continuous, week days, from 1 to 10.30 p. m., and on Sundays from 5 to 10 p. m. Side streets, adjacent to the theatre, afford ample and safe parking space for patrons attending the theatre by automobiles.

The Strand's program for the coming week is a diverting one, commencing with an overture by a perfectly blended orchestra and organ. The principal attraction of the first three days will be Peggy Hyland in "Saints and Sinners." Miss Hyland is one of the most popular of British actresses, having won conspicuous personal successes both on the stage and screen in her native country where she appeared with Cyril Maude. This play is an adaptation of Henry Arthur Jones' story and is produced by the Famous Players on the Paramount program. Madame Petrova will also be presented in "The Soul Market," a five-act masterpiece of screen acting. On Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be seen Blanche Sweet in a Paramount production of "The $1000 Husband" and Henry B. Warner in "The Beggar of Cawnpore." Other exclusive Strand features will also be shown.

This Sunday evening Mary Pickford will appear as "The Girl of Yesterday" and on the following Sunday evening Marguerite Snow will be seen in "Rosemary."

Coming attractions include Fannie Ward in "The Gutter Magdaline," Douglas Fairbanks in "The Good Bad Man," Charlie Chaplin as "The Fireman," Frank Losee, Robert Warwick, Francis X. Bushman in "The Silent Voice," Marguerite Clark in "Silks and Satins," Bessie

June

How many glorious Junes were thine,
My dear,
With earth and heavens in tune?
Seven years of June were mine
In four and eighty year;
Soon, never-ending June
In the celestial sphere.

Ah, when we come to die
We shall reach the world abune
Where every day is Sunday
And all the year is June,
In the sweet bye and bye.
Lord, bring us soon!

MANCHESTER NINE WINS

Start Season by Administering a Drubbing to Fast Beverly Team. Grover in Good Trim.

Five innings of fast playing demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Manchester fans Tuesday morning at the Brook st. diamond, Manchester, that they have a team this year to be proud of. Starting the season against the United Shoe Machinery team of Beverly, which had already been a month on the diamond, Manchester came out a winner, 6 to 5. Incidently they administered the first defeat of the season to the Beverly players, who have been meeting some of the fastest semi-professional teams in New England.

The game looked gloomy at the outset when the Shoe team got away with three runs in their half of the first inning. Mancester came back in the second half of the inning and piled up four runs to offset their opponents' lead. Clean hitting and base running were responsible for the tallies while the Shoe nine's runs were made with the help of errors.

In the second inning Manchester's fielding tightened perceptibly and although one run was driven across the plate by the Beverly hitters the support given Grover was noticeably improved. Also Grover succeeded in locating the position of the plate and the hits were not as plentiful. In the fourth inning Manchester broke the tie by driving in two more runs and winning the game. A homer by Holcomb of Beverly was such because the ball traveled over the brook in centerfield and Holcomb completed the circuit while Manchester fielders were fording the stream. As the bases were empty when the drive was made it had no effect on the outcome. Grover pitched a strong game and showed excellent control for the first game of the season after he once found the plate. Manchester's new shortstop, Sandy Herron, and Devlin, the first baseman, appear to be valuable finds and with the filling of a few of the gaps in the line Manchester should have an almost unbeatable combination in its class.

The Beverly nine nearly had two of its men put out of commission by accidents at different stages of the game. A foul tip smashed through the mask of catcher Hayford in the first inning and split his forehead. After a few minutes rest during which his head was bandaged he returned the game. In the fourth inning Hayford threw a ball to Holcomb at third while the latter was star-gazing. The ball struck him in the stomach and there was another intermission while the first aid corps rendered assistance. The game was called at the 5th inning to let the Beverly team catch a train.

EDITORIAL

The Honorable Albert J. Beveridge of Beverly Farms made a capital address at the memorial exercises held at the Baptist church on Tuesday evening. Among other striking truths which the Senator emphasized, were these two: the large opportunity which is presented to America to fuse the nations of the Caucasian race into a new race, and the broad scope of preparedness. These two ideas are worthy of more than a casual thought. Herein may be found the very heart of our modern problem. America has many nations, and with blood ties that bind us to all of the nations of Europe. This gives to us as a nation, an unparalleled opportunity for service and international power. Strictly maintaining a righteous and powerful neutrality it will be possible for this nation to meet the world crises with the true Christian spirit. The spirit giveth power! There is life in a spiritual principle that inspires and lifts. America has an opportunity to serve the world in this hour by virtue of poise, pause, deep thought and absolute justice. Cleaving ever to the side of righteousness, law and integrity. The blood ties which bind this nation to the old world will make the opportunity not only great, but would appear to be almost imperative. America can meet this opportunity with assurance. The preparedness movement will be good for all of our young men. Discipline is what is needed in American life. Our democracy has made us loose and our spirit of good will has made us careless and inefficient. The want of authority and its respect is one of the fatal failings of republicanism. Senator Beveridge emphasized a phase of preparedness that has been too little considered,—the effects of a national military preparedness upon the young men of our nation. The recruits will be taken and tested and their merits and powers determined according to military standards, and the skilled given an opportunity to labor and the unskilled taught a trade or a profession. Countless thousands of young men will inevitably be saved by being taught self-reliance, respect of authority, military precision and efficiency and the care of the human life. These things must be demanded for the good of the country, but the reflex action will train and discipline the individual and he will be the gainer. Switzerland has an admirable system of compulsory military discipline and education, but no one ever accused Switzerland of militaristic ambitions. America can make a strong plea and stand for a newer and better type of militarism.—Preparedness that prepares, against war for the interests of peace.

At the Conclusion of the ceremonies at one of the North Shore cemeteries Tuesday, a beautiful touch of sentiment was noticed. Taps was sounded by a cornetist from the Soldiers' Monument lot and when it was concluded it was echoed by a second cornetist hidden in a little grove beyond a knoll and out of sight. It was beautifully rendered.

The Cemeteries All Along the North Shore never looked more attractive than they did on Memorial Day. The care of the resting place of the dead fell into loving hands and the duties of the day were well done.

Ex-President Roosevelt has had many narrow escapes from death in his short life, from accidents, disasters, disease and attempted personal injuries. Now again an insane mind was prompted to throw an open knife which fortunately fell short of the mark and only struck the motor in which he was riding. One of the difficulties that beset police authorities in America is the maintenance of order and the prevention of open crime. The broad liberties which are allowed in America make many an atrocious deed possible and its suppression almost impossible. It is fortunate that Roosevelt escaped this attack. Ex-Secretary Hay said of him, that he would never live to be an old man because of his energy and daring. There is no mistaking the fact that Roosevelt has in America a personal leadership that cannot be gainsaid, but it is also evident that he has his enemies. The experience and broad statesmanship which he has shown in his work is needed in the great work which lies ahead of this nation. Any accident to Roosevelt, whether by the purpose of an evil man or from other causes, would be a national calamity. Men may differ from him in their views, but must readily recognize that he is a force that the nation cannot spare.

Dartmouth Has Taken the Lead in military preparedness in one particular in that a term of service at Plattsburg will be counted toward the degree. The concession of Dartmouth University is, of course, patriotic and commendable, but is there not something to be said on the other side? Other colleges have promoted and supported the military training activities, but have declined to count the work toward a degree which primarily represents literary work. What matters it if it be an extra!

Professor Tausig of Harvard University in a careful analysis has made a statement that becomes a challenge. Is he right? The public has been lead to believe that the minimum wage for women was an altogether desirable factor in the amelioration of the conditions of the working woman. He believes that a mistake has been made, that the minimum wage works a hardship upon the very class the law has been passed to help. He believes that the "laws will ultimately fail to attain their ends."

It Ought to be Noted as a commendation of the Metropolitan Police Department that Memorial Day passed at Revere Beach without a single arrest or a single accident. When one considers the number of people that pass through that popular shore resort or who seek it for pleasure on a holiday the record is phenomenal and should not be allowed to pass un-noticed.

The Shrubs of Spring are now in flower. Every walk and byway is a riot of color and beauty. There is a profusion of flowers and if the sun would only smile awhile there would be many a perfect day.

If the Universalists finally decide to have a tabernacle of their own when Rev. William Sunday arrives, Boston will have plenty of religion for a while.

President Wilson has Spoken out quite sharply about the hyphen-Americanism and may he well speak. The present crisis has aroused America to the fact that there is still a great work to be done in Americanizing those who come to our shores. It is well that these young men come to our shores to give the nation the strength of their bodies in the enterprises of America. Most of our great engineering ideas in America in recent years have been executed because of the availability of foreign labor. These men bring their ideas to America and our cities have in them, little Italies, little sections of French, negro settlements, Jewish districts, Irish quarters and German sections. Because of the life of these peoples and their ideals and the simple principle of social segregation these conditions are perfectly natural. In a larger way in the west great districts may be found where the very township itself is practically given up to a foreign race and a foreign tongue actually taught in public schools because popular opinion was so strong. These conditions happily are being remedied. The problems that have become apparent by the world war have existed in America, but the American nation has not been alert to the implications of the foreign problem. The war has merely revealed the ideals of Europe to the American people. It has taught them that these ideals must be combatted upon American soil with vigor, despatch and determination. Now America is into the work of preparedness not only against the armies of Europe but preparedness against the philosophies of the old world. The school, the church and social service work of communities and churches and immigration societies have attacked this work with a will, but the work has only begun. In the schools the younger generations are being Americanized, but it is the adult population of these foreign peoples that menaces the present generation. How are they to be reached? The primary purpose must of course be to Americanize their ideas. The young may be taught in the schools, but how are these older people to learn the language? On the North Shore one institution is conducting an evening class of instruction in English and citizenship for adult Italians. Here is the crux of the situation. If the adult population can be taught to read, to learn about America, to study its governmental methods and its opportunities we are safe. Not until the adult foreign populations is loyally inspired with the true spirit of Americanism can the nation be secure. This is an internal problem of preparedness. It is a part of the larger work and the work must be pursued with despatch and efficiency. Preparedness is a larger problem than that of military preparation. The preparation of the hearts of the people is much more desirable and efficacious. Let the material side of preparedness be pursued with determination and zeal, but let not the soul, the inspiration, the very spirit of life be forgotten. Patriotism is a matter of intelligence and heart as well as a matter of enthusiasm and military training.

One of the Striking Features of the Memorial Day addresses this year was the emphasis placed upon the duties of America to the newer conditions of life. The veterans of '61 did their duty, but there are problems ahead that are serious. Respect has grown for the men of the old days because of their loyalty to duty in the hours of difficulty.

A Beverly Clergyman has sought the golf links for inspiration for a sermon. It does take a little religion, after all, to play the game. Golf and Life!

One of the Compensations of a spring like this has been the absence of brush fires. This had made the fire laddies happy.

The Preparedness Parade in Boston was the largest demonstration ever given in New England. The war has awakened everyone to the perils of a possible war. May any real cause for alarm never come! All of the North Shore towns were represented in the line. Major Henry L. Higginson was one of the ruling spirits in the organization that arranged the demonstration.

The Campaign to Obtain a daylight day by putting the clock back an hour or two has been waged quite unsuccessfully in other years, but the war has made it inevitable and economically a necessity in the old world. There is something to be said in its favor, but most folk will plod along on the old day plan and live a life of happiness.

The Increasing Number of automobile accidents indicate that there is an opportunity for care and caution. It pays to seek safety first. Experienced drivers need to observe these simple policies as well as amateurs. There is danger enough to automobiling without unduly increasing the possibilities of accidents by carelessness.

The Rumors of Peace that are constantly coming from Europe are gratifying. While there is no evidence of a final settlement of the trouble by a decisive battle it is in the air that there are possibilities that peace may be arranged for. May it be so hoped, for the bloodshed, calumny and disasters have continued long enough.

FLAG DAY, JUNE 14.

President Wilson on Tuesday issued a proclamation calling upon the people of the United States to celebrate Flag Day, June 14, with patriotic exercises, giving expression to "our thoughtful love of America." The president declared that the people should rededicate themselves "for an America which no man can corrupt, no influence draw away from its ideals, no force divide against itself."

Faces, Just Faces

(Seen from the Ranks)

ON a broad sunlit avenue we waited expectantly. Past the end of our avenue and up the wide human-walled street swung line on line of marchers, their ranks a flowing river of red, white and blue. Boston and New England was voicing a plea for all America to arm for defense. A company of uniformed school boys swept by us with vigorous stride, headed by a military band. Our gaze wandered to their faces, earnest and determined. A line of high-hatted, erect gentlemen with stolid countenance passed us; double ranks of serious-faced clergymen drifted by, then came our orders to "fall in." Our drummers began their rhythmic tapping and we got under way. In a moment our tributary rivulet of men had been swept into the current and we were a part of the greatest patriotic demonstration in the history of Boston.

At first our only thought was of our part in the mighty spectacle, but after a self-conscious moment our eyes were lifted to the throngs massed on either side of the line of march. The sense of our magnitude had overpowered us, but as we moved between the masses of humanity on either side our importance dwindled and we became conscious of other things. To our right, our left and overhead fluttered red, white and blue. Packed on the sidewalks so densely that their faces blended into a wall of white, rising higher on fence, piazza and from every window and even roof, they stared at us. And as we passed along these faces and eyes told us something which their lips did not. Their lips were silent, but in the massed faces we read a story.

Far ahead of us was the gilded dome of the State House. We were now passing through that part of Boston known the land over as the center of culture, of learning; as the first home of what there is of an American aristocracy. It was here that the early settlers, who had prospered, built their mansions in the early days and it was here that their descendants lived and died and still live, and the faces told us this.

A few minutes marching and we were abreast the color-wrapped platform where an erect, black-coated figure stood in bold relief against a background of brilliant uniforms and gay bunting. Our flags dipped; we were saluting our Governor. Here was a face that stood out all alone from that vast multitude. It was a smooth smiling face and somehow it seemed to gleam with pride as we saluted. Then miles and miles of faces; white, thin sarcastic faces; pink and white pacifist faces which smiled pityingly down upon us. Faces which peered with mild interest or enthusiastic admiration from the shop windows as we passed into the trading center of the city. Faces whitened by the confinement of indoor service looked calmly at us and beyond us as we swung along. We were in a narrower street now and lofty buildings on either side of us again brought home the striking similarity of our throng to a mighty river flowing through the depths of some immense cañon. And here again was that same wall of faces; only different faces. These looked on us from above and told us where we were. These were the faces of men of business, of money and affairs. They stood out above the sidewalk throng like rocky crags above the bowlders at the base of the cañon.

We soon flowed with the current into another and different course. Our wall of faces thinned out for the moment and the windows were not so crowded. The buildings were not so elegant and the faces had a different look. There was real expression in the faces that watched us. Below them were broad shoulders and grimy clothing,—but the faces, strong and reliant. And they too smiled, but the smiles were all of approval. They told us that these, too, were men of affairs—affairs of horses, whips and sundry heavy loads.

A turn in our course and the crowds grew dense again; and what crowds! Not silent stony-faced crowds, but bright-eyed, smiling, cheering crowds that stood with bared heads when our flag went by and cheered us. Their swarthy cheeks and coal black hair and eyes told us that even if they might some day join us in the defense of Old Glory their sires, and perhaps they themselves, were not born beneath its protecting folds. We were in the foreign quarter. We left them and we felt uplifted.

More faces and faces. Then we came to the edge of the big Common. Sunburned and tanned faces, sporting pleased grins, told us that our friends from the country were there to see us. A repetition of faces and expressions we had seen near the golden dome told us we were nearing the end. Smiling faces and fluttering handkerchiefs from long lines of automobiles, daintily gowned women and trimly clad men informed us we were at our dispersing point. Faces, just faces, but they told us much.

COPLEY THEATRE, BOSTON.

Anna Pavlowa, the incomparable Russian danseuse and pantomimist with her entire Russian Ballet and 500 other characters, can now be seen in the marvellous photo play, "The Dumb Girl of Portici" at the Copley Theatre, Dartmouth street, Boston. The film, the first and only one ever made by this world famous danseuse is acknowledged to be the most lavish production ever filmed in the entire history of moving pictures. The film cost more than a quarter of a million dollars and more than 3000 people were concerned in its production. There are some 900 different scenes in many of which hundreds of people are massed in tremendously dramatic situations while the dancing of Pavlowa, and her Ballet Russe, running through the story, is most beautiful and entrancing.

PRESS CLUB.

Horace H. Atherton, S. S., (Salem and Saugus) has issued the order for the mobilization of the Essex County Press at the Merrimack Valley Country club, Methuen, on Friday, June 16. Hon. Horace says the principal business of the day will be the election of a regular president in lieu of the "present punitive expedition in that regard." The invitation is printed in red ink on a bag. The mobilization takes place at one o'clock and the trenches, "with eats," will be ready for occupancy by 6 o'clock.

FOR THE COLONEL'S LADY

More About Sport Clothes

EACH year one hears more and more about "sport" clothes; each year their very practical and attractive qualities make them seem more desirable to the woman of keen, outdoor living—and her name is legion. Hotel verandas are not as filled with knitting, rocking, gossiping women as they used to be. Instead, the women are tramping the golf links with fathers, brothers, husbands, sweethearts, friends, swimming, playing tennis, walking and driving their automobiles themselves, praise be! These are not only the girls and the youngest married women, but their aunts and mothers, too, praise be for that, too! They are discovering America.

For comfort's sake, shoes are the leading consideration, especially in sport clothes. Heaven forbid that any woman should be condemned to cover the golf course with shoes that are too small, or two heavy or too thin, or that she should think that to be comfortable her feet must be dowdy. Not so; the sport shoes this year have all the qualities of sensibility and good looks that they need. A boot is, of course, better for really strenuous exercise, but for ordinary out-of-door wear low shoes will have a greater measure of coolness. The best investment for the woman who golfs or plays tennis is white buckskin with elk soles and, naturally, flat heels. The buckskin boot is better for athletic use than any other because it is pliable and, at the same time, strong. For other summer wear there are many attractive, sensible Oxfords of buckskin or canvas, these with flat heels, too. Some of the canvas shoes are surprisingly good looking at very small cost. A well cut canvas low shoe with rubber sole and low heel is more than twice as good looking as the "sneaker" which so many young girls use for active sports and games, although the latter costs only about half as much. White shoes with tan, gray, blue, green, introduced are quite striking and bid fair to be more popular this year than last.

Pongee is with us again this year and in very much more attractive guises than it has ever appeared in before. Some of the most practical as well as the most modish frocks for wear in the country and at the shore are those of natural color pongee, combined with blue and white or green and white striped pongee. These are made with smock and skirt with the stripes disposed as best suits the wearer's ideas. Some of these dresses have the skirt and belt, pockets, et cetera of the stripes and only the body of the blouse of tan, but more have the blouse of stripes and the skirt and belt and pockets of tan. Pongee is most desirable for one other use,—for the suit that must be worn into town. It is cooler, keeps fresh longer and is really prettier than any other material that comes for this purpose. In the natural color it is splendidly practical, and in green it is particularly attractive for hot summer days.

The Sport Hat

NOW to cap the climax with sport hats. Never have they appeared in the shops in greater numbers or varieties. They have every virtue, even that of being inexpensive! The panama has not the latter quality, but is still the leader for smartness and durability. There is a type of woman, however, that cannot wear the panama and for her are the many other delightful hats that make the hat windows enchanting. One must say a word about the hand painted hats that have come to stay, for this summer at least. Here, at last, is the opportunity for every woman to express absolutely her own good taste. Here, also, there is no excuse for her if she fails to do it. These hats are for the most part, large and flat, of the garden type, but there are a few smaller ones for the more tailored type of woman. They come in every imaginable color, rose, greens and blues, and black and white as the leaders with the yellows and browns not far behind. Some are painted with conventional designs, apples, grapes and pears combined with a scroll, other have, perhaps, a row of dancing Dutch girls around the crown. A black and white hat of velvet and white wool embroidery is most becoming and will probably be quite popular this season, although black and white is enjoying a well earned vacation just now. The hat mentioned is large and floppy and has a bold, white pattern of the embroidery. Leghorn hats in colors are quite

The Lighthouse

THE rocky ledge runs far into the sea,
And on its outer point, some miles away,
The Lighthouse lifts its massive masonry,
A pillar of fire by night, of cloud by day.

Even at this distance I can see the tides,
Upheaving, break unheard along its base,
A speechless wrath, that rises and subsides
In the white lip and tremor of the face.

And as the evening darkens, lo! how bright,
Through the deep purple of the twilight air,
Beams forth the sudden radiance of its light
With strange, unearthly splendor in its glare.

Not one alone; from each projecting cape,
And perilous reef along the ocean's verge,
Starts into life a dim, gigantic shape,
Holding its lantern o'er the restless surge.

Like the great giant Christopher it stands
Upon the brink of the tempestuous wave,
Wading far out among the rocks and sands,
The night-o'ertaken mariner to save.

Mayor Macdonald of Beverly, with officers of the Beverly battery of the Second Corps Cadets, visited Manchester by automobile yesterday in search of a suitable location for field maneuvers the coming summer. After visiting one of the Manchester sites they decided that there was not a field which would be available because of the room needed for the execution of the artillery drills. A meadow permitting the free maneuvering of about 50 horses and men with two or three field pieces is needed. Sites in Wenham and Hamilton were also visited.

The school gardens are all under way at the grounds on School street. There are 118 plots which have been taken by the children and are under cultivation. Most of the pupils take a keen interest in their gardens and spend quite a little time in caring for them. Andrew Lee supervises the work. Several of the vegetable gardens have a crop already well above the ground; a few flower gardens are flourishing and all are remarkably free from weeds. Prizes will be offered in 25 different classes by the North Shore Horticultural Society when the products of the gardens are exhibited some time in August.

Story High School alumni are urged to co-operate in making the entertainment in Town hall next Thursday evening a success. Upon the success or failure of the Thursday evening party will depend in a large degree the future of the organization. If not enough interest is shown in the entertainment the officers of the association will cease their efforts to revive it. There is no reason why the re-union planned for next Thursday should not be a success if the graduates will show a little interest. The program is certainly one to induce a good attendance and assure a good time for those who attend. Besides a great variety of entertainment there will be dancing for those who care to. All graduates are welcome, whether members of the association or not.

Story High School will play Ipswich High School in Ipswich tomorrow afternoon.

Work on the new highway in Manchester had a little set back this week. It had been expected to have the road completed on one side as far as the postoffice by last Tuesday evening, but delays in the arrival of material held up the work to some extent. The south side of Central st. has been completed and in use all of the week. Crushed stone has been spread and rolled ready for the application of the tar preparation on all of the road from the junction of Bennett and Bridge sts. to the Priest school with the exception of a little gap on one side of Union st., left to allow teaming. Weather permitting, the work in the center of the town should be completed by the first of the week and work on the West Manchester end started. The contractors, A. G. Tomorrow's ball game was scheduled with the Samecs of Dorchester the speedy nine which usually plays in Manchester on the Fourth of July. After the game was arranged the team from the Battleship New York, which is in Rockport harbor, wanted a game for tomorrow. Manager Fritz attempted to get in touch with the manager of the Samecs in an effort to postpone the game until a later date. Up until late last night he had not heard from the Dorchester nine. If the Samecs play tomorrow Perry the twirler who led them to victory two years ago, will pitch. If the nine from the New York is able to come they will bring their marine band and a large contingent of sailors from the vessels in the harbor and a host of admirers from Cape Ann. Whichever team plays Manchester is assured a lively afternoon's entertainment. Game at 3 o'clock.

This is too good to keep so we'll pass it on:

"It was the cheapest victory ever gained by a ball team, and if the game went the whole distance Manchester never would have won. A lot of dirty work was started by the team of the seashore town when Catcher Clarence Hayford of the Shoe team was spiked purposely while endeavoring to get a man at the plate. Umpire Fred Dunbar of Rockport, who officiated, certainly proved to be a great friend to the Manchester nine and but for his generosity Manchester never would have won."

The above is what a near-reporter for the Beverly Times has to say about the Memorial Day game in Manchester when the local team trimmed the "crack" U. S. M. Co. ball team 6 to 5. If we didn't know him we might shout "sourgrapes," but we marvel at his wonderful eyesight. He saw Hayford spiked at the plate all the way from Beverly and we could not see it 30 feet from the plate. "Father was right after all—there is one born every minute."

The Essex County Rifle club showed its colors in the Preparedness parade in Boston last Saturday. About 25 men were in line for the first public appearance of the newly organized club.

x—x—x

He was a dirty little street urchin. His stockingless feet were encased in a battered, worn-out pair of shoes. His once white little trousers carried the soil of weeks. The big Preparedness parade was passing up Columbus ave., in Boston last Saturday when he dropped into line. A badge, picked from the street and bearing the slogan, "Prepare to enforce peace," adorned his little breast. He swung an American flag over his shoulder and marched on. A long line of fast marching men swept toward him. "Get out of the way," thundered a half dozen voices and the surprised, wounded little marcher looked up with tears starting from his eyes. He wanted to do his bit for the cause of Preparedness and probably knew as much about why he was marching as many others on the big parade, but somehow there was no place provided in the ranks for dirty little boys who will some day be big boys and perhaps shoulder a gun instead of a flag. The line opened and closed and the sturdy little flag-bearer was left behind. But another line bore down on him and a marcher chided the little fellow as he tripped and threw the line out of step. The boy scrambled hastily to the side of the road and looked tearfully and wistfully at the marchers. Then a band drew close, the martial air stirring the little fellow to a new endeavor. As the musicians played "The Stars and Stripes Forever" he shouldered his flag, swung in step beside the bass-drummer and finished the march. There is no wonder the crowd on the sidewalk cheered.

Story High School of Manchester added another victim to its list of conquered ball teams last Saturday afternoon in Manchester, when the nine easily defeated the Crescents of Gloucester, the high school second team, 17 to 1. The Gloucester team was guilty of repeated errors while Manchester had only one to mar an otherwise clean fielding game. As usual Crafts and Francis played a steady game in the field and did the bulk of the stick work. Crafts and Miguel were the battery for Manchester and Geary and Markucon for Gloucester.

The long-looked for date, June 22, is drawing near. On that Thursday evening the first of the summer band concerts in Manchester square will be held. As usual the famous Salem Cadet Band will furnish the music under the personal leadership of Jean Missud. There will be twenty-two players for each of the concerts, which are attended by hundreds of people from Manchester and surrounding towns each year. The following are the dates of the concerts after the opening entertainment: July 13, July 27, August 10, August 24 and Sept. 7. The concerts will begin at 7.45 o'clock and will last two hours. In case any concert is prevented because of rain the engagement will be filled at a later date.

Memorial Parade.

Just a "baker's" dozen gray-haired men marched or rode in carriages on the afternoon of Memorial Day to the cemeteries in Manchester to honor departed comrades, as in years past. Headed by the Progresso National Band of Gloucester, the procession formed in front of the fire station in School st. at two o'clock. An escort of Boy Scouts followed the band and 31 men of Col. H. P. Woodbury Camp, 149, S. of V., under the leadership of Commander John L. Prest were next in line. Behind the Sons came the 13 members of Allen Post, some marching behind Commander Enoch Crombie and the remainder in carriages. Tuesday's ranks were in twos, but it is not long since the comrades marched in fours to honor their dead.

The line of march was through School and North sts. to the Old Burying ground on Summer st., where six graves were honored, thence back to School st. to Union cemetery where seven graves were decorated. Continuing to Rosedale cemetery the columns of marchers gathered about the G. A. R. monument while the 91 graves were strewn with flowers. After the placing of the flowers on a vacant lot according to the custom in memory of those buried in unknown graves Commander Prest of the Camp addressed to Post Commander Crombie the usual encomium made on the occasion. Rev. A. G. Warner offered prayer.

Returning from Rosedale cemetery to Central square the marchers were met by about 20 ladies of the Relief Corps and 40 members of the Arbella club and school children, who accompanied them to the waterside. Rev. Charles A. Hatch invoked Divine blessing upon the occasion and those assembled. The service of scattering flowers upon the water in memory of the sailors of the Union was followed by the singing of the Star Spangled Banner. A band concert was held on the common.

MEMORIAL DAY ADDRESS

PAST G.A.R. COMMANDER FAVORS PREPAREDNESS MOVEMENT-ADVOCATES MILITARY DRILL IN SCHOOLS.

TOWN HALL in Manchester was filled on Tuesday evening for the annual exercises of Allen Post, G. A. R., in observance of Memorial Day. Members of the Post; Camp 149, S. of V.; Allen Relief Corps and Boy Scouts occupied a portion of the hall nearest the stage. A deep bank of wild flowers adorned the front of the platform and American flags were draped about the top and sides of the stage.

The program started with the singing of "Where are the boys of the old brigade?" by the Shubert quartet. They followed with "Nellie Gray." Rev. A. G. Warner offered the invocation and the quartet sang, "Just beyond the hilltops." The general orders were read by Adjutant James Rivers, who also read the general orders of General Logan delivered on May 30, 1868.

Two quartet selections, "Come where my love light's dreaming," and "My Rosary," followed. Enoch Follett, grandson of Post Commander Enoch Crombie, delivered Lincoln's Gettysburg address. A quartet selection, "When the Boys in Blue are Gone," followed.

Past Commander of the Department of Massachusetts, Alfred S. Roe of Worcester, delivered the address of the evening.

"I am glad to come to Manchester and meet my Junior Vice Commander on his native heath," said Mr. Roe. "His name may not be MacGregor, but Stanley is just as good.

"The quartet just sang 'who will tell the story when the boys in blue are gone?' I don't know that any of us will try to pass himself off as a young man. It is 55 years from the Battle of Bull Run, so you see we are not quite 'boys.' However, a man is as young as he feels. If he feels as young as he did years ago there is no reason why he should not attempt the things he feels able to do. There were many of us who did not march today, but had to ride, because we are not so young as we used to be.

"I am asked sometimes during this talk about Preparedness if we could do our bit in time of danger. I point to old John Burns of Gettysburg. He was as old as we are and you all know what he did on that day."

Mr. Roe spoke of the thinning ranks of the G. A. R. and of the day when there would be none left to remember the departed comrades. He knew, however, that someone would keep up the memory of the veterans.

He spoke of the manner in which the negroes in the South turn out on Memorial Day to decorate the graves of Union soldiers. Referring again to Preparedness he said that in '61 Massachusetts was prepared "from tent pegs to shoe strings" and sent 1500 men on the first call from Washington.

He said that right up until the outbreak of the Civil War the authorities in Washington did not expect there would be any trouble and did not prepare. Sketching the history of the memorable trip through Baltimore when the Massachusetts troops were attacked by the mob of Southern sympathizers, he said, "Four men from Essex County fell in that fight and their names should be known by every man, woman and child in the county,—Ladd, Needham, Taylor and Whitney."

He told of the meeting of the troops by Clara Barton, afterwards founder of the Red Cross. He said that today her name is denied a place in the "Woman's Service" building in Washington and the G. A. R. is fighting to have her recognized.

Mr. Roe spoke of the Preparedness parades in New York and Boston and said that in Worcester on July 4 they were to have another.

He scorned the pacifists who think that school boys could not stand the rigors of military drill. "Boys in school should be taught the 'facings' and 'setting up' exercises. They take to it like a duck to water. There is no hardship about it. The drill should be given in the schools for then everyone will get it. Give it to the doctor's son, the clergyman's son as well as the laborer's son. This country is worth as much to one as to another and we owe it as an inborn duty to be prepared to defend it. There has been too much of 'privilege classes,' too much of the 'let-George-do-it spirit' in this country. All boys should be taught military drill in the schools. It will make them stand straight if nothing else, and other nations won't spoil for a fight with a nation ready to meet them." New York has already passed a law making military training in schools compulsory.

Mr. Roe said that Memorial Day was a good time to talk Preparedness as the concern of all must be for the present and for the future. Nothing could be done to change the past. He related incidents of the surrender of Lee at Appamatox Court House and some of the inaccuracies in the accounts of the final surrender. He said that the Confederate troops who surrendered to Grant were the bravest men in history to lay down their arms. He told of the passing of the feeling of animosity in the South and said now they march to Yankee Doodle. "In the North we also march to Dixie, and I'll leave it to you if 'Dixie-Doodle' isn't the finest music in existence."

The quartet sang "The End of a Perfect Day," and the entire audience joined in "America."

MEMORIAL SUNDAY SERVICE

MILITARISM, TOO MUCH NATIONAL PROSPERITY AND DIVORCE OUR GREATEST INVISIBLE ENEMIES.

AT the union Sunday morning service in the Manchester Congregational church, members of the G. A. R., Allen Relief Corps, the Sons of Veterans and a patrol of Boy Scouts occupied a reserved portion of the auditorium. The annual sermon to the veterans was preached by Rev. Charles A. Hatch. Rev. A. G. Warner, pastor of the Baptist church assisted in the service. Two huge American flags were draped over the rostrum and flags were used for decorations.

The twelfth verse of the sixth chapter of Paul's Letter to the Ephesians was taken by Mr. Hatch as a text,—"For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places."

In his sermon the minister characterized the book from which the text was taken as a "book on tactics." He said Paul was a veteran of many spiritual battles and that his policy was not one of "watchful waiting." The Letter to the Ephesians was characterized as a lesson in Preparedness.

"You men of the G. A. R. passed through a hell of fire and steel in your battles of the Civil War," said Mr. Hatch, "but you were facing a material enemy, guns and bayonets, men of flesh and blood. The enemy Paul speaks of and the enemy which must be combatted today as well is an invisible enemy. Fighting a material enemy one or the other must fall in a short time, but fighting of an invisible enemy may last for years."

The invisible enemies which must be combatted today, Mr. Hatch said, were militarism, too much national prosperity, the instability of the home and the divorce evil. "Militarism is gnawing at the vitals of America," said the speaker; "it was the ruin of Germany and will be the ruin of this country if we do not combat it in time. Adequate Preparedness, everyone agrees, is essential; but let us stop there and not foster a military caste.

"Our present great prosperity is a second cousin to militarism. The money from war-stricken Europe is coming to America. Europe is the loser in the war. America is one huge manufactory for the warring nations. The profits from ammunition sales is 'blood money.' America is getting fat from undue prosperity; we are feeding our national body and starving our national soul."

Speaking of the divorce evil he said that out of every 12 marriages in this country one winds up in a divorce. "The public is being fed at the present time by the nauseating details of a so-called 'divorce' case and charges of alleged unfaithfulness. Our national life is being poisoned by the divorce evil."

Mr. Hatch called upon the veterans, as men who had received their "baptism of fire," to fight these "powers of darkness" which threaten national life.

Special music appropriate to the occasion was rendered by the choir and a male quartet sang "Tenting Tonight."

JUDY'S ARTICLE

bewitching and are favorites. They are for the most part very simply trimmed with grosgrain ribbon in white or a very contrasting color, and their beauty lies wholly in line and color. The simple peanut hat, somewhat disguised, but still recognizable, holds out an attraction for many. One of its best types is the rather large, soft hat covered on the top with a network of soft, coarse yarn in color, blue, orange or purple. The only trimming is a wool cord and tassels.

Next week, Judy will have some interesting points for the trousseau of the prospective bride. She will tell about some of the little things that are new and fascinating, and leave the discussion of the gown and the veil for another time.

Your Porch this Summer.

NEXT to, and perhaps even more than, the automobile the summer porch is the most active agency for getting and keeping people out of doors in the summer. It could be more influential in that way than the automobile, for nearly everyone has a porch or a place where a porch may be built. The porch must not only be a place to sit and sew on a hot afternoon, it should be a gathering place for the whole family and their friends in the evening, a place to serve afternoon tea and even the more important meals of the day. In short, it should be the summer living room of the family.

If it is to be such a room, it must have the comforts and attractiveness of the inner living room. Wicker furniture is, of course, the most suitable for the porch, both as regards appearance and durability. A deep seated rocker with side pockets for magazines or knitting or anything else, in fact, will help to make your porch more tempting, a couch hammock is indispensable, several willow chairs and a table, and (this is perhaps more important than any other item if the veranda is to be really homelike) an attractive rug on the floor will make it all that you can need for simple comfort. The rug need not, should not, be an expensive one. The modern "rag" rug is good, although a bit light weight because it becomes lighter after it is washed. The Japanese stores are showing a heavier, hand woven rug that is by far the most attractive summer rug Judy has seen. It may be washed and the colors, which are really lovely, will not run. Although it is more expensive than the others, it is a better investment. Grass rugs will be found practical. Cretonne pillows to match cushions of the chairs will add much to the picture and the wall vases for flowers are particularly suitable for the porch.

Another article that will prove an asset, not only for daintiness in entertaining, but also for real service, is a tea wagon. This comes in willow at a not too extravagant price. The problem of entertaining is thus solved at a single stroke, especially for the hostess, who is also her own maid. Whether it be for tea or luncheon, everything may be placed upon the wagon in the kitchen and then wheeled out to the porch at the proper moment. And there you have it! A perfectly prepared meal, daintily served by an unflustered hostess.

Victor d'Bellefroid, the well-known riding teacher, has come to Beverly Farms for the season as is his custom. He moved into Mrs. Joshua Younger's house, Hale st., yesterday.

Mrs. Joshua Younger has leased her home on Hale st. to Mr. and Mrs. Victor d'Bellefroid for the summer. Mrs. Younger went to Boston for a short stay, yesterday, and later will spend the summer with relatives at Brunswick, Me.

Father—So you like school, do you dear. And what have you learned today?

Marjorie (aged 6)—I learned the names of all the little boys.—Boston Transcript.

BEVERLY FARMS

John F. O'Callahan is reported to be critically ill at his home, rear of 48 Hale st.

Herbert Hull and family have rented the tenement in the Williams homestead on Hart st., recently vacated by Guy C. Williams.

Preston Post, 188, G. A. R., expresses its sincere thanks to all who helped in any way to make the observances of Memorial Day a success.

Ground was broken on Wednesday for a handsome large garage on the Bayard Warren estate at Pride's Crossing. A Boston concern has the contract.

Hereafter on Thursday and Saturday evenings the proprietor of the Beverly Farms-Beverly Bus will increase accommodations for passengers by adding other cars. On those nights on several past occasions passengers have been dissappointed because the bus has been unable to accommodate them.

The Garo Studio rooms in the Murphy Block, West st., were sub-let since last fall to St. John's church for social purposes, but as the Garo concern has surrendered its lease the church has been compelled to give up its quarters and the society, for the present at least, must meet at the members' homes.

Along the NORTH SHORE

A WORK that should interest North Shore yachtsmen is the re-survey of the waters from Nahant to Rockport by the U. S. Geodetic Survey party connected with the Department of Commerce. A crew of men, with two sloops and two launches, is dragging the bottom of the entire course for three or four miles out. to see if all of the charted buoys, obstructions, etc., are in their charted places As such a survey has not been made for 40 years, many new buoys have been placed and locations of obstructions noted All changes will be noted on the government charts, which are regularly issued.

OF interest to motorists is the news that Bridge street in Salem is to be re-paved with a smooth covering, which will be quite a contrast to the up hill and down dale effect at present. Bridge street has been both an eye-sore and a disgusting thoroughfare for years and that it is to be repaired will help not a little. Motorists within a few days will also be able to use the short cut through Salem and avoid the sharp turns through the center of Salem by using the newly located Congress street bridge. The route changes from the Salem Common. Instead of making the turn at the Roger Conant statue the route straight ahead should be taken into Elm street and thence across the bridge, past the cotton mills and out to broad Lafayette st. This route, if followed, will prove a

THE big barge, which will be used this month in Boston during the dedicatory exercises of the new buildings of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will be launched from Walter B. Calderwood's boatyard in Manchester at noon today. The engine arrived Wednesday from Boston and was put in place yesterday by the workmen. It was planned to get the big craft into the water yesterday, but the arrival of the engine was delayed by the big Preparedness parade in Boston last Saturday which held up crosstown shipments. The holiday Tuesday caused another delay. Last Monday camera men from the Hearst-Vitagraph weekly "movied" the barge in the boatyard and today they will be on hand to film it as it is launched. The launching of the big barge, with its tremendous weight of decorations will be a difficult undertaking. It has been decided not to gold-paint the decoration which will remain pure white.

"How did you come out?" asked his friend. "Will she have you?"

"Her answer," replied the diplomatic attaché, "is partially satisfactory enough so as to continue negotiations. She says if she ever does marry it will be a man of good looks, courage and ability."—Judge.

Peabody Museum of Salem.

The Museum Committee of the Peabody Museum offers to students of entomology resident in Essex County two prizes for the season of 1916, viz., a first prize of ten dollars, and a second prize of five dollars, for the two best collections of insects injurious to orchard, farm, and garden crops, with specimens of their work. For further information apply to Mr Albert P. Morse, Peabody Museum, Salem, Mass.

Abraham Lincoln once wrote to an enthusiastic Western minister who announced to him a "message from the Lord," concerning emancipation: "If it is, as you say, a message from your Divine Master, is it not odd that the only channel He could send it by was that round-about route by the awfully wicked city of Chicago."

New Residences and Recent Improvements Along the North Shore

CHARLES ELMER ALEXANDER

(Reprinted from BOSTON EVENING TRANSCRIPT of May 20, 1916)

II

Hamilton Marked by Notable Changes.

UNLIKE some years, Hamilton shows this season no strictly new residence, but important work has been done in the development of the George C. Vaughan property, on Main street, with excellent results, including remodelling of an ancient house into a commodious residence and also other houses which, though old, were not ancient.

The old-time dwelling is of the familiar country type, square with pitched roof, and it has been made over to make it thoroughly comfortable as a modern house, while retaining its old-time look and characteristics. The exterior is of clapboards, dark stained, and its one chimney rising from the main part is big, like those of earlier days. The former kitchen L has been changed over into a spacious library, with deep fireplace, on the lower floor, and above is a sitting-room opening upon a sleeping porch. Little dormers just out from the slanting roof. Casement windows everywhere lend their value to the quaintly picturesque character of the house and in all ways it is attractive in its appearance.

The interior has undergone changes in the way of improvements, yet it seems as old-time in its general look and arrangement of rooms as it originally did. It is known to have been built in 1721, as has been determined from a date of that year cut in one of the beams of the ceiling in what now is the dining-room, where the central beam, crossed by smaller ones, is of massive size; all are seemingly as strong as when originally placed in the house yet they are much worm-eaten, which lends value to their look without detracting from their utility. The land on which the house stands was bought in 1660, so old deeds show, and in 1721 the house was built by Daniel Richardson, whose family held the property for fully a century, when his descendants moved to Connecticut. The property then became known as the Patch place, and members of that family lived there until a few years ago when Mr. Vaughan purchased the estate.

The front door opens into a quaint little hall with the narrow stairway winding in square turns to the second floor. The walls of the hall and stairs are in white panels, forming a part of the original finish. The hall is paved with small black tiles. At the right of the hall is the dining-room, so low that a person or ordinary height can easily touch the ceiling. It was by removal of the original ceiling that the beams, including that with the old-time date, 1721, were brought to light. Two fireplaces of more recent construction than the house were removed and behind these was opened up the original big chimney fireplace and bake oven, with an ancient crane, in keeping with the conditions of earlier days.

At the left of the hall there is the big living room, well treated in its remodelling and as ancient in look as the rest of the house. From this room there is a hidden stairway to the second floor. In these rooms the old-time idea of finishing the central walls of rooms in panels, and the other walls in plaster, has been followed. The library, in the wing, is of big dimensions and is panelled in natural cypress. It has an ample fireplace. Hardware which is exposed is a reproduction of that of years ago.

The reconstruction up stairs has been with the idea of retaining the original look, as far as possible, while introducing in an inconspicuous way modern improvements in the way of baths, electricity and other equipment for comfort. All these changes were planned by Mrs. John B. Moulton, of Hamilton, in behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan, and she has personally supervised the carrying out of the work to bring about these changes, which have been so successful in results.

The surroundings form a fitting situation for such an old house and much has been done in the development of the grounds. A stone terrace has been made in the corner between the living room and library and lower grounds have been graded and planted with many flowers. Use has been made of a spring found in the hill back of the house and which feeds two small circular pools which have been made in the gardens, connected by a little stream which lower down meanders off like a brook, bordered by flowers and shaded by willows. Near the library is an enormous elm of undoubted great age which adds to the general charm of the whole place. The house has been leased by Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Bement, for summer occupancy, and they are already established there.

Another Old House Remodelled.

THE adjoining house, also Mr. Vaughan's, was long known as the Poole place, and it has been moved back from the highway and placed in a better site and in its remodelled form makes a most comfortable house. It is square, two stories and a half, with slap-dash plastered exterior to the second story, and there it shows a finish of stained shingles. It has a rustic entrance porch with stone foundation, and a large porch to correspond has been extended from one corner of the house. A new wing has been added, in which have been placed the general service rooms, on both the first and upper floors.

The hall is of modest size with walls and stairs panelled in gumwood. The library also has gumwood finish for beams, book-cases and other work. Both hall and library are brick-tiled, with wide black joints. There is a long living room extending way through the house. This shows a beamed ceiling and the room is finished in white, as is the dining-room. All these rooms are provided with good fireplaces. The second floor has three or four good chambers and two baths, in the main part, with maids' rooms and a bath in the wing. Rooms are of old-time look, with simple doors, little cupboards here and there and other suggestion of houses of long ago. The third floor contains four bedrooms and a bath. Mr. and Mrs. Alvin F. Sortwell have taken a lease of the house. Mrs. Moulton planned all these changes for Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan, just as she did those of the ancient house nearby.

In the rear of the house there has been built a garage and stable, both under one roof, yet entirely separated otherwise, from plans by Julian I. Chamberlain, the Boston architect. It contains space for two cars and a work room, and in the stable part a harness room, and four box stalls. Above is a hayloft with two rooms and a bath for use of a chauffeur. The exterior finish corresponds to that of the house.

Also, in this neighborhood is an old red house of long standing, which has been changed in its site, a little farther back from the highway, and this has been somewhat altered, with a new wing, for one thing, and interior changes to make of it a far more comfortable house than in the past. This also forms a part of the Vaughan property. Another house has been altered as to roof lines, the old lean-to having been built up to give new rooms in the second story. The interior changes make the house far more modern than heretofore.

Former Bush House Much Changed

FOR Henry Cleveland Perkins of Washington, D. C., who purchased the S. Dacre Bush estate in Hamilton, much has been done to improve the place. He has had the house remodelled so that it is about three times its original size, the changes planned by a Boston architect, Lynch Luquer, who has greatly altered the former appearance of the place. The main part, on the garden side, has been extended and a new wing has been thrown out, with a new entrance at the corner of these two parts of the house. The porch is circular in shape, with fluted columns and a balustrade topped by urns. The window treatment above the porch is attractive. The roof is of the gambrel type. The porch is brick paved. In the new stairway hall, panelled in white, the stairway is treated in Colonial finish and shows graceful turn. The living room gained by the changes is about 37 by 20 feet in size and has a beamed ceiling and panelled walls, in old oak, on Gothic lines. The fireplace is of stone construction. The remodelling gives a new service part well planned by the architect, as an important improvement. Two master's suites of bedrooms and baths are found over the living room, and on the second floor is also a new room for use of guests. In the service L are six new rooms and a bath for use of maids. On the third floor the changes include a bedroom, an unfinished attic and a maid's room. The work is about finished, in the hands of Louis J. Geoffrion of Waltham. Considerable work has been done outdoors to improve the grounds.

Elsewhere in Hamilton

FOR John A. Tuckerman, whose place is on County road in Hamilton, the former old house of Colonial farmhouse type has been so changed that it has come forth in its new form as an almost new place. The remodelling, which was planned by Lawrence & Wambolt, Boston architects, shows a new wing giving a large dining-room with fireplace, a lounge with tiled floor above which on the second floor are two new guest rooms and a bath. The wing is two and a half stories high with pitched roof. The work is now going on under F. P. Trussell.

Ipswich Colony Gains New Houses

IN the Argilla Road section of Ipswich a new house for Roger S. Warner of Boston is in process of building for summer occupancy. It is on what in the past was the Wendel place, and the old house originally there has been remodelled for use by Mr. Warner's father, Joseph B. Warner. The new house, which is from plans by Victor H. Wigglesworth, a young Boston architect, who is carrying them out, will be of the farmhouse type and will embody in its finish many ideas suggested by study of the old-time Saltonstall-Whipple house in Ipswich, built somewhere between 1636 and 1675, the exact date not being certain. Simplicity has been the keynote on which Mr. Wigglesworth has made his plans, to conform with Mr. Warner's own ideas. The house is to be long and wide, will be placed low to the ground and will take on an old-fashioned look. The pitched roof will be broken by shed dormer windows, and casement windows with shutters will be other features. The exterior finish will be of broad clapboards. The big chimneys will be low, as seen above the roof tops. From a hall of modest size, a winding stairway, Colonial in treatment, will lead to the second floor. The living room will be large and the dining room, a study, bedroom and bath and the usual service rooms will make up the lower floor. A piazza may be reached from the living room and the study. On the second floor will be the owner's bedroom suite, a boy's room and bath, a nursery and two rooms with baths for the use of guests. Connecting with the owner's suite and also with the nursery there will be sleeping porches. Three rooms and a bath for maids and a storage room will be found on the third floor. The house will take on a comfortable look, both inside and out, when finished. While it is in process of building, Mr. Warner will occupy for the summer months the Jenkins cottage on Argilla road.

Mr. Wigglesworth has brought about various changes in the old Wendel house for Mr. Warner, and it has been greatly enlarged and now looks far different from its former appearance. An addition provides new bedrooms and baths, a new living room and a dining room, practically new, and the kitchen and other service rooms have been much improved. Minor changes have been made on the second floor to make the house more comfortable. In all instances the old fireplaces have been retained.

Cottage to be of Bungalow Type

DR. J. DELLINGER BARNEY of Boston, who is a member of the summer colony at Ipswich, is to build in that place a small cottage of bungalow type, a story and a half high with gambrel roof, and with exterior finish of siding. It will contain a spacious living room, dining-room and service part and five or six bedrooms and baths. Plans for this cottage have been prepared by Stickney & Austin, Boston architects.

The De Blois House Remodelled

THE George L. De Blois place in Ipswich is among those which this season are marked by changes, chief among which is a large new wing containing a kitchen, laundry and general rooms for service, all of which have been planned for efficiency. A big rear porch has been added, as well as a spacious piazza and entrance porch of colonial type, with columns. Over this is a sleeping porch. The living room has been enlarged by throwing two old rooms into one apartment, which has a deep fireplace. The room is finished with panelled walls. The second floor gives new chambers and several new bathrooms, as well as maids' rooms. The changes were planned by Little & Brown of Boston and were carried out for Mr. De Blois by J. T. Wilson & Son, Inc., of Nahant.

Few men suffer in their own minds by comparison with their acquaintances.

Inactivity in Topsfield

IMPROVEMENT of the John S. Lawrence house at Old City Mills in Topsfield gives the owner a spacious sun parlor leading from the living room. It shows an octagon-shaped front. On each side there has been made a brick terrace, with steps of brick leading to lower grass terraces. While not extensive, the alterations will greatly improve the house. The changes were planned by Lawrence & Wambolt of Boston.

Magnolia Not Active This Season

GENERAL remodelling of one of the MacDonald cottages on Fuller street in Magnolia for Miss Margaret L. Corlies, its new owner, has so changed the house that its former appearance has been entirely lost, and to great advantage, since the alterations have resulted in a cottage of most attractive look. Field stone has been used for a porch and entrance steps, and with excellent results. The roof lines now are gambrel in type, with gables on the front elevation. A rear porch, glass-enclosed, commands a splendid view of the harbor and beach between Coolidge's Point, Manchester, and Magnolia village. Miss Corlies secures by the alterations a large living hall, with stairs placed in one corner and with a bay and other windows from which extended ocean views are possible. The living room is equally well favored in its situation and in the matter of fine outlook. It opens upon piazzas on the water side of the house. The dining room is quaint in its treatment of cupboards and the like and the service part of the house has been greatly improved. Up-stairs rooms show alterations for the better, with new baths included. All of these changes were planned by Miss Corlies herself and were made under her personal supervision by H. N. Hanson of Gloucester.

Other than Miss Corlies's cottage, little in the way of change is found at Magnolia, although the new block of shops on Lexington avenue is notable. It occupies the site of the old Magnolia Hotel, which was burned several years ago. The building is long and of only a single story and it includes about ten shops, which are of good width and considerable depth. The block is of plaster for exterior finish and a pergola-topped terrace runs across its entire front, broken in the middle by a pediment supported by massive square columns, plaster finished. Custance Brothers of Lexington are building the series of shops for the owner, Mrs. Annie M. Ryan of Brookline.

New Tea House at Wenham Informally Opened Tomorrow

WENHAM'S Tea House, "Sign of the Tabby Cat and the Tea Kettle" will be the scene of a social gathering tomorrow from 4 o'clock on into the evening, of the members of the Village Improvement Society, when they will meet informally to open the beautiful new tea house which has been built this winter. The tea house will be opened for the general public next Monday, June 12. The society of efficient workers, including the summer residents and many of the local people, led by its president, Miss Helen C. Burnham of "Overlook," Wenham, has spent the winter in work upon the new house, which is as near perfection as a tea house could possibly be. The architect has been Mr. Richardson of Salem. The whole affair carries out the colonial type, further emphasized by the old-time lean-to. It is finished in dull white shingles, with quaint old brass-trimmed green doors and plain green wooden shutters, on the top of which are painted cats and kettles. The blinds are especially attractive and cannot fail to draw the attention of the passer-by. The tea room proper has a charming old colonial fireplace, the ruddy glow from which will blend cheerfully on cool days with the beautiful white and creamy color scheme of the room. This large room is decorated with a handsome frieze, the quaint figures and mottoes of which are copyrighted by the tea room association. This attractive frieze (also used in the old tea house) has been adapted by Mrs. John Appleton Burnham (Grace Luther) the well known artist of Marblehead, to which she has added original panels. Mrs. Burnham has been busily engaged the past weeks in endeavoring to get the paintings finished by this Saturday. She is a daughter-in-law to Mrs. John A. Burnham of "Overlook," Wenham. At one end of the tea room is the Woman's Exchange with its quaint little glass cases and closets all in white. The friends and patrons of the old tea house will remember that the articles handled are of the highest grade possible. Besides the collection of gift shop novelties there is always the stock of home-made articles from Wenham. Some of their specialties are quilted silk puffs, crib quilts, dinner cards and inexpensive favors for children's parties. Opening from the large tea room proper is a small glass enclosed private room for card parties or special luncheons. A large screened porch is also a feature of the place. But, dear to the hearts of the association and the culinary artist, Mrs. Philip Downes of Boston, who will be in charge again this summer, is the kitchen with its large and commodious serving room and stock room. These represent the last word in sanitary up-to-dateness that can be found anywhere on the North Shore. An attractive apartment has been made up-stairs for the manager and her family to live in. An interesting social feature of the place is that some of the members of the summer colony and other members of the society are always present as hostesses each afternoon during the season. The Wenham Village Improvement society had its origin as long ago as 1890. The new house is just around the corner from the old tea house which is still standing next to the Village church.

"Bucentaur" Launched at Manchester

Barge To Be Used In Technology Pageant Drew Crowds To Waterside Last Friday Noon

Historic Setting—Building Back of Barge 200 Years Old

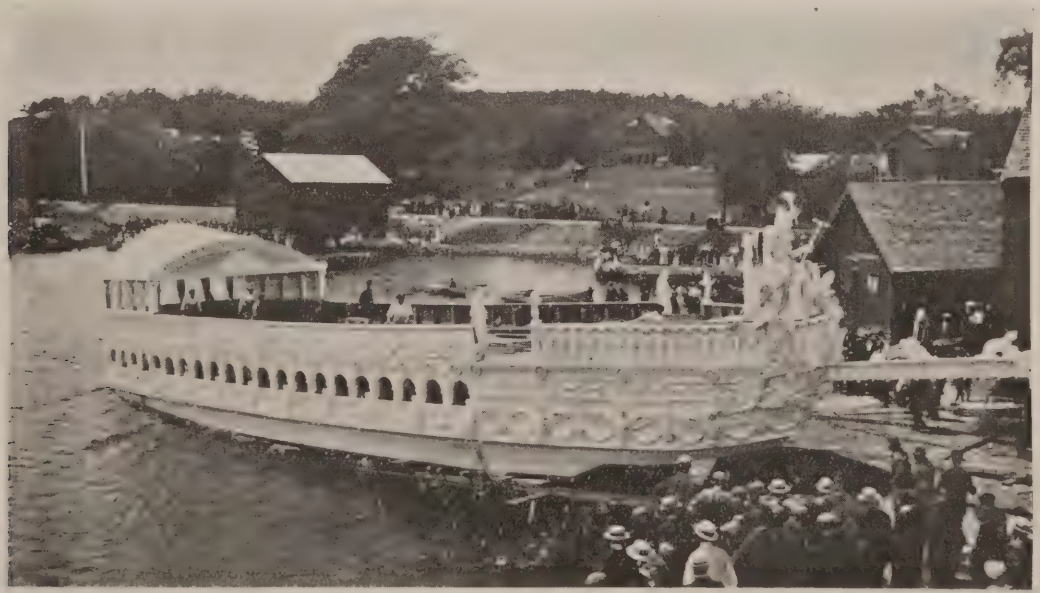

NEARLY 1000 persons, many of them coming from out of town for the occasion, witnessed the launching of the beautiful barge, "Bucentaur" from Calderwood's boatyard in Manchester last Friday afternoon. Among the number who saw the launching were officials and students of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, for whom the barge was built.

The barge slid from the ways at 12.55 p. m. Miss Bella Cairns, daughter of Hugh Cairns, whose sculptoring adorned the vessell, christened the barge. The craft, which will be used in the ceremonies of the dedication of the new buildings of the Institute of Technology, is nearly 100 feet long and 20 feet beam. It's hull was designed by Swasey, Raymond & Page of Boston and built by Walter B. Calderwood of Manchester. One remarkable thing about the barge was that when it went into the water it did not leak a bucketful in a day. The decorations were very elaborate and were all of white.

The entire craft was designed in the style of the ancient barge of state of the Doges of Venice, "Bucentoro." The decorative proportions were the work of Ralph Adams Cram, senior professor of architecture at the institute. Hugh Cairns, instructor of clay modelling, designed the hundreds of ornamental figures, his daughter, Miss Bella, being the model. Upon the forward deck is an heroic figure bearing aloft the torch of learning in one hand and carrying a T-square in the other. On the bowsprit is a dolphin's head and the prow bears the beaver, the symbol of the builder. The bow panels are Neptune, upholding the trident, Nereids and Amphitritons. Toward the stern the panels are dolphins, cupids, mermaids, seashells, seaweed and fish.

On either side of the vessel there are 25 openings just above the waterline. Through these will be projected the sweeps which will be manned by 50 Technology students who have competed for the honor. Above the rear deck is a small canopied section, as highly ornamented with decorative panels as is the rest.

The barge was towed to Boston this week and will take part in the big pageant on the evening of June 12. It will carry President MacLaurin of the Institute, officials of Technology, of the City of Boston and of Massachusetts on an epochal trip across the Charles River. All of the valuable records of the Institute will be carried on the trip to the new buildings. It is estimated that the cost of the barge when completed was $12,000.

MRS. S. REED ANTHONY of Boston and Beverly Farms, was married Wednesday afternoon to Randolph Frothingham. The Rev. Dr. Elwood Worcester of Emmanuel Church, Boston, performed the ceremony at St. John's Episcopal Church, Beverly Farms. Mr. Frothingham had Robert W. Seymour of Boston for his best man; the bride was unattended. The only guests were Mrs. Anthony's children, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Frothingham of New York, parents of the groom. There was no reception. Mr. and Mrs. Frothingham will reside at "Rose Ledge," Hale street, Beverly Farms, for the summer. The estate is the bride's summer home. MRS. HENRY W. PEABODY of Ledgewood, Montserrat, has her mother, Mrs. McGill of New York, with her. Later, her sister, Miss Margaret McGill, will come on from New York for the season as usual. "Ledgewood" is showing an abundant early crop of June flowers on the charming terrace on which the house is situated and in the little Italian garden in front of the main entrance. This is one of the most attractive of the smaller homes on the North Shore and is best appreciated by approaching it from the steep rustic path winding up the thickly wooded hill on which the house stands, and from which glimpses of the water and passing boats may be seen leading off Manchester and Magnolia way. One end of the piazza is arranged for tea parties especially, and here Mrs. Peabody is a charming and hospitable hostess to the many summer visitors who find their way to this attractive spot during the season.

"THE CLIFFS," the attractive home of Mrs. George Dudley Howe on Smith's Point, Manchester, is showing a charming collection of old-fashioned flowers in the garden. Pansies, iris, and lilacs are in their prime, but the most showy of all is a wonderful bed of forget-me-nots, which looks like a patch of the blue sky fallen among the greenery which surrounds it. One can stand and gaze a long time into this sea of blue while breathing in the enticing odors which seem to fill the place now. Spicey scnets, evidently from the hedges, and other plants, are prevailing. Passing on from the forget-me-nots to the terraced and charmingly natural rocky formations near the house, flowers may be seen growing here and there among the rocks leading down to the water's side. From the rocks and the house a fine view of the islands off Beverly and the Marblehead shores may be seen.

CAPTAIN SOWERBY, former British naval attaché at Washington, and well known to North Shore residents, perished with his ship, the "Indefatigable," in the great naval battle in the North Sea last week. For several summers Captain Sowerby was on the North Shore. He was a great personal friend of Major Archibald Butt, aide to President Taft, and the two lived together during the summers of 1909-10-11 with the family of Hezekiah O. Woodbury on Ober street, Beverly Cove. It was an odd coincidence that the two constant companions, in Washington as well as on the North Shore, should have come to their end in the fathomless depths of the sea—the one in the greatest of sea disasters when the gigantic Titanic was lost, the other in the greatest of all naval battles.

Geo. B. Poole of Chestnut Hill has bought Dr. Hobart E. Warren's place, 813 Hale street, Beverly Farms, and will use the same as a summer home, Dr. Warren having moved to the Dr. Jackson property on the adjoining corner. Mr. Poole is a member of the firm of Poole & Bigelow, real estate operators, Boston. Last season he had the Gardner cottage, "Alhambra," at Pride's Crossing, which the T. Jefferson Newbolds of New York will occupy this season.

Plans are going forward for the Navy Festival in aid of the Charlestown Y. M. C. A. building fund, to be held at Amos A. Lawrence's place, Beaver Pond, Beverly, on Monday evening, July 3. The committee has definitely decided that the cost of the dinner per plate will be three dollars, and that the entrance to the grounds will be by way of Essex street, and not Dodge street. The festival will be a brilliant affair, both socially and physically, for the elite of the North Shore colony will be there to enjoy the dinner in a massive tent on the grounds, and for the dancing on out-of-door specially constructed floors. And the fireworks' display will be grand. Two bands—brass and strings—will furnish the music.

Godfrey L. Cabot and family of 16 Highland st., Cambridge, have closed their town residence and are established at their Beverly Farms residence for the summer.

Mrs. Amory G. Hodges of New York was on the North Shore a part of last week, a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Dexter at "Boulderwood," Manchester. She came on for the Murray-Rantoul wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Hodges will not spend the summer at Beverly Farms as usual, but have taken a place on Long Island. The Fenno cottage, which the Hodges occupied last season has been leased for this season by John Harvey Wright of Brookline.

MANCHESTER social activities this week have centered around the Essex County club during the meet of the Women's Eastern Golf association which will close tomorrow. The clubhouse has been taxed to its capacity by the women from the various cities, who spent the week in its commodious quarters. Guests who did not stay at the club have spent the week with friends along the Shore or at the various Inns which are already open. Mrs. William A. Gavin of England, who is in this country temporarily in the interest of Red Cross work, and who is a member of the Cherry Valley club of New York, stayed at Magnolia Inn. She left yesterday after having taken the championship title out of the hands of American golfers for the first time in the history of the Eastern Association. She was runner-up last year at Onwentsia Club in Lake Forest, Ill. Closely following Mrs. Gavin were Miss Marion Hollins of Westbrook, N. Y., Mrs. R. H. Barlow of the Merion Cricket Club, Philadelphia, and Miss Harriot Curtis of the Essex County Club. The Griscom cup matches began yesterday morning in the rain, between New York and Philadelphia. Playing in the New York team was Mrs. Charles C. Auchincloss, sister of Mrs. Neal Rantoul of Beverly Farms. The rain did not daunt the spirits of the nervy golfers who gathered in the tent at the first tee and waited until the worst was over before venturing on the links. The rain brought out a vivid dash of color, for over the somewhat sober sport suits of tan, white and dull browns, were in nearly every instance, one of the new transparent raincoats in bright yellow, blue, purple or red. One very striking one in bright yellow showed a creamy white suit beneath, and with a yellow hat and tan shoes made a charming picture for a rainy day. Among the well known players on hand during the week have been Mrs. H. H. Whitman, Mrs. Philip Dexter, who is entertaining guests for the occasion, Miss Edith Fitz, Miss Margaret Thomas, Miss Alice Sargent, Miss Elaine Denégre, Miss E. Stevens, Mrs. Fellows Morgan of New York and Miss Griscom of Philadelphia. Prominent clubs represented besides the Essex include the Philadelphia Merion Cricket, Westbrook, L. I., Huntington Valley, Englewood, Chestnut Hill, Cherry Valley, N. Y., Agawam Hunt and others. This Friday evening a meeting of the Women's Eastern Golf Association of the inter-city teams is called in the card room of the clubhouse to draw up new agreements.

MANCHESTER

The finishing touches will be given to that part of the new highway lying between Priest school and the westerly junction of Bennett and Bridge sts., tomorrow. The entire road has been filled and graded with crushed stone between those points and all but a few narrow stripes has been completed. The corner of School, Central and Union sts. will receive its coating of asphalt and will be opened to traffic by Sunday. A great deal of inconvenience has been experienced by the merchants of Manchester and they will be glad when that much of the road is opened. The energies of the contractors will be directed toward the completion of the West Manchester end of the highway and they are confident of completing the work by June 28, and escaping the forfeit for failure to do so.

A Most Available Site for a Summer Home

Little Ram Island, So Called, Surrounded by Sea—Accessible by Land—At Extreme End of Smith's Point, Manchester

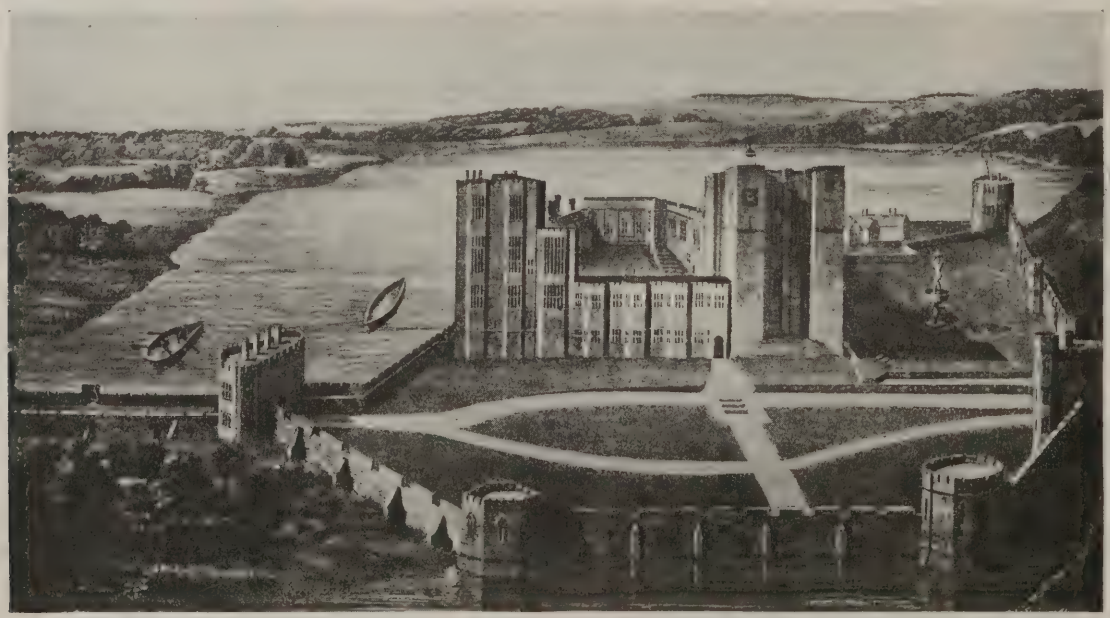

Ram Island is accessible to main-land by carriage

THERE came into the possession of the BREEZE this week a circular describing a remarkable bit of Manchester property, that far end of Smith's Point known as "Ram Island,"—so far as we know, the only bit of property on the ocean front for sale in Manchester today. It belongs to the Smith heirs and only within a short time have they offered the property for sale through the real estate office of George Lockhart Allen of 118 School st., Manchester, and 35 Church st., Salem.

In many respects this "island" is unique. Part of the day it is an island, without question, but at periods of low tied it is accessible to the main-land by carriage. In addition to its natural distinctiveness, Ram Island has a notable history. It is one of those pieces of property that because of its natural peculiarity, has been the subject of lengthy litigation. For over 200 years the Town of Manchester has opposed the claim of the Smith family to the title to the island. Only recently the Land Court decided the case finally in favor of the family and now the island is to be developed.

Like many of the islands for which the Maine coast is famous this bit of detached main-land is an ideal site for a summer home, but because of the years of litigation has been until now unavailable. It is in fact the only available property on the beautful point which is in the market for that purpose.

The island lies on the extreme tip of Smith's Point. At low tide it may be reached by carriage with little difficulty and if desired could easily be connected by bridge to the main-land. The property contains two and three-fourths acres of land with rocky sides and a landing beach and temporary pier. The elevated table land, which forms the surface of the island, is fertile to shrub and tree ...th and could be made a wonderfully beautiful spot.

One of the accompanying photographs shows the possibilities of developing the island. It lends itself remarkably well to a reproduction of the famous Kenilworth Castle, built in 1620. In event of its purchase with that view there is available on the island sufficient stone to erect the necessary wall.

From the table land one of the most wonderful views on the whole North Shore is obtainable. The inland wooded hills of Manchester rise in plain sight, the wooded shores and beaches of Manchester and Beverly lie in the foreground and in unobstructed view are the islands of Salem and Marblehead harbors. There is not a more exclusive and at the same time accessible (to proper persons) residence site on Smith's Point nor all of Manchester. There are excellent landing facilities on the inside of the island.

Not the least of the desirable assets of this property are the availability of Manchester's famous pure water and of electricity.

A man of good taste and means ought to be able to make out of Ram Island the show place of Manchester and the North Shore.

WENHAM-HAMILTON women held their first meeting this Monday afternoon at the S. Dacre Bush house on Main street, opposite Cherry street, in behalf of the surgical dressing prepared by the Special Aid Society and American Preparedness. Part of the dressings made will be sent abroad for war sufferers and the remainder will be kept in this country. It was a largely attended meeting and as the season opens it is hoped that many more will join this worthy cause. Last year the ladies met for sewing and the making of surgical supplies at the home of Mrs. Charles T. Parker of "Cotshabbie," at Wenham Neck. This year a more central location has been chosen and the society of last year has joined the new society of Special Aid this season. The women of Wenham and Hamilton became interested in this society through a representative who spoke at the home of Mrs. John C. Phillips of "Windy Knob," before the May meeting of the Wenham Village Improvement society. Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Alanson L. Daniels of "Old Farm" are very much interested in the growth of the work locally. The house in which the meetings will be held was purchased by the S. Dacre Bushes last fall. They have made their summer home in New Hampshire for a few seasons.

The Wenham Village Improvement society held its June meeting last Friday in the Town hall.

It is easier to reform a man than to keep him reformed.

THE opening day of the "Tabby Cat and the Tea Kettle" tea house at Wenham will be Monday, June 12th. This tea house has always been popular with men and a cordial greeting is extended to them. The following well known ladies have each assumed the care of one day a week throughout the season and will be there to welcome and serve strangers as well as old friends: Monday—Mrs. William Trowt, Miss A. Wilkins and Mrs. John Wallace; Tuesday—Mrs. Harry Pratt McKean, Jr., Mrs. Charles D. Sias, Mrs. Frank A. Magee; Wednesday—Mrs. Josiah Gifford, Mrs. J. B. Pickett; Thursday—Mrs. Elbridge Anderson, Mrs. William H. Coolidge, Jr; Friday—Mrs. Edward B. Cole, Miss May Burnham; Saturday—Miss Helen C. Burnham, Mrs. B. H. Tracy, Miss Ruth Cole. An added attraction this year will be classes in hand-work which will meet during the morning. There will be classes in darning of filèt net, Italian cut work, basket work and other work. The tea house promises to be a popular and busy social center for the North Shore colonies.

HAMILTON is looking forward to one of the busiest seasons ever known. Never before have so many of the big estates been kept open as have been during the past winter. Especially interesting have been the week-end parties that enjoyed the winter sports over Topsfield way and on and around the George Burroughs extensive place, "Green Meadows," on the Topsfield road. Mr. and Mrs. Burroughs have been settled in their home for the season for some time, as have also the Alanson L. Daniels on their Wenham estate. Among others who have opened their homes for the season are the Frederic Winthrops, who arrived at "Groton House" this week from their Boston home. Recent arrivals are also Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Rand Thomas (Gertrude S. Fabyan), who had the S. Dacre Bush place, "Windacre," last year. This year they are in the Reginald C. Robbins place, "Lone Tree Farm," delightfully located in Hamilton near the Myopia Club.

ington, who have occupied various homes on the North Shore, last season being in the Robbins place in Hamilton, have purchased the S. Dacre Bush place for a permanent summer home. Very extensive additions have been made to the house which is one of the most attractively located of the Hamilton homes, standing near the Myopia Club, and not far from the "Four Corners," the home of the George S. Mrs. Meyer accompanied Mr. Meyer to the convention in Chicago this week. The George von L. Meyer, Jrs., are now in their summer home, "Longmeadow," near the Meyer home.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Vaughan of Salem are now in their home on Gardner street. Their son, Gordon C. Vaughan, who was married last season, is occupying one of the Vaughan cottages. Another of the Vaughan houses is occupied this season by the Gerard Bements, who were of the Beverly Farms colony last summer, and another by the Alvin Sortwells, formerly of the Manchester year-round colony.

Bradley W. Palmer of Boston has kept his Topsfield home open most of the winter and has made frequent trips to it during the time.

There will be a reception at Candlewood Farm, the summer home of Miss Mason's brother, Herbert W. Mason. The wedding takes place at 3 in the afternoon.

Wm. H. Vickery of 17 W. 42d st., New York city, is about to arrive at Beverly Farms for the summer after a very busy season. As a ladies' hairdresser Mr. Vickery has no peer. He is well known among the most select class of people not only in New York, but in Paris and London. He has been coming to the North Shore for a number of years. He makes a specialty of the permanent wave, and has the newest permanent undulating apparatus, which is portable.

BAKER'S ISLAND, which is some four miles distant from the city of Salem proper, to which it belongs, and only two miles off the Manchester shore, contains 55 acres, of which five acres on the northerly side is owned by the United States Government. The island is conceded to be one of the most inviting along the New England coast for residence, especially in the summer.

There are now 52 cottages on the island, which were appraised with sites by the assessors last year at $75,000. Without question the property is worth more than the assessors determined. The owners, however, contend that it is not a matter of value of property or taxes levied, provided the Municipal Government manifested any inclination to provide improvements, as in other sections of Salem. There is not an accepted street or sidewalk on the island. Without police or fire protection, no lights, sewers or water supply, it appears to property owners that the island is neglected.

Another matter is the maintenance and care of the steamboat wharf. Some claim that the Federal Government might co-operate, as the pier is of use to the Lighthouse Department.

Last year the City Government paid $100 for a constable on the island. This official performed duty faithfully, but transferred his salary to the Baker's Island Improvement Association, and the money was used toward putting the wharf in repair.

Already 15 cottages are occupied for the season, the families including those of George F. Newcomb of Salem, Charles Barron of Lowell, Alfred Long of Belmont, Henry Newcomb of New York, Samuel J. Foston of West Acton and Fred Stiles. The subpostal station will open June 15 with Sherman Burnham of Essex in charge.

Dudley Pickman, Jr., was ill and was not able to be at the wedding of Miss Gertrude Helen Schirmer to William Rodman Fay, which took place in New York on Wednesday. His place as best man was taken by the groom's brother, Joseph S. Fay of Boston.

Building Operations and Improvements Along the Marblehead-Swampscott Shore

Peach's Point Colony Gains Two Residences

WILLIAM T. ALDRICH, whose winter home is in Hereford street, Boston, is to have a fine summer residence in the Peach's Point section of Marblehead, and the house is now well along in construction, from plans by Mr. Aldrich's own firm of Boston architects, Bellows & Aldrich. The J. W. Bishop Company, Boston, is doing the work. The house is of the comfortable farmhouse type, the large main part having an L which is notably in keeping with the old-time look of country houses. The house faces a forecourt of big size, reached by a new, long avenue with retaining wall, all of which, together with terraces on the water side, has involved much work in blasting, grading and the like. It has been done by the J. H. Linehan Construction Company of Pride's Crossing. The forecourt will have a picket fence of white to enclose it, such as one sees around farmhouses. A few steps alone mark the entrance, without balustrades or any ornamentation. Mr. Aldrich plans to have plenty of tall hollyhocks at each side of the entrance, with other flowers of the old-time gardens to make the terrace more attractive.

One steps directly through the simple doorway into a large living room, low studded, like all the rest of the house. It is panelled to the ceiling and is provided with a fireplace of ample size. It extends from the forecourt to the water side, and opens there upon a terrace overlooking the Salem and Beverly shores. The dining-room, a spacious place, affords the same views as the living room. The hall is not large and the stairway is simple in its Colonial treatment. At one end, the house contains a guest suite of a bedroom, bath, dressing and trunk room. The second floor has a long hall overlooking the forecourt, and from this all the various chambers lead, with connecting baths. They are comfortably arranged rooms, simple in finish. The owner's suite is well planned and it connects with a balcony which may be converted into a sleeping porch, if desired. A nursery, rooms for children and for a nurse have been conveniently arranged. The windows, with numerous small panes, make possible much sunshine for all rooms. Wonderfully fine views in many directions may be had.

The L reaches out from the main part like an old-fashioned arched woodshed, in its appearance, and it contains a complete service department, with rooms also for the maids. In the house the finish everywhere is old-time and all visible hardware is of ancient look. It represents careful study on Mr. Aldrich's part of old-time houses in Salem, Marblehead and elsewhere.

A terrace of stone foundation and covered porch on the water side make possible extended views across to the Salem and Beverly shores. Mr. and Mrs. Aldrich in their new home will be next to the summer residence of Mrs. Aldrich's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Davenport of Beacon street, Boston, and singularly their Marblehead home also is on Beacon street. Mrs. Aldrich was, previous to her marriage, Miss Dorothea Davenport. Eventually a garage probably will be built at the foot of the hill, where the driveway leads from Beacon street, for joint use by Mr. Davenport and Mr. Aldrich. Plans made for it show a long, low building for this purpose, with accommodations for four cars, a work shop, washroom and other modern equipment, as well as a man's room.

Replaces House Destroyed by Fire

TO replace the house of Mrs. C. F. Walcott, on Peach's Point in Marblehead, which was destroyed by fire, a new one has been built from plans by Bellows & Aldrich, the Boston architects. It is of a simple, country style, such as one sees upon the highway in many places, and it has been built for occupancy by Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Weston (Anstiss Walcott) of Cambridge. It is of two and a half stories, with oiled broad clapboard exterior finish. The entrance is directly upon a stairway leading to an upper level. On the outside there is a stairway of brick construction leading to a terrace of the same, forming a means of entering upon the level of the main rooms. This has been built especially to connect with a bachelor's suite in the wing of the house, in which are three bedrooms and a bath. In the main part are the dining room with fireplace and a large living room with brick tiled floor. Both open upon a covered veranda on the water side of the house. The dining room, laundry, etc., are in the basement. Four master's bedrooms and two baths make up the second floor, with rooms in the L for maids. Considerable work on the grounds has been done. The house is nearing completion by A. Hathaway Company, Boston.

At Beach Bluff and Nearby Clifton

SOME small changes have been made on the residence of J. T. Wetherald, Beach Bluff avenue, at Beach Bluff, whereby the house will be of more interest to the occupants and more comfortable than in the past. It has been built for many years. A high brick wall on the avenue and extending around to the roadway opposite the railroad station at this point has been constructed. The wall shows, in part, a wooden balustrade. Although there is a stable on the estate, the wall seemingly provides no gateway entrance wide enough to admit an automobile or vehicle.

Just off of Atlantic avenue at Clifton, a small cottage has been built for Mrs. Edith S. Partridge, of Brookline, near other cottages which she owns at that place. It is suggestive of a Swiss chalet, both in its type and its exterior finish of brown-stained, broad shingles and green shutters and its overhanging roof. It provides a living room, small hall and dining room and service rooms, with several second-story bedrooms and bath. It is an excellent example of small-sized cottage, planned for comfort. The plans were made for Mrs. Partridge by Harland A. Perkins, a Boston architect.

Phillips Beach House a Year in Construction

ATLANTIC avenue in the Phillips Beach section of Swampscott continues to grow in its colony of houses for summer occupancy, and a notable addition to the group will be the house at the corner of Atlantic and Ocean avenues, in process of building for Maurice J. Curran, a business man of Boston and New York, who has a fine winter residence in Andover. His new house at Phillips Beach has been planned by Boston architects, Peare & Quiner, and it will be, when completed, of imposing appearance. Its style is an adaptation from the English residences of the Georgian period, and it will be of Danvers water-struck brick for its exterior finish. The brick will be laid "Flemish bond." The house is to be of three stories with hip roof, its lines broken by dormer windows. A semi-circular portico will be marked by double columns and a balustrade finish. All windows will be of Colonial design, with circular tops having carved heads. Trellises will occupy wall spaces between windows. Small panes and shutters will mark the windows.

The interior will be substantially built, with all bearing partitions of steel construction. From the vestibule there will be a big living hall, square in shape, with a double stairway meeting on a landing with a Paladian window, over the front entrance. Ionic columns will lend interest to the treatment of the stairway. The lower floor will contain a large living room extending from the front to the rear of the house, a spacious dining-room, the end of which is a broad bay window, a billiard room and den, all equipped with fireplaces, as well as a breakfast room, glass enclosed, with green tiled floor, and a sun porch with plastered walls and trellises. The living room, hall and dining-room will have panelled walls to the ceiling, in white finish, and the den and billiard room will be similarly finished in mahogany. The usual service portion will be especially convenient in its plan.

On the second floor there will be seven master's bedrooms, each with a fireplace and with connecting dressing rooms and baths, which include showers, also a maid's room, sewing room and linen room. There is to be a sleeping porch from one of the bedrooms. The third floor will provide five rooms and two baths for use of maids, a big storage room and an unfinished attic.

Exterior work includes a terrace with brick pavement and grass borders from which brick steps will lead to lawns on a lower level. A garage of brick to correspond to the house also is a part of the plan. It will provide space for four cars, with a twenty-foot washstand, a turntable, repair room and a room and bath for a chauffeur. Work has been begun on the foundations for the garage and that on the house has progressed well on the first floor. It is not expected that the house will be finished and ready for occupancy till about a year from this time. The work of construction is in the hands of W. A. & H. A. Root, Inc., of Boston.

An extension built upon the R. M. Kimball residence on Atlantic avenue gives the owner a fine, spacious living room which greatly adds to the appearance of the interior. There have been other changes, yet of minor importance, carried out by J. T. Wilson & Son, Inc., of Nahant.

MARBLEHEAD NECK.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Peabody of 120 Commonwealth ave., Boston, have opened their beautiful residence "The Old Anchor" for the season. Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Putnam and charming daughter Dorothy of Melrose are registered at the Oceanside, Marblehead Neck, for the month of June.

An interesting honeymoon party at the Oceanside for the past week were Mr. and Mrs. John H. Porter of Denver, Colorado. Mrs. Porter was formerly Louise Cooks Kugeler, a prominent society girl of Denver, and her marriage to Mr. Porter was a most brilliant event several weeks ago.

The Richard J. Salters of Boston have opened their Kimball street residence at the Neck for the summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Dane of East Orange, N. J., have enlarged their summer estate on Kimball street by the purchase of the western adjoining lot to their premises. This acquisition will be an added attraction to their already beautiful home.

The new stucco residence which is being erected for the A. J. Walkers of Brookline on Follett street is fast nearing completion and will soon be ready for occupancy.

Among the early summer residents who have opened their summer houses at the Neck are Mr. and Mrs. Oscar A. Shephard of Boston.

The William G. Barkers of Salem have opened up their artistic summer home on Lighthouse Point.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick McQuesten of Brookline have opened their lovely summer home "Questenmere" at the Neck. This beautiful estate is more attractive than ever with its spacious lawns and beds of spring and summer blossoms.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick McQuesten of "Questenmere" entertained Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Warren of Norton and their three charming daughters the Misses Katherine, Priscilla and Juliette over the week-end. Dr. Warren is a nephew of Mrs. McQuesten and a professor of Wheaton College. Miss Katherine Warren is a talented violinist and is studying at the Conservatory of Music of Boston. Miss Hilda Violet Cherry of Boise City, Idaho, also a student at the Conservatory, completed the very delightful over-Sunday party.

Miss M. Corinne Dana of the Tuileries, Boston, is among the week's arrivals at Marblehead Neck. She moved into the Burlen cottage, off Harbor avenue, yesterday for the summer. Miss Isabelle Reed of "The Charlesview," Boston, will pass the summer with Miss Dana.

MARBLEHEAD NECK is entering upon the biggest summer season in its history says Mr. Gardner Sleeper of the Eastern Yacht Club. All yachts and crafts are engaged for the summer and reservations for rooms at the club have been made away in advance of other years. All hail to the yachtsmen! And it is hoped that Mr. Sleeper's optimistic predictions will prove true double-fold.

The Edwin Arthur Shumans of Boston, with their interesting family, are at their Marblehead Neck home for the summer. Mrs. Shuman was tendered a delightful dinner at the Vendome, Boston, Monday by the members of the Philomatheia Club, of which she is president. Mrs. John A. Kiggen of Hyde Park furnished decorations of American Beauty roses. In the centre of the parlor was a large basket of American Beauty roses, which was later presented to Mrs. Shuman by Mrs. Kiggen. Seated at the president's table were Very Rev. Charles W. Lyons, S. J., rector of the Church of The Immaculate Conception; Rev. Michael Jessup, S. J., of the same church, and Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald, who were among the guests. An entertainment under the direction of Mrs. John B. Whelton including orchestral music, and vocal selections by Miss Maude Murray, Mrs. Katherine M. McCormack, soprano, and Signor Virginio Cappaloni, baritone. A gold rosary was given the president by the club, Mrs. Martha Moore Avery making the presentation speech, and extolling Mrs. Shuman for her zealous efforts in forwarding the aims of the club. Mrs. Shuman made a graceful response, and addresses by Fr. Lyons and Fr. Jessup followed. Among those who contributed to the success of the affair were Mrs. John A. Kiggen, Mrs. Thomas F. Atkinson, Mrs. H. V. Cunningham, Mrs. W. H. Ruddick, Mrs. David Corcoran, Mrs. Edward J. Brandon, Mrs. James T. Scollay, Mrs. James H. Carney, Mrs. John B. Whelton and Mrs. John P. Feeney, who were chairmen of various committees assisted by the remainder of the members.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Stephenson of Boston have engaged the Corinthian Yacht Club cottage near the clubhouse for the season and will take up their abode there about the 25th of June.

Mr. P. J. Mullen, the genial steward at the Corinthian Yacht Club, Marblehead Neck, is making elaborate preparations for a dinner to be given at the clubhouse in the near future by the Boston Paper Trade. About one hundred members of this well-known organization will be present.

Paul Crocker of Fitchburg, who has lived at the Corinthian Yacht club for several years, has opened his new bungalow, the "Spindle," at the Neck for the summer.

There is one talent that is common to all humanity, and that is the one for doing something foolish from time to time.

BEACH BLUFF has a very bright outlook for the summer. Perhaps at no other point along the famous North Shore is the scenic beauty more delightful and pleasing. Nature's moods are keenly expressed at this particular spot, when the weather is calm hardly a ripple is discerned on the tranquil summer sea, yet when the storm approaches the waves dash high, impressively high, with a seething sound. A very beautiful sight is the boiling ocean after the storm has subsided, which brings many people to the shore to enjoy the picture.

The Hotel Preston, so charmingly situated on the Bluff, will open officially on Tuesday, June 20th. Mr.

Sherrard's efficient management of this popular hostelry has won for it a long consecutive yearly patronage, and reservations are indeed heavy for the coming summer months. Quite a few new patrons will be seen at the hotel, and life on Beach Bluff will be fuller than ever before.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Fitzpatrick of Brookine with their attractive family have opened their artistic home on Beach Bluff ave. So also have the Elisha W. Cobbs of Boston come down to their summer home on Atlantic ave. for the season, which, no doubt, will be pleasant news to their many friends along the North Shore.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Williams, who make the Somerset, Boston, their winter home, have returned to their summer residence on Atlantic ave., Beach Bluff.

There may be sermons in stones, but you don't get them out by stubbing your toe.

SWAMPSCOTT'S beautiful and widely known hostelry the New Ocean House will be opened with great festivity on June 14th when the General Federation of Women's clubs will hold a convention at the hotel. Several other conventions will follow including the New Engand Bankers' and the Massachusetts Druggists Association. Everything points to a most brilliant season; reservations for the whole season as well as for shorter periods are many.

Never has Swampscott been more attractive to the eye. The splendid estates and pretty cottages with their beautiful lawns and spacious grounds are made more pleasing by the great profusion of late spring and early summer flowers. Particularly lovely are the beds of Darwin tulips which adorn the entrance to the charming home of the Lew C. Hills on Puritan Road.

The Tedesco Country Club is fast becoming the rendezvous of the sports loving people of the North Shore. Each day brings a greater number of golfers and tennis enthusiasts, and the links and courts at the club present a gay and festive appearance. Many private parties are being arranged and the social calendar is filled to overflowing for the summer days nearly here.

"Rock Lodge," the summer home of the Julius C. Morses on Puritan road, has been undergoing a great amount of remodelling and is now assuming an appearance of completion. The Morses will soon take up their summer abode at their attractive home.

The Bond residence, "Peace Haven," on Puritan rd., Swampscott, will be occupied this summer by William E. Schrafft and family of Boston, who formerly occupied the Denton cottage at Beach Bluff.

The George Mixters of Brimmer st., Boston, have opened their pretty home, "The Acorn," at Galloupe's Point; so too have Dr. and Mrs. Charles Galloupe Mixter opened "Bowood" which will bring life and attractiveness to the Point.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ward of Lawrence, are again at their summer residence on Tupelo rd. for the summer, with their charming children, Florence G. and Richard Ward, Jr.

The trouble with tidal waves is that they carry off as much as they bring in.

MARBLEHEAD is fast filling up with her summer residents and guests, each incoming train brings city folks down for the summer at the seashore, and their many traps and baggage give the station a busy look. The school term not having been completed, as yet, in a great many of the cities, and the uncertainty of the weather have kept many from an earlier season, but things are now stirring and the prediction is that Marblehead will have the best and busiest summer that it has ever had.

The Rock-Mere hotel is open and many guests have come, some for the season, others for a shorter period. The senior class of girls from Bradford Academy at Bradford, Mass., made things quite lively at the hotel last week-end. They visited every nook and corner of the old, historic town and departed Monday afternoon after a most enjoyable over-Sunday visit, and with many words of praise for the hospitality of the Rock-Mere.

The Massachusetts Library Club is holding its Marblehead and Beverly meeting at the Rock-Mere, beginning Thursday and concluding Saturday afternoon. William D. T. Trefrey, President of the Board of Trustees at the Abbott Public Library, made the address of welcome at the meeting held in the ball-room. A large number were present and many remarks made pertaining to literature. J. Randolph Coolidge, Jr., President of the Massachusetts Library Club, and Trustee of the Boston Athenæum was present. Friday afternoon Dr. and Mrs. Harris P. Mosher entertained the club at their beautiful residence "The Moorings" on Front street, at tea. Players from Boston Symphony orchestra furnished music at the Rock-Mere each evening for dancing which was thoroughly enjoyed by the club. Plans have been made to visit the aviation field of W. Starling Burgess Saturday morning, and an invitation has been extended to the club to tea at the home of the Misses Katherine P. and Louisa Loring at Pride's Crossing Saturday afternoon, which will bring to a close the most successful meeting of the club for a number of years.

Among the guests at the Rock-Mere are Mr. and Mrs. Swan, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Kurk Pollock, Paris, France; Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Wing, Athol; Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Smith, Athol; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Higgins, Worcester; Dr. and Mrs. C. T. Whitney, New Bedford; J. O. Paulding, New Bedford; A. H. Ellis, New Bedford; Mrs. A. S. Joscelyn, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Skinner, Boston; Mrs. Robert S. Minot, Dover, Mass.; W. W. Manning, Dover, Mass.; Mrs. J. J. Fisher, John J. Mitchell, Miss Alice G. Walsh, all of Pittsburg, Pa.; Dr. Grant Stewart and Mrs. Stewart, Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Adams, Boston; Miss Adams, Sharon, Pa.; Miss McKeefrey, Leetonia, Ohio; Mrs. A. B. Sprague, Worcester; Miss Alice A. Sprague, Worcester; Miss Emma L. Prentice, Worcester; Mrs. R. Abbie Bates, Providence, R. I.

The King Hooper Mansion with its antiques and afternoon tea room will open on June 17th, and will be in charge of Mrs. Lillian M. Crowe, under whose efficient management the mansion has been for several years. The King Hooper mansion is one of the sight-seeing places of Marblehead, and its rooms are filled with antiques and curios each and every piece with a quaint and historic story.

One of the largest real estate deals on the North Shore was consummated recently, when the big water front mansion of Ex-Congressman Sloat T. Fassett of Elmira, N. Y., located at Grape Vine Cove, was sold to James S. Farrell of Albany, N. Y., through the McEachern agency. Mr. Farrell and his family occupied "Felsenmeer," the Fassett estate last season, when the latter family was in California. The Farrells became very much attached to the place. The idea of the purchasing of the place came suddenly it seems as Mr. Fassett had an extensive addition made to the garage the past winter. It is reported that the estate sold for $250,000. Mr. Farrell is a yachting enthusiast and is a member of the Gloucester Yacht club. He is a wealthy cement dealer and treasurer of a leading New York paper.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffries Wyman and son, Jeffries Wyman, Jr., of Wellesley Hills, annual summer residents of East Gloucester for many years are at one of the cottages on the Wonson estate, near the Gate Lodge.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Burt and Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Garrettson of Springfield, are stopping at The Mailman House, Eastern Point.

The Fairview hotel has over fifteen guests. Among those settled at this pioneer hostelry for the season are Mrs. John K. Robinson and family of Flushington, N. Y., Mrs. Robinson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis G. Farmer of Boston, also guests at the Fairview.

Mrs. W. O. Trowbridge and daugther, Miss Marion Trowbridge are Bostonians registered at the Fairview.

And the Commencement Speakers at Harvard this year will be telling their grand-children that the first time the Commencement exercises were held in the Stadium they "took part"; i. e., if it does not rain Commencement day; and then, perhaps, they will say the last time the Commencement was held in Old Sanders Theatre grandfather had a Commencement part.

The Young People of the Evangelical churches enrolled in the Christian Endeavor societies of the Salem Christian Endeavor Union will enjoy the day next Saturday as the guests of the Manchester societies. Manchester has enjoyed the advantages of Tuck's Point and has had the pleasure of sharing its hospitalities with its neighbors.

In Haverhill an Insane Man entered the fruit store and began to bombard the customers with oranges, apples and such other fruit as he could seize. If a man is insane who bombards innocent spectators with fruit, what shall be said of the man who bombards with shrapnel, liquid fire and poisonous gas?

Louis Brandies was sworn in and has already begun his service on the Supreme Court of the United States. His appointment aroused bitter opposition and for awhile his confirmation was in doubt. His confirmation is a strategic victory for the President.

Ira D. Landrith Predicts that America will be saloon-less in ten years and consequently in twenty years the world will be saloon-less. There is a great campaign on and there is no doubting the fact that the movement is growing phenomenally.

The Film Strategists moved their batteries to Manchester last Friday, took up their positions in a favorable spot in Calderwood's boat-yard and captured pictures of the Tech. barge. Manchester will be on the map in the movies for a week or two.

A Bowdoin Graduate has given a large sum of money to his Alma Mater for the construction of a modern infirmary. One of the pleasant features of the Commencement season is the news of such items telling of the loyalty of the graduates of colleges.

The Preparedness Spirit seems to be "catching." The movement was begun by Captain Gardner and has already gained a momentum that is astonishing. Now Lowell is to follow the spirit with a monster parade.

The Good News Comes from Washington that the board of engineers for rivers and harbors has voted to recommend the expenditure of seven million dollars in the improvement of the Merrimac River from Lowell to the sea. The vast advantage that this enterprise will mean to Lowell and the other river cities is apparent. America has only just begun its great work of river and harbor improvement. This enterprise will make a good beginning. The improvements have already been too long delayed.

Dr. Cabot Has Been "speaking out in meeting" about the short-comings of his profession and there is some talk that the Massachusetts Medical Society, at least the council of that organziation, plans to censure him for his speeches. Is it a violation of ethics to speak the truth? But then a prophet is usually without honor in his own country! It isn't likely that Dr. Cabot is worried much by the proposed "discipline."

A New Era in Water Travel between Boston and New York has begun. The Cape Cod Canal is now being used by an all-the-way-by-water route company and has shortened the trip materially, making it possible for the boat to leave Boston later and arrive in New York earlier. The advantages of the Canal are more and more evident.

The President of China, Yuan Chi Kai is dead, and under suspicious circumstances. China, the nation still uncivilized, seems to have its governmental problems and settles them in questionable ways. These are indeed troublous times. There are wars and rumors of wars and disaster from all the ends of the earth.

While You Are Enjoying the peace and comfort of a delightful June it will be well to remember the tornado swept districts of Missouri and Mississippi. Massachusetts has all kinds of weather in a week, but it is the place to live.

A Civilian Would Have Thought that the Hampshire would have been given an adequate naval protection. It is evident that the British government took a chance and lost. It was an expensive miscalculation.

The Baseball Season has begun and the "fans" are enjoying the Saturday afternoon games. The Manchester team has made a good beginning and they may be expected to maintain their standard of clean playing.

Portland is Having an "investigation" all its own. What a pity that men of such alleged dishonesty can be elected to positions of trust and responsibility!

The Season Has Been Somewhat late and gardeners have been handicapped by the scarcity of labor, but progress is being made against odds.

The North Shore is to enjoy a year of unusual prosperity. Almost all of the available estates have been rented,—and this speaks for itself.

The Largest Naval Battle ever fought upon the high seas has taken place. The early reports seemed to indicate that Germany had badly battered the English fleet and had retired. The later reports changed the apparent comparative results of the encounter. The sligat losses of the Germans constantly increased until there is ample reason now to believe that the tonnage losses were about equal. The battle, however, was not a "great" battle, for it was not a decisive victory. Technically the British won because they drove the German fleet to seek the refuge of their base, but strategically the German navy added somewhat to its prestige. The only results of the war are the losses made by England and Germany. Comparatively speaking, Great Britain can stand these losses better than can Germany. What Britian has is comparatively greater than what Germany still has left. Britain still holds the mastery of the sea and the embargo upon Germany is still tight and Germany cannot break through. The fight was desperately waged, but it has amounted only to a German raid. The British Admiralty was remiss in permitting the early erroneous reports of the German government to obtain currency without refutation. Here German publicity efficiency scored a psychological victory. As far as the battle is concerned the German gains were the losses sustained by the British navy and these losses were purchased at a very heavy price, the tonnage of her own that was sunk. The war goes on.

The Death of Kitchener by drowning is a stunning blow to the English people and a distinct loss to the Allied cause. The Hampshire, an old vessel unworthy of a position in the line, was conveying the master strategist on an important military errand. His mission must have been an important one to have required his own personal attention. A small affair could have been assigned to an under-officer. Kitchener's loss will be felt not alone because of his military ability and leadership, but because the immediate plans which were in hand have been frustrated. It is not difficult to see that the mission was an important one. Kitchener's place will be a hard one to fill, but the General died in the line of duty on an important mission. He died a soldier's death with a soldier's heroism. England's work must go on and the mantle of authority and leadership must fall upon other shoulders. The men pass on, but the terrific contest goes on, trying men's souls. The occasion demands heroism, sacrifice and ability. It is pessimism of the deepest dye to believe that England that produced Kitchener cannot raise another leader of power and popularity and skill.

The Politicians and Citizens are awaiting the verdict of the convention in Chicago this week with unusual interest. This is true not alone of the republician and progressive parties, but also of the democratic party. For it is already known that Wilson will lead the democratic party; but who will lead the opposition against him in the Presidential contest? The progressive party seems inclined to await the decision of the republicans and to unite with them in their nomination. This may give the republican nominee the nominations of the progressive and the republican parties. If such a united nomination is given to a candidate the democratic party must realize that there will be a severe contest on. If there is a weak candidate nominated by the republicans and the progressives can nominate a man strong enough "to draw votes" from the older party, the President in addition to the prestige of already being the President, will find it easier to win the victory with the progressive and republican parties at variance than if they are united in their support of a strong candidate.

The Price of War

"We must have men," the rulers yell,
"To ram our guns with shot and shell;
Ten hundred million heads or more
To act as targets in the war."
And out of every rank and file
The best men muster by the pile,
And whether they would fight or no,
Must hurry out to meet the foe.
They may be marching to their fates,—
To get lead bullets in their pates;—
They may be shot in twenty parts,
With twenty kinds of guns and darts;
But they must leave their shops and stores
And hang "For Rent" signs on their doors—
And they must leave their happy homes
With thoughts of killing in their domes.
They could not give a reason why
They scurry forth to kill and die—
Except that they must serve their flag
As long as they can crawl or drag.
But when they win or come home licked—
If they be bent or badly nicked—
There is no government can yield
The limbs they left upon the field.
It may be worth some legs and paws
To battle for a worthy cause,
But when the struggle has no aim,
It seems a needless costly shame.

The Telegraphers Have Begun to ballot upon the question of striking for more wages. They demand an increase of ten percent. The railroad company conceded an increase of ten cents per day, but the Union appears unwilling to compromise. Few people realize the seriousness of the threatened strikes and the results that may follow in America if the threats are executed. According to the Annual Report of the Highway Safety League the year ending June 30, 1915, was a period unusual in the history of transportation. The spread of the "safety first" idea brought about a sharp decline in the number of railroad fatalities. Not in nineteen years had fewer passengers been killed nor in seventeen years fewer employes. Yet last year the railroads carried 93 percent more passengers than in 1896 and employed 106 percent more men than in 1898. In contrast to this improved condition the automobile statistics are discouraging. In one year the deaths from auto accidents increased 28 percent and the injuries increased 54 percent. Of course the deaths have not kept pace with the increased registration of automobiles, but are still out of all proportion to past figures. Remedial legislation is suggested by the league, including the placing of cases of highway law violation in the hands of the Highway Commission for adjudication.

Two Important American Anniversaries are observed next week. On Wednesday, June 14, the 139th anniversary of the birth of the flag of the United States will be marked by ceremonies appropriate to the occasion. Particularly the school children will take pride in their little observances of the day and they will be the most active of any of us in its celebration. On this year of all years when pleas for patriotism are so prevalent there should be a closer observance of our national holidays. Everyone should display his national emblem upon his home and wear the colors on that day. The second holiday of the week falls on Saturday, June 17, and is the anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill. While observed more especially in New England the day has a national significance.

Manchester and Beverly Lose heavily because of the new Corporation Franchise Bill, Beverly losing upwards of $23,000 and Manchester $13,000.

The First Contingent at this season's training camp at Plattsburg went into quarters this week. Although greeted by severe rain storms the men went sturdily at their task of drilling under the supervsion of U. S. army officers. The men at the present camp will remain until July 2 when they will disband to give place for the junior division. The junior division, which includes young men between 18 and 21 who are college undergraduates, high school graduates or graduates in 1916 of colleges or universities, will be in camp from July 5 until August 8. The third camp will be of the senior division between July 12 and August 8. A fourth camp of the senior division will be held between August 10 and September 6. The last senior camp will be held from Sept. 8 to Oct. 5. All men who are able to take the training are being urged to get in touch with the officer in charge of the military training camps, Governor's Island, N. Y., or some of the many recuiting committees of civilians.

A Movement for Preparedness in which women can play an important part is the formation of units, columns and chapters as a part of state divisions of an auxiliary body of women to the National Security League. The Pennsylvania Women's division for National Preparedness recently organized is headed by Mrs. W. Harry Brown of Pittsburg and Beverly. Women from all walks of life are urged to join the movement. It is proposed to so thoroughly organize the women of the country that in event of war they would be ready to render effective aid in those lines in which women can best assist. A surgical department is engaged in making dressings, some of which are sent to France and a certain portion reserved for use in emergency in this country.

The North Shore Babies Hospital Tag Day was a success thanks to the liberality of the public, the skilful planning of the directors and the enthusiastic work of the boys and girls who sold the tags.

The incidents of the first voyage of Technology barge, "Bucentaur," are preserved in the form of a log kept by Rev. A. G. Warner of Manchester. The following entries were made: "June 7, 1916, 9.23 a. m., picked up by towboat, 'Eveleth' of Gloucester; 9.55 a. m., passed Marblehead Light; 10.25 a. m., passed 'Roaring Bull' bell buoy; 10.50 a. m., passed Egg Rock; 11.15 a. m., passed Graves' Light; 11.30 a. m., sighted Deer Island Light; 11.35 a. m., received salute from passing yacht, 'Santanta,' Osborne Howes; 12.25 p. m., dropped tow of 'Eveleth'; 12.55 p. m., taken in tow by tugs, 'Edwin L. Pillsbury' and 'William Clark,' escorted by police patrol boat; 2.52 p. m., anchored Charles River Basin near new Technology buildings." As the vessel will make but one other voyage, in all probability, the "log" will remain an unique record.

As many motorists have found, there still exists much of the old prejudice against the automobile among a certain class of farmers. This is probably due to the destruction of their domestic animals upon the highways. The average motorist deplores these accidents of the road which detract much from the pleasure of a trip. In many cases the owner of the property has the mistaken idea that the motorist is liable for unavoidable accidents of this kind. It must be shown he was careless and negligent in the sense that he failed to act as an ordinarily prudent man would act under similar circumstances, in order to prove his liability. Also the owner must show that he himself was free from contributory fault in caring for his property. The owner of an unlicensed dog has no redress if his animal is killed. In the case of cattle, sheep, horses, etc., which have the right to travel upon the highway the motorist is liable for injury to them unless the owner has been negligent in allowing them unlawfully at large. Whether liable or not, the motorist should always remember that he must stop and make himself known after an accident of any nature. It is not enough to give, or to pause while another reads and copies the registration number of the machine. He must stop, discover the owner if possible and give his name and address. Unable to locate the owner he should notify the local police. In Massachusetts the motorist must also serve written notice on the Highway Commission.

"You admit you overheard the quarrel between the defendant and his wife?" "Yis, sor, I do." stoutly maintained the witness. "Tell the court, if you can, what he seemed to be doing." "He seemed to be doin' the listening."—Argonaut.

JUDY O'GRADY'S PAGE

Fashion and Household Suggestions

FOR THE COLONEL'S LADY

The Lovely Brides of June

LAST week Judy promised her readers that this week's space should be devoted to a talk about the "little" things that fill so large a place in a bride's trousseau and to leave the discussion of the gown for another time, but this merry month of June is being crowded to overflowing with weddings and lovely brides cannot let the weeks slip away. So much, moreover, depends upon the type of bridal gown that is chosen that Judy will try to describe some of the really beautiful gowns and accessories that the fashionable modistes are showing.

The typical wedding frock this season is of heavy white stuff, perhaps brocade. The neck will be modestly (O, very modestly!) low, with, possibly, a little collar of lace in the back. Mother's or grandmother's wedding lace may be thus used in order to keep the value of sentimental association without destroying the characteristics of the gown, as may be the case when the old laces, beautiful in themselves, are used for the veil. The plain, rather close fitting bodice will have its greatest beauty in its sleeves, which will be long and full and of chiffon or tulle. The skirt will be full and rather short with, if the lady wishes, a very long, square train of satin. If the dress is quite, quite short a petticoat of white tulle hangs below. This tulle petticoat may have a covering of lace, and the sleeves may be veiled with lace.

Almost more important than the gown itself is the veil, for that will make or mar the picturesqueness of the bride more than any other one thing. A lace veil, although beautiful, will not prove so becoming as the tulle veil. The typical veil that all brides will love and that most of them will choose, is of misty white tulle, very full and long and bound about the head with orange blossoms. One beautiful bride recently wore a straighter veil, bound about the head with a crown of upstanding white wheat. Another had clouds of unconfined tulle veiling the orange blossoms in her hair.

As for jewels—not any! Or if there must be jewels, let them be unostentatious, simply made. Pearls are more beautiful than any other jewels, in spite of the fact that so many brides wear diamonds! Costume jewelry is having a vogue now and the clever woman may find or have designed for her really distinctive pieces for her wedding.

Keep Cool

MORE than anything else in the consideration of being comfortable in the hot, summer months is the problem of keeping cool; and clever planning is necessary for the housekeeper to bring this about, especially if she not only plans for her household, but carries out her plans. Last week Judy talked about the advantages of the porch as a summer living room as a means for keeping cool, and this week she will tell about ways of serving food in coolness and comfort and give a few good recipes for hot weather.

Simple food should be the slogan of every housekeeper in the summer months, not only for her own comfort, but also for the good of her family's health. Stomachs need different supplies in the warm weather when physical activities are likely to be less vigorous. Hot, heavy dinners are less appealing to the appetite and are much more of a burden to the housewife than simple, cool meals attractively served. This does not mean that a family can get along without cooking, but it does mean that those things which will be at once nourishing and appetising may be cooked at the most advantageous times and made to do for several meals. This method will do away with the wasting of energy attendant upon preparing a hot meal for a large family. The woman who is also her own maid must plan to do the greater part of her cooking early in the day. Her luncheon and dinner must be at least partly under way if she is to have even a semblance of enjoyment of the meal after she has prepared it.

Following is an excellent day's menu for a June day:

Breakfast

Red Raspberries with Cream
Cold Ham, sliced thin Creamed Potatoes
Toasted Muffins Coffee

Luncheon

Salmon Timbals, Hollandaise Sauce
Grapefruit Salad
Bread and Butter Sandwiches
Lemon Jelly with Cream
Tea Cookies

William Haskell accompanied the barge in a motor launch and assisted in shifting the lines for the tugs. Owing to the height of the barge the lines had to be handled through the rowing apertures. Three motor boats were used in moving the barge down the harbor to the point where the tug took it in tow. A swell from a passing steamer tore away one of the ornamental panels as the barge entered Boston harbor.

MANCHESTER BROTHERHOOD

Rev. W. B. Whitney, Chaplin of Charlestown State Prison, Tells of Prison Life.

THERE was an attendance of 107 at the meeting of the Manchester Brotherhood in the Manchetser Baptist church vestry last Monday evening when Rev. W. B. Whitney, chaplain of the state prison at Charlestown, gave an illustrated lecture on the institution. In his introduction Mr. Whitney told of his wandering about Manchester in the afternoon, visiting points of interest. He said that after a visit to Singing Beach and several of the beautiful estates on Smith's Point he enquired about the location of the churches. After looking them over he spied the little white chapel-like structure near Town hall and enquired what church it was. He said that he felt quite at home when he found that it was Manchester's police station.

The care of the criminal and the prevention of crime costs in America between four and five hundred million dollars annually, Mr. Whitney said, and in Massachusetts alone there is spent, because of crime, each year a sum of about $8,000,000. The speaker told of the methods of dealing with violators of the law in the past and of the growth of the juvenile courts, the probation system, etc. First offenders are no longer confined with hardened criminals for a short sentence. He spoke of the work of Thomas Mott Osborne, warden of Sing Sing prison in New York and said whatever might have been the success or failure of Mr. Osborne he had shown that there was need of new methods in dealing with prison inmates.

In Massachusetts there are 177,000 arrests in a year and the problem of handling that number of prisoners would be a difficult one if it were not for the probation and parole systems in operation. Out of all the prisoners paroled less than 10 percent ever come back to the institutions because of a second offense.

Rev. Mr. Whitney paid a warm tribute to his co-worker at the prison, Rev. Fr. Murphy. He said that the Catholic clergyman, who is a young man, was of great assistance to him when he first came to the institution and is doing a splendid work for the prisoners.

Views of the interior and exterior of the Charlestown Prison were shown by means of the stereopticon. The prison has a school, a library, a correspondence school department, a shoe factory, employing 300 men and making shoes for all of the state institutions and for outside sale, a clothing shop, a factory for making stockings, and a brush factory. The prison has a band of 25 pieces, which plays at the Sunday services, and a choir of 30 voices.

The cell of the famous "lifer," Jesse Pomeroy, was shown. His solitary confinement is not so arduous as might appear from some comments. Views of the death chamber and of the electric chair were shown. The speaker said that the electric chair was the most humane method of capital punishment and he is evidently not in favor of its abolition. The Charlestown prison has several baseball teams and for the past 34 years baseball has been a form of recreation allowed prisoners. Other institutions have recently exploited their baseball teams as something new. The two leading teams are the "Red Sox" and the "Braves." Other teams, which the prisoners have named themselves, are the "Yaps" and the "Wops." The "Lifers" and the "Coons" are other teams in the prison league.

Rev. Mr. Whitney urged his audience to stand ready to assist if at any time prison reform legislation came up. He said Massachusetts institutions were not the best in many respects, but were far ahead of those of New York state.

Refreshments of crackers and cheese and cocoa were served following the lecture. It was voted by the Brotherhood to leave to the directors the selection of a date for the annual picnic at Tuck's Point.

CAUGHT CHECK WORKER

Whoever advised Sam Mindick, alias "Morris Cohen," alias "H. Levin," to try out the seashore town of Manchester as a good spot to work off worthless checks, was a poor guesser. Sam, who is a gentleman of Jewish extraction, and about 18 years of age, tried to influence Walter Bell to accept one of his checks in payment for a perfectly good pair of shoes last Saturday afternoon. When he did not succeed in getting the shoes, the young man decided that a square meal, or several such, was what he wanted so he called at Valentine & Leach's market and tried to get rid of a check for twenty-five dollars in payment for $8 worth of chickens and other eatables. The latter check was made out to Cohen and in the presence of Mr. Valentine he endorsed it in that name. It bore the signature of H. Levin. He also tried to pass checks at Allen's Drug store and E. A. Lethbridge's. His actions were reported to the police by Mr. Valentine and Chief Sullivan questioned him, getting him as he was about to leave town on the 1.30 train for other more fertile fields. At first Chief Sullivan was inclinded to believe the story told by the young man, but some of the answers set the chief thinking and he took Mindick into custody. At first he said his name was Cohen and that he had been employed in Beverly, but later admitted that his name was Mindick. A cousin by the name of Mendick in Boston was notified and on Sunday he came to Manchester and bailed the young man. Judge Quill of Beverly fixed his bond at $500.

On Monday Chief Sullivan made a trip to Boston and investigated the young man's stories. He found that several Boston banks were looking for him and that the Boston police also wanted him. Photographs of the young man taken in Manchester after his arrest were identified by detectives as a youth wanted in Detroit

Tuesday morning the case of the young man was called in Salem District court, but he failed to put in an appearance and his bail was forfeited. The police expect to have him again in a few days. Boston police congratulated Chief Sullivan upon his catch and told him the youth was one of a gang of check workers operating in Boston and vicinity.

AS TO MUSIC AT OUR BAND CONCERTS.

Editor North Shore Breeze:—

In a recent issue I read a letter which criticised the apparent repetition of music at our Band Concerts from year to year and sometimes from concert to concert. It occurred to me that perhaps the repetitions were not noticed by the leader of that splendid band with which Manchester is favored on summer nights. The Salem Cadet Band is much in demand in the summer and the frequency of its engagements make it necessary to repeat some of the selections. I spoke of the matter to a member of that popular band the other day and he told me what I had already guessed. He said there was no intent to repeat the same selections in a town at successive concerts except by request and suggested that the matter be called to the attention of the leader, Jean Missud. If your correspondent will write as frankly to Mr. Missud as he did to you I am sure he will have the pleasure during the coming summer of hearing not only a greater variety of fine music, but some of the selections he may himself prefer. I, with him and hundreds of other residents of Manchester, look forward to the resumption of our concerts, than which I believe no town can boast better. —MANCHESTERITE.

ALUMNI REUNION.

Alumni of Story High School, Manchester, and their guests enjoyed a delightful evening's entertainment in Town hall last evening. A program of unusual merit was furnished as a prelude to the dancing. It opened with a selection, "Firefly Galop," by Carey's orchestra which was followed by a reading, "The Husband's Holiday," by Miss Lila Goldsmith. The next number, "Winter Song," was by Roland H. Knight, who sang "Shipmates O'Mine" in response to an encore. A xylophone solo, "Lucia D'Lammermoor," by J. Carey Martin was greatly appreciated. Mrs. Isabella Stidstone gave an humorous reading, "Mrs. McDuffy at the Ball Game," in an entertaining manner. A quartet, composed of Mrs. Raymond C. Allen, Mrs. Abbott Hoare, Mrs. Frank Bullock and Mrs. F. C. Rand, sang "Little Papoose."

The next part of the program proved to be a surprising feature to part of the gathering and was really the most interesting part of the evening. In a speech, expressing the esteem and high regard of the graduates of Story High School, Harry R. Floyd presented the retiring Principal Alfred L. Saben with a bronze statue representing "Peace." Mr. Saben expressed his appreciation of the gift and the spirit shown. Mr. Saben has been principal of Story High School for the past 17 years and this year declined re-election.

Mrs. Raymond C. Allen sang, "Sing Me to Sleep," in a pleasing manner and for an encore sang "The Kerry Dance." An orchestral selection, "Sweet Cider Time,," concluded the program. Ice-cream was served during the intermission and dancing followed. While the attendance was not as great as had been hoped those who attended had a most enjoyable time.

SAILORS DEFEATED

MANCHESTER BASEBALL TEAM OUTCLASSED NINE FROM BATTLESHIP NEW YORK ON SATURDAY.

The much-heralded champions of the Atlantic Fleet, the nine from the Battleship New York, stationed in Rockport harbor, went down to defeat before the baffling curves of Manchester's southpaw, Grover, in the game in Manchester last Saturday afternoon. While backing up Grover with an almost perfect defense the Manchester team also fell upon the delivery of three sailor twirlers with a vengeance, securing 10 hits and 7 runs. The "tars" picked five scattered hits from the leavings of Grover's delivery, but were unable to get a man around the circuit. Fifteen of the sailor boys fanned the air in an effort to connect with Grover's elusive twirling.

Ney, the pitcher who started the game for the sailors, was responsible for most of the scoring of the Manchester team. After allowing a tally in the first inning, two in the second and two more in the fifth, he retired in favor of Bentley who lasted out half of the fifth. Langner, who tried his hand in the sixth, had no better luck.

A large delegation of sailors from the vessels in Rockport harbor accompanied their team to Manchester. A goat and a fawn, which two of the sailors brought along, furnished a little side attraction to the game, the former wandering about in the outfield during the game.

Strand Theatre, Lynn.

Next week's programs at the Strand theatre, Lynn, will be notable in many respects. This is especially true of the feature photoplays for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday for it is seldom that on one program are brought together high salaried screen stars of such prominence as Fannie Ward, Francis X. Bushman and Charlie Chaplin. On the last three days of the week will be featured Robert Warwick in "Sudden Riches" one of the very few seven-act pictures yet produced in screen form.

Miss Ward will be starred in the five-part Paramount production of "The Gutter Magdalene" and those who have admired her work in other screen plays will have no occasion for disappointment in this latest release. The picture has been expensively produced and the photography is said to be a revelation for its brilliancy and clean-cut detail.

WENHAM

It is possible that some Wenham boys may have an opportunity to be at Plattsburg this summer.

Tonight the Y. P. S. C. E. hold their monthly business meeting in the form of a picnic and campfire.

An exact $1,000.00 is the amount earned by the various circles of the Wenham Village Improvement society during the winter toward the cost of the new tea house. Besides the money gain, there has been an increase of sociability in town; and many people now feel that they "have a stake" in the new building. The tea house will have a private opening for members on Saturday, June 10, and will open for business the following Monday.

Children's day will be observed at the Congregational church on Sunday both morning and evening. In the morning the minister, Rev. F. M. Cutler, will deliver an illustrated object sermon of especial interest to children on the theme, "Removing the Blots from our Record." At 4 p. m., there will be a Sunday School concert entitled "The Builders." Sunday School at noon. All the customary evening meetings will be combined in the four o'clock concert service.

Last week's session of the local scout committee established a new record as regards the amount of business transacted. Six boys were examined and admitted to tenderfoot rank—Walter F. Ames, Jasper S. Brown, Roger B. Haszard, Charles O. Killam, George W. Merrill, and William H. Stone. Three boys were given searching examination, and advanced to the first class of scoutcraft—Joseph Hilyard, Norman D. Hilyard, and L. Warren Sawyer. Eight merit badges were awarded, as follows: John Cannon, marksmanship, Samuel S. Conary, swimming; Joseph Hilyard, craftsmanship; Arthur Landers, craftsmanship, first aid and marksmanship; L. Warren Sawyer, marksmanship and swimming. Besides these, various boys were refused advancement, or were advanced conditionally.

Dinner

Tomato Soup
Cold, Sliced Tenderloin of Beef
Baked Potatoes
Lettuce with French Dressing
Hot Blueberry Cake Strawberries
Coffee (Iced)

This menu not only is made up of foods suited to the hot weather, but may be prepared with a minimum of labor. The day's order should be as follows: Let us presuppose the potatoes for breakfast to have been left over from the day before. The hot things for breakfast, then, are only the coffee and the cream sauce in which the diced potatoes are to be heated. While making the coffee, make enough to be served iced, for dinner. The toasting of the muffins will require but a moment, on the electric toaster and may even be toasted at the table. After breakfast prepare the salmon for the luncheon timbals, get the grapefruit and lettuce ready for the grapefruit salad, roast the beef for dinner, and make the lemon jelly from prepared gelatine. Luncheon is then practically prepared except for the making of the Hollandaise sauce and the tea. At night, when dinner is to be prepared there remains only the baking of the potatoes and the mixing and cooking of the blueberry cake. Canned tomato soup needs only to be heated.

Following is the rule for a delicious grapefruit salad, which does not call for lettuce, however: Take out the pulp of one, good sized grapefruit, saving the juice. Shred very fine one head crisp endive. Put all together in a salad bowl and dress with 2 tablespoonfuls oil, 2 tablespoonfuls sugar, and salt and pepper to taste. Toss and mix well. If desired, a little lemon juice may be added.

B. F. Keith's Theatre.

Henrietta Crosman, one of the most distinguished and cleverest comediennes on the American stage, will head the bill at B. F. Keith's Theatre the week of June 12th, presenting for the first time in Boston her newest comedy success, "Cousin Eleanor." This is a brilliant and amusing comedy of the type with which Miss Crosman has been identified upon the legitimate stage, and brimful of laughs and witty lines that make it sparkle like a diamond. Miss Crosman is supported by a large and capable company of players, and "Cousin Eleanor" is said to be one of the best things of its kind ever offered in vaudeville. The surrounding bill abounds in star attractions. Long Tack Sam and his great troupe of Oriental Wonder Workers, will be one of the big spectacular features, and Jack E. Gardner, the musical comedy favorite, will appear in his newest act.

Boston Theatre.

Marguerite Snow, daintiest of all motion picture stars, and William Nish, will head the bill offered at the Boston Theatre the week of June 12, appearing exclusively at the Boston Theatre for the first time in this city in "Notorious Gallagher," or "His Great Triumph," a brand-new five-part picture production abounding in thrills and surprises. Miss Snow has one of the most charming and delightful roles that she has ever played, and Mr. Nish has a powerful role as "Notorious Gallagher."

Old Time Cabinet Makers of the North Shore

By HELENE SHERMAN

IN the 18th century there flourished in all New England an industry known as cabinet-making, now fast becoming but a memory. Along what is now called the North Shore, cabinet-makers were especially expert and many names associated with the thrift and enterprise of long ago have been preserved, reminders of the days of 1837, when in Manchester alone there were 12 manufactories of strictly hand-made cabinet ware, employing 120 men. Still later, in 1865, 160 men were employed in Manchester, and $60,000 was the invested capital.

As is well known along the Shore, the name of Moses Dodge "led all the rest," as cabinet-maker de luxe of his time. He began work in 1775 and this work is still carried on by his descendants, Melville and Charles Dodge. Another whose products exemplified good taste and thorough work was Ebeneezer Tappan, born in 1761, the son of a Revolutionary soldier. Then followed others almost equally good,—Caleb Knowlton, who was in Manchester previous to 1808. Among the others who came into prominence as time went on was John Perry Allen, who had worked for Caleb Knowlton before the war of 1812 and, when the "troublesome times" led Mr. Knowlton to retire from this seaboard town, had set up business for himself. He was a man of great initiative and wisdom. At one time, in order to increase his business, he took a voyage from Boston to Manchester, carrying with him two mahogany bureaus which "bureaus he did find a ready sale for at a large profit, but which he hopeth not too large in the eyes of the Lord." Mr. Allen died in 1875 in his 80th year. He is spoken of as a leader of men and a man of great force of character.

Lynn, Salem, Marblehead, Ipswich, Gloucester, Wenham and other towns contributed their names of cabinet-makers who were prominent in these early days. Some of the cabinet-makers of the Shore moved South in order to settle there and to spread the knowledge of cabinet-making. Thus, we find the following advertisement which appeared in the South Carolina Gazette of November 2, 1874: "This is to give notice that Mr. Charles Warham, joiner, late from Boston, New England, maketh all sorts of Tables, Chests, Chests of Drawers, Desks, Book-cases, etc.; also Coffins of the newest fashion never as yet made in Charlestown."

Among others we find the following which will be recognized by many: Lynn was the home of John Davis, 1703; Thomas Burrage, 1718; Thomas Burrage, his son, 1751; Timothy Harvard, 1764. Jonathan Johnson was a chairmaker of Lynn, who attained great repute before his death in 1751. Joseph Symonds plied his trade in old Lynn in 1769 and John Young in 1773. Lemmon Beadle was a wood carver in Lynn in 1717, while Benjamin Gray was a chairmaker.

Newbury, or Newburyport, sheltered Francis Halliday in 1767. Jeremiah Pearson and Spindelow Morrison lived and worked there in 1768, Parker Titcomb in 1762, Samuel Long in 1774. Moses Bayley made Newburyport his home in 1778 and his furniture was of more than ordinary excellence. Others from the quaint old town were Daniel Harris, 1752; John Harris, 1767; Sewall Short, 1773; Oliver Moody, 1775, and his son, Oliver, 1776, chairmakers.

The Old Mill on Elm St., Manchester, where Rust & Marshall Established Their Cabinet-Making Business in 1872, Installing Steam Power. This Building is now Used by Roberts & Hoare, Builders.

Rust & Marshall's Old Cabinet-Shop on Town Landing, Manchester, Burned in 1871—Located Where Police Station and Western End of Town Hall Now Stand.

Beverly records the names of John Corning, 1734; Joshua Besson, 1750; and Benjamin Jones, 1776.

John Tyler was a Gloucester cabinet-maker and was, perhaps, the foremost on Cape Ann in 1767, although Jonathan Goodhue in 1770 also took an active part in the industry with remarkable success.

The following are names of the prominent cabinet-makers in Ipswich of those times: Thomas Dennis, 1703; his son, Thomas Dennis, 1706; John Brown, 1746; William Caldwell, 1759. There was, also, another John Brown in Ipswich in 1758. Bernsley Wells worked in Ipswich at the same period and both were cabinet-makers of great merit.

Marblehead cabinet-makers included Samuel Goodwin, 1729; Matthew Severett, 1745; Samuel Striker and Michael Bowden, 1762; Joseph Potter, 1768; Francis Cook, 1762; Job Trask, 1780. Thomas Laskey, 1761, and Benjamin Klaskey, 1778, were chairmakers.

Prominent among others in Salem whose work has perpetuated their names were James Symonds, 1714; Joseph Allen, 1740; John Lander, 1757; Deacon Miles Ward and Joseph Gavet, 1765.

While many of the products of the early days of cabinet-making were intended for and suitable only for the simple needs of the yoemanry of that time, many beautiful and lasting articles have withstood the blight of years and to this day they stand in many palatial homes, not only of Massachusetts, but of other states. An incident showing that the furniture of that day was sent far and wide through the country, occurred during the heated secessional days and, while it was amusing, it might well have been serious.

It is related that some of the furniture found a ready market in the South, especially New Orleans, from which city it was shipped up the Mississippi and thence to the portion of the country then known as the "great West." On the occasion in mind pages of "The Liberator" were used to wrap the furniture and these pages were blown about the streets of New Orleans by an unkind wind that arose at unpacking time. The incendiary pages of this combustible New England paper very nearly set fire to the emotions of the men of the most sensitive part of the slave-holding South and the packers were warned, we are told, that, if they hoped to find a further market for their goods in the Crescent City, an entirely different type of wrapping must be substituted for the paper filled with the writings of the abolitionists of the day.

The furniture that was shipped to the South was of the cheaper grade and little of it is left to commemorate the period. Of a different type is the somewnat roughly made, but substantial table of the celebrated fortune teller of Lynn, Moll Pitcher. It is made with falling leaves, carbriole legs and hoof feet. It may be seen at the Essex Institute, where the courteous attendants are only too willing to tell visitors the story of the little table that stands in one of their alcoves. It was at this table, we are told, that Mistress Pitcher sat while receiving her clients. We picture her sitting there for hours at a time, divining by tea the fate of the men and women of rich and poor alike, who came by hundreds and in sober earnest for her augury. Few vessels set out upon the seas without first obtaining Molly Pitcher's advice. In 1760 she was married to Robert Pitcher and she died in 1813. She was buried in Lynn, where she had lived for so many years. (For a detailed account of the life of Moll Pitcher, see "Legends of the North Shore," in some future issue of the BREEZE.)

In those primitive days, cabinet-makers combined glazing with their better beloved work, as for instance Thomas Waldron of Marblehead, who advertised "Window Frames, Chairs and 30 Feet of Glass."

The even tenor of the cabinet-making era pursued its way unmolested for many years. Then, came the great gold fever in 1849 in California which lasted many years and lured many New England citizens to seek this new El Dorado. Some went by the Isthmus, some around Cape Horn, some succeeded in crossing the plains, but many left their bones to bleach upon the sands of the desert. The Civil War, too, played its dreary part in ending the cabinet-making period, for it closed the Southern market to the New England manufacturers. Then, after the war, the blight from which the North Shore manufacturers never recovered, came, for their small shops could not compete with the great factories of the West, but some few articles of fine workmanship are still turned out. Of late, however, the new idea, such as Grand Rapids furniture, has to a great extent replaced the precious handmade goods.

Old time thrift and enterprise seem but a myth to those who for fashion and for pleasure seek these romantic Shores.

(We are indebted to the Manchester Cricket for the loan of the two pictures used with this article.—Ed.)

War Notes.

XIV.

A lack Of preparation,
Neglect or hesitation,
Invites attack.

We fight our battles but in vain
If future good answer not present pain.

Some must be wrong, some must be right,
Right may triumph and so may might;
There's always an underdog in the fight.

Religion is a potent force
That makes for character,
But in man's nature there are depths
That only war may stir.

You smite me on the cheek
I am not angry yet.
You smite the other cheek—
You surely will regret!
I have sufficient sense
To make my own defense.

The cruellest war the world affords
Is not the fight that is fought with swords.
Whatever, wherever, the eye may scan,
It sees the warfare of man with man,
Till the world's hard lesson of pain and loss
We learn at last at the foot of the cross.

—J. A. Torrey.

A VISIT to the store of the Webber Company in Town House square, Salem, is a revelation of the smartest and the last word in fashionable wearing apparel for milady. Particularly true is this of the sport clothes for the summer season of 1916. What is more appealing to the hearts of the feminine than pretty sport clothes, unless it be more pretty sport clotnes. They can be found at Webber's in a distinctive and alluring array. Here we find a charming display of the separate skirts, so fashionable this season, in a great variety of stripes and checks, in both silks and tub fabrics. Beautiful sport coats in Kayser silks, chinchillas, the new brushed wool cloths, which are very chic, also corduroys; charming creations in sport dresses in the combinations of Kayser silk coats in stripes and plain colors and white skirts of kool kah'ki cloths, very distinctive; the always good linen sport dresses in every color combination, as well as white; the simple and girlish goose girl dresses of linen in the empire style with pockets on the skirt with goose designs; also linen and voile dresses, in white and colors, making "something new." Last and by no means least are the pongee dresses, about which, for style and durability, little need be said. Here we find every conceivable combination of the natural color with green, pink, blue, etc. Then for girls who like more dainty dresses we find the adorable dimities and muslins in quaint and old fashioned designs of very delicate color tones. There are beautiful sweaters in angora, shetland wool, silk fibre and silk and wool mixtures in colors to please milady's fancy. Then, too, a great variety of middy blouses in silks and tub fabrics, as well as Russian and Corsack blouses for the girl who enjoys "solid comfort."

"Don't the bonds of matrimony interest you?"

"They might if they paid a cash dividend."—Boston Transcript.

Gardens at "Uplands" Among Most Beautiful on North Shore

RARE beauty has been added to the North Shore by the Frank Pierce Fraziers of New York in the little spot of old Japan that they have created at "Uplands," their West Manchester estate on Highland ave.

No other place on the Shore is so admirably adapted to the setting of a Japanese garden as this place. The large green house standing high upon a rocky ledge, the long slope upon which the garden has been made at the foot, and the beautiful garden below which leads out to the public highway, all unite in forming an harmonious whole in which this little foreign spot uniquely fits.

Work was begun upon the spot last November immediately after the Fraziers had completed their six months stay upon the Shore. The rock in the hillside was blasted and used again in the creation of the artistic water basins, ferneries and other ornamentations. Nestling on the hillside at the upper part of the garden is the tea house, a truly Japanese-looking affair built of cedar. A tall cedar tree was growing in the way of the tea house so Mr. Frazier kindly had the house built around it, and its solid trunk is a natural ornament in one side of the little house. Rugs, tables and Japanese lights will brighten the place in which there will be no more ideal spot for afternoon tea imaginable. From this tea house the long stretch down the hill, over the rustic basins, the Japanese plants and on through the long grape arbor and the rose arbor beyond form an entrancing picture, for which the immense willow trees and little pond are a fitting background.

The Japanese plants are imported. The garden comprises about two acres on the hillside and among the striking plants are the red Japanese maples, the fernleaf maple, the pink prunus, the azalia, lilies, floating hyacinths in the little ponds, and many others of rare beauty. No particular color scheme is attempted, but the flowers are planted to give mass effects of color. The white and yellow laburnam is very showy at this season. A continous bloom will be kept up all summer by the skilful planting of flowers of different stages of blooming. The viola is one of the pretty woodsy-looking little flowers growing among the rocks and is an exclusive production. Many small evergreens have been planted through the garden and on up to the house, which is reached by a newly laid slab walk. At the right of the garden is a former rock garden which has been greatly enlarged and will be still further enlarged this coming winter. The hose is kept constantly playing upon the hillside, where the soil is despairingly thin, and nothing but the hardiest of native forestry has grown.

An interesting bird basin has been made under the recently built large terrace at the house. Vines and plants are so arranged as to give a most natural appearance of growth around it, and water never had a more realistic trickling than that which fills the basin for North Shore robins. Gold fish will be placed in the garden basins later.

Down in the garden proper, the long grape arbor makes a striking appearance. It is built of gas pipes and covered on one side by white grapes and on the other by black grapes. By skilful management grapes are made to grow from the ground all the way up to the tip of the vines on top of the arbor. A similar arbor has been constructed this season on the near-by estate of Walter D. Denégre.

Particular care is taken on the Frazier grounds to keep the water running in all of the various artificial basins. The water from each runs through pipes into a little stream which leads off to the beach.

Mr. Frazier exercises special care in this matter because it is through his efforts and those of Mr. Denégre of "Villa Crest," who is at the head of the association, that a campaign to clear the North Shore of the mosquito pest is being waged.

The efficient gardener at "Uplands" is William Judd, who, since he left Scotland, has had charge of noted gardens in this country. At Newport he did special work in the garden of the Astors, Vanderbilts, J. T. Burden and Com. James. At the latter place he had charge of a noted blue garden. He has started one this season at "Uplands," which is already showing many blue flowers of unusual beauty and will be watched with keen interest by North Shore folk interested in the unique in flower culture this summer. His hot house productions of vegetables have also been very noteworthy at the horticultural shows in Manchester.

Wedding Bells Ring on North Shore These Days

THE WEDDING in the Church of the Ascension in Ipswich, Thursday afternoon at three o'clock, of Miss Miriam Mason and Franklin Hunt Trumbull, was one of wide interest to the North Shore. Miss Mason is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer B. Mason, who lived in Manchester, in the house now occupied by the Boylston A. Beals. She has made her home with her brother, Austin B. Mason of Boston and Cohasset. Mr. Trumbull, Harvard '14, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Trumbull of Salem. Miss Mason was given in marriage by her brother, Dr. M. Phillips Mason of Brookline, and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Alexander Mann, rector of Trinity, and the Rev. Mr. Parker, rector of the Ipswich church. Miss Mason wore a gown of white satin trimmed in rare old family lace. The long tulle veil was held in place with the traditional orange blossoms. A bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley was carried by the bride. She had no bridesmaids, her only attendants being her two little nieces, Miss Eleanor Mason, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mason, and Miss Harriet Mason, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mason, who acted as flower girls. They were dressed in white and wore large pink hats and carried old-fashioned bouquets of forget-me-nots and pink roses. The church was done in pink gladioli around the altar. Pink and white flowers were used in the color scheme at the Herbert Mason house where a reception took place following the ceremony. The large living room with its exquisite furnishings in rose and cream damask against the white and gray walls with the decorations of pink and white flowers made a charming place for the couple to receive in. Walter H. Trumbull, Jr., Harvard '15, attended his brother as best man. The ushers were James C. Trumbull, Salem; Leverett Saltonstall, George Aspinwall, Chestnut Hill; Richard M. Russell, Arthur Beane, Cambridge; Russell Kettell, Lexington; Randolph Boyle, Louisville, Ky.; Charles E. Mason, Boston; Henry De Ford, Brookline; Lyneham Crocker, Salem; W. A. Barron, Jr., Newburyport.

At Candlewood Farm, the home of the Herbert Masons in Ipswich, where the reception took place, the beautiful terrace in the rear of the house was used as an assemblage for the guests around the tea tables. Music was given by a stringed orchestra. The relatives present were Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Trumbull of Salem, parents of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sutton of Salem; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Russell of Pride's Crossing, relativzes of the groom; the bride's aunts, Miss S. D. Mason of Boston, Mrs. J. B. Seabury of Wellesley Hills; her brothers and sister-in-laws, Mrs. Charles Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mason and Mr. and Mrs. Phillips Mason of Boston. Among the distinguished gathering of relatives and friends were Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Warren of Essex; Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Warren, Pride's Crossing; the various members of the Appleton families of "Appleton Farms," Ipswich; Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Crane, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Augustus N. Rantoul, Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Searle and Miss Corinna Searle, the Bayard Tuckermans and Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., Mrs. C. S. Tuckerman, all of Ipswich. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Alley and the John A. Tuckermans were among the guests from Hamilton. Mr. Trumbull and his bride will live in Wayland.

MANCHESTER was the scene of a wedding Wednesday of unusual beauty and simplicity when Miss Helen Lancashire, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. Henry Lancashire of Boston and New York, became the bride of Umberto M. Coletti of New York. The ceremony was performed at 12.30 by the Rev. Dr. Alexander Mann of Trinity Church, Boston, in the beautiful and spacious hall of "Graftonwood," the Lancashire home on Dana's Beach. The bride wore a simple gown of white satin, trimmed in pearl embroidery. The sleeves were long and flowing, reaching nearly to the bottom of the skirt and were of tulle. The low cut dress, train and plain tulle veil bound with a wreath of orange blossoms gave a touch of dignified simplicity peculiarly suited to Miss Lancashire's type of beauty. She carried a spray of white jasmine. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Lila Lancashire, who wore white organdie with touches of pink and carried pink ramblers. The hall was decorated in pink roses and the mantle before which the wedding took place was a charming background of the ramblers. The best man was Ernesto Fabbri of New York and the ushers were Alessandro Fabbri of New York, E. Laurence White of Beverly Farms, who is a son-in-law of the Lancashires, and the bride's brother, Ammi W. Lancashire.

The study of vocal music in Paris for several winters has been one of the pursuits of the bride, who is also accomplished in nursing, having been abroad when the war broke out, and upon returning to New York studied nursing and has since spent some time in Europe as a nurse. Her elder sister is Mrs. E. Laurence White of Beverly Farms. Mr. Coletti is managing director of the Italian Immigration society in New York where they will make their home.

A reception followed the ceremony. Among the guests were a large number of New York friends, including Mrs. Coletti and Miss Coletti, mother and sister of the groom; Miss Aldrich, Mrs. Wm. H. Brevoort and Miss Brevoort, Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, Mrs. Herman Frasch, Lieut. Lamar R. Leahy, Mr. and Mrs. George G. THE wedding of Miss Phyllis Sears to Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., next week will close the remarkable series of North Shore weddings of this season. Society will then be looking forward to later weddings. Among which are those of Miss Corinna Searle to Harold D. Walker; Miss Marie Dallas Agassiz to Cornelius Conway Felton; Miss Louise McAllister to Nevil Ford; Miss Caroline W. Foster to Theodore Sizer; Miss Christine Snelling to Loring Wilkins Coleman; Miss Margaret Stackpole to George C. Cutler; Miss Constance Jackson to Wilfred Shrigley.

MRS. JAMES MCMILLAN of "Eaglehead," Manchester, has been entertaining an interesting bridal couple this week. On Monday Mr. and Mrs. Steuart Lansing Pittman (Doris McMillan) of Detroit, Mich., arrived at the home of her grandmother. The young couple were married Saturday, June 3, in Christ Church, Detroit. The wedding was one of the most conspicuous and fashionable social happenings of the season and is of interest to a wide circle of friends not only in Detroit and on the North Shore, but throughout the east. Her maid of honor was Miss Elizabeth Muir. A reception followed at the Gros Point home of the bride's brother, James Thayer McMillan. Miss McMillan was presented last December at a ball at the Hotel Pontchartrain, given by Mr. and Mrs. James Thayer McMillan, and was the guest of honor at a function at the Country club, given by her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Philip H. McMillan. Miss Katherine Remick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome H. Remick, who spent last summer in Magnolia, was a sister debutante of the winter. Mr. Pittman, who is engaged in business in Detroit, is a son of Mrs. Home Wise of Flushing, L. I., and the late Lansing M. Pittman of Detroit. Mrs. James McMillan went to Detroit for the wedding. An enjoyable stay has been made for the young people by Mrs. McMillan and the bride's cousin, Mrs. Preston Gibson of Beverly Farms. From here they will continue their auto tour through the country.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Winsor (Hope Bancroft), will be given a reception on July 1, by Mr. Winsor's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Winsor, at their country estate in Weston. Theirs was the first North Shore wedding on the June calendar, taking place two days after that of Miss Josephine Rantoul and Henry Alexander Murray, Jr. Mr. and Mrs. Winsor are going to live in Weston, where Mr. Winsor is engaged in business. Mrs. Winsor will be greatly missed by the young folk of the North Shore where she has always been one of the most popular of the young set. This coming reception on July 1 will be attended no doubt by some of her North Shore friends who attended the delightful reception given on the lawn at "Hale Farm" after the ceremony had been performed in the little Episcopal church in Beverly. Her bridesmaids were the Misses Mary Winsor, Harriet Dexter, Penelope Parkman, Natalie Thayer, Margaret Lyman, Frances Prescott, Marie Agassiz and Elizabeth Coolidge.

THE wedding of Miss Marjory McGowan of the Manchester-Magnolia colony to Buel Wetmore of Detroit has not yet taken place. Their engagement was announced last fall at the Essex County club one evening. The McGowans will summer at Harbor Point, Mich.

North Shore society was interested in the wedding last Saturday of Miss Helen Morgan Hamilton, a granddaughter of the late J. Pierpont Morgan to Arthur Woods, police commissioner of New York. The Rt. Rev. Philip M. Rhinelander, bishop of Penn., performed the ceremony. He is an uncle to the bride, Mrs. Rhinelander (Helen Hamilton) being a sister to the bride's father. The Rhinelanders summer at Land's End, Rockport. Chalmers Wood, Jr., and Francis R. Appleton, Jr., were among the ushers.

TEA ROOMS.

"The Homestead," Manchester's new tea room and antique gift shop will open on June 24. It is located in an old historic house on Sea street, near the railroad, not far from the Brownland Cottages and the Masconomo House. It is worth a trip to Manchester just to see the old-time house, which dates back to 1775, has been used as an Inn, and at the close of the Civil War, it is said that Gen. Lee spent some time there. Four large old-fashioned beamed-ceiling rooms have been fitted up as tea rooms with antique furnishings, which are also for sale. Each room has an outside door and can be used conveniently for private parties. Two large chambers above, each with an open fireplace and other old-time fixtures, will prove an admirable place for week-end parties. Open fires brighten the tea rooms below. The Quaker room and the blue and white room with its exquisitely carved woodwork are of special interest. Mrs. Jack Silver has made a dainty harmonious whole out of the old place with dainty touches and the rare old treasures she has gathered and arranged in the place. It cannot fail to be an added and appreciated spot to the North Shore tourists and colonies this summer.

The "Sign of the Crane" tea house opens Saturday in the quaint red Queen Anne house opposite the historic old cemetery at the edge of the village of Manchester. The house is cool and restful and has a screened, shady porch and a summer house, for special parties, perched high upon the rocks overlooking the sea. At the "Sign of the Crane" you can get the sort of things you want. Among them being lobster luncheons; home-made foods done by cooks who specialize; candy for children and grown-ups, made by an expert; Sign of the Kettle chocolates; Boston Educational and Industrial Union cakes and among other things of interest smart gifts including cretonne bags, antiques and hand-made colonial rugs from Ye Burnham House in Ipswich.

Puritan tea house at Montserrat station is entering upon busy days. This is a noted gathering place for Beverly and Salem residents. A party of seven Beverly teachers gave a luncheon this week for one of their number who will leave their ranks owing to an engagement. Mrs. Walter Perry of Beverly gave a luncheon for 20. Mrs. Melville Woodbury and Mrs. L. L. Woodberry of Beverly entertained 40 friends at cards and tea.

OCEANSIDE HOTEL
MAGNOLIA

THE OCEANSIDE HOTEL at Magnolia with its many cottages will open formally for the summer at luncheon on June 17th, will all indications of a very brilliant season, judging from the reservations which have been made, and which are coming in every day, the unpropitious weather having little effect upon the ardor of the summer people. In addition to the list of the season guests which has been already published in the NORTH SHORE BREEZE, a number of others have made reservations, many of whom will arrive on the opening day. The list includes Mrs. E. M. Binney, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Warner, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Stratton, Boston; Miss Mary F. Mellon, Morristown, N. J.; Dr. D. O. King, Auburn, R. I.; Mrs. C. F Berwind and Miss Irene Cramp, Aldine Hotel, Philadelphia; Miss Helen L. Coates, Philadelphia; Mrs. E. R. Catherwood, Philadelphia; Mrs. James McLean, New York; Mrs. George P. Slade, New York; Mrs. S. H. Hobart, Boston; Mrs. Edward Frothingham Wyman, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Sicherich and family, Brooklyn; Mrs. Chester Guild, Hotel Vendome, Boston.

Mrs. T. Shaw Safe of Newport, R. I., with a large party of friends will arrive at the Oceanside Saturday for a few weeks' stay, then taking their departure for the Maine woods for a camping expedition.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sicherich and family of Brooklyn, have taken the Wilkins cottage, one of the Oceanside group for the season, and will arrive in the near future.

Magnolia will finish the third week of June with her hotels open and practically all of the summer homes occupied. Never has Magnolia been more beautiful and attractive. The abundant rains of the past few weeks have made the grass, trees and flowers very lovely. The verdure is brilliantly green and fresh, which always enhances the color tones from the deepest green of the evergreens to the lighter ones of the maple. The gardens are unusually fine, too. Pansies seem to be a great favorite all along the North Shore and the conventional design flower beds filled with Heart's Ease are always notable.

Miss Grace M. Payson is stopping at the Aborn for the summer, having rented her house at Manchester Cove.

AMONG the society girls who will spend the summer at Magnolia is charming Miss Rosamond Lancaster, who with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Lancaster of Worcester, are occupying the Lee cottage on Shore road. The Lancasters were at Magnolia last year, stopping at the Oceanside and they have a host of friends in the summer colony. Miss Lancaster is a society favorite and was very much of a belle during the winter at Palm Beach, where she was entertained lavishly and did quite a bit of entertaining, also. Miss Lancaster is a very pretty and attractive girl with a very vivacious and winning manner She is a very graceful dancer and rides and plays tennis with a great amount of skill. Magnolia is pleased with the addition of Miss Lancaster to the summer colony.

Perhaps there isn't a more beautiful residence in all of Magnolia, with a more expansive view of the water than "Rockledge," the lovely home of the J. Harrington Walkers of Detroit. This fine stucco house with its red tiled roof is charmingly situated on Shore road, on the very water's edge, and the land side commands a view of the pretty rise from the sea, dotted with attractive homes of the summer colonists. Particularly fine are the tennis courts on the north east side of the house which are enclosed in a series of high, cement columns, conforming very delightfully to the architecture of the house.

The Aborn opened its doors Monday, June 12th with a number of guests, most of whom will remain throughout the summer. The hotel will be managed this summer by Mr. H. A. Haskell, whose wide experience as a hotel man, makes him a very valuable asset to this pretty and homelike hostelry at popular Magnolia. Mr. Haskell spends his winters in Florida and is assistant manager of the Tampa Bay Hotel at Tampa, one of the largest winter hotels in the south. Among the guests who have already arrived are Mrs. William F. Adams, Plymouth, N. H.; Frederick White Haskell, Worcester; Henry Haskell, Wakefield; Mrs. Marietta N. Adams, Plymouth, N. H.; George Strower, Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Carter, St. Louis; T. B. McConnell, Worcester; Miss A. W. Covel, Boston; Mrs. A. C. Clapp, Wellesley Hills, Mass.; Marcella Clapp, Wellesley Hills, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Sweet and Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, Williamsport, Pa.

MAGNOLIA is more attractive than ever before with its magnificent estates, fine roads, stately trees and beautiful lawns, set out with flower beds of the most unique and attractive designs. No detail is lost at this fine summer place; detail is carried out to the last letter. The cottages and homes are fast filling up and it will be but a few days before everything will be in full swing. Manager Walter S. Warren, Jr., of the Oceanside is exceedingly busy getting ready for the opening of the hotel, which takes place with great brilliancy, Saturday, June 17th. This splendid hostelry and its many cottages, with a country-wide reputation of the highest order, is entering upon what is optimistically hoped, and judging from the vast amount of reservations, will be the biggest and best season ever in its history.

A very charming woman is Mrs. E. B. Richardson of Norman avenue, Magnolia, who is ever welcome at all the social functions of the season, but who finds the greatest pleasure when at home with her three daughters, Helen, Elizabeth and Barbara. Mrs. Richardson has a truly gracious manner, the genuineness of her nature being felt by all who have the pleasure of her friendship, as well as those who come in contact with her.

Dr. William F. Boos and family of 374 Marlboro street, Boston, have leased the Young cottage, Fuller st., Magnolia, for their first season on the North Shore, the lease being made through the Thornberg agency of Magnolia.

Claude Kilpatrick and family of St. Louis have arrived at their attractive summer home in Magnolia.

W. Gordon McCabe, Jr., of Charleston, So. Car., has leased "Shore View," one of the Rehn cottages at Magnolia for the summer.

The Misses Covel of Boston, who have been spending the spring at their Magnolia cottage, returned to town this week, as Miss M. A. Dobbins of Philadelphia, who is again occupying the house this season, will take occupancy the latter part of this week.

"Oakes Field," at Magnolia has been opened for the summer by Mrs. F. K. M. Rehn, who makes her winter residence at the Chelsea, New York. Mrs. Rehn is accompanied by her son, F. K. Rehn, Jr.

Mrs. C. H. Bull of Quincy, Illinois, has opened her attractive house at the corner of Hesperus and Lexington aves., which is pleasant news to her many friends. She will have in her household, as formerly, Mrs. William McFadon of Quincy, Ill., Mrs. Pierpont Edwards Dutcher, who makes her winter home at Milwaukee.

The Bunley cottage has been rented to the Robert Livingstones of New York, the parents of Mrs. E. Prescott Rowe, who was Eleanor Livingstone.

The Otis Weld Richardsons of Longwood, who have occupied the Lycett cottage each summer have again opened this attractive seashore home, which is pleasant news to their host of friends along the North Shore.

Miss E. C. McVickar of Providence, who occupied the Smith homestead at Smith's Point during the summer of 1915, has leased the Malonson cottage at Magnolia, and is now occupying the pretty residence.

The Shore Road summer home of Miss E. M. Faulkner is undergoing a small amount of renovation to make ready for this charming lady's arrival from her Beacon st. home, Boston, which will be very shortly.

Our opportunities are apt to go by default unless they carry dollar signs.

NORTH SHORE society will be interested in the visit of Miss S. Uytendale Baird of Philadelphia at the home of her fiance, Harrison K. Caner, Jr. The visit will probably take place in August, the time that Mr. Caner usually takes his vacation. Miss Baird is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Baird and one of the most popular of the season's buds. She made her debut at a dansant at the Bellevue-Stratford in December, when her grandmother, Mrs. Matthew Baird, was the hostess. The Bairds have formerly spent their summers in Jamestown, but have made no definite arrangements for this season. No plans have been made for the wedding as yet. It may be some time before it takes place. Miss Baird will visit in one of the most beautiful homes in Manchester when she comes to the Caner home situated on Dana's Beach, that charming little stretch of beach between Magnolia and Singing Beach. The view from the house out on the water is exceedingly interesting, showing Dana's island, Kettle island and Coolidge's Point in one direction, and off the other way the Marblehead shores and other southern shores.

The L. P. Hollander Company of Boston and New York have opened their attractive shop at Magnolia for the season with an unusually fine display of everything for the feminine, which includes sport clothes, dresses, blouses, sport hats, evening gowns, hosiery and accessories. Special exhibits will be shown each week during the summer of millinery, gowns, men's furnishings and the like. The shop is in charge of Miss Doherty of Boston.

IPSWICH will have valued additions to its social life in the coming of Dr. and Mrs. James Marsh Jackson (Leonora Lewis) of Boston and formerly of the Beverly Farms colony. Their young daughter, Miss Eleanor Jackson, is exceedingly popular in all the sports of the younger set along the Shore. The family is already settled in the Ayer cottage, on Argilla road, occupied last summer by the Joseph P. Warners of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Crane, Jr., of Chicago arrived at their Castle Hill estate in Ipswich early last week. Mr. Crane plans to entertain the school children with a picnic on his fine beach as usual at the close of school.

Ye Rogers Manse in Ipswich is supplying a long-felt want in this delightfully quiet and exclusive little resort. Mr. and Mrs. Steven S. Townsend of 6 Newbury st., Boston, came early in June for the entire summer. Mr. Townsend is the noted musician. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Wood of Boston arrive today for their second summer at the Manse. Mr. and Mrs. Geo. L. De Blois have spent ten days at the Manse while waiting for their home on the Topsfield road to be ready for occupancy. Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Richardson of "Meadow View," Ipswich, who have let their home to the Richard Sears' of Boston are also at the Manse with their son Jerome. Their daughter, Miss Eleonora Richardson, who was presented last season at a charming garden party at her home, will join the family as soon as the term closes at a Prividence, R. I., school which she has been attending this winter. The family will stay at the Manse until July 6, when they will go to N. Sutton, N. H., for the summer. The Nathaniel S. Simpkins of Acorn st., Boston, have taken the top floor of the Manse for seven weeks, going from here to their home in Beverly Farms.

Several changes have been made in the Manse for this season. The dining room has been enlarged, nine additional rooms have been made ready for the many tourists who have been seeking the place all spring. A new porch is in construction for afternoon tea parties. Tea is also served on the large and finely shaded lawn.

Mrs. James Howe Proctor of Ipswich was a guest at the Munchinger King at Newport over last week-end.

Ogden Codman, the noted architect from New York, will again occupy "Floriana," the Peabody estate on the County road, Ipswich. This is one of the finest and most attractively planned places on the County road. Mr. Codman spent his first season there last summer. He has an extensive estate in France, but is not occupying it on account of the war.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Warner, the parents of Roger S. Warner, will occupy a remodeled house on the Wendell place, recently purchased by R. S. Warner for his new summer home in Ipswich.

Hon. C. Augustus Norwood will not occupy his home on the Mill road this season. It and the other Norwood houses which are to rent are very desirable ones in Ipswich.

The William Barretts of Chicago are among the new-comers in Ipswich, having taken the George L. De Blois house on the Topsfield road. This fine old estate has had some extensive alterations made upon it this season. Mr. and Mrs. De Blois will occupy "Sunningdale Farm," the home of Mrs. De Blois' father, the late John F. Brooks.

Mrs. Frances Mower of New York is a new-comer in Ipswich this season and is settled in the Cameron cottage on Newmarch street down near the river and water section.

Among recent arrivals in Ipswich are the Francis R. Appletons and Mrs. Daniel F. Appleton of New York, who are settled on "Appleton Farms" in their respective homes; S. S. Gray of "Heartbreak Hill"; the Herbert W Masons of Candlewood Farm; Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Phillips of New York; Dr. and Mrs. B. Robbins and Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Osgood on Argilla road; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Shurtleff, the landscape architect on Argilla road; Prof. and Mrs. C. E. A. Winslow, Argilla road. Others who have been here soemtime include the Charles Bohlens, who came directly from a pleasant sojourn at Aiken, South Carolina; Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Searle and family at "Inglisby"; the Bayard Tuckermans at "Sunswick"; Mrs. C. S. Tuckerman at "Applefield"; the Roger S. Warners on Argilla road; and Mrs. M. A. Lord of New York, also of the Argilla colony.

The Roger S. Warners of Boston are in the Jenkins cottage, occupied by them also last summer, while they are awaiting the completion of their new home on Argilla road.

Randolph Morgan Appleton, who lost his fine home in Ipswich the past winter by fire, has made his home in a small cottage on the estate during his prolonged visits in Ipswich during the winter season.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry N. Berry of 54 Nahant st., Lynn, who have occupied the William G. Thayer house at Ipswich, for the last three or four summers, have leased the Charles Bohlen estate on County Road for this season, through the office of Meredith & Grew of Boston.

All the other unpronounceables may hang their diminished heads; Crwgzvdt has arrived.

THE American Distributing Service, for which so many people along the North Shore is working indirectly through other societies, distributed during March 198,961 articles to 336 hospitals, and 2115 articles of clothing and supplies to seventy-two families or refugees. The service affords a direct means of sending contributions of money to the French hospitals and sufferers. This organization is sanctioned by the French Ministry of War, which has granted the members of the service permission to investigate all the hospitals in France (a privilege seldom given to foreigners) and the hospitals have been authorized to tell their needs to the American Distributing Service. The American Distributing Service is under the direction of Russell H. Greeley of Boston, son of Mrs. Rufus F. Greeley of the "Brownlands," Manchester.

WENHAM-HAMILTON summer colonies were out in large numbers to the opening of the new tea house, "Sign of the Tabby Cat and the Tea Kettle," located in Wenham village. The informal opening for members was last Saturday. The house committee of the Wenham Village Improvement society were the hostesses. Dainty refreshments were served to the fifty or more guests. Aside from the members the invited guests included the selectmen of Wenham, Arthur Prince, Elmer Clark and Charles McQueeney; the architect, Arthur Richardson of Boston and Salem; and the builder of the house, Herbert Porter of Wenham. Although the day was rainy the guests came early and lingered to inspect and enjoy the hospitalities of the place. On Monday the tea house was opened to the public and many of the North Shore contingent were there taking tea. Among them were Mrs. John A. Burnham and her daughters, the Misses Mary C. and Helen Burnham of Wenham; Mrs. John C. Phillips, Mrs. B. W. Currier, Mrs. Richard Palmer Waters, Mrs. Henry Pratt McKean, Jr., all of the Wenham colony; Mrs. Robert C. Winthrop of West Manchester, and among the Ipswich people were Mrs. Chas. P. Searle and Miss Corinna Searle. Mrs. Wolcott Howe Johnson of Hamilton had a table and Mrs. Houston A. Thomas of Hamilton entertained a party of eight in honor of Mrs. A. W. Rollins of Washington.

"Heaven did, my dear," said a placid matron, "and you'll find him some day, and then all this new thought nonsense of yours will cease forever."

YE BURNHAM HOUSE Tea Room on the Linebrook road, Ipswich, was opened last night with a jolly banquet and dance given by the graduating class of the Ipswich high school. The affair was in honor of Miss Emma G. Gardner, who is now retiring after teaching twenty-two years in the Ipswich high school. She was a greatly beloved teacher and highly honored and respected by the townspeople. The young folk danced on the new screened porch which is one of the many additions to the tea house this season. The class includes Ruth E. Bishop, Edna F. Bailey, Susie S. Buzzell, Louis M. Fewkes, Winfield J. Haley, Lincoln E. Hudgens, Francis B. Jewett, Beatrice Johnson, Edith H. Joyce, Eva M. Kellick, Helen B. Kelly, Karl Lange, Harold F. Lord, Annie M. McDonald, Mary K. Matheson, Caroline E. Mayes, Ruth F. Mehaffey, Clara M. Millard, Marjorie G. Morris, Myron Nason, Rebecca S. The less security you have the more easily you can borrow trouble.

THE week's engagement of interest to the North Shore is that of Miss Margaret Converse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Converse, to John Meigs Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morton Butler of Evanston, Ill. Mr. Butler graduates from Yale this year. Miss Converse comes from a family long prominent in the history of Malden, where her grandparents, Hon. and Mrs. Elisha Slade Converse, were benefactors of the place in many ways. Her aunts are Mrs. Costello C. Converse (Ida Converse of Boston and Magnolia, Mrs. Lester Leland (Frances Converse) of Boston and West Manchester, and Mrs. Willis C. Goss (Mabel Parker) of Melrose.

Miss Katherine P. Loring of Pride's Crossing, who has taken such an active interest in the welfare of the public libraries at Beverly and Beverly Farms, was elected president of the Massachusetts Library club, a state-wide organization, at the annual meeting held Saturday morning at the Unitarian parish house Beverly. The session Saturday was the last of the three days' program, with the other meetings held at Marblehead. More than 150 members attended the meeting Satuday and the program was as interesting as it was varied in its scope.

At the Myopia Hunt club last Friday evening a bachelor dinner was given Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., by forty of his men friends. The wedding of Mr. Tuckerman and Miss Phyllis Sears will take place next Tuesday. Harry Worcester Smith has sent out invitations to a luncheon in honor of Mr. Tuckerman, who is chairman of the race stewards of the Brookline Country club, and to the visiting sportsmen attending the 35th annual Brookline meeting on the 17th, the luncheon to be given the Grafton Country club on Friday, June 16, at 1 o'clock. Following the luncheon Mr. Smith, ex-master of the Westmeath club, will give an illustrated talk on hunting in Ireland, England and France. He will show pictures of the grand national of 1913; the Westmeath, "Point to Point" for the Barbour cup, and Punchestown. The Grafton Kennels will be inspected, and at 4 o'clock there will be an exhibition of the Grafton hunters at Lordvale. With the invitations is an engraved card with a cut of some of Mr. Smith's winners and a list of some of Mr. Tuckerman's victories as a gentleman rider on "Stripling."

"My dear, I never saw you looking so well."

"That is a very unkind remark, Mazie, when I am on my way to the doctor's to get him to prescribe a trip to the seashore."

New Ocean House, Swampscott

THE NEW OCEAN HOUSE at Swampscott, with its beautiful new addition "Whitehall," opened very auspiciously Thursday morning throwing wide its doors to the General Federation of Woman's Clubs which has come for its convention in Lynn.

The hotel will entertain the New England Bankers' association, following the convention of the Woman's Federation, and that will be followed by a convention by the Massachusetts State Pharmaceutical association. The hotel will open for its regular guests on Saturday, June 24th, which promises to be a brilliant affair. A great many reservations have been made for the season, many of the former season guests returning together with a long list of new guests. The hotel proper has undergone many changes and a great deal of time and effort put upon the lawns and entrances about the buildings. The new building will be an all-year hostelry and promises to fill a long felt want by many who would gladly spend the winters at Swampscott if accommodations were good. This has at last come to the fore. "Whitehall" is all that the most fastidious guest could desire and its success is already assured, thanks to the foresightedness of Mr. E. B. Grabow, manager.

THE TEDESCO COUNTRY CLUB was the scene of a very pretty birthday dinner-dance Saturday evening when Mrs. Lamont G. Burnham of Atlantic avenue, Swampscott, entertained in honor of the natal day of Mr. Frank Hall of the Hotel Somerset, Boston, where Mrs. Burnham makes her winter home. Covers were laid for twelve at a beautifully appointed table decorated with lovely early summer flowers, a huge cluster making the centerpiece. After partaking of the dinner the guests enjoyed dancing to the strains of Sharpe's orchestra until midnight.

Saturday, June 17th, will be celebrated at the Tedesco Country club when lunch will be served at the clubhouse to the club members and guests. During the lunch hour Hoppe's orchestra will furnish music. In the afternoon a concert will be given by Sharpe's orchestra, dinner and dancing following. A large number of members and their friends are expected to partake of the festivities.

Trap shooting, which was the popular craze at Pinehurst and Ashville, N. C., during the winter just past has reached the North Shore and perhaps there are no more enthusiastic "shooters" anywhere than at the Tedesco Country club. It is a very thrilling sport and is enjoyed by men and women, alike, requiring a keen eye to become adept.

Professor Cowles is in charge of the tennis courts at the Tedesco this summer, which are occupied from morn till night.

THE NEIGHBORHOOD CLUB at Phillips Beach, Swampscott, gave a dinner dance at the clubhouse, Wednesday evening which proved to be a delightfully informal affair and thoroughly enjoyed by the members. About thirty couples partook of dinner, after which dancing was inaugurated to the strains of Lurvey's orchestra of Lynn. A number of the members who were not present at dinner came in later and enjoyed the dance, which was brought to a close at a seasonable hour. The arrangements were in charge of the entertainment committee of which E. B. Terhune is chairman.

SWAMPSCOTT is ever gaining in popularity; each summer brings this fact more to the fore. Because of its natural and artistic beauty, splendid facilities for travel, both by automobile and railroad, Bostonians and Brooklineites, as well as folk further removed from the Hub, make this their summer home. There are many commuters each day who go to business to Boston, returning in the late afternoon for a brief spell of enjoyment of the quiet serenity of both country and seashore, delightfully combined.

The Fred A. Farrars of Brookline have opened their attractive summer residence at Jefferies Point, Swampscott, for the season.

"Cedar Cliff," the handsome residence of William A. Jefferies on Puritan road, is again occupied by this interesting family for the summer days.

Mrs. J. L. Walcott of Toledo, Ohio, is occupying "Swan Kot" one of the Little cottages at Little's Point.

The family of Charles W. Bradlee have opened their summer home on Puritan road.

Ludwig Eiseman and family of Boston are at their pretty villa, "Sea Bend," Puritan road, Jeffries Point.

Among the season guests who have arrived at the Bellevue, Swampscott, are Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Squire and daughter of Brookline; Mrs. F. Woodruff, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Oliver D. Clarke, Brookline; Colonel and Mrs. Ladd of Brookline; Miss O. H. Miller, Brookline; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. O'Riordan, Charlestown.

The Charles E. Rolfes of Atlantic avenue, Phillips Beach, who are permanent residents, leave with their family the first of the coming week to spend the summer at their mountain home at Ponemah, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Preston of "The Arches" Phillips Beach, Swampscott, are entertaining Mrs. Mary Bunting, formerly of Brookline for a several weeks' visit. Mrs. Bunting will go to New York after terminating her stay with the Prestons.

A good way to be happy is to try to be useful and helpful.

AMID a setting of unusually beautiful woodland surroundings the society women and girls of the Swampscott section of the North Shore will interpret William Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in an out-of-door pageant on the estate of the Percival B. Palmers at Phillips Beach, for the benefit of the Lynn Associated Charities, on Friday and Saturday, June 16th and 17th.

The society folk are working earnestly and well to make this stupendous undertaking a success. About 100 of North Shore's fashionables will be in the cast, and the fairy dances.

The scene of the pageant is very beautiful. A cluster of slender birch and evergreen trees form a background for the stage of greensward, whilst through the trees a natural miniature lake is visible filled with blue and purple iris which lends itself very delightfully to the scene.

A string of electric lights from the entrance to the grounds and thence in a semi-circle about the stage mark the boxes and parking of automobiles from which the performance can be viewed.

Due to the educational influence of the pageant the school committees of Lynn, Nahant, Marblehead and Swampscott will permit the school children over 12 to attend the afternoon performance June 16th, the only afternoon exhibition, and provision has been made for about 1200 children.

He was a rackety young man and kept very late hours, but had now joined the Fusiliers and was ordered to the front, and on bidding farewell to his beloved he said to her:

"Darling, when I am far away wilt thou gaze at yon star every night and think of me?"

"I will, indeed, dearest," she replied. "If I needed anything to remind me of you I should choose that very star."

"Why?" he asked.

"Because it is out so very late at night and looks so pale in the morning."—Tit Bits.

Some persons get a reputation for profundity of thought just by talking large words in bunches that don't mean anything.

"Girls will be girls."

"Is that advance information concerning summer styles?"

Theory looks good, but it doesn't always go when you start the sparker.

Jordan Marsh Company—The store of largest stocks and best values in all New England

A Most Important Announcement of

Quicker and Better Service

To North Shore Summer Residents

Orders received at the store in the early forenoon delivered that day—
Orders received it the afternoon delivered the following day

Another step in our solicitation of trade among the North Shore summer residents is made in the inauguration of our improved delivery and order system.

We are using our own autos instead of relying upon local North Shore expresses, over whom we necessarily have only limited control, as they, of course, serve a multitude of houses besides ourselves.

One of these autos is situated at the North Shore the entire summer. Goods ordered are shipped there twice daily by American Express on fast trains. The auto meets the train at the station. At one end of our delivery route or the other the goods are loaded and delivered to all parts of Beverly Cove, Montserrat, Pride's Crossing, Beverly Farms, West Manchester, Manchester and Magnolia.

The Swampscott and Marblehead sections are covered by our autos direct from the store.

DELIVERY BY OUR OWN AUTOS

What this means—

—Practically the only serious complaint we have heretofore had to contend with among our North Shore trade was that of tardy deliveries.

—Goods were formerly shipped to the North Shore points, where they were received by the local expresses and delivered, no doubt as soon as possible. These expresses, however, serving so many customers were oftentimes considerably delayed in delivery and also naturally made vexatious mistakes in their hurriedness—all of which were out of our control.

—With our new system, using our own autos, we are placing the delivery of North Shore merchandise under our direct supervision, where we can check up and make sure the goods are delivered on scheduled time, and correctly.

There is still an additional service—

—All calls from the North Shore for merchandise to be returned to the store will be handled by our auto.

—These calls for merchandise may be given to the driver on his regular visits at the home of the Summer Residents or call Oxford 3200, ask for call desk and leave word for auto to call for goods. The driver will issue proper receipt for same.

—This does away with the delay of the customer notifying and dealing with an outside party—namely the Express Company. Under the new order of things the entire transaction is with Jordan Marsh Company—a quicker and better way.

—Orders for merchandise may also be entrusted to the driver of these autos, who sees that the same has prompt attention, or may be telephoned into the store—calling Oxford 3200 and asking for "Order Department."

The immense resources of this store--the Greatest Retail Store in New England--are now placed at the disposal of North Shore Summer Residents in a more emphatie way than ever

The squad will be in charge of Norman Cabot as ensign, with George R. Fearing, Gordon Balch, Bayard Tuckerman and Clifford Webster as flying officers. Since last fall the Ninth Deck company's aeronautical squad has been at work under the command of Godfrey L. Cabot, a brother of Norman Cabot, with headquarters at Newburyport. DEVEREUX summer colony has arrived pretty much to enjoy the seashore summer life and take its interest, which is always most active in the diversions of the North Shore.

The J. H. Gibbs of Brookline have opened their pretty home on Beach avenue. So also have Mr. and Mrs. James Purdon arrived at Devereux Beach and opened their home for the summer season.

The family of John W. Dunlop are accupying one of the Sherman houses at the Rocks for the summer.

SALEM'S statue of Nathaniel Hawthorne will be cast in bronze in a Providence foundry in a few days. The full size model was recently completed at the studio of the sculptor, Bela L. Pratt in Boston. The statue will be placed in a little park between Elm and Walnut sts. in Salem and will be the only memorial ever erected by the city which was the scene of the author's labors. Salem people as a whole never approved very thoroughly of Hawthorne, perhaps for the reason that he protrayed too truly the characteristics of certain of her people. Through the efforts of the Hawthorne Memorial association the fund for the erection of the memorial has been partially completed, but evidently the ancient grudge will not down for Salem is not contributing as freely as she might. Consequently outside subscriptions are being solicited.

EAST GLOUCESTER.—As usual, the artist colony here will be very prominent, but it is expected that more painters will be seen at East Gloucester this season than for some years. Several classes will be established. Subjects for the canvas abound in nearly every quarter hereabouts and this section of the country has an envious reputation in the realm of art. Frank Duveneck, one of the foremost painters of the day, has arrived here from Cincinnati, O., and is located with his sister, Miss Duveneck at the Oakes house on Rocky Neck avenue. They dine at the Rockaway hotel. Another early arrival is George S. Noyes, a Boston artist who has been coming to East Gloucester for a number of seasons. In company with his wife, Mr. Noyes occupies the studio cottage of Col. C. F. Wonson, situated near the scene of the harbor front activity at Rocky Neck. W. F. Fenn is at his Rocky Neck avenue studio for the present, but he intends to let the studio in his buildings and he will cruise in his 21-fofot yacht "Mary." R. J. Martin, a young artist of New York, accompanied by George Fouquet, a student, are now in one of the Fenn studios. An artist expected in another of the Fenn studios in a few days is James S. King, a New York etcher. Mr. Snell of New York will have the W. S. Dean studio this season.

A young couple spending their honeymoon in East Gloucester is Mr. and Mrs. William Frederic Zabriskie of Detroit. Mrs. Zabriskie was Miss Katherine Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlisle Norwood Anderson of Detroit, annual Rockaway hotel guests. The wedding took place at a church in Detroit and a reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Zabriskie will be at home from July 1 to Sept. 1, at 33 Alexandrine avenue, E. Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Marshall and David S. Marshall of Worcester are guests at the Rockaway.

Dr. H. Simmonds and wife, of Chicago, Ill., are registered at the Rockaway for a sojourn in East Gloucester.

The Misses Durlin of New York are occupying the Dr. Randall-Maciver cottage at Eastern Point, near the studio of Cecelia Beaux, the portrait artist.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Greenough of New York have arrived at their Eastern Point cottage for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stewart of Boston are located for the season at one of the Little cottages, Eastern Point, in the vicinity of "The Ramparts." Mr. Stewart is the Boston manager of the Cunard steamship line. The Stewarts are not strangers at the Eastern Point colony, as they have occupied a cottage there for several seasons. Last summer they were at Bass Rocks.

Many automobiles that seem slow manage to keep ahead of an income.

BASS ROCKS.—Despite the very stormy weather of Saturday and Sunday, about 75 members of the Class of '91, Institute of Technology, came to Hotel Moorland, Bass Rocks, for their annual reunion. The guests arrived in automobiles on Saturday at noon in time for a fine dinner and they took their departure on Monday after breakfast. The rain interfered with the out-door pastimes, but everyone had a most enjoyable time indoors where pleasures were provided by the committee. The annual banquet was held. An orchestra was brought along with the company and some fine music was rendered at different periods. Members were present at the reunion from a great many states of the Union and some were from as far west as Arizona.

Men talk for conversation, but women often talk to hold the floor.

ROCKPORT.—The presence of the United States battleships, New York and Delaware, in Sandy Bay Harbor of Refuge is certainly appreciated by the townspeople and summer residents of Rockport. Although the ships are expected to sail the latter part of the week, it is evident that different ships and submarines of the North Atlantic fleet will be in port nearly all summer. Things have been lively in a social way and amusements have been in order at the town hall in Rockport as well as at the city hall and the big state armory in Gloucester. It is evident that the officers and men of the warships are appreciating the hospitality of Cape Ann people. Saturday, June 4, the U. S. S. New York held a large and brilliant reception to all people and there were many hundreds of visitors on shipboard during the day. The crew of the U. S. S. Delaware also received the people during the week. On Monday evening the crew of the U. S. S. New York held a dancing party at the State Armory, Gloucester, and on Tuesday evening, the crew of the U. S. S. Delaware entertained the people by holding a dancing party at the city hall. Both affairs were especially enjoyable to the very large number of people attending.

U. S. Assistant Treasurer Charles B. Stricker and family, of Washington, D. C., arrived at their summer home, corner of South street and Tregony bow, Land's End, a few days ago, for the season.

The Francis Smiths of San Antonio, Texas, have arrived at their attractive summer residence near Lobolly, Land's End, for the season.

John G. Moseley of Boston, one of the pioneer summer residents of the Marmion Way colony, Rockport, arrived last Thursday at his pleasant estate, overlooking the bay and breakwater. With Mr. Moseley is his daughter, Miss Helen G. Moseley, and they have returned from a several weeks' visit in New Jersey. Mrs. F. A. Pierce will join her father and sister at their Marmion Way cottage, the latter part of the month.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Arthur Gale of Lowell have arrived at their cottage, Paradise Cliff, Land's End, Rockport, for the season.

The Frank E. Cutters of Concord have arrived at their Pigeon Cove cottage.

The Charles Davisons of New York are late arrivals in the Pigeon Cove colony of cottagers.

Opportunity doesn't knock half as often as importunity.

ANNISQUAM.—This week finds all the summer boarding houses and hotels in Annisquam open for the season, with guests. The greater part of the cottagers are now here and the season of 1916 has begun in earnest. The Annisquam Yacht clubhouse is being prepared for opening, although it will be about two weeks before there will be any marked activities.

Oliver E. Williams and family of Weston are late arrivals in the Hermit Ledge colony, occupying their Annisquam cottage for the season.

Horace D. H. Williams and family of Milton arrived last Wednesday at their summer home on Adams road, Annisquam to spend the summer.

Mrs. Florence Richardson of St. Louis, Mo., has joined the Norwood's Heights colony, Annisquam, for the season.

A successful suffrage conference was held at "The Barnacle," tea house, Annisquam, on Wednesday of last week and there was a good attendance. At luncheon, a delicious fish chowder was served, besides many delicacies. Following luncheon, Miss Margaret Knowlton rendered violin selections and then the speakers of the afternoon were heard. Mrs. Louise Haeberle of Alton, Ill., gave an interesting talk on the conditions that prevail in her state, where women have the municipal and presidential suffrage. She showed how the women voters had driven out many politicians of the worst class and succeeded in electing men with good principles to office. Mrs. Chester Goldsmith of Salem, chairman of the Third Essex Senatorial district related some humorous incidents of the 1915 campaign and then referred to the election in Iowa, recently, as so close that it is virtually a victory. The incomplete returns showed that the suffrage amendment would be lost by less than two percent of the total vote on the question. Mrs. Claude U. Gilson, of Wellesley Hills, chairman of the state organization committee, gave an interesting account of the suffrage activities planned for Chicago and St. Louis and she described the great biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's clubs just ended in New York City. Almost every man speaking at this convention, made remarks in favor of suffrage. Members of the Gloucester Equal Suffrage League decided at this meeting at Annisquam, to participate in the big Flag Day parade in Gloucester and automobiles conveyed the members over the route. It was a good boom for the League.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sherman will represent the Nahant Woman's club at the State Convention in Lynn this week.

Mrs. George Cabot Lodge, the widowed daughter-in-law of Senator Lodge, who, with her daughter, Miss Helena Lodge, spent the winter at 265 Clarendon street, Boston, is now occupying "The Villa" on the Lodge estate at Nahant. Mrs. Lodge's daughter is with her and her two sons, Master Henry Cabot Lodge and Master John Davis Lodge, who are at school, will soon join their mother at Nahant.

"Poor Algy has broken down and had to be sent to a rest cure."

"What was the trouble.?"

"Over exertion. His valet left him and for nearly a week he had to tie his own neckties."

Before calling by telephone, consult the telephone directory and be sure to obtain the correct number. Mistakes often result from taking numbers from letterheads, business cards or private memoranda. Do not rely on memory.

Give the number to the operator distinctly and in a moderate tone of voice. With the lips about half an inch from the mouthpiece, speak clearly the name of the Central office and each numeral, separating the figures of the telephone number; for example, "Oxford, four-one-five-O" (4150).

Listen when the operator repeats the number. Say "Yes" if it is right. If she does not quote it correctly, tell her so at once and repeat the correct number.

The receiver should be held at the ear until the called party answers or some report is given by the operator. As a matter of courtesy, the person making the call should be ready to talk as soon as the line is connected.

The identity of the person calling should be announced as soon as the called station answers. If a wrong station has been called, say to the person answering, "I beg your pardon, you were called by mistake." Signal the operator, state that a wrong connection was made and ask for the correct number.

The party calling should end the conversation by saying "Good-bye," leaving no doubt in the mind of the party called that the conversation has ended.

There are three parties to every telephone message; the person calling, the operator and the person called. Improvement in telephone service can be made, over and above all that the company can do, if the subscriber or user, when making a call, will extend his co-operation.

EDITORIAL

The Republican National Convention has chosen its candidate for President of the United States. Has it made a wise choice? Knowing that the future alone can give the answer, we would here point out that to a very large degree the destiny of this Republic in coming months and years will be in the hands of its President whom the people will elect in the near future. What wisdom, therefore, should be shown in the choice of a man who possesses the qualities of mind and heart that will be necessary to meet the demands of him who is to occupy the highest office within the gift of this nation and to whom will be intrusted such great responsibilities and power! The national and international problems that will arise in coming days will tax the wisdom and patience of the greatest statesman living within the bounds of this country, and thus he who is elected to sit in the Presidential chair cannot know too much or be too good.

Republicans and Progressives alike unite in approving the choice of the convention. The selection of Charles Evans Hughes to head the Republican ticket came as no surprise. Sentiment for him had been spreading over the country and gaining strength during the pre-convention days until the probability of his nomination was assured. He possesses qualities eminently fitting him for the dual task of welding together a disunited party and of carrying out the arduous duties of the Chief Executive in event of his election. As a factor of party strength he has no political enemies to attack him from within and no political record open to attack from without the party. As President he would be unhampered by undesirable political associations. He is cool, logical and not inclined to hasty decisions. On the other hand he has great stability of character and when the occasion demands it he is a resolute fighter for what he believes to be right. His record as governor of New York is ample proof of this. Charles E. Hughes appears to be the man of the hour in this critical period of American foreign relations. If elected, and his opportunity is great, he would never pursue the vacillating policy of "watchful waiting," he would bring America back to its proper place of honor among the nations. At the same time his cool, forceful methods would never embroil the nation in an unnecessary conflict. The choice of ex-Justice Hughes as party standard-bearer augurs well for the Republican party and for the nation.

The Progressive Convention voted down the proposed plank for prohibition, but when a vote was taken as to the sentiments of the delegates they were enthusiastically in favor of the principle. The time had not come for the party to put a plank in the platform. The efforts of the convention were directed to other issues and the adoption of the plank would have confused the issues at stake. Even the most ardent prohibitionist must concede that the Progressives showed rare judgment. The enthusiastic endorsement by the convention of the principle is in itself a testimony of the widespread momentum the movement has gained. It is coming, but it is a matter of "education."

President Wood of the American Woolen Company has rendered America a service in calling the attention of Congress to our unpreparedness in the item of wool. It would be a lamentable condition. However, it will take a long while for the sheep industry in America to be rehabilitated. The sheep grower is unlikely to accept patriotic sentiments in lieu of compensation for his labor. The law of supply and demand is still operative and the instant that sheep raising has a margin of profit worthy of the risk the money will be invested. It is a great problem nevertheless and in calling the attention of the public to the conditions President Wood should be commended. What will be done about it?

Ambassador Gerard has announced that the interviews on peace attributed to him by certain German papers and which were cabled to America last week were spurious. Why all this talk of peace? All from Germany! The ambassador from a nation such as ours is entitled to protection from such misleading adventures by the German press. Unfortunately the news from Germany during the last two weeks has not been particularly exact. Was the interview published for its psychological effect? The struggle is an intense one and no one can ferret out its mysteries.

One of the Surprises of the national convention was the complimentary vote which Massachusetts' favorite son received. He received more votes on the first ballot than T. R. himself. The vote must have been gratifying to Mr. Weeks. It was a pleasant compliment to the Massachusetts delegation, but there could not have been any hope that he would have received the nomination.

The Salary of That Stoneham bank clerk was indeed small, and incommensurate with the responsibilities of his office, but that is no excuse nor constitutes no extenuating circumstances for dishonesty. A man's honor is worth more than all the capital of the bank. It is unfortunate that so many men are weak, so weak as to believe that they can escape the consequences of ill-doing.

Great Britain is Tightening the iron grip upon Germany, for now the Greek ports are being blockaded. Everything that the blockade of the sea can accomplish is being done by the allied forces. If the blockade is successful as it bids fair to be the civilian population of Germany will suffer even more than they have suffered.

There is no Doubt now that Kitchener was on a mission which would have doubtlessly ended in a synchronizing of the activities of all the allies and possibly the arrangement of a concerted drive to conquer the enemy.

The Billy Sunday Campaign is shrewdly planned and carefully executed. Already the choir of eight thousand voices has been organized. This one factor in the movement demands a great amount of labor and energy,

THE SPECIAL AID SOCIETY for American Preparedness, incorporated, and affiliated with the American Red Cross and the National Civic Federation, The National Security League and the League to Enforce Peace has begun a particularly difficult and absolutely essential piece of work. It proposes to co-ordinate all existing agencies that are at work for the country looking ahead to the time when an emergency arises requiring the united efforts of this part of the country. It proposes to find out what can be done by every organized institution in the state. All of the churches are requested to furnish information concerning the number their parish house could accommodate, what could be done quickly by the gifts of mattresses and blankets or money. What assistance could be rendered by automobiles, by motorcycles, boats and otherwise. Information concerning the work which women can do will be carefully filed. While there are many thing which cannot be accomplished until the need arises, there is much to be gained by knowing just what can be done. The information that the Special Aid Society is seeking can be obtained and if filed in the City of Boston and carefully kept up to date by an efficient committee there is every reason to believe that a valuable task will have been accomplished. Then when a disaster does occur a central committee will have the facts immediately at hand and valuable time will have been saved. Every worker in the Salem Fire Relief Work appreciates the time that was lost, not so much from the inefficiency of the workers, but because of the unpreparedness of the neighboring districts to meet the situation. That such efficient work has been done in the past in relief work has been commendable, but how much better the work could have been done and how much more quickly if a preparedness program were possible. It is impossible for any community to make adequate and satisfactory arrangements to meet every situation; but there is a certain amount of general preparedness that is not only practical, but imperative. It is to be hoped that the Special Aid Society for American Preparedness into which Mrs. William Lowell Putnam is putting so much enthusiasm and interest will be able to complete the work which has begun so auspicously.

THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION adopted a suffrage plank in favor of votes for women. The women made a hard fight for their plank and they succeeded. That the plank would be adopted was conceded, although the vote of twenty-six to twenty-one in itself tells the story. The plank won by a margin of five. With twenty-one in the committee opposed, the endorsement was not very hearty. The vote accurately reflects public sentiment, however. There are just as many voters opposed to the women's suffrage principle as there are in favor of it. The women have been fighting their battle too shrewdly to be deceived by the successes already gained. There is much work still to be done. It is a long way to ultimate success even after the Republican party has endorsed their cause. The women will continue their work. Only the first line of trenches have been assailed as yet.

THE NAVAL PLATTSBURG appears to rival the military Plattsburg in New York, especially in the coast towns along the North Shore and towns of Cape Cod. Massachusetts originally and geographically is a maratime province and the enthusiasm with which the young men are rallying to the call is to be expected as in the order of things.

THE BOSTON & MAINE RAILROAD has settled the labor difficulties with its station employes and mechanical craftsmen. That incident is now closed.

MRS. ANNIE BOLTON MATTHEWS has left a bequest that will be to her honor for years to come. The Free Hospital for Women in Brookline is made the agent fo the establishment of a new cancer institution. There is a need for a new study of this great scourge and the money left by Mrs. Matthews is well placed. When science has discovered the causes and learns an affective way to cure cancer, great progress will have been made. Scientists all over the world are working away at the problem; but the concerted work of many minds can only be made possible as funds are provided for the necessary buildings and investigations. Boston already has a number of institutions that are at work doing good service, but there is a place for the special work provided for by Mrs. Matthews. In passing it may be noted, however, that this was not her only interest. The provisions of the will reveal the woman to have been of broad mind, careful discernment and particularly shrewd in calculating the merits of institutional work. The practical social service institutions all over the country have been suffering because of the war, but many broad minded spirits are meeting the crises of the old world with their gifts, at the same time remembering the needed field this side of the ocean.

THE CHILDREN'S WORK being done by the North End Mission Society is being crowned with success. After thirty-one years of successful work a home for children has been established in Forest Hills where children from the city of Boston may be assisted either temporarily or permanently by placing them in good homes. This is an organization that is working on a great problem and is meeting with success in its peculiar and needed field of social service.

FOR ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTEEN DAYS the Germans have been pounding away before Verdun in order to take possession of the valuable mining district which lays just beyond and have only taken the first line of trenches with a second line stronger than the first. This tells in a few words the futility and folly of this bloody war. The gains made are not worth the price paid in blood and suffering. It is time that the cruelty and insanity of it all was appreciated and the conflict ended.

FOR MANY YEARS HARVARD was the name of a college, but the broadening of the sphere of education has made it the name of a University. The collegiate department has for years maintained the voting rights handed down from the old days. Now Harvard has determined to take a step in advance and every graduate of Harvard University will be permitted to vote for the overseers of the University.

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW may have literally retired, but he has never really been retired by the American people. His brilliancy was the common treasure of a generation ago. His address at Chicago last week was scintillating with witticism and captivated his audience as in the good old days. And this, too, in an era when addresses and chatauqua orations are commonplace.

THE UNSUCCESSFUL RAID which Germany made and which ended in the terrific battle off Skaggerack ends for awhile Britain's fear of any organized attack from Germany upon the English coast.

FOR THE COLONEL'S LADY

Smart Suits for the Surf

THE watering places will present some interesting and picturesque scenes this season. Judging from the present outlook, the bathing suits will be far prettier and far more becoming than heretofore.

All the suits for the surf this year must be developed in silk to be at all ultra. There is, opposed to this, the severe and very practical suit of Jersey with striped trimmings and not much, if any, skirt which will be worn by the girl who really swims and dives. The once popular mohair suit is set aside, whether by the girl who swims or by the girl who decorates the beach. Satin and taffeta are the leading fabrics for the luxurious little suits that are to be seen at the Shore this season.

As the skirts of the gowns become shorter, just so have the skirts of the 1916 bathing suits become correspondingly abbreviated until one feels one does not know where it will end. "Earth can not answer, nor the seas that mourn in flowing purple."

To women of young and graceful figure, however, the 1916 bathing suit is a dainty and entirely feminine sort of apparel and adapts itself most readily to the water sports. A model of cerise surf satin trimmed with white silk braid with the overdress cut as a Russian blouse reaching to just above the knees was, indeed, very fetching. The cerise hose, white bathing shoes and white cap and flowing veil made a pleasing and picturesque costume. Amphitrite and Neptune, disporting themselves in the summer seas, will remark with only one glimpse the beauties of the bathing girl of this season.

Some Stunning Styles

ANOTHER suit of flesh colored satin with black strappings and worn with flesh colored tights and bathing shoes was a stunning creation.

A model that was marvellously good looking was of navy blue taffeta with silk braid trimming. With this was worn the bathing hat of fishnet and the long scarf of rubber to be worn to protect the neck and arms from the sun whilst lazing on the sands.

White silk has not been overlooked for the fair bather and a very smart suit was made from white Habutai silk, cut with a baby waist and with a sash tied with a large bow tied at the back. This suit was worn with a large, black Wenchow hat and white hose and bathing shoes.

Gray, black, gold, rose and other colors are worn, but the most popular suits this season are in the vivid colors with white in close pursuit.

By far the most enticing and, incidentally, the most practical wraps that have ever appeared for bathing use are being shown in the best shops this year. There are capes that come to the knees. Of bright, becoming colors these are, rose, blue and mustard, and with buttons and straps of black or contrasting colors. Silk rubber bathing or rain coats are shown in the best colors, blue, red, purple and green, and are in a fair way to become more popular than any similar garment for years. Rubber hats and long, brilliantly striped rubber scarfs are also new additions this year to the fair lady's wardrobe.

Preparedness for June Jollities

JUNE is such a jolly month! Schools "let out," and there are all the festivities attendant upon the farewells of those for whom school is letting out for the last time. There are engagement parties and oh! so many weddings. Folks go to the Shore and the country in June, if they are lucky, and there are impromptu picnics and luncheons as well as the formal affairs. Yes, June is a festive month, but there is no festivity without good things to eat and there are no good things to eat without planning on someone's part, so let's go to work on plans for our own parties.

Of course, every party has a color scheme. Who ever heard of a Betty that did not "adore" a rose party or a gold party or a green party? Here are some suggestions for carrying out the color scheme, whatever it may be. If the party is a class supper, the flowers will probably be the chief decorative note. Let us suppose that green and white are the colors. What could be prettier or leave a sweeter memory than syringa blossoms with their green leaves? These are so graceful, too, that the arrangement becomes the simplest possible matter. The following menu for a buffet sup-

This rule for punch is simple and very good: 1 pt. fresh tea, juice of 6 lemons, 1 cup prune juice, 2 cups pineapple juice, 2 cups lime juice, 1 cup sugar syrup and 2 qts. water. Mix well and keep on ice until ready for use. Add plain or carbonated water, as desired.

A June wedding offers every opportunity in the world for a delightfully simple or equally delightful elaborate menu for the wedding breakfast or reception. The "eats," as the brides naids wil say, may be as simpl. as this: Bride's Loaf Cake, Fine Fruit Punch, or as elaborate as this:

Chaudfroid of Veal and Chicken Loaf
Lettuce, Cress and Green Peppers
French Dressing
Bread and Butter Sandwiches
Vanilla Mousse Bride's Cake
Coffee

If the bride has chosen to have a wedding breakfast, a simple and suitable menu may not come amiss.

No form of entertainment is dearer to milady's heart than is the luncheon, be it formal or informal. For a color scheme of red and white, which may be found more than usually desirable during these patriotic holidays to come, the menu printed below is good:

When the early morning freight train's engine was shifting cars in the Manchester yards last Saturday morning a loaded tank car of road oil consigned to the Town of Manchester was struck by a string of moving cars containing crushed stone, smashed through the bumper and toppled off the switch, almost rolling into the creek. The car contained 10,000 gallons of the oil. A wrecking crane succeeded in getting the tank back onto the trucks early Sunday morning after an all-night job. The oil was valued at more than $700. but not more than two gallons were lost on account of the accident.

Polish Fighters Fined.

Whether the fact that Poland's sympathies are divided between the Allies and the Teutonic forces or bad whiskey was responsible for the Sunday night row in Forest st., Manchester, two Polish men were put out of commission in the fight. Incidentally Stanislaus Lebweda is $50 poorer for having sold liquor at his home, 12 Forest st.

Early Sunday evening Adam Roebuck, who lives in Pine st., called at the Forest st. house. There he found Walter Gorski, a friend, and William Socholinski and Lawrence Yenderna, who were not so friendly. In the course of the evening the men quarrelled and ended up in a free-for-all fight. Roebuck was stabbed in the neck and Gorski was slashed and battered about the face and head. They found their way to the police station where Dr. Blaisdell attended them. Socholinski was arrested later in the evening in Manchester square and charged with assault. Yenderna got as far as Magnolia where he was arrested by Patrolmen Lee and Sheehan.

Both men paid fines in the First District court, Salem, of $25 each. Lebweda in whose house the fight occurred was arrested for selling liquor illegally and paid a $50 fine Tuesday morning.

And a Hotel on Ram Island Suggested in Communication from "One of the Largest Taxpayers."

June 13th, 1916.

Editor North Shore Breeze,
Dear Sir:

As a patron of your readable paper of many years standing, I respectfully ask space to express my views on the Ram Island proposition of which you so interestingly wrote in your last week's issue. In my opinion we do not want any more palaces in Manchester, but what we do need, is more desirable summer homes, to let to a desirable class of summer people at about $1000 a year rental.

Realizing that I am not voicing the views of the exclusive set, who visit us during the summer season, I would like to inquire why not have that sadly needed Summer Hotel on this Island? In my opinion, the day the Town votes license, to guests, and guests only, a syndicate will be formed to build, and for one I would gladly take a $5000 block of the stock, and in making this offer, I wish it distinctly understood, that I would be among the first to advocate the majesty of the law in the event of the management ever breaking the faith as to the conditions on which the license is granted.

Since the prosperous days of the Masconomo there has been practically nothing doing in the way of real estate. An up-to-date hotel means new blood, more money, acres of vacant land dotted with houses, and thousands of dollars added to the town treasury.

Stantial of Melrose were married last Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, in the presence of a gathering of friends and relatives, by Rev. John J. Walker of Boston.

Miss S. Allan of Newport, R. I., was maid of honor, and Ralph Stantial, brother of the groom, best man. After a reception the couple left by automobile for a short wedding trip. They will live at Montserrat. The groom is employed by the Boston & Maine railroad.

OH, THAT DUMP

Editor North Shore Breeze:

Why cannot the Town of Manchester locate its dumping place with due regard to the best interests of Manchester?

It has now been located by "Our Selectmen" on Mill street, one of the woody drives patronized by so many of our summer guests, as well as by our own citizens, both for pleasure driving and walking.

Are we not losing the value of our generous appropriations for the repair and oiling of our streets, when within a stone's throw of one of them, School street, we locate a public dump?

The question of a suitable public dump has now been pending for a long time and it is certainly not to the credit of our administration to longer delay a matter so important to the public health.

Surely with a little effort some isolated place could be found where refuse could be taken care of without becoming a nuisance on a public highway as it now is.

—A Citizen.

EMERGENCY ROOM READY

The Board of Health announce that the Emergency Room whose rental and equipment were appropriated by the voters of Manchester, is now in readiness for service and inspection.

We consider ourselves fortunate to have secured two rooms in the Blaisdell Block. They are centrally located and well lighted; also the rear entrance to the operating room avoids publicity.

The front room is to be used as headquarters for the Visiting Nurse.

EDWARD S. KNIGHT,
Chairman, Board of Health.

The Board of Health have kindly offered the use of one of their rooms at the Emergency Station to the Visiting Nurse association, to be used as the headquarters for the nurse. Miss Long has arranged her supplies in the convenient closet and she will be at the room each week day from four to five o'clock in the afternoon, ready for consultation or service.

The members of the Association feel that the people of Manchester should certainly be proud of the step in "Preparedness" thus taken in establishing a first aid and health centre in our town.

At the graduating exercises Wednesday of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, President Richard Cockburn Maclaurin conferred on Edward Reynolds Hall of Magnolia the degree, B.S. The title of his graduation thesis was:—"A Study of the Bond Stress of Plain and Deformed Bars and the Effect of Bent-up Rods over Straight Rods."

Russell Lucas has secured a good position for the summer, working on the estate of Mrs. Harrington of Ipswich.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCarty of Boston have moved into the lower part of Frank H. Davis' house on Magnolia ave.

The show runs continuous from 10 a. m. to 10.30 p. m., and popular prices prevail.

The value of livestock dying from disease on the National Forest ranges in 1915 was less than $200,000. A majority of the cattlemen are now vaccinating their stock for blackleg, one of the chief loss-causing cattle diseases of the West, and thus preventing the serious losses of the past.

The annual fair and sale of the Ladies' Sewing Circle will be held in the Chapel, Thursday afternoon and evening, July 6.

Inquiry is being made as to whether Beverly Farms is going to have its usual Fourth of July celebration. It would be a good plan for those, who made up the committee and have so successfully carried out the program of former years, to get together and "start something."

Boys' Choir Entertainment.

There was a pleasing entertainment in Neighbor's hall last evening in aid of the St. John's Boys' choir camp fund. The program was furnished by the boys' choir assisted by the auxiliary girls' choir and Miss Millicent Stemler, reader, and Sydney Freeman, violinist. The program was carried out under the direction of Harry Mueller. Dancing was enjoyed following the entertainment. The program follows:

Grant, when a small boy, wanted to buy a colt for which $25 was asked. Grant told what happened: "When I got to Mr. Ralston's house I said to him: 'Papa says I may offer you twenty dollars for the colt, but if you won't take that, I am to offer twenty-two and a half, and if you won't take that to give you twenty-five.'" It would not take a Connecticut man to guess the price finally agreed upon.—The Nation.

Lawlor-Morse.

Thomas F. Lawlor, a popular Beverly Farms young man, was married to Miss Abbie Morse of Beverly Thursday evening of last week. The ceremony was performed at St. Mary's parochial residence by Rev. Fr. Mitchell. The marriage was a quiet one because of the serious illness of the bride's mother. At present the young couple will live in Beverly.

Technology Graduation.

At the Graduating Exercises of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology on Wednesday degrees were given to 360 students, the largest number the Insitute has graduated in a single year. Three of the younger men received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, Ph.D.; two, Doctor of Engineering, D.E.; 38, Master of Science, M.S.; and 317 Bachelor of Science, B.S.

The graduating exercises were only a part of the great celebration which the Institute has been holding the past week. It has been the occasion of the dedication of the new buildings, and thousands of alumni gathered from all over the country, in fact from distant corners of the earth. A feature of the celebration, incident to the dedication, was the voyage across the Charles River basin of the officials of Technology with the records of the institute. The trip was made in the magnificent barge built in Manchester and launched two weeks ago from Walter B. Calderwood's boat-yard.

Endorse Preparedness.

The vote of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States upon the referendum recently submitted to them by the Chamber upon preparedness for National defense resulted in an overwhelming majority in favor of the ten recommendations made by the Committee of the National Chamber which formulated the proposals, according to a report received by the Salem Chamber of Commerce. At a membership meeting held on Monday, May 8, the Salem Chamber of Commerce voted with the majority mentioned in the foregoing, following a report and recommendation of a special committee of which Gen. William A. Pew was chairman.

In Paris Mr. Whistler and an English painter got into an argument about Velasquez, and Mr. Whistler at one point praised himself extravagantly. The Englishman listened, but said at the end, "It's a good thing we can't see ourselves as others see us." "Isn't it though?" said Mr. Whistler. "I know, in my case, I should grow intolerably conceited." — Chicago Chronicle.

Edna Goodrich will be the Paramount star Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in a fascinating five act production of "The Making of Maddalena," which is heralded as one of the finest photoplays yet presented at the Strand. Francis X. Bushman will be seen in a superb Metro production, in five parts, of "Pennington's Choice." One of the principal parts will be taken by James J. Jeffries.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday, dainty Marguerite Clark will star in "Silks and Satins," a delightful combination of comedy and drama.

B. F. Keith's Theatre.

Nine big features, all but one new to Boston audiences, will comprise the big vaudeville bill offered at B. F. Keith's Theatre, "The Amusement Centre of Boston," the week of June 19. Harry Carroll, the famous composer of popular song hits, and Anna Wheaton, the musical comedy star, will present their new song revue, with some wonderful gowns worn by Miss Wheaton. The songs are all original with Mr. Carroll and were written especially for his vaudeville tour. Another big comedy feature will be the debut of William Gaxton, the comedian, and his company in the uproariously funny farce by John Stokes, "A Regular Business Man." Still another attraction will be Nonette, the singing gypsy violinist, who has not appeared in Boston in several years, with her newest specialty. Still another big laugh festival is promised by The Langdons, skidding and kidding in their new travesty, "Johnnie's New Car," with some unusual mechanical effects and all manner of funny episodes and incidents.

O. K.'d by the Nation

Exacting, appreciative, practical, hard-headed America—has, as one unit, O. K.'d the small, light, economical, $615 Overland.

They like its style; its good-looking lines; that smart, individual air of exclusiveness.

They like its power and pep. It shoots up a hill like a streak of greased lightning. It gives, but seldom gets, the dust.

Put five in (there's lots of room), give her a little gas and away she flies—free from vibration, rattle, stress or strain.

What do you suppose appeals to the more elderly people? Just the solid comfort. This car, unlike most of the smaller and popular priced makes, has none of that stiffness or rigidness about it. Deep, soft, divan upholstery and shock-absorbing cantilever springs take all the stiffness out and put all the comfort in.

Large tires (4-inch) also add materially to the riding qualities of the car. Also, and just as important, they help keep upkeep at a minimum.

Another thing to remember. This car comes complete. No expensive starter nor speedometer nor anything extra to buy.

It's the little conveniences that seem to have the broadest appeal. The electric control buttons on the steering column, convenient foot pedals and shifting levers bring everything within everyone's reach—even the price.

It is but $615—complete.

FIND BAD SHOALS

John A. Bagley, Chairman of the Maritime Affairs Committee of the Salem Chamber of Commerce has been advised by N. H. Hech, the chief of the party from the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey Department, that is making a wire drag survey of Salem Bay and Harbor, that a further examination of the shoal found a couple of miles off Marblehead on the day when the committee went out with the survey party, made necessary and immediate report to Washington and notification to the maritime interests plying along the New England coast.

According to the final measurements and soundings of the present survey party, it was found that there was only 22 or 23 feet of water, where all existing charts show a depth of 40 feet or more. This shoal apparently started several years ago but appears to have grown quite rapidly in the past few years.

It is to be properly buoyed and marked by the Lighthouse Service and in due course of time, the present depth of water, will be shown on the charts used by navigators.

In this letter to the Salem Chamber Maritime Affairs Committee, Mr. Hech states that his party is finding shoals daily which effect the depth of some of the principal entrance channels to Salem bay and Manchester, Marblehead, Beverly and Salem Harbors. Mr. Hech has requested authority from the proper officials at Washington to furnish the Salem Chamber Committee with a chart which will show in red, the changes that have been made by the present survey up to the date that it is received and then have the necessary changes as they are found from time to time made on the chart, which will be posted in the Salem Chamber offices in the Peabody Building, where it can be readily consulted by interested persons.

BARNUM & BAILEY CIRCUS

At last the welcome news has been announced that the youngsters and oldsters of this vicinity will have an opportunity to visit the Barnum & Bailey Greatest Show on Earth. This great circus will be within easy traveling distance when it exhibits in Salem on Tuesday, June 27.

This year Barnum & Bailey announce an all new novelty circus, composed of more foreign acts than ever before. An important feature is the new, Oriental spectacular pageant, "Persia, or the Pageants of The Thousand and One Nights." In this gorgeous display more than 1,350 persons participate. The Oriental music incidental to the production is rendered by 250 musicians, and 3,500 costumes are worn in the various actions of the pageant.

Among the new acts to be offered for the first time this season are four great troupes of Chinese artists, presenting a complete Chinese circus, replete with thrilling aerial and acrobatic feats. The famous Hanneford Family, champion riders of Europe, are another new importation, as is also Signor Bagonghi, Italy's famous dwarf equestrian. More than twenty trained animal acts will be included in the program, headed by Pallenberg's two marvelous troupes of trained bears.

The Barnum & Bailey Circus is larger this season than ever before and requires 89 cars to transport it. It carries 1,400 persons, 785 horses and a greatly enlarged menagerie of 108 cages and 41 elephants.

It is estimated that there is enough waste from the sawmills of the South alone to produce twenty thousand tons of paper a day.

China
as a Wedding Gift

There are four qualities which make China desirable as a wedding gift: It is dainty, it is appropriate, it is useful, it makes an excellent showing.

The attractiveness of our China Department is due to the individuality of the pieces and patterns, hand-painted designs and imported and domestic patterns of rare charm. It is just this individuality which makes our China so desirable for wedding gifts. There are odd pieces, such as Platters, Salad Bowls, Fruit Bowls, Sugar and Cream Sets, and Cracker and Cheese Plates. Or, you will find dainty Plates, Cups and Saucers, etc., in dozen and half-dozen lots of various patterns.

Our China and Cut Glass Department is a favorite with the wedding gift purchaser. The stock is larger and more varied this year than ever before because we have been particularly fortunate in receiving the majority of our foreign importations.

The wedding gift shopper will find it profitable to visit this Department.

North Shore Legends

HELENE SHERMAN

IN the good old days when witches were wont to

".....weave at night
Their magic spells with impish glee,"

a Salem maid, Mary March, was married to William Brown; and never did a finer match grace the records of old Salem, for Mary was fair to look upon with laughing eyes and rosy cheeks, and William was the pride of the town. The pride of his mother, too, a widow, cross and old, who hated the winsome girl, thinking that she had stolen her son from her. "Marm Brown" was at no pains to conceal the fact of her dislike for her son's wife and Mary had many an uncomfortable hour while William, unnoticing, was at his work. As I have said, all this happened in that time when ghosts and witches flourished, and Mrs. Brown thought, "Poor Willie! This girl has cast a spell upon the lad. I'll keep a close watch, and I'll soon catch her at her witchcraft." But Mary was a simple, wholesome soul, whose whole life was centered in her husband and in her home, and Mrs. Brown's watching availed her nothing.

At last a morning came when Mary went about with shining eyes and a mysterious air, concocting a new dish. In ample time for the mid-day dinner the black pot was hung upon the crane over the open fire, and when the water was boiling Mary dropped in a long, white bag—and Marm Brown watched all the time with eager eyes. The family assembled, and when William had said grace, Mary bade him lift the cover from the pewter dish. They beheld smooth, round dumplings, the like of which had never been seen before in old New England.

"Why, what is this, little wife? It is not pudding, nor does it seem like bread," said her husband.

"O, cut one open, cut one open, William!" Mary cried, so delighted that she could hardly keep her seat while William, with a deft stroke of the knife, cut in halves a dumpling, disclosing an apple, cunningly hidden within. Quick as a flash of lighting, Marm Brown seized the dish and ran out of the door, locking it behind her.

"Is the woman mad?" gasped poor, bewildered William, but Mary with a woman's instinct of disaster, clung to him and buried her pale face in his shoulder. "Do not mind, dear. It is nothing. Me and my father never took much notice of her ways. The neighbors will tell you that her heart is pure gold within." Already a crowd led on by Mrs. Brown, had gathered at the door. Parson Cook, who had married the young couple, was there, backed by a "brace of deacons." Mary's rejected suitor, a great awkward fellow, was there, hovering near Marm Brown, and the girls of Salem, who had envied Mary her matrimonial prize, were there; in fact, there was hardly a soul the length and breadth of Salem, who had not come to see the downfall of Mary March.

"Bring her out! Bring her out! The jade has bewitched you, William Brown, with her unholy craft." So spake Parson Cook. Mary freed herself from the protecting arm of her husband, gravely faced the mad crowd, and they took her away to jail to face trial as a witch, but not before William, bound and senseless, had fallen at their feet.

Surely, the September sun has ne'er shone down on a stranger trial than that of Mary Brown at Salem that sunny, autumn afternoon. A broad, green field was the court-room the parson was the judge. He sat on a high rock, beneath it were Mrs. Brown and the twelve good churchmen, who were to serve as jurors. Since Mary's dumplings had brought her to this pass, she would have to trust to them to free her. While the men built an open fire, the women gossiped.

"Of course, it is not possible, the dough would boil away."

"Poor William Brown, the wench's beauty and her bold ways have blinded him to her wickedness!"

"For myself, I have known this long time that Mary March would not scorn to work woe upon those who loved her."

Meanwhile, a board, flour, apples, and a dish had been brought to Mary, who, nothing daunted, turned back her sleeves over her plump, white arms, set the dish on the bench right "beneath the parson's nose," and fell to work. She stirred the dough, and rolled it and patted it with confident touch. As she folded in the apple, the parson watched with sour face, but thinking all the time, "Of all our cooks, surely she is the queen." None dared venture near the black kettle, so Mary, herself, sewed the dumplings into a wicked-looking bag, and dropped them into the steaming water.

"Half an hour!" thundered the judge.

The twelve good men and true sat upon their bench, and wrangled as to the proper way of "serving" a witch. One was sure that "to bag and boil" this one would be poetic justice; another of more literal mind insisted that a barbecue was the only fitting method of disposing of any witch. Before the question was settled, the half hour came to an end, and the judge, with the aid of a pair of tongs, took the bag out of the kettle, cut the hemp string, and there were the dumplings, as flaky and white and round as anyone could wish. Mary was free!

"Bless God," she murmured as her good man held her half fainting in his arms. It was no time for fainting, however, for there had begun a rejoicing and a festival. There was passing around of sweet cider, of good, home-made bread, and even of Mary's dumplings, and there were congratulations showered upon the lucky wife. Those who had been most sternly bent upon condemning her, crowded about her whispering in her ear that they, at least, had known her to be innocent.

The story of Mary March is one of the little known witch tales; in fact, I do not remember having seen it in print but once, when I read it in verse many years ago. The following ghost story of Ipswich is not a common tale, and, like the experiences of Mary March, has appeared in black and white only once, and then in verse.

On the pleasant road from Ipswich to Rowley stands the haunted house. If it isn't haunted, it should be, for such a house owes something to the public. It is of the Colonial type, and has a charming, wild garden with all those flowers your grandmother had in her "back yard." Don't you remember the row of hollyhocks, straight and vivid and tall, against the fence, the cosmos growing more graceful year by year, the petunias, which lasted until November, and the fragrant lilacs? This quaint, old house at Ipswich has them all, and a magnificent elm tree to boot.

Why the house is haunted, I do not know; the tale has been lost, but the story that has come down to us is as interesting and, probably, more cheerful. As far back as the latter part of the 18th century, the house had a firmly established reputation as an abode of ghostly creatures, and many the passer-by, who trembled as he rode through the shadow of the elm tree by the gate.

One evening Ipswich lay sleeping under the stars of a pleasant evening, when a lone rider came along the road to the haunted house. He was thinking of the tales he had heard of murder and wrong there, and could scarce keep from urging his horse into a gallop as he passed the old elm. A boy lay in wait in the darkness, and when he heard the sound of the hoofbeats, gathered himself up in readiness. Nearer came the horseman, and as he came abreast, the boy sent out a fearful yell from his young lungs and shouting, "Now, where's the ghost?," clasped the rider about the waist and sprang up behind him. In greater terror than ever Ichabod Crane felt, the rider pounded through the streets of sleeping Ipswich, waking the people with a wilder commotion than ever Paul Revere made.

Through the village, past the homes where startled men, women, children and dogs came out to join the chase, the rider took his course. The village pastor joined the throng, and then, when the horse with his double burden reached silent Ipswich River, the boy slipped away into the darkness, laughing at the furor he had aroused. We can imagine how the rider's tale of his mysterious companion grew until the vanished rider appeared to his over wrought imagination, a hideous monster with head of fire and arms of steel. Certain it is that the crowd was stricken with terror until the pastor whose "only fear, the fear of God," was, called them together under the starlight, saying,

"Friends, let us pray. It is God's will
That, somehow, good shall conquer ill."

Thus, the leader soothed his people in the quiet night and they returned to their homes, sadder and wiser for a boy's wild prank. One by one the lights in the village went out, the night became peaceful once more, and Egypt River flowed on serenely beneath the silent stars.

My last story is one less fantastic in its details, and one which bears the stamp of Truth in all its details. It is the story of Moll Pitcher, the prophet of Lynn, who was born in about the thirty-eighth year of the eighteenth century, at the "Old Brig" at Marblehead. The house is standing yet at the corner of what are now Pond and Orne streets. Her father was Aholiab Diamond, a cordwainer, who was evidently able to give his daughter some education, although the details of Moll's education are strangely lacking. On October 2, 1670, she married her father's apprentice, Robert Pitcher.

It was after her marriage, after she had gone with her husband to make a new home on the road to Marblehead, that Moll Pitcher's professional career began. Let us have a glance at her home. The spot was wild with the picturesque wildness of ungainly rocks and hardy wild cedars and rough pasture land. The house (this, too, is still standing on the northwesterly side of Essex street, opposite Pearl) fronted the sea, and there was a tiny garden there. There were four children, John, Rebecca, Ruth and Lydia. Mrs. Pitcher's clientage grew almost overnight, so that it had attained considerable size before anything definite was known about it. Her revelations astounded everyone, the vulgar and the educated alike; and people came from all New England to consult her upon questions of love, legacies, crimes, and lottery tickets. Men of the sea came to Moll Pitcher to ask her when their ships should sail, and neither crew nor master would venture upon the waters if she prophesied disaster. Treasure seekers met with short shrift at her hands, for she always answered, "Fools, do you think if I knew where money was buried I would part with the secret?"

She was not "the muttering witch-wife of the gossip's tale," but a woman like other women. Her face was not beautiful, but it was fine and interesting; her eyes were calm and pensive; her low, broad forehead, framed by masses of dark hair, indicated her excellent judgement and discernment. She was well formed and of medium height. I like to think of this wholesome, kindly woman sitting at her little table, which may still be seen at the Essex Institute in Salem, peering into a cup of tea to divine the future for her "guest." For be it known that hers was the old-fashioned way of revealing that which was on the knees of the gods. Steeped tea, turned unstrained into the cups provided her with her wherewithal to change the course of many a life. Moll Pitcher died when she had lived 75 years of vigorous life, on the 9th day of April, and she lies buried in the old burying ground near the western end of the common in Lynn.

THE North Shore workroom for the American Fund for French Wounded opened June 1st in the commodious coach-house of Mrs. E. S. Grew, at "All Oaks," West Manchester. The delightfully large airy room is fitted out with long work tables covered in white oil-cloth, where the 25 or more women gather each Monday and Thursday from 10 to 1. As the season advances it is hoped a larger number will be in regular attendance. They are coming from all along the Shore and some from Ipswich are lending support. The need and suffering in French hospitals is greater than ever and the demand for such work is being ably met by the women. The greatest of precaution is taken in preparing the sponges, bandages, rolls of cotton and wool dressings, individual dressings, special gauze dressings and in all of the 15 different varieties of surgical dressings and surgical clothes which are produced at this busy workroom. Some of the members are making surgical shirts, knitted wool sweaters and other comforts at their homes and bring them to the room for shipment in the special bags provided to send the supplies to the Boston headquarters. Everything is neatly rolled and stamped with "A. F. F. W., Boston Committee." Miss Harriet Rantoul, treasurer, at Beverly Farms, will receive checks for the money to carry on the work this summer. The reorganized committee includes Mrs. Russell Codman, chairman; Mrs. M. G. Haughton, secretary; Miss Harriet Rantoul, treasurer; Mrs. Robert S. Bradley, Mrs. Lester Leland, Mrs. Henry S. Grew, 2d, Mrs. George Lyman and Miss Alice Thorndike. Last season the North Shore women made a great success of their work in the coach-house at the home of Mrs. W. D. Denègre in West Manchester. In the autumn the work was continued a short time in Mrs. Grew's coach-house.

In taking revenge a man is but even with his enemy, but in passing it off, he is superior.

The Ubiquitous Mosquito—Campaign Waged to Rid North Shore of This Pest

THE extermination of mosquitos on the North Shore is what is necessary to make residence in this beautiful country more desirable. We have splendid residential sites, beautiful woods, and good roads into them for driving and walking, but the mosquitos destroy pleasure and comfort.

Mosquitos can and should be exterminated here as they have been exterminated in parts of Cuba, in the Panama Zone, on Staten Island, in large districts in New Jersey and Long Island and in Greenwich, Conn., where land values have risen because of their extermination.

Last summer the continuous rainfall made conditio is for mosquito breeding so good, and the pests so discomforting and dangerous that a number of our summer residents were induced to abate the nuisance in certain districts by oiling the breeding places. This summer's rainfall promises as bad a mosquito season. The oiling method proved successful in the limited district where it was tried, but it was realized that this temporary and expensive method should be abandoned and that a more permanent method of extermination should be adopted.

The permanent method is to ditch the salt marshes and drain the stagnant pools, as mosquitos only breed in stagnant waters. Last fall an association was formed for the purpose of exterminating the mosquitos by the permanent and scientific methods which have proved so successful elsewhere. This association had the North Shore surveyed by the engineers of the United States Drainage and Irrigation Co., of New York, a company which makes a specialty of such work and whose methods have met with the approval of the United States government officials.

This New York company has agreed to eliminate all mosquito breeding places within that district of the North Shore from the Danvers marshes to a point half way between Magnolia and Gloucester, thus assuring immunity from mosquitos to Beverly, Pride's Crossing, Beverly Farms, Manchester and Magnolia. The contract price fixed last year was $30,000, with an additional percentage on that sum for upkeep for from three to four years in order to assure the permanency of the work.

The district covered is comprised within a line three miles back from the ocean front and approximately 15 miles long. Within that district all stagnant pools on the rocks, in the woods and in the marshes will be eliminated; but where the pools are deep enough and large enough to admit of fish life, these pools will be so treated that fish may live and destroy the mosquito larvae as they are now doing in the fresh water pond on the road near Mr. Coolidge's entrance, at Magnolia. Mosquitos do not breed in water where fish can get at the wigglers.

The association formed last fall for this mosquito extermination work is known as the NORTH SHORE ASSOCIATION FOR THE EXTERMINATION OF MOSQUITOS, with Walter D. Denègre as president; F. P. Frazier, vice-president; Philip Sears, treasurer; C. C. Walker, secretary; and M. G. Haughton, Thomas Silsbee, George R. White, and F. M. Whitehouse of the committee.

The association sent out some 400 circulars outlining their plan and inviting residents within the district to bind themselves for subscriptions of $50 each for three consecutive years, that the sum needed might be realized. It was thought that at least 250 subscriptions would have materialized; but only about 100 were secured. The work, therefore, could not be done this season, but the committee is now renewing its efforts to get subscriptions. It is meeting with success by getting donations of larger sums from some of our public spirited citizens, who do not wish to see this splendid plan abandoned.

Three subscriptions of $500 each have already been secured by summer residents, who believe that the extermination of mosquitos is as important, and perhaps more so, than destroying the gypsy caterpillars.

However, the association will abandon its plan unless it meets with additional generous donations, and unless the Town of Manchester and the City of Beverly join in making appropriations to aid in carrying out the plan.

It is to be hoped that this opportunity of ridding the North Shore of the mosquito pest will not be lost.

Phyllis Sears Was a Bride This Week

IN St. John's Episcopal Church in Beverly Farms at 12.30 Tuesday, Miss Phyllis Sears and Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., were married by the Rev. Dr. Roland Cotton Smith, rector of St. John's Church in Washington, and an uncle of the groom. He was assisted by the Rev. William Lawrence Wood of Lenox and the Rev. Neilson P. Carey of Beverly Farms.

The bride is the younger daughter of Herbert M. Sears of Boston and "Wood Rock," Pride's Crossing. Her sister is Mrs. Bayard Warren (Elizabeth Sears), who lives close to the Sears' home at "Barberry Hill." The bridegroom is the son of the Bayard Tuckermans of Ipswich and is a Harvard '11 man.

The color scheme of pink and blue was effectively carried out in the church and at the home where the reception and breakfast were given. Carbone of Boston was the decorator. The walls of the church were massed with pink roses and greenery, vases of blue delphinium filled every available space and the altar was done in the same flowers. On each pew was a wreath of smilax to which was fastened a cluster of pink roses and delphinium.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore white satin, trimmed in rich old family lace and tulle. The skirt had a deep flounce of the trimming and there was a full court train. Her tulle veil was fastened with orange blossoms and she carried orchids and lilies of the valley.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Bayard Warren, who wore a mauve gown and a hat to match. Miss Olivia Ames, Miss Nathalie Thayer, Miss Elaine Denègre and Miss Sylvia Warren were the bridesmaids. They wore mauve gowns covered with tulle and made with panni r effect. They wore leghorn hats trimmed in flowers to harmonize with the gowns. They carried white and lavender flowers. Richard Mortimer, Jr., classmate of Mr. Tuckerman, was best man, and the ushers were Samuel H. Hooper, James W. Appleton, Bayard Warren, Henry Cannon Clarke, Francis W. Sargent, Jr., Gordon C. Prince, Robert S. Potter, Evans R. Dick, Jr., Hiram T. Folsom, Joseph B. Russell, Jr., Roger W. Cutler, Albert

C. Burrage, Jr., Henry Lee and Alvin F. Sortwell.

The guests, between seven and eight hundred, who attended the reception and breakfast, greeted the young couple in the beautiful oaken dining room of the bride's home. The walls were festooned with ropes of roses and delphinium, which were also in clusters throughout the house. An orchestra was stationed on the balcony and the large lawns were filled with the tables where the breakfast took place amidst fairyland-like surroundings of flowers. The effect was heightened by the wall of rhododendrons which formed a rich background of color, seeming to enclose the scene of the breakfast as if it had been made for the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Tuckerman are spending their honeymoon in the west and will return the first of August, when they will occupy the Francis Bartlett house at Pride's Crossing, the home of the bride's late grandfather, Francis Bartlett. Eventually they will make their home in Hamilton.

Wallace Goodrich of West Manchester was at the organ at the church ceremony. He was assisted by Harry Mueller, the church organist.

About 300 relatives and friends attended the church ceremony. Among them were the Appletons of Ipswich, Mr. and Mrs. Bryce Allan, F. I. Amory and Mrs. C. W. Amory, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Agassiz, the Oliver Ameses, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Amory, Mr. and Mrs. Elliot Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Bangs, the C. P. Curtises, Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Cutting, Mrs. Evans Dick, Miss Harriet Dexter, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. M. Elkins, the A. P. Gardners and W. A. Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hay, Mrs. Gerald Hoyt, Mrs. C. T. Lovering, the C. T., R. S. and J. S. Loverings, E. P. Motley, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Norman, the John S. Parkers, Mrs. R. S. Russell, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Reggio, the W. C. Riveses, Mrs. Roger Wolcott, the Chalmers Woods, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wendell, Mr. and Mrs. Langdon Warner, R. D. Wrenn, the various members of the Warren, Tuckerman, and Sears families, Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Thayer, Mrs. Fenno and the Misses Fenno.

Virtue is more persecuted by the wicked than encouraged by the good.

THE FLOWER MISSION OF MANCHESTER, MASS., was organized in the summer of 1894, its work being carried on in co-operation with the "Mutual Helpers' Flower Work of Boston." The success of the Manchester Branch has been so satisfactory that it is proposed to continue the work. Through the courtesy of the Unitarian Parish the basement of its church has been placed at the disposal of the Mission for the weekly work. Contributions of flowers will be gratefully received in the basement at the rear of the Unitarian Church, Masconomo street, on Thursdays between the hours of 9 and 10 a. m., beginning June 29 and ending Sept. 7.

Historic Old Landmark in Manchester Turned Into Tea Room and Antique Shop

"The Homestead Tea Room," Used as an Inn 100 Years Ago

"THE HOMESTEAD," Manchester's new tea room and gift shop opens tomorrow in the quaint historic old house on Sea street just across the railroad tracks toward Old Neck. Many interesting things will be for sale in the gift shop, including braided rugs, fancy quilts, luncheon sets, cake and candy, all made by specialists in their line. For the children there will be the wonderful work of a doll's dressmaker, something unique in itself. The great aim of Mrs. Jack Silva, who has opened the old place, is to please her guests. This she cannot fail to do, for the old house has four rooms which she has fitted up in an artistic manner for tea rooms. The rooms have antique furnishings, open fireplaces, carved woodwork and inside wooden shutters,—all of the olden time. Each room has an outside door and can be used for private parties conveniently. Two large chambers above, each with an open fireplace, will prove an admirable place for week-end parties. The house is situated in a hollow, is well shaded and has a screened porch and large lawns around it. It is one of the old-time places in Manchester, dating back to 1775, and was at one time used as an Inn.

Picturesque Norton's Point at Manchester

ON NORTON'S POINT, West Manchester, are located two of the most interesting gardens on the North Shore. One belongs to the William A. Tuckers of "The Moorings" and the other to the Ezra C. Fitches of "Riverhouse." The Tucker garden is a formal garden while the Fitch garden is a natural rock garden.

The point is reached by one of the most picturesque bridges imaginable, made of cement, and arching the railroad, the drive across it leading to the West Manchester road. It is a private bridge and replaces a former wooden one built by the late George Hood, Mr. Tucker and Mr. Fitch.

The formal garden at "The Moorings" is the delight of all who pass through Manchester by train, for it lies close to the tracks and spreads out in a lovely panorama, typical of the town they are entering. The garden is only of a few years' growth and its beauty will be more than doubled when the fine pergola next to the water is covered with vines as planned. The garden was made from swampy lowland, has been walled in, and that not proving strong enough to keep out the tide, a dike has been built which prevents the salty water from destroying the foliage. This dike is to be planted with flowers which will surely look attractive growing so near the water's edge. An interesting old Norway maple tree is standing at one side of the garden. This tree is demonstrating the fact that a tree can live without its heart. Mr. Tucker disliked to lose the fine old specimen, but since the decayed heart has been replaced with the proper material, the tree seems as verdant as ever.

Just across from this garden one enters the exquisite little rockery which is the most beautiful part of the Fitch garden at "Riverhouse." It has a wealth of flowers of all varieties growing among the rocks. A patch of blue forget-me-nots is very striking among the rocks as are the viola encircling the fountain in the Tucker garden. Perched high on the rocks in the rock garden is a little summer house from which fine views are seen. The view from here across the long and rolling sweep of lawn, seemingly a natural amphitheatre, up to the house is truly ideal. Crossing the long stretch of grass one comes to another cosy summer house from which the view down to the rock garden is just as alluring as any to be found. These cosy little nooks are favorite resorts of the family and they spend several hours daily in the enjoyment of the lovely place. Besides the beautiful flowers which surround the house, a large vegetable garden is maintained on the place. The rose garden is interesting with its four arches over which the Dorothy Perkins will soon be abloom.

"Riverhouse" has been the home of the Fitches for about twenty years. They have added to the original house on the place until now their home is one of the most picturesque to be found. The place is remarkably situated on the point of land jutting out into Manchester harbor and the view from every window in the house discloses new beauties. Smith's Point, the Marblehead shores and the intervening islands with the two tall lighthouses, "Mr. and Mrs. Baker," are some of the interesting sights. The house has many charming little piazzas with quaint furnishings, from the cosy seats of which the sea and Manchester harbor are entrancing pictures.

On Norton's Point is another admirably situated home lying between the Tucker and Fitch homes. This belongs to Mrs. James D. Safford and was the former Hood house. These three homes and their fine gardens on this isolated spot reached by bridge and water are particularly typical of the beauty of the North Shore.

"THE CHIMNEYS," the house of the seven chimneys, is Manchester's rival to Salem's "House of the Seven Gables." The showy and attractive white house with its big chimneys, all painted white, rises in a queenly and dainty fashion on the high rocks overlooking Dana's Beach. Mrs. Gardiner Martin Lane and her daughter, Miss Katharine Lane, came to their home on June 8, after Miss Katharine's school had closed. The gardens at the Lane home are among the finest on the North Shore. Gardens can well be applied to this place, for there is the lovely formal garden overlooking the sea, with its pergola at one end, and the formally laid out water garden forming the greater part of the center. Then there are the terraced gardens leading down from the formal gardens, the vegetable garden, the rock garden, and the native ferneries and other semi-wild plants which form a delightful place by themselves in the woods. The most interesting thing in the garden is the planted wall separating the formal garden from the first terrace. The garden was begun about thirteen years ago, but the wall was made only four years ago. Planted walls are one of the attractions of the gardens in Switzerland, but are rare in this country. It was from a Swiss wall that the late Mr. Lane had the wall patterned after, and most of the plants and shrubbery on the wall came from seeds grown in Switzerland. Two unique and artistically arranged summer houses, one fitted out in green furniture and lighted by a quaint old light, complete this lovely set of gardens. The tennis court is especially attractive and is entered from the main or formal garden. It also faces the sea and gives the players a full view of that wonderful stretch of water scenery over Salem and Marblehead way.

The Summer Salesroom of the Boston Industrial School for Crippled and Deformed Children opened last week in Manchester at 28 Central st. The pupils are enabled to wholly or in part support themselves from the sale of the many novelties offered, including children's frocks, everything for baby, household articles, cane and basket work and many miscellaneous articles. Orders are also taken for re-caning chairs and for other work. The committee in charge of the summer shop includes Dr. Joshua C. Hubbard, Mrs. H. S. O. Colby, Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Kent, Mrs Philip Gardner, Mrs. Philip Little, Mrs. George S. Mumford, Mrs. Philip S. Parker, C. H. Taylor, Jr., Geo. S. Winslow and Mrs. H. de Forest Lockwood. The president of the society is Joseph Grafton Minot, and the summer residents all along the Shore are intensely interested in the prosperity of the little shop, located so centrally in the village of Manchester. Mrs. Timothée Adamowski and Mrs. Lester Leland were co-chairmen of the entertainment committee of the winter's work in Boston.

At tea one day the modern girl complained because she could not be an aviator in the army.

"Oh," she sighed, blowing a cloud of cigarette smoke from her pretty lips—"Oh, if heaven had only made me a man!"

There is no grace in a benefit that sticks to the fingers.

War Notes.

XVI.

Far is the time, remote from human sight,
When war and discord on the earth shall cease;
Yet every prayer for universal peace
Avails the blessed time to expedite.

—Hartley Coleridge

Two bad men and each a killer:
Crazy Kaiser, villainous Villa.
Both accurst!
Which the worst?
'Tis but a question of simple detail—
Murder wholesale or murder retail.

Duty is ours, unflinching to pursue,
Not asking what will happen if we do;
Peace is a lovely creature, gentle-lipt,
But most unlovely when of virtue stript.

The lure of war—
The gatling's rattle,
The zest of contest,
The joy of battle!
What though the field be gory,
Our fame shall live in story,
Our name be wreathed in glory.
As long as men resist,
So long will war exist;
How then can warfare cease?
We may not look for universal peace.

—Joseph A. Torrey.

MANY of Magnolia's fine shops are now open for the season and others will be opened in a few days. Magnolia can boast of shops in her lovely summer colony which are second to none the country wide. Here are represented branches of well known firms with all that signify exclusiveness and smartness in either Boston, New York or Paris. Lexington avenue is lined with shops.

Walpole Brothers of New York have opened for their fourth season, with all that is finest in household linens, house furnishings and ladies neckwear. Mr. G. E. Bosley will be in charge of the shop.

A. Schmidt & Son of New York, Washington and St. Louis, have opened their store with their usual fine selection of imported silverwear, Sheffield plate, china and glass. This well known firm has been at Magnolia for five or six years. Their wonderful display this season is unusually complete.

The attractive shop of Mme. Najla Mogabgab of New York and Paris, importer, is open with a beautiful display of fine gowns, wraps, millinery and a full line of sport clothes at 5 Lexington Row.

The Grande Maison de Blanc of New York have reopened their beautiful store at Magnolia with a full line of household and fancy linens, comfortables of silk and wool and had-made, beautifully monogramed comfortables and blankets; a fine display of breakfast, luncheon and dinner sets richly embroidered; also neckwear, handkerchiefs and toilet accessories. A splendid showing of everything for the baby in layettes, pillows, baby-baskets and the like, exquisitely lovely hand-made dresses for the older children to sixteen years. This fine shop is also showing a complete line of sweaters, tub dresses, sport hats and beautifully made tub blouses, embroidered and handmade,—very distinctive and smart;—also a fine line of embroidered under wear in fine linens and nainsook. The shop is under the direction of Mr. Raymond Brown, resident manager.

The James McCutcheon & Co. shop in the Colonna le is now open with a complete assortment of fine housekeeping linens, as well as fancy linens, blouses, handkerchiefs, hosiery, scarfs, sweaters, sport skirts and French lingerie. The store has been re-modeled and is very attractive. Mr. A. W. Tilly is in charge.

Mrs. Margarett Bradley Purdy, who has taken the Fuller homestead at the corner of Lexington avenue and Flume street, Magnolia, is a charming woman, indeed. Mrs. Purdy it was who managed and had charge of the entertaining in the Colonial Tea Room at the Massachusetts State Building at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco and it was here that Mrs. John Hays Hammond entertained so beautifully and lavishly in her own delightful way, at one time entertaining three hundred to tea in this beautiful room. Mrs. Purdy will conduct a tea room and serve luncheon at the Fuller homestead which she has named the "Boston Tea Party," and will be assisted in her work by Mrs. Lula Blake Hamer, formerly of Mexico City, Mexico. Mrs. Hamer will also conduct a Mexican Shop at the Fuller homestead which exhibition contains a delightful array of Mexican Arts and Handicrafts, such as drawn-work, zarapes, feather work, unmounted opals, palm pouches, embroideries, old brocades, curios, calendars, place cards, small novelties and toys which are charming for prizes and gifts. Mrs. Hamer will also take pupils in Spanish. The broad and spacious verandas which afford such a delightful view will be used for the serving of tea when the days are fine, and 'tis here that friends may partake of delicious danties from the cupboards of these ladies and enjoy a quiet chat.

The Wonder-Wonder Shop at the Norman Cottage, Norman ave., is one of the attractive little places at Magnolia this year. It is conducted by the Misses Anne Divver and Mary Calnan, who have conducted a like shop at Hyannis, with a bewitching display of pretty things, such as Russian favors, Russian embroideries and Russian toys, quite unlike anything which have been brought before the eyes of the public before. All sorts of dinner favors and unique centerpieces for table decorations may be found here. "Annie Marie fudge," their own delicious make, will be on sale. Tea will be served on the veranda and lawn of the shop during the season.

July 12, 11 to 6 p. m.—Fair on the lawns of "The Rectory," Beverly Farms, benefit Parish House fund of St. John's Episcopal church.

LATEST reports of the condition of Miss Katherine C. Blodgett of Pride's Crossing show that she is resting comfortably and improving from the serious accident of Tuesday afternoon when she was thrown from her horse near Central square, Beverly Farms.

Miss Blodgett is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Blodgett of Grand Rapids, Mich., who are spending the summer in the Saltonstall cottage at Mingo Beach. She is an expert horsewoman and was riding a new, high spirited horse belonging to her riding master at Beverly Farms, with whom she was riding at the time of the accident. The horse became somewhat frightened, and upon turning from Everett into Hale street, slipped and fell. Miss Blodgett received no internal injuries, and seemed to escape in an almost miraculous manner from what might have been a very grave accident. Miss Blodgett was one of this year's graduates at Miss Spence's school in New York, where she received honorable mention in the class. Last week she took the Vassar examinations and passed creditably nearly all of the freshman studies, so that next year she will enter practically the sophomore year. She and her mother had been at their summer home only a few days before the accident. Mr. Blodgett had been in Chicago attending the convention and was still in the west with his son, John Wood Blodgett, Jr. Mrs. Blodgett's sister from Lowell came over the night of the accident. Miss Blodgett was prominent in all of the social affairs of the younger set of the North Shore last summer, and will be sadly missed until she will be able to take her place again in their midst, which will be a little later on in the season.

The North Shore was interested in another wedding on Tuesday when the principals were William Appleton Burnham of Boston and Mrs. Sarah Remsen Manice, widow of William Manice. They were married in New York at the home of the bride. Mr. Burnham's first wife died two years ago. He has a daughter, Mrs. Austen Gray (Alice M. Burnham) of New York, and two sons, both of Boston,—Frederick M. Burnham, who in May married Miss Rosamond Eliot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amory Eliot of "Wildwood," Manchester, and another son, William A. Burnham, Jr. Mr. Burnham is a member of several clubs, among them being the Myopia Hunt and Essex County clubs. The Frederick M. Burnhams are living in Manchester in the Old Neck road section.

The George F. Willetts of Norwood will open their home on Coolidge's Point, Monday. Mrs. Willett made a short stay at the place recently. She has been elected treasurer of the Magnolia Surgical Dressings Work-room.

"To Thine Own Self Be True"

WINTER is gone from hill and plain,
Summer and joy are here again;
The roses waft in fullest bloom,
To one and all their rich perfume;
The birds in the tree-tops sweetly sing,
The lowing herds their bells do ring,
And each and all take up the call
Of one whose voice doth softly fall
To tell of peace, of joy, of pride,
Of all that doth in man abide.

The sky above is brightest blue,—
It speaks of honor, grand and true;
And here and there a fleecy cloud,
Floats on a message pure and proud—
A song of gladness, sweet and low,
To all who pause, and hark to know
What one clear path in life to take,
To think and act, for Christ's own sake:
'Tis in all you say, and all you do,—
Ever "To Thine Own Self Be True."

—Wm. Davison.

7 Vine st., Beverly Farms, Mass.

The big brown shingled house of the Reginald Fosters is one of the enviably located ones on the high bluff of Coolidge's Point, Manchester. The vegetable garden is one of the noticeable features of the place, which is being opened this week for the arrival of the family from Boston.

DO you wish to get rid of rats? Will you believe that if there are rats on your premises, they are there because either you or your neighbors feed and protect them? Will you help in the campaign against the fly? Will you see a display showing proper scientific sanitation in every respect? All North Shore housekeepers are interested in these vital questions and will want to see the interesting display at the old Public Library, Central sq., Beverly Farms. It is in charge of the Beverly Farms Branch of the Beverly Improvement society and is held under the auspices of the Women's Municipal League of Boston. OCEANSIDE HOTEL
MAGNOLIA

WHILST the season is just beginning, still things are assuming a busy air at the lovely Oceanside, Magnolia. This beautiful hotel so delightfully situated with a commanding view of the ocean in one of the most exclusive spots on the North Shore numbers among its clientele many people of distinction in the business, professional and social world, throughout the country, who will be here for the entire season.

Everything that speaks of comfort and convenience is here manifested. The broad verandas afford all the pleasures of the out-of-doors, charming view of the water, the ozone of the salt air, and for those who desire, the full length of the hotel for promenading, which has become so popular. The lounging rooms are pleasingly attractive, with luxurious upholstery and soothing color scheme for the eye, a necessity for perfect rest, a courteous number of clerks at the desk to satisfy the slightest want of the guest. Then there are the splendid tennis courts on which are held tournaments during the summer which are quite the proper thing. Tea is served every afternoon and on Saturday afternoon a tea dansant is enjoyed, throughout the season.

It is a pretty sight these mornings to see Miss Katherine Coolidge, the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Coolidge, of the Magnolia colony, in the saddle, accompanied by her groom. Miss Coolidge rides well with much grace and poise and seems thoroughly to enjoy her gallop on the fine roads in and about Magnolia.

Miss Lois McGinley, the charming and vivacious Pittsburgh society girl, is again seen in and about the avenues of Magnolia, where she is always so popular at all society functions and at the Oceanside, in her beautiful high-powered motor car. The family are spending the summer at the Howard cottage, West Manchester.

T. Jefferson Coolidge, Mrs. Lucius M. Sargent, Mrs. F. L. Higginson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. T. Jefferson Newbold (Katherine Hubbard), and Miss Eleonora Sears were the North Shore relatives particularly interested in the recent June wedding of Miss Mary Newbold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Newbold (Sarah Coolidge), to William Morgan, at Hyde Park, N. Y., the country estate of the Newbolds, who are planning to spend part of the summer at Pride's Crossing with their son and daughter-in-law, the T. Jefferson Newbolds in "Alhambra" cottage.

Mrs. T. P. Proctor of Boston, who has been coming to the Oceanside for nearly thirty years, has arrived for the summer.

Miss Frances Brainard of Pittsburgh lunched with Miss Isabella Wadsworth at the Oceanside Wednesday. Miss Brainard was one of the bevy of pretty debutantes who spent last summer at Magnolia. The Brainard family will later arrive for the season and will be joined by Miss Frances, whose presence will be a pleasant addition to the summer colony.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnson of Kansas City, Mo., are recent arrivals at the Oceanside. It is rumored that the Johnsons are a honeymoon party and are very interesting.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Sichirich and daughter of Buenos Aires, S. A., are season guests at the Oceanside, and are occupying apartments in the Wilkins cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Mitchell, three children and governess and nurse are recent arrivals. They are domiciled in the Centre cottage for the season.

IPSWICH will welcome two of its old-time residents back this season, who have not occupied their Ipswich homes for several years,—the Rev. and Mrs. Roland Cotton Smith and the Rev. and Mrs. William G. Thayer. The Smiths are of Washington, where the Rev. Mr. Smith is rector of St. John's Church, and the Thayers are from Southboro, where the Rev. Mr. Thayer is Master of St. Mark's School. Mrs. Smith (Margaret S. Otis) and Mrs. Thayer (Violet Otis) are sisters. Both families have been spending several seasons at Dark Harbor, Me.

The date of the wedding of Miss Corinna Searle of "Inglisby," to Harold D. Walker of Boston has not yet been decided upon. It will take place some time in the autumn, however.

Mrs. Francis B. Harrington opened her home on Argilla road last week. She was joined last Sunday by her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Haydock (Ruth Harrington), who had just returned from their honeymoon. The young people, whose marriage took place on May 31, will spend the summer with Mrs. Harrington.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Mason of Ipswich have had a third daughter added to their little family. The little one was born on April 25 in their town home before the family had settled in Ipswich for the summer.

H. N. Higinbotham of Chicago is now with his daughter, Mrs. Richard T. Crane, Jr., at Castle Hill, where he will spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Appleton (Fanny L. Lanier) of "Appleton Farms," Ipswich, are placing a marble memorial fountain on the school house green in the center of the old town as a memorial of their youngest son, James Appleton, who died at the Ipswich home last October. He was 16 years of age.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Dellinger Barney will occupy the cottage on the Herbert W. Mason place, Candlewood Farm, while their new house is being built on Argilla road, where Dr. Barney has long been a member of the "doctor's row colony." The Mason cottage was occupied last year by the Joseph Seaburys, cousins to Mr. Mason, of Wayland.

Welcome guests in Ipswich this summer will be Mr. and Mrs. Robert Haydock of Milton whose wedding occurred early in June in the Arlington street church in Boston. Mrs. Haydock was Miss Ruth Harrington of Ipswich, where her mother, Mrs. Francis B. Harrington, has one of the most attractive of the Argilla road estates. Miss Harrington was active in the Montserrat club games of last season and has many friends in North Shore circles.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bohlen are planning to leave early in July for Bar Harbor where they will spend the summer. Their house on the County road will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Henry N. Berry of Lynn, who had the Thayer house last season.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sears (Susan E. S. Drake) of 220 Beacon street, Boston, are spending their first season in Ipswich at "Meadow View," the Frank H. Richardson house on the County road.

Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Seabury of Wellesley Hills and Miss S. D. Mason of Boston were over-night guests at Ye Rogers Manse in Ipswich when they came to attend the wedding of Miss Miriam Mason and Franklin H. Trumbull last Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mason also entertained at luncheon on Thursday at the Manse, their guests being the relatives from Boston, who came to the wedding, and some of the ushers.

Ye Burnham House Tea Room in Ipswich has had several additions and alterations this season. The most noticeable is the new private dining room finished in peacock paper and having a cheery open fireplace. A chauffeur's dining room is also a valuable addition. Kitchen space has been added and extra space for serving tea and for dancing has been made by building a large screened porch in the rear of the tea room. This as well as the tea room is lighted by quaint old lanterns. Two chambers have been added so that guests can be accommodated over night. Everything is bright with its new coat of paint and this most attractive of North Shore tea houses is now ready for its summer visitors. Its antique shop was never so full before of hand-made rugs, high and low boys, gate-legged tables, old china, pottery from New York, baskets and a host of things. Mary Elizabeth candies are for sale.

WENHAM'S range of the Essex County Rifle club, through the efforts of James H. Proctor of Ipswich and Charles W. Taintor of Topsfield has been having some interesting meets lately. There are now about sixty members in this range, and the entire county club has 300 members. The meets in Wenham are held in the upper floor of the car barn.

Mrs. Charles T. Parker entertained at luncheon at her home "Cotshabbie" in Wenham last Monday.

The Special Aid society for American Preparedness has a strong branch in Wenham. There are 40 members with an average attendance of 30. A lecture committee with Mrs. E. B. Cole as chairman and a parole committee with Mrs. John C. Phillips at the head are doing a good work. One lecture has been given in the town hall at which Sinclair Kennedy and Hon. George von L. Meyer spoke. A big preparedness parade is planned for Aug. 12. The vast need of the work has been brought home to the Wenham and Hamilton community through the reports of conditions existing in France, as seen by Dr. John C. Phillips of Wenham, who has recently returned from work with the Harvard unit. Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. Alanson L. Daniels and Mrs. Charles T. Parker of Wenham are the officers of the society.

Dr. John C. Phillips and his brother, William Phillips of Washington and Wenham Lake, with the assistance of a few friends, are planning to send ten or more boys to Plattsburg. Already four boys have been sent from North Beverly and Salem.

Mrs. J. Porter Brown, Mrs. E. B. Cole, Mrs. Frank A. Magee, Miss Mary C. Burnham, Miss Wilkins, Mrs. John Wallace and Mrs. J. H. Gifford, composing the exchange committee of the Wenham tea house, had luncheon in the tea room last Monday. Mrs. Brown, chairman of the committee, had the tables daintily decorated in baskets of forget-me-nots.

Mrs. James B. Pickett of Wenham gave a luncheon at the tea house in honor of Mrs. Chas. H. Learoyd, Mrs. Harry I. Thayer and Mrs. Andrew D. Fuller of Wakefield. Among other guests at the tea house have been Mrs. L. Carteret Fenno, the Rodolphe Agassizs, the Dr. J. H. Lancashires, Mrs. M. Graeme Haughton, Mrs. D. H. Hostetter and Mrs. W. H. Coolidge, Jr.

Wenham showed its conservative spirit uniquely in the recent holiday parade in Beverly. The committee wished to show a contrast between the old and the new in fire department apparatus, so Wenham's hand-tub was used as a background for Beverly's up-to-date engine.

HAMILTON-WENHAM playgrounds will be as usual on the Pingree field. Harry Gay of Waterbury, Conn., will be in charge with an assistant from the Sargent school in Boston. Officers are N. J. Conrad, president; Mrs. Reginald C. Robbins, secretary; Miss Lydia E. Rankins, treasurer. The summer colony has always had a special interest in the welfare of the organization.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Seavey have opened "Foxcroft," after spending the winter in Chestnut Hill. Their young daughter, Miss Eleanor Seavey, is the proud possessor of a new horse which she is fond of riding on the Hamilton roads these days.

Mrs. George D. Sargent will spend the summer as usual at "Longmeadow Farms," but her son and family, the Rev. and Mrs. Winthrop Sargent will spend the summer at Peekskill, N. Y.

The Jonathan Brown, Jrs., of Boston opened "Red Top Farm" early in June. Mrs. Brown's aunt, Miss Annie Ernst of Buffalo, N. Y., has spent three weeks at the farm and has now returned home accompanied by little Miss Gretchen Brown. Jonathan Brown, 3rd, will return this week from St. Paul's school at Concord, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Julian Codman are again occupying their home in Hamilton on the Farms road, which they had rented last year to the Francis W. Sargent, Jrs. The Sargents are now living in Dedham.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald C. Robbins, who have rented their Hamilton home to the Isaac R. Thomases of Boston, are in North East Harbor, Me., for the summer, the same as last year. They spent the winter in Hamilton.

Jordan Marsh Company—The store of largest stocks and best values in all New England

A Most Important Announcement of

Quicker and Better Service

To North Shore Summer Residents

Orders received at the store in the early forenoon delivered that day—
Orders received it the afternoon delivered the following day

Another step in our solicitation of trade among the North Shore summer residents is made in the inauguration of our improved delivery and order system..

We are using our own autos instead of relying upon local North Shore expresses, over whom we necessarily have only limited control, as they, of course, serve a multitude of houses besides ourselves.

One of these autos is situated at the North Shore the entire summer. Goods ordered are shipped there twice daily by American Express on fast trains. The auto meets the train at the station. At one end of our delivery route or the other the goods are loaded and delivered to all parts of Beverly Cove, Montserrat, Pride's Crossing, Beverly Farms, West Manchester, Manchester and Magnolia.

The Swampscott and Marblehead sections are covered by our autos direct from the store.

DELIVERY BY OUR OWN AUTOS

What this means—

—Practically the only serious complaint we have heretofore had to contend with among our North Shore trade was that of tardy deliveries.

—Goods were formerly shipped to the North Shore points, where they were received by the local expresses and delivered, no doubt as soon as possible. These expresses, however, serving so many customers were oftentimes considerably delayed in delivery and also naturally made vexatious mistakes in their hurriedness—all of which were out of our control.

—With our new system, using our own autos, we are placing the delivery of North Shore merchandise under our direct supervision, where we can check up and make sure the goods are delivered on scheduled time, and correctly.

There is still an additional service—

All calls from the North Shore for merchandise to be returned to the store will be handled by our auto.

—These calls for merchandise may be given to the driver on his regular visits at the home of the Summer Residents or call Oxford 3200, ask for call desk and leave word for auto to call for goods. The driver will issue proper receipt for same.

—This does away with the delay of the customer notifying and dealing with an outside party—namely the Express Company. Under the new order of things the entire transaction is with Jordan Marsh Company—a quicker and better way.

—Orders for merchandise may also be entrusted to the driver of these autos, who sees that the same has prompt attention, or may be telephoned into the store—calling Oxford 3200 and asking for "Order Department."

The immense resources of this store--the Greatest Retail Store in New England--are now placed at the disposal of North Shore Summer Residents in a more emphatie way than ever

BOSTON

New Ocean House, Swampscott

THE NEW OCEAN HOUSE with its wonderfully beautiful and attractive addition will throw open its doors on Saturday, June 24th, for its regular summer guests. The new addition, which will contain everything that is up-to-the-minute in comforts for the guest, and which will remain open the year round, is not yet completed; it will be ready about the first of August.

The Stars and Stripes float in the breeze before the entrance of the hotel, proclaiming to all that the throb of life is within its doors once more. The beautiful hedge which encloses the lawns in front of the hotel is wonderfully fine and very luxuriant. Artistic bushes and boxwood trees adorn the green. Fine potted plants are arranged at intervals along the spacious verandas. Lovely wicker hanging baskets filled with gaily colored geraniums also decorate the verandas.

The outlook from the porch is very expansive and beautiful. The lovely grounds and pretty white bath house—a real treat— meet the gaze; then the beach, which ends to the left in fashionable Galloupe's Point dotted with its fine summer homes. The ocean is extremely attractive from the hotel verandas at this point; the monotony is broken by several islands, whilst to the right Boston town can plainly be seen, and to the left the North Shore outline, Swampscott being the beginning of this fashionable shore line.

The New Ocean House has been entertaining a number of conventions the past week, which will finish with the opening of its doors for the regular guests, Saturday, June 24th. The Massachusetts Federation of Woman's Clubs made the New Ocean House its headquarters during the convention at the Universalist church at Lynn, the week of June 16th. The New England Bankers association held a meeting and banquet at the hotel Saturday, June 17th. Monday evening the Boston Luncheon club gave a banquet, while beginning Tuesday and continuing up to Friday night the Massachusetts State Pharmaceutical and Traveling Men's associations held their joint convention.

What can the virtues of our ancestors profit us, if we do not imitate them.

SWAMPSCOTT

The pageant which was to have been given on the estate of the Percival B. Palmers at Swampscott on June 16th and 17th by about one hundred of North Shore's fashionables, interpreting in the out-of-doors William Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," was unavoidably postponed, because of the unpropitious weather, to take place this Friday and Saturday, June 23rd and 24th. Elaborate preparations have been made by the committee of arrangements and a splendid production is expected. The proceeds of the pageant will be given to the Lynn Associated Charities.

Mrs. William Bunting, formerly of Brookline, who has been visiting at "The Arches," the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Preston at Phillips Beach, Swampscott, left Monday morning for New York.

Mr. and Mrs. George Mixter of 5 Brimmer st., Boston, who have spent their summers at Galloupe's Point, Swampscott, for several seasons, Galloupe's Point being closely identified with the Mixter family for a period of years, left during the past week for Woodmere, L. I., where they have procured a residence. Mr. Mixter has been transferred to the American International Corporation with offices in New York, from the firm of Stone & Webster with which he has been connected. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Mixter of Marlboro street,

38 BREED STREET LYNN

Boston, and Galloupe's Point, Swampscott. This charming couple will be greatly missed at Swampscott.

The first band concert of the season by the Salem Cadet Band was given at the Tedesco Country club Wednesday evening, and it was a tremendous success, the rain dampening not the ardor of the members and friends. Dinner was served in the dining-room of the club before the concert which was enjoyed by a large number.

In the trap shooting tournament held the first of the week at the shooting grounds off Tedesco street opposite the club, S. W. Winslow, Jr., was the prize winner, making 41 out of 50. The novice prize was given Richard Ward.

A trap shooting tournament is being held at the shooting grounds beginning Thursday and ending Saturday. Much enthusiasm has been shown for the sport and many have signified their intention of entering.

Mr. Jack Fanning of the DuPont Powder Company, a professional trap shooter has been at the club and on Tuesday and Thursday gave instructions to the members on the art of shooting and the handling of the guns.

Mrs. W. M. Bunting was hostess Tuesday evening at the Tedesco Country club when she entertained six of her friends at dinner.

Miss Katherine Anna Phelan, daughter of Mrs. Phelan, and the late John Phelan, and niece of Congressman M. F. Phelan of Lynn, was married Tuesday to Carl Eduard Conron of Danville, Ill., in St. John's church, Swampscott, at a nuptial mass. The officiating clergyman was Rev. John S. Kelliher of Newton. Miss Phelan was attended by Mrs. Thomas W. Conron, formerly Florence McCarthy of Lynn, matron of honor, Miss Katherine Dyer, maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Mary Horne of Macon, Ga., Miss Marie R. Walsh of Brooklyn, N. Y., Miss Blanche Donohoe of Lynn and Miss Margaret Connolly of Beverly Farms. The best man was Joseph Phelan Dyer. After the ceremony a reception was given to a large number of guests at the bride's home, 30 Greystone Park, Lynn.

It is not the quantity, but the quality of knowledge that is valuable.

A VERY interesting half hour was enjoyed the other morning when the writer called upon Mrs. Andrew W. Preston, at her beautiful home "The Arches" on Atlantic avenue, Phillips Beach, Swampscott. Mrs. Preston is a delightful woman of rare personality and unusual charm of manner. She is very fond of flowers and her beautiful rooms betoken this love for blossoms, for everywhere can be seen vases of flowers and plants from the conservatories and gardens of the Preston estate.

The Rose Garden Fete given every year by Mrs. Preston in her wonderful "Rose Garden," which contains over 250 varieties of roses, and which is always looked forward to by the fashionables of the North Shore, will be held this year sometime in the early days of July. The backwardness of the season has prevented the Fete being held in June as has usually been the custom.

Two may keep counsel, putting one away.

PHILLIPS BEACH'S social centre is very easily discerned when one glances over the doings of the Neighborhood club at Phillips Beach, Swampscott. The club is practically in its infancy, having been built much less than a year ago. Its activities were very entensive during the winter for those who make Swampscott their all-the-year-home, and will continue through the summer.

The officers of the club are Frank H. Gage, president; W. L. Terhune, vice-president; W. W. Johnson, treasurer; E. N. Carpenter, secretary. The clubhouse is very beautifully located and is ideally situated on the carline between Marblehead and Swampscott and Lynn, and adjacent to the Phillips Beach railroad station. The steward in charge is Mr. L. N. Robinson, formerly with the General W. F. Drapers at Hopedale, most efficient and capable and under whose supervision the affairs of the club run smoothly. Mrs. Robinson is stewardess in charge of the culinary department, which art and service is unexcelled along the North Shore.

Mrs. J. A. Heath of Beach Bluff, Swampscott, recently entertained at an afternoon bridge and tea at the Neighborhood club, which was a most elaborate affair. Punch was served throughout the card game, and a delicious luncheon at the close of the game.

The evening of June 17th a "Dutch" supper was given at the clubhouse which was enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Gage, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Rolfe, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Price and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Parker

Thursday at 12.30 Mrs. George C. Jones entertained thirteen ladies at a luncheon in the dinning room of the Neighborhood club. Mrs. Jones is not superstitious so dreads not the tabooed number

Miss Aborn was hostess Thursday afternoon at a pretty bridge and luncheon at the Neighborhood club. During the card game punch was served the guests, following which a delicious luncheon was served in the dining room. About thirty guests were present.

Tuesday afternoon Miss Merrill entertained seven of her friends at tea in the Japanese Tea Room at the clubhouse, and on Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Rolfe was hostess to three of her friends at tea in the artistic green and white Japanese room.

The Friday morning meetings of the Phillips Beach branch of the Surgical Dressings Committee of the Woman's Department of the National Civic Federation affiliated with the American Red Cross Society and the Woman's Movement for National Preparedness in the Neighborhood clubhouse are very well attended, and a great deal of helpful work done in this splendid cause.

MARBLEHEAD

The Harvard class of 1891 has been holding its reunion at Boston with headquarters at the Copley-Plaza, a number going up to Boston from the North Shore to attend. Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield entertained the wives of the members of the class at supper at her home "Seaside Farm," Peach's Point, Marblehead, Monday evening, a delightful time being spent. The class returned to Boston at an early hour in motor cars.

"Vinelands" the home of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Martin at Marblehead was the scene of the celebration of their 21st wedding anniversary Wednesday. They were the recipients of congratulations from a host of friends. John J. Martin, Jr., a student at Georgetown University was present at this happy occasion.

If a man is right, he cannot be too radical; if wrong, he cannot be too conservative.

Two very successful bridge parties have been given by the Marblehead and Marblehead Neck colony for the benefit of the War Relief Fund, which were largely attended and a goodly sum realized. The first was given Wednesday, June 7th, at the home of Samuel H. Brown at Fort Sewall, Marblehead. Miss Mary Brown was the hostess. The second was given at the home of Mrs. Chester L. Dane at Peach's Point on Wednesday, June 21st.

Mr. Malcolm Jones of Beacon street, Brookline, is a most enthusiastic horseman and may be seen in the saddle any morning before six in and about the roads of Swampscott.

UNDOUBTEDLY it would be very hard to find a more attractive and artistic residence and more beautiful gardens than "The Moorings," the home of Dr. and Mrs. Harris P. Mosher, so delightfully situated on Front street overlooking the Marblehead Harbor. The house is of the true English type the lower part of which is composed of stucco and the upper part of wood. The doors are an unique feature of the architecture with quaint stoops. The house is built on a high seawall, commanding a very extensive view of the harbor, which is unobstructed.

A very lovely garden nearly surrounds this very attractive residence. The garden on the land side is enclosed by a brick wall surmounted by a smaller latticed fence of wood, the entrances, of which there are two, are arched and vine covered. In the center of this fine enclosure is a large bed of salpiglossos with a number of high rose bushes of the perpetual variety, just about to bloom.

Running along the wall is a flower bed of the lovely peonies, many in blossom, a number of geraniums of the giant species, lovely Canterbury bells, dainty heliotropes, bushes of graceful bridal veil, all abloom rising at artistic intervals out of this gay profusion of blossoms. The walks from the gate entrances to the house are outlined by a thick hedge of larkspur plants which are about to bloom.

At the southwest of the house another pretty garden blooms, composed of pansies in a beautiful array with here and there a cluster of poppies, some of which are just showing their vivid colors. On either side of the door a beautiful large potted plant is set, which is of true English origin. It is called agapanthus, whose blossoms are sky-blue and blooms continually through the summer. These two plants were brought from England by Mrs. Mosher and belong to her grandmother.

A very pretty bridal supper was given at the Preston Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Fales Newhall of Springfield, who were married at Lynn, Tuesday. The party numbered six and consisted of the bride, groom, and attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Newhall will spend their honeymoon motoring through Maine.

Wise men learn by other men's mistakes; fools by their own.

Miss Evelyn Smith of Montclair, N. J., a Smith graduate, and Hayward Rolfe of Newtonville, a Dartmouth man, were married at 5 o'clock Tuesday at the home of the bride, the Rev. Edmond Wylie performing the ceremony. The altar was decorated with roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Smith, who was given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. Wilson Smith, had as her only attendant, Miss Virginia Moffatt of Montclair, as her maid-of-honor. The best man was Harlan Simonds of Fitchburg, Mass., and the ushers were Dana Estes of Brookline, Harvard, 1900, Wilbur Cook of West Newton, and Harry Stiles of Brookline. The bride was gowned in white satin and rare old lace, a family heirloom. Among those present from Massachusetts were: Mrs. Charles W. Rolfe, mother of the groom, and Miss Rolfe, sister of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Dana Estes, Brookline; Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Kent, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gleason, and Miss Ethel Gilman, of Newton. Mr. and Mrs. Rolfe on their return from their wedding trip, will be at The Preston, Beach Bluff, for the summer.

MARBLEHEAD NECK is more charming than ever these pleasant summer days with her lovely summer homes full of life and the harbor filled with all sorts of water craft.

G. G. Whitney of Milton and Mrs. Whitney, who was formerly the Countess of Yarmouth (a sister to Harry Thaw), have taken the lovely house "Sky High" at the Neck and are domiciled there for the season. Mr. Whitney is an enthusiastic yachtsman and is a member of the Corinthian Y. C.

"Finback," the yacht of C. H. W. Foster of Boston, a member of the Eastern Yacht club, broke away from her moorings Tuesday night and had drifted quite some distance before she was finally anchored.

The palatial steam yacht "Admiral," belonging to Gordon Dexter of Boston and Beverly Farms, is anchored in the harbor at Marblehead. Because of the health of Mrs. Dexter this fine yacht may not be used a great deal during the summer and will probably be chartered by friends.

E. L. Doyle, the well known jeweler of Lynn, has just anchored his sloop yacht "Melusina" in the harbor at Marblehead.

Mrs. Fred McQuesten of Brookline and Marblehead Neck was hostess at a luncheon and bridge at "Questenmere" Thursday in honor of her guest, Mrs. Emma Everett of Annapolis, a cousin of Mr. McQuesten. Mrs. Everett lives at Annapolis with her son, a former graduate of Massachusetts Institute Technology, who holds the responsible position of Professor of Marine Engineering at the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Miss Agnes W. Valentine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Valentine of Marblehead Neck, is entertaining Miss Evelyn Woods, who is a classmate at Smith College.

SURROUNDED by everything that is beautiful in nature stands the splendid residence of the F. B. Crowninshields of Boston at Peach's Point, Marblehead. The lovely estate is very appropriately called "Seaside Farm," and it is truly such. The house stands on a nearly perpendicular rise out of the harbor, which natural seawall is heavily wooded with the finest specimens of elm and birch. The house itself is very distinctly of the late 1800 style and very attractive because of its individuality. To the right of the residence a pretty rock garden claims the attention. This is composed of all the hardy little plants, such as forget-me-nots and blue-bells, as well as the vine nasturtiums.

Below the house on the land side, considerably lower than the terrace surrounding the house, and partly enclosed by a brick wall, which is most charming, and which is surmounted at intervals by miniature lions, reached by a flight of steps is "the garden" of the estate. This is very lovely, enclosed by a closely clipped hedge with arched entrances.

In this garden a great variety of blossoms may be found. The walks about the flower beds are outlined by all sorts of greenery. Pansies are the predominating blossoms and make a quaint appearance in their many varieties of colors. Particularly attractive in one corner of the garden is a massive copper birch which is a striking contrast to the green foliage about. Several others of this variety of tree are on the estate, but the one in the garden is the largest.

The entrance to the estate is through an avenue of lovely trees and a pretty hedge outlines the road on either side.

This is one of the finest estates at Peach's Point, very exclusive, yet near to town.

Quaint and charming are the tea rooms and gift shop of the Handicraft Society situated so attractively on Front street, Marblehead, overlooking Marblehead harbor with an expansive view. The shop has undergone a great deal of renovating during the winter under the guidance of Miss F. H. Johnson and Mr. W. W. Lunt, the owners, and is indeed very inviting. On the lawn adjoining the shop tables will soon be placed, of the French variety, pale green, with chairs to match overspread with green and white awning umbrellas. A hedge of hollyhocks and nasturtiums will enclose the land sides, the harbor being left in full view. Ice-cream and cake will be served here and cut flowers will be for sale. Miss Johnson is making a special feature of wonderful Portuguese embroideries this season, together with a great variety of French and Italian handwork. Her smocking is especially attractive and is beautifully done.

Dr. Abner Post and party of Newbury street, Boston, are at the Oceanside at the Neck for an indefinite stay.

The F. P. Gowings have arrived at the Neck for the summer days and have opened their artistic cottage. This unusual house, perhaps the most unique on the Neck, suggests the Anne Hathaway cottage of William Shakespeare fame.

EAST GLOUCESTER.—Ex-Congressman and Mrs. Sloat T. Fassett of Elmira, N. Y., who recently sold their magnificent estate, "Felsenmeer," at Grape Vine Cove, are planning to build over on Cape Cod. It is generally regretted that the Hon. Mr. Fassett and his charming and hospitable wife are to leave the East Gloucester colony, where they have spent so many seasons. The Fassetts before building on the shore were annual guests at the Hotel Thorwald, Bass Rocks. Mr. Fassett was a member of the Gloucester Yacht club and took part in the races, owning a fast craft. His sons were also yachting enthusiasts. Truman Fassett, a son of the Hon. Mr. Fassett, is an artist, having studied in this country and abroad. There is a charming studio on the Fassett estate.

Lieutenant Commander G. W. Whitlock of the U. S. S. Baltimore and Mrs. Whitlock are stopping at the Harbor View hotel while the ship is in port here. Brand Whitlock, U. S. Minister to Belgium, who is considerably in the limelight these days, owing to the European war, is a brother of Lieut. Whitlock.

Mr. Harcourt is a yachting enthusiast and sails his boat in the Gloucester Yacht club races and is a member of the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Vickery of Baltimore and daughter, Miss Mabel Vickery, of Baltimore are annual popular guests at the Hawthorne Inn who have arrived for the season.

Among the number of guests at the Beachcroft are Chaplain Charles S. Walkley, U. S. A. (retired) and Mrs. Walkley of Chelsea.

Harper Brownell of New York, Mrs. H. A. Root of Pittsfield and F. C. Richardson of New York are Beachcoft guests.

Fearing, Jr., Lamar M. Fearing, Munroe, Gertrude and Jola Lamar Fearing and the governess Miss K. M. Jaeger. Mr. Fearing took his departure after establishing his family here for the season and will return later.

William Fosdick is a New York artist and writer, who is stopping at Rocky Neck and is registered at the Rockaway.

A Pittsburg party stopping at the Rockaway, East Gloucester, includes: Mrs. M. R. K. McGill, Mrs. S. D. Robinson and Mrs. L. L. Martin.

Miss Alma Diserens of Cincinnati, O., who has been at the Rockaway, East Gloucester, for many seasons, has arrived for her annual sojourn.

C. H. Lunt, an enthusiastic member of the Gloucester Yacht club, has arrived here from New York City. He is registered, as usual at the Hawthorne Inn.

An important event in East Gloucester this week was the sextennial celebration of the Harvard Class of 1910, which was held at the Hawthorne Inn. It was a grand affair in every particular and although the rain interfered somewhat with the out-door amusements, everyone had a splendid time and Proprietor Stacy of the Inn did all in his power to make the house hospitable for the visitors. About 200 members of the class arrived at the Inn at noon from Boston, on Monday, having formed in line of march from the trolley car line at Rocky Neck avenue, escorted by the Naval Brigade Band which they brought with them. The blue and white striped suits of the '10 class were very conspicuous along the route. During the day at the hotel, the band discoursed music on the veranda and a tug-of-war and other contests were in order. The class banquet was held in the evening and it was a notable occasion. There were men present from a great many distant sections of the country, but the man who secured the silver loving cup was J. L. Binda of Constantinople, Turkey, who traveled the distance of 6000 miles to attend this reunion. He was wildly greeted with cheers and he responded with the Harvard yell in his native language as follows: "Inshaallah, Marshaallah, Harvard! Harvard! Chockyashah!" The yell was learned by the class and shouted at the Harvard festivities in Cambridge. G. Peabody Gardner was the chairman of the Banquet committee. The Ives orchestra rendered fine music during the banquet festivities. The "boys" took their departure during the morning of Tuesday, some going in automobiles and others by train. Before their departure, the guests of the Inn and the class of '10 sang heartily the "Star Spangled Banner" and there was the greatest of enthusiasm which will long be remembered by those present at the parting.

Joy which we cannot share with others is only half enjoyed.

ROCKPORT.—The battleships New York and Delaware, which have been in Sandy Bay Harbor of Refuge for over two weeks set sail on Wednesday, much to the regret of the townspeople. It was a pleasure to do things for the officers and sailors to make their stay pleasant and the men reciprocated by giving two large social dancing parties, one in the State Armory, Gloucester, and the other at the Gloucester City hall. On Tuesday evening last, the Fifth Division and the Marine Detachment of the U. S. S. New York gave a farewell dance to the people of Rockport in the Town hall. The hall was beautifully decorated with the ship's flags. As the ships left the harbor, the bands played to the tune of "The Girl I Left Behind Me." It is expected that five ships will be in the harbor here again for a part of July.

Rear Admiral Dewitt Coffman, commanding the sixth division of the Atlantic fleet, to which the battleships New York and Delaware are attached, became vice-admiral of the battleship division, under orders issued a few days ago. The change lowers his pennant on the New York, which has been his flagship. He will be succeeded by Rear Admiral A. F. Pechteler, while Rear Admiral H. O. Dunn will take command of division five The changes have been made by the elevation of Vice-Admiral Mayo to command the fleet.

A Preparedness meeting was held in the Town hall on Wednesday evening, under the auspices of the Woman's Branch of the state organization recently started here. A number of the summer residents were present at the meeting, besides the townspeople. The speakers were Mrs. Thorndike Howe, whose summer home is at Bass Rocks, and C. D. Paige, who was at Plattsburg last September and who spoke on the work there. Mrs. Howe is a member of the general committee of the preparedness organization.

The Hotel Edward at Pigeon Cove will open this Saturday, June 24, for the season, under the usual management of the owner, Louis Wilson, of Pittsburg, Pa.

A number of students from Boston University, Simmons and Tufts colleges have been enjoying an outing at a cottage on Marmion Way, Rockport.

Straitsmouth Inn, Land's End, has opened for the season with a number of early guests registered.

Mrs. W. W. Carter of Worcester has taken occupancy of "Sea Vista," the new cottage of Mrs. Roger H. Tarr, located in the Marmion Way colony.

The Charles Dillaways of Melrose were as usual among the first comers in the Rockport summer colony.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Liffler, Jr., and family, of Boston, are occupying their Land's End cottage, Rockport.

The United States Policy in Mexico seems to be somewhat obscure. What are they down there for? It is supposed to be a punitive expedition with Villa as the quarry sought, but where leads the quest? Now Carranza interposes an objection: Further progress into Mexico will be considered a hostile act. What will the United States do? It is evident that the policy or lack of policy which contols the movement of our troops will have to be revised and a little more backbone put into it. It looks now as though the time was not far off when the American people should demand the immediate withdrawal of our troops or an immediate defense of the policy of intervention with only one purpose,—that of restoring peace. America does not seek a campaign of conquest. If America ever intervenes in Mexico it must be solely for the purpose of restoring order and establishing peace. After the troops—the school house and education. If peace can be obtained otherwise so far so good, and if peace cannot be obtained in any other way then the United States must take up the task reluctantly, but nevertheless efficiently. The United States did not want Cuba, nor to fight Spain, and when the war was over the United States kept its agreement and Cuba was freed. The United States will keep its obligations also to the Philippines. The United States does not seek war, but if peace cannot be attained in any other way than by peaceful intervention then America would go to its work with but one purpose—that of saving Mexico unto itself and from its own enemies. Will Mexico ever understand us aright and strive for peace among themselves.

The Mobilization of 100,000 Troops for the protection of the Mexican border within a space of approximately 24 hours should be evidence enough of the value of Preparedness. Of course in numbers this army, which sprang into being over night, is a mere handful compared with the army which would be necessary to repel an invasion by one of the great nations, but it teaches us the promptness with which trained men may be assembled. If the force of men, who had been trained for service in time of need, were five times as great as at present how much simpler would be our Mexican problem.

One of the Marked Advantages of the North Shore as a summer resort is its nearness to shopping centers. There is not a portion of the shore which is not within a quarter of an hour's motor trip of Beverly or Gloucester and Salem; those who are so inclined may reach Boston in a little over an hour over the road. This makes the purchasing problem of summer housekeeping much simpler than it would otherwise be. The shops of the North Shore villages as well are unusually well equipped and maintained.

The New Road between Manchester and Beverly Farms is nearly completed and already the advantages of a better road bed are being appreciated by motorists. The slight disadvantages caused by the repairs will be more than offset by the good road which everyone may appreciate later.

The New Massachusetts Income Tax relieves pressure in many directions and opens many lines of investments for trustees or individuals not practicable under the old laws. The average old-time tax was about twenty dollars upon the thousand. A four and one-half percent bond at this rate would yield only two and one-half percent,—not an attractive margin by any means. The purchase of such bonds were prohibitive, naturally. Under the present law such a bond would render a net yield of four and one-quarter percent and a five percent bond will yield a net income of nearly four and three-fourths percent. It makes it possible now for investors and trustees to purchase such high grade securities. There were almost insuperable difficulties for trustees in finding conservative securities to return a good net yield subject to the old taxes. Under the new law such are removed and trustees and individuals have a wide field for choice.

There Has Rarely Been a Time in the remembrance of the present generation when labor has been so scarce and so well paid. It is a wise laborer who appreciates a good position and returns fair value for fair pay, and it is a wise employer who recognizes faithful service, pays a fair wage for honorable work well done. But no employer can afford to pay for time mis-spent. Efficiency is another word for honesty and unless the employee is efficient the business of his employer cannot be efficient, and unless the business is efficient it cannot be made to pay. If it does not pay it ceases and labor is out of employment. It is a circle. Worthy service helps all along the line; unfaithful service spells failure for the individual workman because it means inefficiency for the larger business.

As Was to Have Been Expected Hughes is as strongly opposed to "hyphenism" as Roosevelt himself. By endorsing Hughes, T. R. goes a long ways in making Huges the next President. Wilson owes this term that he has to Roosevelt. Taft owes his nomination and election to Roosevelt. Wilson owes this term to Roosevelt, indirectly, to be sure, but none-the-less certainly. If T. R. opposed Hughes, Wilson's election would have been assured; his support may elect Hughes and defeat Wilson. Roosevelt is getting to be a President maker. America need not worry about one of its ex-Presidents; but it is a pity that our government in some way can not avail itself of his undoubted powers for leadership.

Theodore Roosevelt Has Gained many friends since the recent conventions in Chicago. He has shown himself a man of parts and good sense. If T. R. had so desired he could have frustrated all possibilities of a peaceful co-operation of the two great parties, but to his honor be it said he maintained the high ideals that characterised his life.

The Devotion of Technology's graduates this year was evidenced in something more tangible than cheers and speeches. Can any one say just how many loyal technology dollars have been laid upon the altar of science.

The Republican Party never paid a higher tribute to any man than when it honored itself and Justice Hughes by nominating him as their candidate for the Presidency of the United States. Mr. Hughes had no machine, maintained a discreet and a commendable silence and refused to be entangled by any alliances. The nomination came to him on a silver platter and the honor was worthy of the Grand Old Party and of Charles E. Hughes. Mr. Hughes is a Baptist, the son of a Baptist minister, and if he be elected to the Presidency he will be the first of that great denomination to be elected to the first position of authority in the land. The Baptists are liberals in the highest sense of the word, maintaining with vigor and enthusiasm the doctrine of religious toleration and the right of every man to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience.

The Russians Seem to have awakened from sleep. They have been evidently making preparations for something, but no one knew what; and now the campaign is on. The successes in territory gained and prisoners taken seems a little surprising compared with the meagre land gains which are reported from time to time on the Western front. The talk of peace is still made in Germany, but there are no evidences that the Allies are willing to parley. Peace is still a long way off. The British forces have not had an active attack for some while owing to the fortunes of war. Verdun is still being fiercely contended for and the Italian-Austrian contest goes on. One would gladly try to find a peaceful sign, but there is none. The war must go on and no one knows what the end may be nor when.

The Pleas for a Strong Navy equipment in Charlestown are timely. In these days of Preparedness enthusiasm, not to say frenzy, the real and practical side of the whole problem must not be overlooked. In making a plea for a well-equipped yard in Charlestown preparedness takes a practical turn. Parades, music and cheering may arouse enthusiasm, but preparedness itself is a sombre, steady, everyday, plodding sort of an enterprise. It must be intensely practical. The Government in Washington should without delay inaugurate such plans as will develop every government navy yard to their maximum efficiency.

The Commencement Season at Technology this year will be remembered for many a year by the alumni and friends of that great technical institution. It marks the end of one era in the history of that institution and marks the beginning of a new epoch. As great as the successes of the past have been the future is certain to be more illustrious than the past. The age of technology has but begun.

The New Public Library at Beverly Farms is now in service and will soon be accepted by the city. Already it has demonstrated its need. The building is an honor to the community, a credit to the commission having its construction in hand and to the administration of Mayor Herman A. Macdonald.

The Democrats Have Met the Republicans on the suffrage question and have placed a plank in the platform in favor of women's suffrage to be settled state by state. There must be other victories won by the ardent suffragist before success will have been attained.

It is a Fortunate Turn of events which has brought the Progressive and Republican parties together. They should never have parted company.

The Beach at Beverly Farms is not public property. It belongs to the permanent residents of Beverly Farms and is incorporated under the title, "West Beach Corporation." By its charter the rights of the beach are reserved to residents of Beverly Farms. It is by the courtesy of the corporation that the grounds are open to visitors and its bathing facilities are afforded to the summer residents. The corporation must maintain the buildings, engage proper police supervision and keep the beach clean and presentable from its income which is derived from the rental of bath rooms and of the pier privileges. The board of directors are efficient and public spirited giving their service without remuneration. The corporation has made its report for the year and the directorate are to be commended for their public spirited devotion and efficiency.

Many a Man Who Complains of poor returns from the modern equipments—telephones, express, mail and railroad service—will discover that many failures of these great enterprises to serve him efficiently are due to the carelessness of the user. Every man and woman in these days needs to carefully discipline himself, to learn how to use the telephone properly, to exercise care in properly addressing letters, and in the proper reading of time-tables. The ignorance in these enlightened days of many otherwise intelligent persons appears colossal. It is a lamentable fact that thousands of dollars are annually lost by the telephone companies in time because of the carelessness of the users of the telephone, not to say a word of the fraying of nerves.

The Triumphs of Telepony come so closely one upon the foot of the other that the tremendous strides that are being made are not fully appreciated. Just pause and think what a triumph the telephone feat of the Technology banquet meant? Wonders are so commonplace that they cease to arouse. But why? Appreciation is a fine art and yields great rewards. Shall we surrender our sense of appreciation as the stupendous advances are made? Wireless and telephony, the common every day successes of these two branches of science are weird. It is a keen mind that appreciates all that they mean to the modern conditions of civilization.

There is No Doubt but what Manchester could and should have a modern hotel, but the future development of Manchester as a shore resort depends upon its estates and summer homes. Magnolia is essentially a hotel and cottage summer resort. The life there is dependent in no small measure upon the transient trade which is created by the hotels. But life in Manchester and Beverly Farms must ever be different. There the development must be in the building of summer homes. This point ought not to be lost sight of in the discussion of the summer hotel propositions which keep coming up.

The American Distributing Agency deserves the generous support the friends in America are giving to it. Despite the horrors and the cruelties of the war there have been brought out other qualities of human nature which have been admirable, and that is the generous giving of time and money to relief work in all sections of devastated Europe.

The June Brides have not been very successful this year in their weather choices. A day chosen most anywhere brings rains, showers and cold weather.

The purse strings are the most common ties of friendship.

Right or Wrong Number?

The right way to call a telephone number is to consult the telephone directory, get the correct number, and then call for that number, clearly and distinctly, when the operator answers your signal. If you do not ask for the correct number you will be connected with the wrong number.

Have you ever noticed how the mind plays queer pranks with numbers in transposing figures? It will readily transpose 1468 into 1648, or 6426 into 6246.

If memory only is relied upon, there is always a likelihood of error, and valuable time is lost in correcting such errors.

If an old memorandum containing a number is used, there may have been a change since it was written or printed, therefore the telephone directory should be consulted whenever you wish to talk.

There can be no time saved by guessing—"nears" don't count; every wrong number call is an economic waste to the subscriber as well as to the company.

The Wrong way creates annoyance to the person who is called by mistake; the right way saves delay and annoyance in completing your message, and it creates a high grade of service for you and for others.

If you cannot find the name in the telephone directory, ask for the "Information Operator" at the desired Central office. Her records are complete and up to the minute; she knows every new subscriber's number, every change of location as well as of number, and will start you right with the desired information.

After all it would appear that the dredging of Manchester harbor, a little each year, is somewhat of a necessity if it is to keep its rank among the best of the smaller harbors in this part of the coast. Now and then a vessel entering the harbor touches an unexpected mud shoal. The danger of accident is not great, but it is an inconvenience to yachtsmen to find that the way to their landing point is not as clear as expected.

Some of the speeders, who take a chance and let out a burst of speed going through Manchester, may some day be unpleasantly surprised.

"It was fifty-five years ago," said my friend George D. Haskell, guardian of the Town hall at Manchester, 'that I stole away from school and walked to Salem to see Co. H march away to war with Ed. P. Stanley and other Manchester boys. I'm going over to the depot now to see Co. G go through from Gloucester. I hope it's the last I live to see starting off to war."

The far-reaching effects of strikes these days was shown in the use of a freight car for express purposes on the noon train from Boston Tuesday. Out in Chicago a strike has tied up 200 express-baggage cars in the yards and has caused a shortage all over the country. It's a long jump from Chicago to the North Shore, but the shortage of cars has already made itself felt.

When the use of finger prints for the identification of criminals is adopted by the police of a city, that city is progressing in more ways than police methods. When a village of 3000 population has a police department using such modern methods of identification it is ahead of its class. But who denies it?

Someone has been inquiring why it was the Manchester Park Board permitted the little piece of park property near the Beach st. R. R. crossing to go to grass the way it has, with the six settees placed there the first of the season practically hidden from view by the tall grass and weeds. The fact is, dear inquirer, the town has not voted any money to take care of this property. The BREEZE will gladly subscribe to a fund for the purpose of at least cutting the grass.

Fashion and Household Suggestions

FOR THE COLONEL'S LADY

A Few New Afternoon Frocks and Hats

THE golden afternoons of summer, now close at hand, spell new frocks and hats for every woman who longs to make herself a part of the beautiful landscape (and where is there one who does not?) This summer season, unless all predictions fail, will go down in history as one noted for its social successes, as well as material prosperity. Preparedness is the word!

The American made fashions are predominating and, while the clever dressmakers have adapted somewhat from the French styles of the Second Empire and from the flowing robes of Greece, the silhouette of 1830 in our own country stamps itself indelibly upon the present mode. The straight, full skirt with unbroken lines, or with bouffant hips, is graceful and becoming. The softness and suppleness of the new materials are such that, although twenty yards are used where five were formerly considered sufficient, there is no suggestion of clumsiness. The prettiest gowns will have their own, special hats.

One enticing frock that Judy noted was of cream colored, flowered taffeta with flounces of creamy lace and lace bodice. A sash of black velvet made a chic gown that, otherwise, might have been only charmingly girlish. The hat made to be worn with this dress was of black horsehair with wide, floppy brim and a crown of black and white daisies with black and white centers.

Demand For Lines

FORTUNATELY (or should one say, unfortunately) the desirability of linen has not decreased with its scarcity. A good looking dress had a skirt of old rose linen, buttoning from belt to hem, and a coat-blouse of white linen piped with old rose. Simulated pockets and a belt, also of old rose linen, added to the attractiveness of this smart suit. The hat shown with this little dress was of old rose velours, imported.

A one-piece dress of white linen was exhibited at a smart shop this week. Smocked, with open neck and short sleeves, it was dainty and simple and still pretty enough to wear on almost any informal occasion. The charm of handwork always adds a distinctive touch, and the bright blue smocking and tie were quite becoming. Of the same shade of blue was the ribbon bow that trimmed the large leghorn hat for wear with the linen gown.

Voile is to be used this season to a great extent, its popularity being due in a large measure, no doubt, to the softness and pliability of its texture and to the beauty of its coloring. Many handsome gowns have been designed in this popular material. One, particularly to be remarked, was of old blue with yellow roses scattered over it. The full skirt was trimmed with ruffles of the material and the rather tight bodice declared for the high collar, which could, however, be open at the throat. Any woman would love the Watteau hat of old blue and its quaint trimmings of yellow roses and blue velvet ends that was made for this fetching gown.

Batiste, too, is popular this year and one of the most effective gowns of the season comes in this ever pleasing material. Of course, one must have it in stripes, blue and white, black and white and, even red and white. The blouse is in jumper effect and the lace vest is matched by lace ruffles of sleeves and skirt, the latter rather small and oddly placed. The skirt, while plain, is very full and bands running "crossways," as do the stripes of the jumper, add smartness.

Judy's Suggestions for the Luncheon Hamper

VACATION days are picnic days and especially is this true at the Shore where the rocks and the beaches constantly tempt one to eat out of doors. The charm of a picnic is in its simplicity. This applies to the food and, also, to the utensils that must be carried. This latter difficulty is done away with, of course, if the trip is to be made in a machine with the cleverly, and even luxuriously, appointed luncheon hampers that may be added to the automobile, but the need for simple, wholesome food (and not too much of it) is just as urgent as if it is a walking party. If the eatables and the drinkables must be carried, the less there is to bring back, the better. Paper napkins paper drinking cups and paper plates have solved this problem, so that there is no need to be burdened with anything except, perhaps, a thermos bottle or coffee pot on the home trip.

For the pièce de resistance, sandwiches! The good, old-fashioned ham sandwich will never be supplanted. Use cold, thinly sliced ham for these instead of the chopped, spiced meat and you will find it much more satisfying and delicious. Chicken sandwiches, too, are quite necessary for the complete picnic. Cold tongue and cold beef, sliced, are both good filling for sandwiches and have the advantage of being very substantial. Swedish rye bread and butter make the most delicious sandwiches imaginable and are a little out of the ordinary. Cream cheese may be used with the Swedish bread to advantage, too.

Salad and club sandwiches are always favorites, but must be chosen and packed with discretion. Lettuce, chopped and mixed with mayonnaise makes a refreshing filling and the sandwiches are less "messy" than if the whole leaves are used. Lettuce and tomato, lettuce and cold meat, lettuce and fruit, with mayonnaise dressing are all excellent. Club sandwiches, although requiring extra effort in the preparation, are always popular.

Bacon or frankfurts, broiled over a little fire, add to the out-of-doors repast and are particularly good if the day or evening is chilly. A broiler may be brought along, although a pointed stick is really quite as good and much more fun.

If sweets are desired at the picnic, the need will be best supplied by individual cakes or by home-made candy. Unhulled strawberries are delicious dipped in powered sugar.

Cool Drinks Refresh

THE question of something cold or of something hot to drink is always an interesting one. If the party is a large one, thermos bottles are not practical, although the larger ones will supply quite a number of individuals. Lemonade kept even over overnight in these will be as icy cold when ready to use as when prepared. If the drinkables should be already bottled, however, an excellent refrigerator pro tem may be made in the wet sand near the rocks where the water runs down between tides to the ocean. The bottles, buried in the cold, wet sand in this way will keep cool almost indefinitely. Hot drinks may be taken along in a thermos, of course, but making hot coffee is part of the joy of a picnic and need not be an arduous task. If it is not possible or desirable to build a fire, one of the very inexpensive little alcohol lamps, in which solid alcohol is burned, will fill the bill nicely and will be found to be quick and convenient.

There was a large number of disappointed young people along the North Shore last Saturday when the picnic of the Salem Union Christian Endeavor, was prevented by rain. A half dozen hardy youngsters gathered at Tuck's Point in the morning, but gave up when none of the others put in an appearance. The picnic will be held Saturday, July 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Knight and Dr. and Mrs. R. T. Glendenning returned Wednesday from a motor trip to Northampton, where they went last Saturday for the Smith Commencement. She is now on a trip to New York with some of her class-mates and after an exchange of visits will return home in early July, bringing some of the girls with her for a visit.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATION

Manchester Turns Out Largest Class in History of Town.

RELATIVES and friends of the members of the class of 1916, Story High School, Manchester, gathered in Town hall Wednesday evening to witness the graduation exercises of the largest class in the history of the school. It was a proud moment for the members of the class when, receiving the diplomas from Raymond C. Allen, chairman of the school board, they were made to realize that their class had reached the highest point in numerical strength of any class graduated from the school. Another notable feature of the class of 1916 is that it contains the largest number of young men of any class.

The list of graduates is as follows: Misses Ethel Louise Andrews, Brenda Louise Cook, Clara Emily Corrin, Emily Mary Ferreira, Catherine Anne Gillis, Gladys Gertrude Hildreth, Mary Rose Morley and Nina Elizabeth Sinnicks and James Stanley Beaton, Henry Francis Bohaker, Abbott Burke Foster, Donald Watson Height, Chester Baker Hobbs, Frank Perkins Knight, Jr., Russell Clifton Lucas and Grafton Ray Owens.

The exercises opened with the singing of "Wake, O Wake," by the school and directed by George E. Wales. Rev. Charles A. Hatch invoked Divine blessing upon the graduating class. The chorus sang Fanning's "The Miller's Wooing."

Donald W. Height delivered the salutatory address explaining that the class had chosen in accordance with general interest in the 300th anniversary of William Shakespeare to honor him at their exercises. His essay, entitled "Shakespeare's Comedy," was delivered with splendid effect and showed a great amount of thought and preparation. It was replete with humorous quotations from Shakespeare, many of which are household expressions today.

"A beautiful World," a chorus selection followed the salutatory.

Miss Ethel Andrews delivered an essay on "The Ideal Statesman," as depicted by Shakespeare. A wealth of excellent comment upon the qualities essential in the character of an ideal statesman is found in Shakespeare's writings. Miss Andrews made extensive use of these quotations in her essay. The final determining element of the statesman must be mercy, she said, and in closing quoted Portia's speech on mercy from The Merchant of Venice.

Misses Clara Corrin and Emily Ferreira sang a duet, "I Know a Bank," adapted from A Midsummer Night's Dream.

Supt. of Schools John C. Mackin, introduced the speaker of the evening, Hon. Alden P. White of Salem. Mr. White's address was a departure from the "cut and dried," formal commencement address, which as he said, "may be read by columns in the papers at this time." Speaking informally he told of his striving to remember something which had been said at him at commencement time, but the only thing which stood out in his memory was the figure of a doctor of divinity at Amherst, in his college days, who counselled the young men of the graduating class never to do anything questionable for fear of being thought "green." Mr. White said that at the conclusion of that talk the venerable gentleman leaned across the pulpit and said, "And young men, may the good Lord keep you green." He said that perhaps in after years many of this class would recall the words as he was doing at that time.

Mr. White read a letter, which he said might have been written by an old friend whom he had known in years past, a man who was born in Essex County and who had journeyed in the early day to the Middle West and settled, becoming somewhat of a sage in his later years, receiving the honor of his community when he died. Mr. White supposed a case in which the sage, a village blacksmith, wrote his advice and comment upon the essay of his son's friend to be given at the Manchester graduation exercises. The letter was filled with homely advice and an old-fashioned humor which made it hard to believe that it was not a real, instead of an imaginative letter.

Commenting upon the subject of the supposed essay, "The Scholar's Ideals," the writer said, "We agreed that it didn't matter much about the originality. There is nothing original about the Rock of Gibraltar, but it will stand shooting at just as well tomorrow as it did when they first invented gunpowder. So about ideals. They are made to shoot at. Sometimes the aim isn't high enough, but generally there isn't carry enough in the powder, or else the fuse gets wet. * * * *

"The ideal in politics—if I size it up right you say, 'The mission of the scholar is to purify politics, the scholar must be above mere party.' You say he must insist only first rate men are nominated; that the office seek the man and not the man the office. That's all right. I have a dim recollection of having heard those very words before. Only if you are going to stay in some parts of Essex County and hold on to this theory, I'm afraid you'll be sort of lonesome.

"The ideal in business—from Plato the Greek, to Theodore Roosevelt, the American, philosophers and dreamers have set up high standards. But I suspect that all else that has been written to express this particular ideal, in the whole space of time that lies between the Chaldaic hieroglyphics and the typewriter, falls to nothing compared with the simple words of One who spake, 'Do unto others as you would that they should do unto you.' If we could live up to that ideal in business, the lawyers would find most of their business gone, the moss would grow over the sealed doors of the bankruptcy courts, there would be no lock-outs, no strikes, no paupers' graves, no bullets crashing a quietus to despondent brains.*

"Individual enterprise can successfully compete with trusts, if only it is ingenius enough and persistent enough to persuade the people that it's particular product is just what the people want. Trusts or no trusts there is always a market for educated brains.*

"The ideal of conduct—I don't know much about etiquette. I've been too busy to know which fork goes with the oysters. My rule of conduct in my blacksmith shop is to keep the bellows going and strike when the iron's hot. There's a heap of difference between etiquette and politeness. Make the most of the good manners. But manners and etiquette are only artificial. On the other hand real politeness comes right from the heart. It puts the brake on the word that will hurt. It is always ready with the act that helps. Such politeness is not gained by education, but a cultured mind and a kindly heart. You may die poor. You may fall short of the successes you are now dreaming of attaining, but some other lives will have been brightened and the world will have been a little better because of you."

After the trio, "The Garden of Sleep," by the girls of the school Miss Nina E. Sinnicks delivered the valedictory. Her essay was entitled, "Shakespeare's Message." She commented on the influence of Shakespeare upon the people of all nations and told of his deep philosophy, quoting extracts from his tragedies. In conclusion Miss Sinnicks thanked the parents and school officials for their support during the school years and counselled her classmates that in future they must be more self-reliant. She concluded with the Shakespearian quotation which included the class motto, "To Thine Own Self Be True."

Raymond C. Allen, chairman of the School Board, distributed the diplomas. He congratulated the class upon having set a new record in point of numbers and upon the large number of young men in the class. He said that the class had received the benefits of their high school education through wise laws of the Commonwealth and liberal appropriations of the town. In turn they owed it as a duty to the town and the state to make the best use of the talents developed by their training.

After the chorus, "Gloria," by the school, Rev. Chas. A. Hatch pronounced the benediction.

It should be a gratification to the retiring principal of Story High School, Professor Saben, to realize that his 17 years efforts in the interests of the school have been crowned by the graduation of the largest and one of the most promising classes the school has turned out.

Instrumental music for the exercises was furnished by a trio composed of Miss Bella Porter, violin; Frank P. Knight, Jr., 'cello, and Miss Helen C. Stetson, piano. Decorations for the hall were green and gold, the class colors.

Baseball Tomorrow.

Washington, D. C.—The weather man has promised sunshine for Saturday in Manchester. He regrets that Manchester has been passed out such bad weather the last two Saturdays and assures the Breeze that he wishes to make himself right with the Manchester fans by giving them good weather for tomorrow's game with the Grey and Davis team. He says that in return for the favor of a good day he hopes that fans will turn out in force to support their team. If they do, he promises to remember Manchester for the rest of the season when he is sorting out the good weather. Advices from enemy's camp in Cambridge bring the news that the Gray and Davis warriors are out for blood and hope to take home Manchester's scalp. But the Manchester fans have different ideas. Grover will be in the box for Manchester.

FLAG DAY CELEBRATION

Patriotic Orders of Manchester Observe Anniversary of Birth of Flag.

ON Wednesday, June 17, an observance of Flag Day was held in Town hall, Manchester, under the auspices of Allen Relief Corps. A program of patriotic music, songs and speeches was arranged and carried out under the direction of Mrs. Julia S. Reed, patriotic instructor of the corps. Members of G. A. R. occupied the stage, which was decorated with flags and bunting

The program opened with the singing of "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," Mrs. Frank G. Cheever being the soloist. Alfred S. Jewett, patriotic instructor of Allen Post, G. A. R., was the first speaker of the evening, his subject being, "What the Flag Stands for to the Veterans." Mr. Jewett remarked upon the early lessons of the camp in Civil War days. He compared the life the men had just left in their own communities to that of the camp and told how the military discipline taught them obedience. That was the first lesson they learned. In the camp and in the stormy days that followed the Flag became their home. Their first duty in the morning centered around it and all day they followed and were guided by it.

Eleven Sixth Grade girls executed a pretty flag drill. They were followed by the degree team of Lee Camp, Pythian Sisters, of Beverly, in a drill, which was one of the features of the evening. The ladies were clad in flowing white gowns and carried American Flags. Mrs. Alice Lee sang a patriotic song. Because of the illness of Mrs. Hatch, Rev. Chas. A. Hatch's address on "What the Flag Means to the Church," was omitted. Supt. of Schools, John C. Mackin, spoke of the relation of the Flag to education.

"The prime institution for which our flag stands is liberty, but today the line between liberty and license has become very finely drawn," said Mr. Mackin. "Our boasted freedom is often carried to such an extent as to have a total disregard for all law and order. One of the institutions for which our forefathers fought was 'free speech.' Today our country is flooded with all sorts of magazines and newspapers, many of which would come under the head of Yellow Journalism. These papers with their objectionable language and cartoons have a dangerous influence, especially on the young people. They should come under the ban the same as the dime novel. The old problem of education was to teach the children to read and to write; the new problem is to teach them what to read and what to write. A problem that has grown out of our boasted freedom is the immigration problem. This fair land of liberty has been used at one time or another as the dumping ground for almost every nation on the face of the earth. We should not object to respectable foreigners coming here, but we should object to their taking a part in our government without knowing anything about it.

"Corruption in politics is a problem growing out of the wrong interpretation of the word freedom. Our town meetings, intended to be conventions for the intelligent discussion of existting questions, are often turned into meetings where opposing factions indulge in personalities with little regard for the good of the community."

Other points touched upon by the speaker were the liberty to destroy life and property (lynch law) and the freedom of disrespect to others, especially those older. Quoting an American writer, he said, "True patriotism does not consist in rhetorical flourishes and national boastings. It results from a just appreciation of our country, of its spirit of liberty, of its institutions and its laws, of its form of government, its splendid domain, its natural beauties, its rank among nations and its triumphant forward march."

There was a recitation by little Miss Josephine Scott, a drill by Boy Scouts under the leadership of Playground Director McCarthy and a recitation by Miss Ann Lucas. Rev. A. G. Warner spoke of the significance of the Flag to the Boy Scouts. He told first what the troop flag of the Scouts, which they were carrying for the first time that night, meant to them. He added that in spite of all their flag stood for to them it never appeared except in the company of the American Flag and never preceded it. He said patriotism was the ideal which inspired men to honorable deeds and that it was a fundamental of their lives. "It, the flag, is their inspiration to patriotism and growth to things honorable," he said.

Miss Dorothy Bohaker sang, "Don't Bite the Hand That's Feeding You," a popular song aimed at the "Hyphen," and won enthusiastic applause. For an encore she sang, "Soldier Boys in Blue."

Francis M. Stanwood spoke extemporaneously of the significance of the flag. He said that it had not always stood for liberty and justice and he spoke of the days before the Civil War. He paid a splendid tribute to the soldierly qualities of General U. S. Grant and said that one of his treasured possessions was a portrait of Grant given him by his comrades of Allen Post. He presented Miss Bohaker with a beautifully bound copy of Macauley's, "Lays of Ancient Rome." He said the award was in appreciation of the part of the program most stirringly patriotic, in his opinion.

Edwin P. Stanley spoke briefly of a similar patriotic demonstration twenty years ago, which inspired in him a vision of the day when all the nations of the world would assemble under the folds of "Old Glory."

The audience sang "The Star Spangled Banner" at the conclusion of the program, Mrs. Alice Lee being the soloist.

Hopes are entertained of having the biggest Fourth of July parade in years. The committee asks everyone to co-operate in making the day a success. Already many organizations have announced their intentions of taking part. Don't stand on the sidewalk and complain that the parade this year is a fizzle. If you are in line and the other kicker, too, it won't be a fizzle. The three sections of the parade will form in Beach st., one on each side of the railroad and the third division farther up the street toward the beach. The day will start with the salute and ringing of bells at 5 o'clock. The parade will assemble at 6 a. m., the divisions being horrible and antique, floral and civic, and trades. The Beverly Farms Band will lead. The exercises on the Common will be held as previously announced and the sports will be held in the square. A ball game will be played at 3 o'clock between Stoneham and Manchester. The Salem Light Infantry band will give a concert at 7.45 p. m., on the common.

GEORGE A. PRIEST SCHOOL

First Graduation Exercises in History of Grammar School Held by Class of 1916.

A departure from the routine method of promotion from grammar school, Manchester, was made this year at the George A. Priest school when graduation exercises were held Wednesday afternoon by the pupils of the Eighth Grade. An excellent program, arranged under the direction of their teacher, Oscar F. Raymond, principal of the school, was carried out. The manner in which exercises were executed reflected credit upon those who took part and upon Mr. Raymond, who directed it. About 60 mothers and friends attended the exercises, which were held in the Eighth Grade room.

The room was decorated with blue and white streamers, sprays of forget-me-nots, the class flower, upon the blackboards and the class motto in blue and white letters across the room, "Work and Win." Flags were also used in the decorations.

Features of the program were the class prophecy, the class history and the presentation by the class of a large bust of Lincoln upon a pedestal to the school. The class prophecy by Allen Needham, Jessie Kenoe and Lila McEachern showed a great deal of preparation and was very amusing. The class history by Helen Beaton also had entertaining features in the past adventures of some of the members. Miss Janet Height made the presentation speech in which she told of the wish of the class, as the first to have graduation exercises, to leave something behind for the school. The gift was purchased by the voluntary subscriptions of the members. Supt. of Schools, John C. Mackin, in accepting the gift congratulated the class upon its progress and its development of self-control. He said the spirit of the gift was appreciated as much as the gift itself

MANCHESTER CHURCHES

First Unitarian church, Masconomo st. Dr. Earl M. Wilbur, president of the Pacific Unitarian School for the Ministry, California, will preach Sunday morning, June 25, at 11 o'clock.

On account of the severe weather of last Saturday but few streets were canvassed in the interests of the King's Daughters Tag Day, so it is planned to try again this week Saturday—"Tag Day," June 24.

Children's Day will be observed by the Sunday School of the Congl. church at 7 p. m. Sunday. An appropriate program, "The Carnival of the Flowers" will be carried out.

Passes 99th Birthday.

To William Johnson, who passed his 99th birthday at his home on Bridge st., Manchester, Tuesday of the past week, belongs the distinction of being the oldest man in Manchester. He was born in Epsom, N. H., where he spent about 50 years of his life. He moved to Manchester 40 years ago and secured work at his trade as a cabinet-maker. Later he started a small chair factory in the rear of his home and conducted it up until about 25 years ago. Mr. Johnson never mixed much in politics. During the late "eighties" he was a town constable for several years. He is a member of the Congl. church. He as been married four times.

Mr. Johnson has always enjoyed working in his garden and has kept a large space of ground under cultivation each year. Last year after passing his 98th birthday he helped some in the cultivation of the garden. On his last birthday he chopped wood for the use of the family. During the last year Mr. Johnson has grown feeble and needs assistance in getting about the house. His health, however, is reamrkable for one of such an advanced age and he eats heartily. He remains a typical New Englander for he still enjoys his beans and brown bread.

Mrs. Ada Josephine McCollom

Mrs. Ada Josephine McCollom, wife of Henry B. McCollom, died at her home, Beach st., Manchester, Saturday of last week. Mrs. McCollom was stricken on Friday, June 9th, by paralysis, resulting from hardening of the arteries. Her condition showed no improvement from the time she was stricken until death came. Mrs. McCollom, who was Ada Josephine Dow, before her marriage, was a native of Manchester and had always lived in the village.

The funeral was held from her late home, Tuesday afternoon, Rev. C. A. Hatch officiating. Burial was in Rosedale cemetery. Besides her husband Mrs. McCollom leaves a brother, Arthur H. Dow, and a sister, Mrs. Frank Crombie. Mrs. McCollom was a woman beloved by all who knew her and her friends were many. The sympathies of the community are with Mr. McCollom in his bereavement.

Peters-McNeil.

Archibald C. Peters, a Manchester young man, and Miss Mary Alice McNeil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angus McNeil of Gloucester, were married Wednesday evening at St. Peter's Episcopal Rectory in Beverly by Rev. E. J. V. Huiginn. They were unattended. Following the ceremony they motored back to Manchester and went directly to their new home, 29 Bennett st., where an informal reception was held. About 35 attended, including relatives of the bride from Gloucester.

Mr. Peters is employed as chauffeur for Frank P. Knight and is the son of Mrs. Clara C. Peters.

A dance will be held at the Men's clubhouse Saturday night.

Ruth Scott and Mary Boyd, who are seniors in the Western College for Women at Oxford, Ohio, arrived home Monday night, coming by the way of Washington, D. C., that they might visit its many places of interest. Magnolia is justly proud of some of her young people who are making good use of their opportunities, and others should be inspired by their noble example.

There will be no services in the Village church next Sunday morning. A union service will be held in the Union Chapel Sunday, at 10.45 a. m., and it will be conducted by the pastor of the Village church, Rev. Dr. Walter S. Eaton. The usual evening service will be held in the Village church at 7.30 o'clock, and the subject of the pastor's sermon will be, "What is a Christian Church?" Prof. Brackett's organ recitals preceding the sermon are greatly enjoyed.

A work-room to prepare surgical dressings has been opened at the Oceanside Annex and this work will be carried on every week-day, except Saturday, from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m. All dressings when completed will be sent to the main Surgical Dressing Committee in Boston for sterilization and shipment to the Allies. This good work is in charge of the following public-spirited women: Mrs. W. H. Coolidge, Mrs. E. M. Binney, Mrs. E. B. Richardson, Mrs. George F. Willett, Mrs. G. L. Hamilton, Mrs. C. C. Converse, Mrs J. C. Ellsworth, Mrs. G. E. Carter, Miss E. Burrage. Mrs. George F. Willett, Coolidge Point, Magnolia, is the treasurer. All the women of Magnolia are invited to join in this work.

Early Monday morning Harold Dunbar was summoned to Gloucester to join Company G which left Wednesday for Framingham. It is not to be wondered at that his parents are worried and anxious and so are other parents whose sons have responded to the President's recent call for soldiers in this crisis with Mexico. Would that there might be some way to settle this trouble without going to war, the outcome of which no one is wise enough to prophesy! Has the world gone war-mad? It would seem so.

Don't you find gardening a splendid exercise?

I. O. O. F. MEMORIAL SUNDAY

FRATERNAL ORDERS GATHER AT SERVICE IN MANCHESTER CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Members of Magnolia lodge, 149, I. O. O. F., and Liberty Lodge of Rebekahs assembled at the morning service at the Manchester Congl. church in tribute to the deceased members of the local lodge of Odd Fellows, last Sunday. Members of Ocean Lodge, Gloucester, also attended. A strong sermon touching on the principles of Odd Fellowship was delivered by the pastor, Rev. Charles A. Hatch. During the course of the service the names were read of the members of Magnolia Lodge who had passed away during the last year. They are John O. Ober, Charles O. Howe, Charles H. Rust, Robert Baker and Larcom W. Story.

"We are all in sympathy with this big order which has its fundamental principles based on the Bible," said Mr. Hatch. "The story of the Good Samaritan is associated closely with the principles of the Order. If I were director of a motion picture company I would not delay in putting that story before the public. It is a gripping, dramatic story. There are two classes of people today. Those who pass by on the other side and those who spend their time and substance healing and relieving the afflicted.

"We ourselves are apt to be 'priests and Levites' and pass by on the other side. We tell our friends that we cannot bear the sight of another's suffering, yet across the road from us is a neighbor whose heart is yearning for sympathy and we pass him by. One reason for this is prejudice. We hear people say 'I make it a rule never to give to a beggar.' Better to give the ten cents to the beggar who may spend it for drink, as we fear, than to become like the priest and the Levite. Then again, we are apt to lay the blame on the fallen. We see a young man drinking himself to death and say that he should have known better than to have started. Are we doing anything to help him? When we see people in poverty are we not apt to say they never had any business sense anyway?

"Most of us are sentimentalists. We read a book that brings tears to our eyes at the suffering of a ficticious character, and the person who lies beneath our very eyes we pass by on the other side. Next to the sentimentalist the idle curiosity seeker excites our contempt. Worse than the sentimentalists, in fact, are the 'slummers,' the people who visit the poor sections of the cities and frequent the lowest dives to satisfy an idle curiosity. The social settlement worker is a Levite posing as a Good Samaritan."

Mr. Hatch mentioned the work of St. Francis of Assisi, Jane Addams and others as examples of the real spirit of good samaritanism.

"America should become the Good Samaritan of nations. She should send countless supplies of medicine and food to the suffering nations at war rather than build huge battleships to create further international jealousy," said the speaker. "If you Odd Fellows and Daughters of Rebekah create a love of mankind you are doing the work of Christ and are playing the part of the Good Samaritan."

Beverly schools close next Wednesday for the summer vacation.

Nearly all of the houses at Beverly Farms and Pride's are now occupied and the summer bustle has commenced in earnest.

A number from here plan to attend the dance in Manchester Town hall, Thursday evening, July 11, under the auspices of the "Preparedness club." A banjo orchestra will furnish the music.

On another page we print today the words of a poem composed by a well known Beverly Farms young man, Wm. Davison, 7 Vine st. "To Thine Own Self Be True," contains sentiments well worth the thought of all who read.

The baseball game at Manchester tomorrow, with the Gray & Davis team will draw a crowd of Beverly Farms fans who have been disappointed in Manchester failing to play the last two Saturdays. Fair weather, let up hope!

WENHAM

Wednesday, June 28, is the date set for the second annual auto pilgrimage by the "men of Wenham." As they had so fine a time last season at Canobie, they will again lay their course to the northward, and visit Portsmouth, N. H. 8.30 a. m. is the starting time.

More than one worthy cause is finding its home in the house owned by S. Dacre Bush on Main st., Wenham. Each Monday afternoon the ladies hold their preparedness class, and study how to make surgical dressings. The sewing school, formerly held in the school house, will likewise hold sessions in the Bush house.

Wenham's schools are to be advanced a grade next season, taking in the ninth year. Methods usually found only in high schools will be introduced for the seventh, eighth, and ninth grades. The new principal will be a man, and a college graduate.

Last Saturday's storm was a disappointment to the Junior Endeavorers. In anticipation of a picnic at Gloucester, they had made every preparation to win the championship banner; and then came the rain. The Superintendent, Miss Grace E. Glavin, was most disappointed of all. As a partial recompence a party of the little people will have a trip down Boston harbor tomorrow (Saturday), and will see how the Boston Seaman's Friend Society's missionary goes to work helping sailors. In order to have a share in it, the children will take bouquets of flowers for the ships which they visit.

At the Congregational church Sunday morning the minister, Rev. F. M. Cutler, will preach on "The Forgiven Debtors." Sunday school at noon, Junior C. E. at 5. Y. P. S. C. E. at 6. There will be a praise and preaching service at 7.

Wenham's hand-tub fire engine was shown in the parade at Beverly last week as a contrast to the modern motor appartus now used in that city.

Beverly high school cadets were in camp at Idlewood last week. They proved themselves to be young men of high character and fine physique. The leader of the party has since gone into service with the Salem field artillery.

F. M. Robbins of Newburyport, a colporteur of the Massachusetts Bible Society, is engaged in canvassing the town of Wenham in the interest of religion. He lives in his covered wagon, sleeping and eating in a space that seems very cramped. The object of his work is to interest people in the Bible. By reason of his novel methods which he is always ready to explain, and his genial, sunny personality, Mr. Robbins is a welcome visitor in the home.

Mr. and Mrs. William Davison have rented one of the cottages in Connolly place.

George T. Larcom, who was recently operated upon at the Mass. General Hospital, is reported to be slowly improving.

John A. Morrison of Beverly Farms opened his summer hotel, the Colonial Inn, at Kennebunkport, Me., this week. The Inn is one of the popular hostelries at the resort.

Miss Muriel Publicover spent a portion of the past week in New Hampshire enjoying camp life with a party of girl classmates at the Sargent School, Cambridge.

Beverly Farms fans look forward to the Salem-Beverly High school ball game tomorrow with a good deal of interest as the game marks the climax of the school series. "Reggie" MacDonald of Beverly Farms is the catcher on the Beverly team.

Michael J. Riordan was pleasantly reminded recently that he was passing the 40th anniversary of the day he took service on the estate of the John T. Morse, Jrs., at Pride's Crossing. He is now superintendent of the estate and can boast that he has missed but few days from his duties in all his years of service.

GRASS RUGS

They are cool and easy to keep clean

SUMMER Rugs! Do you employ them in your own home? Do you realize what an economy they are? And do you know how pretty, and picturesque—and refined—the NEW Summer Rugs are?

A GRASS rug—with the smaller mats to match; flowery cretonnes covering the chairs and as over-curtains; a few wicker chairs and a reed table; and you have a summer living room cool and inviting, and the admiration of everyone.

AND SUMMER CLEANING IS MADE SO EASY

GRASS Rugs on the bedroom floors—you would not be without them in the Summertime once you have tried them.

AND you will find that their cost is more than made up for by the saving in wear of your fine Wilton, Axminster and Brussels carpets.

OF course there is no other floor covering for summer cottages—for sleeping balconies and verandas—and for camps. Grass Rugs have taken the place of all other carpets for such employments.

THIS week we make a most attractive display of these cool, serviceable rugs. New styles and designs that are most effective and pleasing. Prices are lower now than they will be when we have to re-order.

Prices Range from 29c to $8.49

Through our outlet for automobile tires (shoes and tubes) in large quantities and our close business connections with the manufacturers we have completed a contract that will enable our customers to get the very highest values at minimum prices during the 1916 riding season at both our Manchester and Gloucester salesrooms.

MANCHESTER BROTHERHOOD

Last Meeting of Year Enjoyed at Musical Entertainment.

There were 57 members of the Manchester Brotherhood at the last regular meeting of the year held in the Baptist vestry on Monday evening. The program was in charge of Raymond C. Allen, who furnished a splendid entertainment with a Victrola. The members were treated to a selection of music ranging all the way from late popular songs to grand opera. Mr. Allen's choice of program was an excellent one and he had a great variety of an unusual quality of records to draw upon.

The Brotherhood voted $50 to the Baptist church for the use of the vestry the past season and also $5 to the sexton for extra services. It was voted to leave to the directors the arrangement of a program of speakers for the annual picnic to be held at Tuck's Point on Saturday, July 15, when a chowder dinner will be served.

No action was taken on the invitation of the Fourth of July committee to the Brotherhood to take part in the parade. Most of the members are also members of other organizations, which will be represented in line, so that the Brotherhood would not receive a very great representation in proportion to its membership.

The report of the treasurer was not presented at the meeting, but it is understood that the finances of the Brotherhood are in their usual good condition, a small balance being reported.

Ice-cream was served at the conclusion of the meeting.

Oiled paper has been found to be an excellent material for packing tree seedlings, when shipped in crates. When crates are not used, paper-lined burlap makes a particularly satisfactory wrapper.

KEITH'S THEATRE, BOSTON.

Billy B. Van, than whom there is no funnier man on the American stage, who has not been seen in Boston in several years, will head the bill at B. F. Keith's Theatre the week of June 26, assisted by the Beaumont Sisters in his new farce comedy with music, "Spooks." The entire bill fairly sparkles with stars and novelties. Craig Campbell, the celebrated Scotch tenor, will sing some of his favorite ballads, and Nonette, the gypsy violinist who sings, after an absence of years from this city, will also appear. The big comedy feature, aside from Billy B. Van, will be provided by the Joe Boganny Troupe of Lunatic Bakers, in their uproariously funny acrobatic laugh fest, "Fun in a Bakeshop." Other features will include Adler and Arline, in a comedy mimicry act; Joe Keno and Rosie Green in lots of action; Redford and Winchester, jugglers de luxe; Emil Subers, in a novelty act; and the Norvelles in a series of startling European novelties.

"Do thoughts that came to you in the long ago ever return?" asked the originator of silly questions. "Not unless I enclose stamps," answered the literary party.—Chicago Daily News.

On "exhibition day," the teacher gave out the word "hazardous" for a boy to spell; and to her great surprise he promptly spelled it "hazardess." Thinking that definition might jog his memory, she asked him to give the meaning, whereupon her astonishment was intensified with the reply, "A female hazard."—Christian Register.

"He's always perpetuating some kind of a joke," said Mrs. Twickenbury.—Christian Register.

...ANNOUNCING THE PUBLICATION OF...

THE DANIEL LOW DIAMOND BOOK

"WE issue this book because so many of our customers and friends, having confidence in our integrity and sincerity, have asked us to tell them in a simple way the real facts about the value of a diamond. They want to know what they are buying.

"Perhaps you, too, are considering the purchase of a diamond. And perhaps you have been confused by the terms and the conflicting claims used by different diamond dealers. If you have shopped you have doubtless puzzled over the fact that one dealer offered a certain stone for $100, say, while another asked $150 or $200 for a stone of the same size and perhaps seeming to possess the same qualities.

"You realize, of course, that there must be some difference in the two stones when the difference in price is so great. But what is the difference? And is it important? You are going to invest your money and you want to know what you are buying.

"Yes, there is a difference. And it is important. We are going to tell you the facts in the simplest, most straightforward way we can. Indeed, we believe this to be the most frank and honest statement about diamonds and their values that any diamond merchant has ever published. We have won the lasting friendship and confidence of thousands of men and women, not only in this country but in every civilized country in the world, by our frank and truthful statements to them during our nearly fifty years of selling diamonds in our Store and through the mails. What we have told these people personally and in our letters we are printing, for the first time, in this book."

So reads the introduction to the Daniel Low Diamond Book—a book that presents the truths of the diamond in a clear, comprehensive manner. In it you will find explained the relative importance of color and cutting, also their effect on price. You will find that much abused word "perfection" defined, and illustrations are shown of stone sizes with prices in several grades. Should you be planning to purchase a diamond you cannot afford to make your selection before reading carefully the information found in this book. You will find it a help whether purchasing from us or elsewhere.

We make no charge for the Diamond Book. A copy of it may be had at our Store or it will be mailed, upon request, to anyone interested in the purchase of a diamond.

Magnolia's Artistic Little Shops In Heart of North Shore Are Fashion Leaders of the World

The Arcade, Along Lexington Ave., Magnolia, Opposite Which The Colonial Has Just Been Built.

NESTLED among the magnolia trees, from which it takes its name, close to the water side in the heart of the exclusive North Shore summer colony is Magnolia, today the center of fashion for the whole world. A broad statement? Not to those familar with the world of fashion. For years Magnolia has been acknowledged the premier style center of America and second only to Paris in the eyes of fashionable Americans and of the style creators and critics.

Magnolia's place in the first rank of fashion leaders is the natural result of circumstances. Going back a bit! For years society in America has favored one or another watering place in succession as the center for recreation of persons of wealth, culture and position. It has been the fate of many splendid resorts that hordes of lesser personalities have followed in the wake of the more select groups whose names and persons first graced the resorts and made them famous. In turn other multitudes of vacationists have swarmed to these centers to bask in the light shed by the socially prominent. The result has always been the same; society has sought new haunts. This has been the story of nearly every watering place and mountain resort in America, excepting the few exclusive places along the North Shore. Having prevented the incursions of crowds, which would make this section "popular," by the establishment of large estates and the exclusion of the cheap hotels, the North Shore—particularly Magnolia and vicinity—has become the headquarters of American society in summer,—which takes us back to our original theme.

In keeping with the growth of Magnolia as the center of the social life of America in summer has been its growth as the shopping center of fashionable society. Here have been erected beautiful buildings for the housing of shops catering to the tastes of American men and women, who demand the latest modes, and in fact establish them by their approval. The leading importers on this side of the Atlantic have followed society to its lair and here in the midst of a beautiful summer land have builded themselves permanent shops, surrounded them with the beauties of nature and stocked them with the latest fashions of apparel or dainty home furnishings.

It is habit to speak of New York as the fashion center of America, but those in touch with the changes of style have long been aware of the fact that the New York importers first display their season's goods at Magnolia and abide by the dictates of this little center of fashion as the criterion of what is to be good form in apparel during the New York fall and winter season. Here in August one may see the choicest of furs, which months later will be admired as the possession of a beautiful society woman. Here also the advance models of gowns, which will grace winter gatherings, will first delight the eye of the fair shopper.

The Magnolia shops cluster about fair Lexington avenue, a stone's throw from the fashionable Oceanside hotel. A stranger to the North Shore would be instantly aware of the fact he was in the midst of a shopping center of importance as soon as he set foot upon the avenue. The Colonnade, which has housed many of the rare shops of Magnolia, is a long, low structure occupying a long block on one side of the street. Its wide white pillared arbors shade the display windows and take away the "shoppy" look from the building. The columns which support the arbor have long since become entwined with creeping vines. Shrubbery borders the pretty walks in front and sets off the various shop entrances.

Opposite the Colonnade, which is famed the country o'er, is Lexington Row, and the Donchian Building, and on the opposite side of the avenue has been built the Colonial, another beautiful structure just receiving the finishing touches of natural adornment. It will likewise shelter the shops of many famous concerns beneath its broad porticoes. Some of the shops in the new Colonial are already opened and as this article appears still others will have completed the installation of fixtures and stock. Opposite The Colonial is the Arcade, another group of shops, regarded by many as the most attractive of all in Magnolia.

A feature of the Magnolia shops which impresses many on their first visit is the similarity to the shops of Paris. The huge department stores so common in our great cities are not to be found in Europe's great city of the Seine. Instead are to be found the distinctive little shops each specializing in one class of goods and striving to be superior in its line. And this is the keynote of the Magnolia shops as well—superiority.

To go into the details of the rich costumes, the tasty household decorations and accessories and marvelous antiques would be superfluous. There is no comparative degree in their description, hence the superlative of all qualifying adjectives may be used. To the stranger the mention of the leading firms in the exclusive colony of Magnolia shops will convey an inkling of its rank: The Grande Maison de Blanc, 538-540 Fifth ave., New York, long known as "the trousseau house of America," specializing in linens, French underwear and sport clothes; James McCutcheon & Co., Fifth ave., New York, spoken of as the "greatest treasure house of linens in America," specializing in trousseau outfits; Dreicer & Co., 560 Fifth ave., New York, pearl dealers and jewelers; Bonwit-Teller & Co., Fifth ave., New York, Paris and Philadelphia, who stand for individuality in women's dress; De-Pinna, the well-known children's specialty house of Fifth ave.; Ovington's, importers of china and glassware, and art goods, also Fifth ave., New York; A. Schmidt & Son, importers of silver and Sheffield plate, and fine porcelains, New York, Washington and St. Louis; Walpole Bros., linen manufacturers of Belfast, London and New York; E. T. Slattery Co., Boston, fashionable apparel for women, misses and children and all the accessories of the smart feminine wordrobe; Collins & Fairbanks, of Boston, hats and furs for men and women; Cammeyer of New York, exclusive footwear for men, women and children; L. P. Hollander & Co., of Boston and New York, ladies' wearing apparel "with a high standard of distinction"; Harlow and Howland, 355 Boylston st., Boston, interior decorators; Mme. Mogabgab, New York, gowns, millinery and sport clothes; The Lowestoft Shop, antiques and decorations, 85 Chestnut st., Boston, and L. W. Hall & Co., 396 Boylston st., Boston, fancy leather goods and novelties.

Of the pre-eminence of Magnolia as the most exclusive shopping center of America there is little doubt. Through the accident of war the glory of Paris dimmed and society no longer looks in that direction for guidance in matters of fashion. But Magnolia shows the way!

Some Dog Pets Along the North Shore

DOGS are coming into their own as never before. Practically every home on the North Shore has one pet and in many cases a half dozen or more may be found on the place. The Pomeranians, Pekingese and toy poodles predominate among the pet dogs, while many noble specimens are seen among the larger types.

The North Shore was interested in the little prize winner of last year's shows, Nowata Ting Fa, belonging to Mrs. Francis R. Spalding of West Manchester. This little fellow made his "debut" last summer and was the sensational winner in his class at the "Peke" show at the Plaza hotel. He is now summering in the West Manchester home.

The first dog show of the season was held Saturday afternoon at "Willowbrook," in Beverly Cove, when Mrs. Joseph H. Tyler entertained twenty-five Radcliffe girls of the 1911 class. The girls were the judges and the dogs were the 20 handsome English Setters belonging to Chas. H. Tyler. Dogs that came in for prizes were Willowbrook Real, Willowbrook Gad and Willowbrook Flounce. All are fine creatures and their judges had difficulty in deciding as to their various merits—the prettiest marked ones being generally favored. These doys have recently come from Wakefield where Mr. Tyler kept them when not hunting. He was with them in So. Carolina part of the winter. New kennels are almost completed at the Tyler home. The building is one of the most up-to-date kennels to be found, is finished in hardwood, has eighteen pens, and resembles a barn more than a kennel. The old kennel with its four pens has been done over in wood to match the new one. A kitchen completes this house in which the purest rice and biscuits are served to the hunters. All of the dogs are winners in the important shows of the country. Joe Lewis is the expert caretaker at the new kennels, and delights in showing his charges to interested visitors.

At the George S. Mandell home in Hamilton the pet dogs include Yorkshire terriers and Welsh terriers. The sight of the place, however, is the kennel where about fifty imported foxhounds are kept. These white and brown beauties with their backs marked in black set up such a terrific baying at the sight of a visitor that one hesitates to go very close to them, although one of their number which was on the outside of the enclosure the other day, seemed as gentle as any ordinary dog. These hounds are the special delight of Miss Emma Mandell, the young daughter, who is the enthusiastic master of the pony drags of the Myopia Hunt club. She always rides in these hunts accompanied by her father and brothers.

At the Hamilton home of the Charles F. Ayers are some fine dogs. A really beautiful dog is the snow-white Llewellen setter, a bird dog belonging to Mr. Ayer. Not many dogs strike the writer as beautiful, but this one, when seen the other day tethered out on the long stretch of lawn leading down to the tennis court, truly looked like a pure white statue and seemed an uncommon specimen of dogdom. Other dogs at the Ayer home are an Irish terrier, toy poodle and a brown French poodle with such long shaggy locks that his eyes are hardly discernible.

Police dogs as well as "dogs of war" seem far away from the society pages of the BREEZE. But in noting North Shore dogs the seven German police dog puppies at "Uplands," the home of the Frank P. Fraziers in West Manchester, must come into our society notes. The puppies may be seen in their long run-ways in the woods near the Frazier Japanese garden. Their mother is noted and has taken first and third prizes in Boston and New York. One of these puppies is going to make its future home at "Villa Crest" in West Manchester, and one is going to the Berkshires for a permanent home. These dogs are full of life, fight and intelligence and their clever tricks will win them much applause.

William and Shirley Burden, the young sons of Mrs. W. A. M. Burden of Coolidge's Point, Manchester, have a rare dog in their possession. At least he is rare in Massachusetts it is said. He is a large English setter, very silky and intelligent looking, and answers to the name of Berk, although his real name is Berkley Rochesterfield. His companion is a little Fox terrier, prettily marked in black and white. Hector is the little one's name. These dogs seem to be inseparable companions to their young masters.

At "Allanbank," the home of the Bryce Allans in Beverly Cove, the dog lover may see a handsome Great Dane, who presides over the four pretty, fluffy, white West Highland terriers. Snuffles is the little French bull dog of noted pedigree. This interesting coterie of dogs may be seen any day on the fine lawns of "Allanbank."

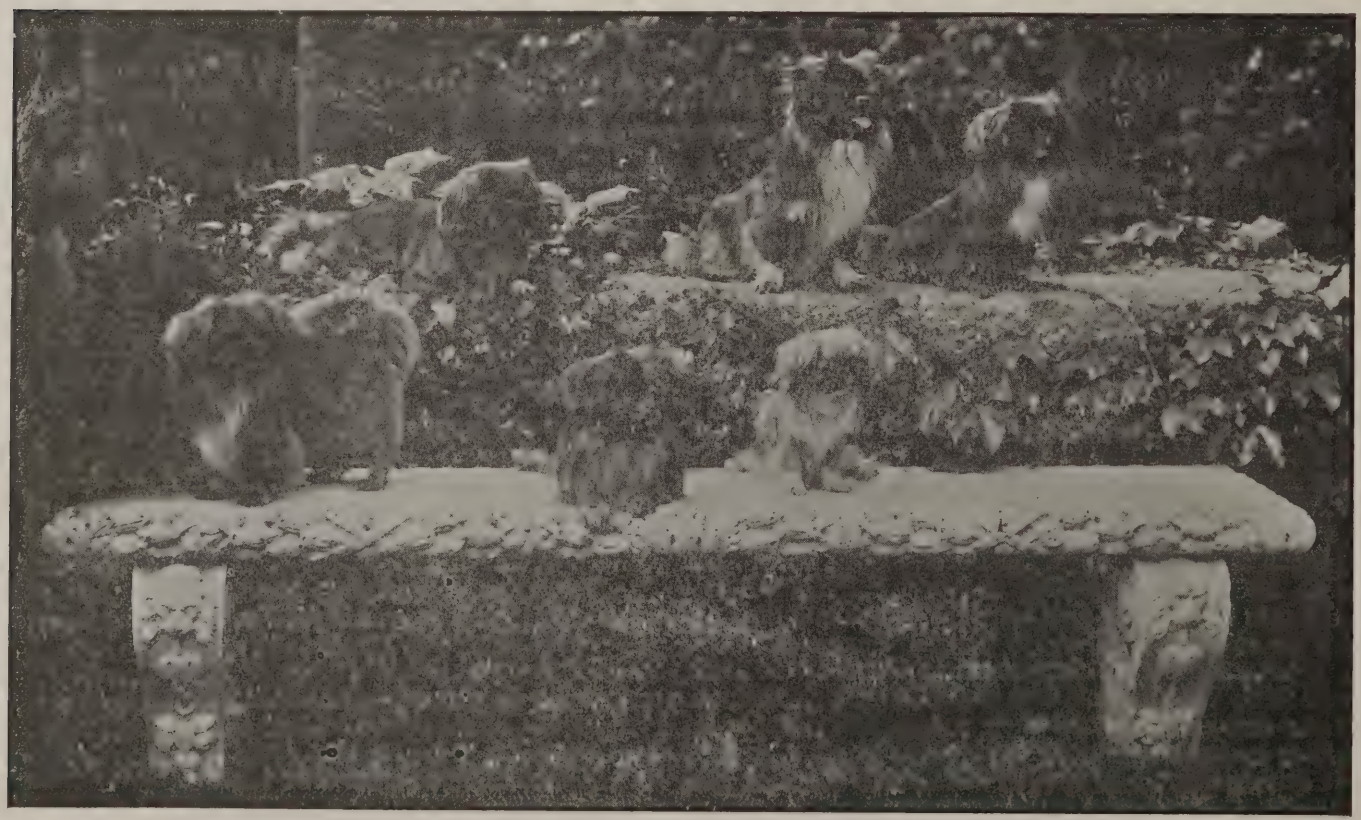

A pretty white and brown dog, rather large and gentle, and with the kindest manner imaginable to strangers, greets the visitor at the Robert Treat Paine, 2d, home in Manchester on Coolidge's Point.

The little Chow Chow belonging to the Dr. J. Henry Lancashires is a fierce little guardian of "Graftonwood." With his glossy brown coat and pretty bushy tail he attracts all visitors to this section of Dana's Beach, and also attacks in a somewhat over playful manner.

Over at the home of the E. Palmer Gavits on Smith's Point, Manchester, is Winkie, a pretty little brown and white dog, with very long silky ears, little brown pug nose, and big, prominent brown eyes which give a look of peculiar knowingness to the little face.

Bobby is the pretty little pom that greets all visitors at the Wm. B. Miller home in Beverly Cove. Also some fine airedale terriers are seen.

The young folk may remember the pathetic little story of Togo, which came out three years ago in St. Nicholas magazine. The little tale had a happy ending because Togo came to the home of the William B. Walkers at "Highwood," West Manchester. He had come from faraway Japan, and was joined later by little Pekingese spaniels, and "although the Japanese do not care for the Chinese, I liked my new friends at once, and was never jealous of them," so the story says. And further: "They are smaller than I am, so I take great care of them; and when strange dogs come to the Hall, I stand in front of my tiny friends and growl. I see that they are fed first, while I sit up on my hind legs and wait until they are finished; and if they prefer my food to their own, they are welcome to it." Again Togo says: "We are very happy together, and no quarreling is allowed, but such a family is a great responsibility for me, so I hope that it will not grow any larger."

Miss Rantoul of Beverly Farms and Salem Returns From Most Unusual Trip Through the Grea. "Painted Desert."

MISS HARRIET C. RANTOUL, daughter of Hon. Robert S. Rantoul, of Beverly Farms and Salem, has recently returned from a most unusual trip by horseback through the great "Painted desert" of Northeastern Arizona.

Early in May Miss Rantoul and her companion, Miss Wheelwright of Boston, set out for Flagstaff, Arizona, where the start of the trip was to be made by automobile. This part of the trip was accomplished with little effort and without accident.

Hired automobiles were in readiness and with gears in high speed the first lap of the desert journey was started. Over the sands, boards have been laid and a narrow roadbed thus made is remarkably smooth. The long stretches of sand were, indeed, beautiful with their many colors shifting back and forth, and off in the distance the snow-capped peaks of the San Francisco mountains glistened in the sunlight.

One hundred miles into the desert brought the party to a trading post where the outfit was in readiness. It consisted of two guides, the best in the country, a wagon with the supplies, tents and water, and four horses and three mules. Early in the morning the party moved forward for the first 20 miles of the trip northward.

The desert is filled with constant surprises, here a stretch of deep sand, a little farther on a high cliff rising straight out of the flatness and on the other side, perhaps a slope of the most wondrous green, with tall trees, a scene more resembling a city park, than "on the edge of the world." The monotony of the wide stretches of sand were relieved by the windmills, which have been placed nearly every 25 miles along the road, so that those out on the desert may easily reach water at the end of a fair day's journey. These windmills have been a great help to the Navaho Indians, who lead a wandering life as they tend their sheep.

After a thorough study of the map each morning, the ladies would start some hours in advance of the guides, who after breaking camp, followed on. Despite the fact that the broad highway was clearly outlined, it was comparatively easy to lose the way in the many cross paths; and this did happen one day, and it was necessary for the ladies to strike into rough country, through the deep sands and sage bush, to again join the guides.

The Indians were often passed and usually responded pleasantly enough to greeting. One day, however, the ladies heard the galloping of horse's feet, and instead of seeing the expected guide, they were greeted with the sight of an Indian in full regalia, rushing madly toward them. A little bit startled they drew aside for him to pass, but he wheeled and engaged in an exciting monologue, which they could not understand. Having delivered his little speech, the Indian wheeled, and rapidly rode off into the desert with hair flying and dust rising in clouds.

Mention has been made of the steep hills of bare rock rising directly out of the desert, and it was toward one of these that the party was headed.

On this particular hill was situated the village of the Hopi Indians, with its sandstone brick houses high upon the ledges, over 4000 feet above sea level.

From a distance these villages were invisible, but after a climb of 300 or 400 feet up the side of a more or less precipitous cliff, the mesas, or terraces were found to be well covered with Indian dwellings, at the summit of the third mesa the party found the town of Walpi, with its 230 Indian inhabitants. Walpi, owing to research, is the best known of the Indian villages.

After a night's encampment near this village the party pushed on to Oraibi, the oldest and largest Hopi pueblo. This town until recently numbered over 1000 inhabitants, but migration has reduced that number considerably. When the government introduced its school system to Oraibi, half of the inhabitants objected to the coming of strangers and so they went out and formed another village which is most primitive, and the inhabitants are quite wild and savage. Strangers are especially detested and the dogs are set on any who venture into their domain.

The houses at Oraibi are arranged one on top of the other and are reached by ladders placed on the side of the wall. When the top of the house is reached it is necessary to climb down through a hole in the roof from which is suspended another narrow ladder.

Bread-making is one of the chief occupations of the women folk and this article of food forms the main portion of the day's meals. First a flat heated stone is rubbed with crushed water-melon seed and then a thin batter of corn and water. Just a moment is required for baking, then it is lifted and rolled in long rolls and put aside to cool.

Bread forms an important part in the forming of an engagement. The Hopi women are suffragists and they own all the property and absolutely rule the household. They also do the proposing and in a manner most unique. The Hopi maiden picks out her man and then bakes her bread; the wealthier the maiden the higher she piles the bread. This task completed the maid goes to the house where her intended lives and raps on the door, if the door is opened she is accepted, if it remains closed, she is not accepted. Immediately upon acceptance the bride goes to live in her husband's house which becomes her property. If at any time the husband displeases, the wife places the saddle on the outside of the door and he is forced to leave her in possession.

The travelers soon took up their journey into the Navaho country, a reservation set aside by the United States and containing in all 16,000 Indians. So widely scattered are they, that one may travel for hours without seeing a solitary Indian, but the presence of horses running wild, testifies to the fact that they are not many miles distant.

The Navahos have strong migratory instincts and they wander about like true nomads, frequenting water holes or fertile valleys, in order that their sheep may find fodder. The sale of wool of these sheep furnishes a steady income to the Indians.

The Navahos were quite lively Indians and were full of gaiety as they talked with the strangers. At Chin Lee one of the largest government schools is situated and nearly all the Indians were pupils at various times. The children are quick-witted and their teachers said that up to the age of 12 years they are very eager to learn, but beyond that age they slowly dropped backward and became stupid and dull. Possibly this is due to the continued custom of flattening the babies' heads by pressing them against a heavy wooden splint.

The most exciting part of the trip, perhaps, came toward the end, when the trip to the Canyon of Chelly, through the quick sands, was undertaken. Owing to continued sand storms the party was held up for sometime as the going was extremely dangerous. Finally an old Indian, who lived up in the canyon, was requisitioned and the trip was started. Everything went finely until the waters were reached and then the horses sank stomach high in the treacherous quicksands. The guide turned back and having tethered the horses high and dry, a second start, on foot, was made.

No stop into the canyon was attempted as the continued sucking of the sands made any such move dangerous. After this dangerous trip the only thing visible was a group of tiny dwellings way up on the high rocks, and inaccessible. These were the ruins of a prehistoric people of whom nothing is known, as research in that direction is still young.

From the canyon the start for the end of the journey was made and by easy stages the remaining miles were ridden across the edge of the desert extending into Fort Defiance, New Mexico. This was accomplished without accident through the wonderland, which dry as it is, still is full of the teeming life of the insect and bird world.

Miss Rantoul from the seclusion of her Beverly Farms home, looks back from the quiet of her seaside life, to the hours of joy in the fullness of one of nature's greatest wonders, the desert of America, with its thousands of delights.

Call Sent out from National Headquarters of American Red Cross

NORTH SHORE people have been working zealously the last two years in behalf of the French Wounded, the Belgian Relief and numerous other causes incident to the war in Europe. Now the call for relief is nearer home, for a call has been issued in behalf of relief work of the American Red Cross in connection with the calling of the National Guard to the colors. Miss Louisa P. Loring of Pride's Crossing, secretary of the Essex County Chapter of the American Red Cross, has received the following call from the national headquarters of that body:

"In consequence of the calling out of the National Guard for the protection of our southwestern international boundary, the Red Cross will collect, forward and distribute, suitable articles for the soldiers in the camps. Every Chapter of the Red Cross is expected to make immediate arrangements to receive and forward supplies. Before it becomes necessary to actually begin shipments, full instructions will be sent to every Chapter. It is the intention of the Red Cross to establish receiving and distributing depots in San Antonio and El Paso. Competent persons will be in charge of these depots, and supplies sent to them will be distributed in the camps in accord with such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the military authoritites. In connection with this work it is essential that the Chapters observe the following:

"(A) Supplies cannot be accepted which are intended to be forwarded separately to designated individuals. Supplies intended for companies or regiments may be accepted for forwarding by Chapters, with the understanding that if such delivery is found to be impracticable these supplies may be donated to other troops.

"(B) Supplies accepted by Chapters for shipment should fall within the following approved list: reading matter, games, comfort bags (See A.R.C. 115), pajamas, cotton socks (medium weight, large sizes), towels, pipes, and smoking tobacco, cigarettes, electric fans (to hospitals), chewing gum, chocolate in tin boxes, George Washington coffee, evaporated cream, and canned fruits and other delicacies in tins.

"Many articles will be offered for forwarding which for sanitary and other reasons cannot be accepted. Perishable, heavy or bulky articles, and articles of food and drink which are harmful should not be accepted. It is necessary that the instructions of the military authorities be observed in all these matters, as they are responsible for the health and welfare of the soldiers in camp."

Something About the Work Among the French Wounded

IN MRS. E. S. GREW's coach-house in West Manchester hangs an interesting file of letters received from headquarters by the North Shore branch of the American Fund for French Wounded. The one under the date of June 2d. was given to the writer with the suggestion that a synopsis be made of it for BREEZE readers. It is a report of Miss Elizabeth Perkins (a Paris Depot worker), who took a recent trip through France to some of the village hospitals. Miss Perkins writes:

"I wish that all the hundreds of thousands of Americans who have spent happy weeks motoring in France could see the country today. I do not refer to the destruction, but to the desolation. Miles and miles of straight, poplar-lined roads, and never a sign of life or motion, silent villages with no more loungers at the trottoir cafés; churches with neither worshippers nor verger. Occasionally the throbbing sound of a hurrying motor or a military automobile of gun-boat grey would whiz by on Government business. The fields were tilled and vineyards trimmed, but no sign of labourers was visible. The few workers of the soil whom we saw were old, double-bent women; even the menders of the road—in the only place where we saw road workers—were women.

"After hours of lonely travelling we approached the towers of a mediæval gate. We passed through the entrance into a village street, and at the further end two other towers flanked the exit to this little town. A church stood midway; a stationers shop opposite exposed fly-specked, unbought postcards in the window, but the town was as deserted and silent as the city of the sleeping princess."

"Even in this deserted town the travelers found a hospital for the wounded. It was in a convent and kept by the Sisters, who gave a cordial welcome. The sisters had dismantled their chapel, and the light shining through the stained glass windows fell upon a white table that stood where the center aisle had been. The altar was gone and the surgeons' paraphernalia was at hand. It was now a refuge for suffering bodies rather than tortured souls. In the linen-room of this convent was a great pile of shirts and socks waiting to be mended. They were in such shreds that Miss Perkins thought they were hopeless. But the Sister smilingly assured her that they must be mended, for the boys would have need of them as they went back to the trenches. She further explained how she had saved their boots, and had them wear slippers made out of old pieces of carpet, while they were in the hospital. Slipper making is tedious for the Sisters and Miss Perkins made a note in her book that too many slippers cannot be sent. The Mother Superior was the gardener who managed so skilfully that the place was almost self-supporting. Sixty patients could be cared for in this convent.

Miss Perkins watched the bandaged heads, the arms in slings, the limping legs of the boys as they haltingly went into the refectory for their evening meal. All looked happy—even gay—except one, who moved painfully on his crutches. He had lost his Croix de Guerre—rubbed it off with his crutches he said. But he wore the Medaille Militaire, the most coveted and rarest of all decorations. Too shy to tell how he won it, except, "After Champagne."

The Sister explained that he was the only survivor in his entire section; all had been wiped out by death or by capture, but he, with a shattered leg, crawled to safety, bringing with him the colors of the regiment. His home was burned, parents had died of exposure and his brother had been killed at the Front.

Miss Perkins said, "Sister, what a wonderful spirit the French have! It is a lesson we Americans must never forget." "While we," she answered, "must never forget our debt to America in helping us keep our spirits."

The North Shore is having a benefit recital soon—Monday afternoon, July 10—at the home of Mrs. Marshall Fabyan (the Louis Agassiz Shaw house), Preston Place, Beverly Farms, for the French Wounded Fund. The artists will be Miss Lillia Snelling, mezzo-soprano; Miss Margaret Whitaker, violinist; Mr. Herman Lohre, a young Polish tenor of Warsaw and New York. Miss Helen Whitaker will be at the piano.

SWAT THE FLY! Remember: No dirt—no flies. When shall we kill the fly? Did he ever kill anyone? Where is the fly born? What about rats and mice on your premises? Only two weeks more in which to see the exhibit of the safe up-to-date methods for getting rid of these pests. Already over 200 people have visited the exhibit at the old Public Library, Central sq., Beverly Farms. It is in charge of the Beverly Farms Branch of the Beverly Improvement society and is held under the auspices of the Women's Municipal League of Boston. The exhibit shows the newest and best in fly traps, fly slappers, the best disinfectants, including Phinotas, and other clean-up devices. These may all be purchased at reasonable prices. An interesting collection of pictures showing before and after a clean-up campaign is worth going to see. The little fly stick-pins and traveler's fly slappers are souvenirs that all will want as soon as they are seen. Much valuable literature on the clean-up question may also be obtained. And what you get here is the newest and safest.

The picture shown here is of the old Library Building, and depicts the signs and posters ingeniously arranged to attract visitors to the exhibit with. "Come in! Bureau of Mosquitoes, Rats and Flies" is the invitation over the doorway.

THE MUSICALE for the benefit of the French wounded at the residence of Mrs. Marshall Fabyan in Preston Place, Beverly Farms, promises to be the important social event of the week. It will be given Monday afternoon, July 10th, at four o'clock. The artists include Miss Lillia Snelling, mezzo soprano; Miss Margaret Whitaker, violinist; Mr. Herman Lohre, tenor; Miss Helen Whitaker, pianist. Miss Snelling has sung with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and with the Metropolitan Opera company. Miss Whitaker is equipped with a brilliant technic—a beautiful, pure, broad tone, and an attractive personality. Mr. Lohre is a young Polish artist of renown. Patronesses are Mrs. S. Parkman Blake, Mrs. Robert S. Bradley, Mrs. Alexander Cochrane, Mrs. Wm. H. Coolidge, Mrs. Allen Curtis, Mrs. Franklin Dexter, Mrs. Marshall Fabyan, Mrs. W. Scott Fitz, Mrs. Frank P. Frazier, Mrs. Augustus P. Gardner, Mrs. Henry S. Grew, Mrs. M. Graeme Haughton, Mrs. Edward L. Kent, Mrs. Henry P. King, Mrs. George Lee, Mrs. Augustus P. Loring, Miss Louisa P. The idea of eternity will awe anybody but the born bore, who regards it as a paradise of self-vindication.

THE Italian Festa, under the patronage of the Italian Ambassador and Countess Dolores Macchi di Cellere, on the estate of the Hon. and Mrs. George von L. Meyer in Hamilton yesterday afternoon, marked the opening of the series of brilliant events planned for the summer.

The beautiful lawns and gardens where the fete was held were gaily decorated in the Italian colors. The driveway, the terrace and the rose garden through which the guests passed to the space allotted to the booths, were guarded by the boy scouts of Wenham, who also did general duty throughout the place. Dancing was enjoyed late in the afternoon on the fine tennis court near which the band was stationed.

The tea tables were prettily decorated with daisies. Miss Julia Appleton, who was in charge, was considered rather an insistent manager by her corps of pretty waitresses, who were very attractive in their white dresses and Italian ribbons.

Programs were sold by the Misses Florence Lee, Louise Inches and Frances Bradley. Miss Anne Means sold chances on an oil painting by Perera. Mrs. Niles Roberts sold handpainted Italian badges. Mrs. Fred Ayer, Jr., sold chances on the lace pillow donated by the Countess Cellere. Mrs. Ayer was in white and wore an all white hat.

A silver cup was presented by H. R. H., the Duchess of Aosta. Other donations on which chances were sold were Italian glass vases given by Mrs. E. H. Eldredge; a doll in peasant costume given by Mrs. L. N. Roberts; albums of the royal family in Italy by the Societa Dante Alighieri; silver plate, by Schmidt; hat by Kean; gown from Ruby; beagle dog, by James Appleton; embroideried handkerchief, Grande Maison de Blanc; diamond pin, Charlton of New York, and fountain by Carbone.

Many of the booths catered especially to children. At the Hoop-la booth Mrs. Bayard Warren and Miss Elise Ames were in charge. Mrs. Warren was in white with Italian ribbons for shoulder trimmings. Miss Ames was in gray and blue with Italian ribbons.

The booth of chances was in charge of Mrs. Wm. Phillips, who was in a thin, lacey white dress, with a white hat, and Miss Julia Meyer, who wore white with a black and white hat. Mrs. Meyer also assisted later in the day with the chances. She wore a black and white striped skirt, black silk sweater and an all black hat.

The ribbon chances were in charge of Mrs. Peyton Van Rensselaer of Newport. She wore dark blue silk with chiffon trimmings.

At the booth of doll chances and wheel of fortune Mrs. Reynolds Hitt and Mrs. Preston Gibson were enthusiastic sellers. Both were in white with large white hats and Italian colors. The Italian Ambassador was seen at this booth and he seemed to be enjoying the affair immensely.

Mrs. George Lee, Mrs. Allen Porter and Mrs. C. F. Ayer were at the flower booth. Mrs. Lee was in a soft gray chiffon with a white turban; Mrs. Porter wore dark blue chiffon over white, and Mrs. Ayer was in lavender chiffon with a hat to match. Miss Anne Means had charge of the flower girls.

Mrs. Vittorio Orlandini had an interesting grab for the little folk. She wore all black with a black hat.

Mrs. Henry L. Mason was the general cashier. She wore a white embroideried dress and a dark hat.

Miss Evelyn Parnell, formerly of the Boston Opera, and who has recently returned from abroad, sang for a large number of guests who gather in the Italian room of the Meyer house. This is a handsome room done in white and gold, the marble mantle and floor and decorations having been brought from Italy. The Countess Cellere was among the interested guests, dressed in a flowing black gown and all black hat.

Among the prize winners were Geo. von L. Meyer, Jr., who drew the plate; Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman, the hat; Mrs. Reginald Boardman, the dress. Other prizes were not decided upon at the close of the festa.

Miss Doris Whitehouse kept an interested crowd of little folk about her with the charming stories she gave from Riley.

Mrs. George Lee had charge of the girls in Italian peasant costume, who sold flowers, cigarettes and sweets. They were Mrs. William H. Coolidge, Jr., and the Misses Louise Hellier, Louise Inches, Elizabeth M. Sabin, Harriet Dexter, Corina Searle, Eleanor Cabot, Eleanor Bancroft, Frances Bradley and Margaret Thayer.

A soda fountain, tea and other refreshments were served on the terrace. Miss Julia Appleton had special charge of the girls acting as waitresses. They were the Misses Eleanor Abbott, Katherine Abbott, Betty Beal, Ellen Curtis, Catherine Crosby, Elizabeth Casewell, Olivia Ames, Elaine Denègre, Julia Appleton, Sybil Appleton, Pauline Fenno, Katherine Lane, Ella Snelling, Nina Higginson, Elenora Higginson and Frances Williams.

The side shows consisted of jugglers, palmists, silhouettes and games for children. The small booths were looked after by Mrs. Charles M. Amory, Mrs. Reginald Boardman, Miss E. Ames, Miss Edith Deacon, Mrs. Preston Gibson, Mrs. Reynolds Hitt, Mrs. John S. Lawrence, Mrs. Richard Loring, Mrs. William F. McComb, Mrs. William Phillip, Mrs. Henry Tweed, Mrs. Samuel Warren, Mrs. Bayard Warren and Miss Julia Meyer.

Music was furnished by the Salem Cadet band and a group of Italian musicians. The Italian concert was given on the lawn, the folk songs being given with native accompaniment.

The Puritan tea room at Montserrat is one of the year-round tea houses of the North Shore. It is the only one in Montserrat and is an attractive little place located near the station. Mrs. E. A. Manning caters the entire year to many Beverly and Salem residents and to the large colony of summer folk in her vicinity. Attractive tennis courts are near-by and these bring many parties who find the Puritan a delightful place for luncheon or tea. It is becoming a noted place for card parties with luncheon or tea afterwards. The house with its pretty screened veranda is finished in gray tones suggestive of the Puritans and has antique furnishings from Salem.

THE WM. BALDWIN MILLER house, which was finished last fall, is one of the most attractive of the new homes along the Shore. It has a fine location in Beverly Cove on Boyle st., and is built on a high rocky hill. The view from the front terrace is especially interesting, looking out over the tree tops to the water and to Marblehead shores. The grounds are still in a wild state practically, and add much to the attractiveness of the place. The house is daintily finished on the inside in white, looking like olden-time woodwork. The drawing room is a cool white room furnished in rose and cream chintz with the conservatory opening from it. This is filled now with handsome hydrangeas in the midst of which is a marble basin with its cool flowing water and bright little gold-fish. The library is another room all in white with old blue trimmings. One of the most interesting things at the Millers is a large collection of old bells,—rare old specimens, picked up by Mrs. Miller in various places. Some date back over two hundred years, and all show many curious and quaint designs.

Dr. and Mrs. H. Frank Hammer of New York will spend their first season at Beverly Cove in the old farm-house on the Foster estate next to the Wm. Baldwin Miller home. The house has some old-time fire-places and is very ancient looking and is a truly typical New England farm place. They will arrive tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hale Bancroft and their daughter, Miss Eleanor Bancroft, of Hale Farm, Beverly Cove, will attend the reception in Weston tomorrow for their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Winsor (Hope Bancroft), whose wedding took place on June 1, in Beverly. The reception will be given by Mr. Winsor's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Winsor, at their country estate. The Alexander Winsors will make their home in Weston, where Mr. Winsor is engaged in business.

The Montserrat club has made no definite plans in regard to its reception day, which usually comes between the tournaments of the season. Electric lights have been added to the pretty little clubhouse this season.

Mrs. W. Harry Brown of Beverly Cove returned to Pittsburg this week for special work of the Penn. Women's Preparedness organization of which she is president. A committee with Mrs. Brown as chairman, took care of the feeding of the troops as they passed through Pittsburg. The society, numbering about 350, works in conjunction with the Red Cross and French Wounded Fund. Mrs. Brown's house-guest, Miss Frances Brainard, has returned to her home in Pittsburg. The Brainards have not fully decided whether they will come to the Ocean-side, as is their custom, or go elsewhere this summer.

Miss Helen Frick of Pride's Crossing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Frick, lent to Maj. Thorndike Howe, commanding the 2d battalion of the field artillery, a touring automobile, which will be used in connection with the mobilization. She will keep the car in commission.

Several of the battleships of the North Atlantic division will be in North Shore waters for the Fourth of July. The Vermont will be in Salem, the Michigan in Gloucester and the South Carolina in Rockport. Other assignments made by Rear Admiral Coffman, whose family is established at Rockport for the summer, are: Minnesota at Boston, Florida at Bar Harbor, Utah at Portland, New Hampshire at Rockland, Me., Kansas at Bristol, R. I., Wyoming, Arkansas and Nevada at Newport. The ships have been ordered to report July 1 and return to Narragansett Bay not later than July 8.

The splendid McMillan residence situated on Shore road, Magnolia, so delightfully named "Briar Rock Cottage," is the home this summer of Mr. and Mrs. Elias M. Ponvert and family of Hormiguero, Cuba. The house is very artistic, of the irregular style of architecture and is of stucco and wood in tones of buff and brown. Vine-covered it is delightfully situated on a slight rise from the road overlooking the sea. A fine rough stone low wall encloses the grounds. Quantities of wild rose bushes in full bloom adorn a portion of the lawn, while to the northeast of the entrance is a pretty rock garden. Beyond is a pretty low bushed garden extending to the ivy-covered stone wall in attractive natural irregularity. The unusual architecture and the grounds about the house make this a very unique and distinctive residence in a community of fine homes.

We should never remember the benefits we have conferred, nor forget the favors received.

OCEANSIDE HOTEL
MAGNOLIA

THE OCEANSIDE is ending its last week of June in a very brilliant manner. The hotel is fast filling up with guests most of whom will remain through the summer days. A number of prominent season guests have already arrived with a coterie of young people who will make the succeeding days at the hotel quite the best ever. There may be a few of the young men absent this year, who made the summer of 1915 more gay by their presence, because of the military call which has pervaded each and every walk of life, but there will be a goodly number of beaux to make this the finest and best season ever. The reservations are very heavy and ere the holiday is passed the hotel will have a house count of over 300 which will be increased daily after that by continuous arrivals.

Mrs. George E. Carter of Brookline has come to Magnolia to join her husband, and they are domiciled at Overlook Cottage.

An earnest and interested worker in the Magnolia Surgical Dressings work is Mrs. E. M. Binney of 138 Marlboro street, Boston, who is vice-president of the Branch, and who spends her summers at the Oceanside. Mrs. Binney is the mother of Dr. George Hayward Binney, Jr., of Nahant.

Among the recent arrivals at the Oceanside for the season are Judge and Mrs. Fred Lawton of Boston.

A new-comer to the Oceanside is attractive Miss Sichirich, who with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Sichirich, are occupying apartments in the Wilkins Cottage. The Sichirichs are making their first visit to the Oceanside, where, undoubtedly, Miss Sichirich will be a charming addition to the younger social set.

Mrs. Lilly Middleton of New York accompanied by her two attractive young daughters, Misses Helen and Jean, and young son, Master Jack are sojourners at the Oceanside for the season. They are occupying apartments in the East Cottage. No doubt the Middletons will be an interesting addition to the social life of the hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Vogel of New York, who have been at the Oceanside since its opening, left for Newport Wednesday where Mr. Vogel, who is a member of the firm of Bonwit-Teller & Co. of New York will direct the opening of their summer shop there. Mr. Vogel has been at Magnolia on the same mission, directing the opening of their fine new shop here.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Palmer and daughter Miss Jane and son, of Cleveland, Ohio, together with governess and chauffeur are registered at the Oceanside for a few weeks' stay en route for a holiday in the Maine woods. The Palmers were season guests at the Oceanside last summer and occupied rooms at the Seacrest Cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Thomas of White Plains, New York, are at the Oceanside for the summer.

Mrs. Arthur Doane Cook of Boston, who with Mr. Cook and her two children are at the Oceanside for the summer, is portrayed very delightfully, in a recent edition of The Spur. The picture shows Mrs. Cook taken on the veranda of the Hotel del Coronado at Coronado Beach, California, where she spent the winter, and where she was a great favorite.

Notable among the society girls who will return this week to the Oceanside with their parents for the summer days are the Misses Alice and Elvine Richard of New York and Miss Ethel Morse of Boston. These young society girls were great favorites among the younger set last summer and their return will be a source of pleasure to their many friends.

Recently arrived at the Oceanside, Magnolia, are Miss Agnes Kuentz and maid, and Mrs. H. W. Newhoff, all of New York City. They will remain throughout the summer.

PERHAPS the most popular sport indulged in by the fashionable summer colony at Magnolia is that derived from the saddle. A great many of these society folk may be seen any fine morning in and about the avenues and roads of this exclusive spot upon their favorite horses.

No other summer place is quite equal to the North Shore for those who enjoy the thrill of the saddle. The inlying estates, as well as those more outlying, afford the most interesting bridle trails through a delightful country, which is always offering something new as to scenery and environ. These trails take the rider through the fine estates of some of the North Shore's most prominent residents, a great many of these places taking in chains of small lakes, beautiful and rustic, which on a warm day offer the refreshing breezes from off the tranquil waters.

Miss Charlotte E. Maxwell of Boston, who is visiting Mrs. Margaret Bradley Purdy at the Fuller Homestead, Lexington avenue, Magnolia, is a sister of Miss Anna Maxwell, director of the Training School at the Presbyterian Hospital, New York, who was chosen to go to France and make a visit to the military hospitals.

GREAT interest is manifested by the ladies of Magnolia in the Magnolia Surgical Dressings work which is being done every day, except Saturday, from 9 until 2, in the Oceanside Annex. The work is under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Page, from the Surgical Dressings Department of the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital at Brookline. The bandages were originally intended for the wounded of the Allies, but the dressings will be sent for the use of our American soldiers if necessary, resulting from the Mexican crisis. Tuesday Miss Marie Bunker, a trained nurse from the Surgical Dressings Department of the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital came down to instruct the ladies how to make "wicks," a form of dressing. To suit the convenience of the ladies the work has been arranged so that the workers may come on the day best suited for their convenience. Everyone is welcome to come and help in this most worthy cause. The dressings material is paid for by voluntary donations, which have so far been very generous. The officers of the Magnolia branch are Mrs. W. H. Coolidge, president; Mrs. E. M. Binney, vice-president; Mrs. George F. Willett, treasurer, and Mrs. E. B. Richardson, secretary.

Several of Magnolia's young men have responded to the call of the militia for the Mexican border. Among them are Edward L. Stevens, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Stevens of Summer street, who is a member of Massachusetts Troop B, cavalry, which left for the south Monday night. Another young man is Roger D. Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Hall of Summer street.

THE NORTH SHORE SWIMMING POOL at Magnolia, the rendezvous at all hours of the day for the aristocracy of the North Shore, is very popular these lovely summer days, when the young people enjoy the splendid tennis courts throughout the daylight hours, while others bathe in the fine swimming pool, so exhilerating, so fashionable. The morning concerts begin Saturday, July 1st, music furnished by the Pool orchestra. The concerts will be given every day during the bathing hours. Instructor E. E. Allen has arrived at the Swimming Pool for the season.

On Tuesday, July 4th, a buffet luncheon will be served which will afterward be followed by dancing. Among those who have been entertained at the club since its opening this season are Miss Frances Brainard of Pittsburg, introduced by Miss Isabelle Wadsworth; J. Philip Hart, Charles River Village, by H. G. Hall; A. C. Gratz, St. Louis, by N. T. Lane, Jr.; Miss Kathryne Terger, New York, by Robert Steinert; Miss Wetherbee, Boston, by Miss Jones; James C. Hobart, Jr., Robert W. Hobart, Everett W. Hobart, Cincinnati, by Mrs. Myron C. Wick; Miss Susan Baker, J. Hegerman Foster, Howard C. Foster, by Eugene G. Foster; Dr. F. Hibben, Brookline, by G. di Rosa; Miss Caroline S. Winslow, New York, by Mrs. Newcomb Carlton; Col. Sanger, Sangerville, N. Y., by Chas. Wadsworth, Jr.; Miss Louise Whitney, Longwood, by Mrs. Fraser Campbell.

IT is rather an interesting bit of history in the family of Mrs. James D. Safford of Manchester that her son, Lieut. Ralph K. Safford, Co. B, 2d Regt. (Mass.), who has just left for the border, is following so closely in the steps of his grandfather, General R. W. Kirkham, U. S. Army, who nearly three-quarters of a century ago defended the honor of his country in the identical foreign land and against the perfidy of the same nation in 1848. General Kirkham being aide to General Winfield Scott, participated in the battles of Vera Cruz, Molino del Rey, San Antonio and Churubusco. Lieut. Safford is a member of the Astec club of Washington, an honor handed down to him from his grandfather.

Mrs. John Alexander Rogers of Chestnut st., Boston, formerly Miss Mildred Bond, daughter of Mrs. Charles H. Bond of Commonwealth ave. and "Peacehaven," Swampscott, and Miss Nelly Ormond of Peterboro st., Boston, have opened a studio of costume design at Manchester in the former Manchester Tea Rooms. Miss Ormond and Mrs. Rogers have both studied art as a preliminary to their business venture, Mrs. Rogers having been a pupil at the Julian Art Academy in Paris. It is said that Mary Greenaway (the business name used by Mrs. Rogers) makes a study of the personality of her friends to give them the most suitable hats and that her particular aim is to accentuate, by wearing the correct hat, the upward lines of the profile, thereby giving the best possible contour.

Ten percent of the earnings of the studio will be devoted to three charities in which Mrs. Rogers is interested.

EUROPEAN PLAN — ABSOLUTELY FIREPROOF

THE knockabout racing yacht "Pam," built at Walter B. Calderwood's boatyard in Manchester for Commodore H. A. Parsons of the Cleveland Yacht club, was shipped last Saturday afternoon. The boat was forwarded direct to Cleveland in obedience to a rush order, without being launched for the proposed Marblehead tryout. It will first take to the water at Cleveland and will be sailed in the big races on Lake Erie this summer. Robert E. Parsons will sail the new craft in competition with the fastest boats in her class at two of the big Lake Erie races. Following her contests in fresh water the "Pam" will return to the North Shore the latter part of August and will be used in some of the Marblehead races.

"Pam," Shipped From Manchester This Week.

The "Pam" was built from the designs of John G. Allen, Boston, naval architect, at Calderwood's boatyard in Manchester. She represents the perfect type of Class R, built under the Universal rule. She is an improvement on the "Banshee," the winner of last season's Lake Erie races. Built under trying conditions due to a labor shortage and a rush of work the "Pam" was completed on time and with an attention given to details of finish that proved gratifying to her designer. When completed she was absolutely flawless and ready for launching without the necessity of a change of any kind, a rare condition in boat-building.

The yacht was built on extreme lines for the waters in which she will race. Her overall length is 38 feet and she is 24 feet three inches at the waterline. Her beam is seven feet, eight inches and she has a draft of five feet, seven inches.

Another yacht nearing completion at Calderwood's boatyard is one of the extreme racing type being built for Richard F. Hoyt for the Buzzards Bay races.

Dr. and Mrs. James H. Anderson and daughter, Miss Kitty, of Brookline are at their summer home, "Lily Pond Cottage," at Magnolia for the season. Since Mrs. Anderson's arrival she has been very ill, but is now much improved and convalescing. The Andersons are delightful people and have a host of friends in the North Shore colony.

THE Right Reverend William Lawrence, D.D., Bishop of Massachusetts, preached at St. John's church in Beverly Farms last Sunday. He also administered the rite of confirmation. A large and interested audience was out to hear the Bishop and witness the impressive ceremony. During his visit over the week-end Bishop Lawrence stayed with his sister's family, Judge and Mrs. W. C. Loring at Pride's Crossing. On Sunday he was the dinner guest at the Daniels cottage at Beverly Farms where Mr. and Mrs. Harold Peabody (Marian Lawrence) are living this summer. In the afternoon he conducted an interesting baptismal service at the church. The little seventeen-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis L. Higginson, Jr., of Coolidge's Point, Manchester, was christened Griselda, after a great-great-great-grandmother. The godmothers are Miss Mable Choate, daughter of Ambassador Choate, and Lady Mount Stephen of London. The christening party at the church was composed of the immediate family only, and after the ceremony went to the Pride's Crossing home of Mrs. Lucius Manlius Sargent for tea. Mrs. Sargent is the baby's maternal grandmother, and the Hon. T. Jefferson Coolidge is the great-grandfather of the little one on the mother's side. F. L. Higginson of Pride's Crossing is the paternal grandfather.

William W. Caswell and family of New York are new-comers to Brownland cottages, Manchester, this year. They have just taken rooms for July and August and are expected to arrive tomorrow.

The Misses Loring entertained the Essex County Camp-fire girls last Saturday at "Burnside," Pride's Crossing. About 207 girls were out in charge of Miss Tarr of Gloucester, Miss Perkins of North Beverly and Miss Patillio, an organizer. The fine beach was enjoyed and the ceremonies of the order made up the amusement of the afternoon. On Tuesday the Misses Loring had a tea for 150 of the Beverly hospital aid society. The lawns and gardens at "Burnside" are an ideal place for these al fresco affairs which are frequent events of the summer.

Many from the North Shore attended the wedding in Emmanuel Church last Wednesday of Miss Margaret Randolph Rotch, daughter of Mrs. A. Lawrence Rotch, to James J. Storrow, Jr. The Storrows were formerly of the Marblehead colony and have many friends along the Shore.

The charm and value of a tea room is in its appearance and what it serves. An old legend says that the one who finds the bluebird finds happiness. Anyway, a Bluebird Tea Room has been established at Pride's Crossing which cannot help but please its frequenters. Blue and gray furnishings, bluebird dishes and attractively arranged tables and show-cases are noticed. Home-made bread, cakes, marmalade, chili-con-carne and waffles are among some of the dainty things served. A special feature is the box lunches put up to take out. Watch for the special Bluebird window decorations for the Fourth. It is on Hale street, near the postoffice.

Quicker and Better Service

To North Shore Summer Residents

Orders received at the store in the early forenoon delivered that day—
Orders received it the afternoon delivered the following day

Another step in our solicitation of trade among the North Shore summer residents is made in the inauguration of our improved delivery and order system.

We are using our own autos instead of relying upon local North Shore expresses, over whom we necessarily have only limited control, as they, of course, serve a multitude of houses besides ourselves.

One of these autos is situated at the North Shore the entire summer. Goods ordered are shipped there twice daily by American Express on fast trains. The auto meets the train at the station. At one end of our delivery route or the other the goods are loaded and delivered to all parts of Beverly Cove, Montserrat, Pride's Crossing, Beverly Farms, West Manchester, Manchester and Magnolia.

The Swampscott and Marblehead sections are covered by our autos direct from the store.

DELIVERY BY OUR OWN AUTOS

Orders for merchandise may also be entrusted to the drivers of our autos, who see that the same has prompt attention, or may be telephoned into the store—calling Oxford 3200 and asking for "Order Department."

The Span of Life

By FRANK LEON BEEBY

A STRETCH of beach before the ocean lying;
The glistening sands beneath a morning sun;
A tiny moth, in golden sunlight flying;
A life begun.

The orb of light his onward course pursuing;
A glittering noon beneath a fervent ray;
A sylvan bower—a space of ardent wooing—
A hastening day.

A sinking sun with failing vigor shining;
A creeping shade within the sylvan bower;
A feeble form, upon the sands reclining;
The evening hour.

The shades of dusk to deeper shadows growing;
The flickering flare of fast departing light;
The ocean grim, with billows overflowing;
Then darksome night.

IPSWICH will be fortunate this summer in having Dr. and Mrs. Samuel McComb of Baltimore as occupants of the Rectory while the Rev. and Mrs. Robert P. Parker are on their vacation to a camp in Wyoming. Dr. McComb was formerly of Boston and will officiate in the Church of the Ascension in July. The church will be closed in August. Before leaving Mrs. Parker closed her interesting work for the Belgian refugees which she has been supporting all winter. About 16 interested friends have been meeting at the rectory once a week all winter to make surgical supplies. Three hundred garments have been made and shipped to France. She started the work in December and hopes to continue it this September when she returns from the west.

The work for the French wounded fund, started last summer in the Argilla road colony in Ipswich, and carried on locally all winter, in charge mostly of Miss Susanne Brown of Windmill Hill Farm, resumed its work for the summer this Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Herbert Mason. The meetings will be held Tuesdays and Fridays.

Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman of "Sunswick" have had with them their daughters and sons-in-law, who came on to attend the wedding of Miss Phyllis Sears and Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., last week. They included Mr. and Mrs. William M. Elkins of Philadelphia and Mr. and Mrs. G. Hermann Kinnicutt of New York.

Mrs. C. S. Tuckerman of "Applefield" has with her at the Ipswich home, her daughter, Mrs. Louis Le B. Chapin (Julia Tuckerman), of New York, who came on for the Tuckerman-Sears wedding and is making her usual summer visit with her mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Appleton of "Appleton Farms" have had with them their daughter, Mrs. Clarence L. Hay (Alice Appleton) of Washington, who with Mr. Hay came to the wedding of Miss Phyllis Sears and Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., and also Mr. and Mrs. William Wendell (Ruth Appleton) of Charles River village.

Mrs. James Marsh Jackson spent last week-end in her new Ipswich home on Argilla road, and yesterday the family, including Dr. and Mrs. Jackson and their daughter, Miss Eleanor, have moved from their Boston home for the summer to their new home. Formerly the Jacksons have been in Beverly Farms.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Bourne (Gertrude Beals) of Boston have again decided to occupy the picturesque old Emerson house on the Turkey Shore road in Ipswich. Mrs. Bourne is an artist and sculptor and will resume her work as before.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Dow are in their remodelled home on Spring st., in Ipswich. Last year they purchased the old Millet place and have made extensive improvements. Their former home is rented to an artist. Mr. Dow is now in New York for a short time at Columbia University where he is at the head of the fine arts department.

Mrs. Wilson Shannon Dunn of New York has been visiting at the home of her sister, Miss C. B. Dobson of Windmill Hill Farm. She will return for the month of August as usual.

Miss Eleonore Richardson, since her return from school last week, has been entertaining extensively while staying at Ye Rogers Manse with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Richardson of "Meadow View," Ipswich. She has given an afternoon dancing party and a moonlight dance in the casino of the Manse, which is a delightful place for such affairs. The Richardsons leave July 6th for North Sutton to remain until September.

Ye Rogers Manse has had an unusually good week for a cold and rainy season and finds that it is the favorite place for Sunday parties in Ipswich this year as well as last year.

Ye Burnham House tea room has had among its luncheon guests Mrs. Arthur J. Blood and a party from Lynn; Mrs. Parker W. Whittemore and Mrs. Charles A. Sinclair with their respective parties from West Gloucester; the Misses Quill and guests from Beverly; Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Paraschos of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. L. Burton, Mrs. Ethel Burton and Mrs. Roger O. Burton of Beach Bluff. This is a favorite rendezvous for the young people from the Oceanside, Magnolia.

At "Castle Hill," the fourth picnic for the Ipswich school children was given last Monday as their annual treat by Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Crane, Jr. The picnic had been planned for Saturday, but was postponed owing to the weather. Even on Monday, the children went home in a rain storm in the afternoon. Mr. Crane distributed about one thousand tickets in the schools for the pupils. The tickets are arranged to include the boat-ride and ice-cream cones. They were also treated to an abundance of lemonade and a box of candy for the return trip. Each child always carries its own lunch box. Music was given by a band. Games and bathing were enjoyed by the children and all voted it the best picnic ever. A number of the teachers and school authorities accompanied the children. This picnic was a special treat on account of the dismissal of school on Monday, especially for the affair to take place. Mr. Crane always takes the greatest precaution for his little guests on his fine stretch of beach, and, to insure their safety in bathing, keeps policemen on the beach and motor boats patroling the water. The Crane picnic has come to be one of the regular institutions in Ipswich and is eagerly looked forward to by the little folk as soon as the Cranes arrive from Chicago. The ride out to the Crane home by water is one of the most interesting routes of approach. Leaving the wharf at the Ipswich river one beholds in the distance Newburyport, Plum Island, Isles of Shoals, Great Neck, Little Neck, Castle Hill and the tops of many of the summer homes on Argilla road, besides seeing some quite distinctly. The river scene is always enlivened by the little tugs and pleasure crafts carrying their passengers to and from Little Neck which is quite a busy little resort. The high hill on which the Crane home is situated, the great rolling sand dunes surrounding it, the "islands" in the dunes upon which some of the homes are located,—all lend the subtle charm and somewhat mystic beauty which seem to surround the place.

Jerry Campbell, son of Hon. and Mrs. Charles A. Campbell of "Fairview," took the Ipswich boy scouts to the Harvard meet at the Stadium last Saturday.

HAMILTON meadows never looked lovelier than now, dotted as they are with the snow-white daisies, in many instances so massed as to look like a fall of snow. Here and there is a liberal sprinkling of buttercups, only emphasizing the patches of daisies in their whiteness.

Mr. and Mrs. George S. Mandell of "Four Corners" were among the Hamilton people attending the New London races.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Ayer of "Juniper Ridge" also attended the boat races at New London last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Merrill and family of Boston and Lynn are now in "The Hamlet," their attractive home on Main st., in Hamilton.

Mrs. Wolcott Howe Johnson of "Fairfield Farm," Hamilton, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Rosamond Johnson, and sons, Samuel and George, were at the New London races.

Wenham women interested in the Special Aid society for American Preparedness are having some interesting meetings just now and enthusiasm is growing for the big parade on August 12, in Wenham.

Mrs. Thomas W. Peirce of "Witch Hill," Topsfield, has as her house-guests Mrs. Janeway and Miss Janeway of New York. She gave a luncheon for them this week at the Wenham tea house and among other guests were Mrs. Charles T. Parker and Miss Helen Burnham of Wenham.

Mrs. Reginald H. Fitz and Miss Edith Fitz of West Manchester were among the luncheon hostesses of the week at the Wenham tea house. The Misses Rantoul of Beverly Farms gave a luncheon for five. Mrs. John Appleton Burnham of Marblehead entertained yesterday in honor of her house-guests from New York. Mrs. M. Roger Wendell of Magnolia had guests and Miss Anna Greenough of Jamaica Plain, who is visiting at the John Greenoughs on Eastern Point, Gloucester, was over with a party. Other guests at the tea house were Mrs. C. W. Taintor with her children and guests from Topsfield.

Fortunate is he whom the dangers of others has rendered cautious.

ROWLEY is becoming a part of the North Shore summer resort section, and in time the quiet little village on the Newburyport road may rival its well known neighboring resort towns, that really do not excel in natural advantages any more than Rowley.

A new home that has been built near the village belongs to Mr. and Mrs. John A. Woodman of Lynn, who have spent five summers in Rowley. Their daughter, Mrs. W. B. Patterson is with them this summer.

F. L. Burke has just completed his new bungalow, not far from the village, and will make it his year-round home. His son, F. M. Burke, has one of the show places in the vicinity, known as "Fatherland Farm," and located in Byfield. This is a farm where many modern and scientific experiments are being tried out.

At Ox Pasture Hill is where Mrs. L. Carteret Fenno and her daughters, of Boston, live practically the year around. It is one of the most beautiful in Rowley or in any of the North Shore resorts.

Mrs. K. D. Cheney (Ruth Lambert) of New York has opened up the old Lambert place in Rowley village, where her ancestors formerly lived, and is going to make it her home. She came to the old place last fall and has spent most of the winter in it. Mrs. Cheney has brothers in New York, one of whom is Dr. Lambert, the favorite physican of Theodore Roosevelt. Mrs. Cheney was of the Rowley people attending the New London races the past week.

"Fairview" is the center of attraction in Rowley. Recently a fine exhibit of manual work from the various classes, including the kindergarten, was held in the settlement building. Early in June a dainty luncheon was served to the faculty and interested friends by the domestic science classes. The classes are now closed for the year, with the exception of the kindergarten and sewing classes which will have a summer term. Of interest to North Shore residents will be a sale and lawn party planned for sometime in July, the date of which will be announced later. The sale should be an attraction, for a visit to the work-room now shows many pretty little frocks and useful household articles, all neatly made by the classes of all ages. Interesting club work for boys, girls and their mothers is carried on at the place, aside from regular class work. Mrs. M. D. Burlinga e c Brookline is in charge. The stamp-saving depart nent is one of the methods of the place used to instil thrift. The building itself is an old-time one which has been added to considerably and presents a pleasing and inviting appearance to the visitor.

Bonwit-Teller & Company of New York, Philadelphia and Paris, "The Specialty Shop of Originations," have opened their beautiful new store at No. 9, The Colonial, Magnolia, with a display of women's and misses' distinctive wearing apparel, very chic and very exclusive. The shop is most artistic in tints of cafe au lait and purple. Low display appointments are used, which give the shop a spacious air. The indirect lighting globes are dove gray with basket chandeliers of yellow, purple and black, which colors are found in the nouveau art drapes over drapes of cafe au lait, also in toucnes on the tables and chairs which are of yellow and black; royal purple rugs finish this unusual and delightful effect, so new, so blending.

Here can be found everything to satisfy the hearts of the feminine. The display is wonderful,—everything, which includes evening gowns, dancing frocks, afternoon dresses, hand-made blouses, sport clothes, sweaters, sport hats, bathing suits, lingerie, hosiery, shoes and accessories; also a complete display of riding clothes.

A direct wire has been established between the Magnolia shop and the New York store between 4.30 and 5 o'clock each afternoon, to hasten the delivery of orders. The shop will be in charge of Mrs. M. Myers, a very efficient member of the New York sales staff.

New Ocean House, Swampscott

NEW OCEAN HOUSE, SWAMPSCOTT.—With prospects for a record breaking season the New Ocean House at Swampscott opened last week filling the main hotel and all the cottages very nearly to capacity. Three big convention parties held their sessions at the hotel during the opening week, but with their departure the house has begun to fill rapidly with season guests, many of whom have been visitors to the North Shore for a number of years.

Former guests of the New Ocean House returning this season have been pleasantly surprised by the appearance of the new $150,000 fire-proof annex erected since the closing of the house last fall. Work on the exterior of the new seven-story structure has already been completed and the management is now rushing to completion the interior in order to have the rooms ready for occupancy by the first of August. Reservations in the new addition have already been made by a large number of August and season guests. The new annex will be thoroughly up-to-date in every particular. It is planned to continue the annex during the winter months as a "club hotel."

Dr. T. Herbert Moore of Brookline has registered as house physician at the New Ocean House.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Herbert Edwards and the Misses Jeanett and Helen Edwards of Youngstown, O., were guests at the New Ocean House during the past week. The party is making a tour of the New England states.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Costello and Miss Tessie W. Costello of New York City, have registered as season guests at the New Ocean House.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Carter of Brookline are among the season guests who have arrived at the New Ocean House.

Among the arrivals of the past week at the New Ocean House were Mr. and Mrs. Murdock M. Johnson of Boston, M. Porter Johnson of Harvard and Miss Dorothy Johnson.

Mr. James J. Cannon, Jr., Mrs. C. M. Eaton, Mrs. C. H. Stevens and Miss Anna Oden, all of Scarsdale, N. Y., comprised an automobile party which remained at the New Ocean House over the past week-end. Another week-end party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Fertig, Mrs. John Fertig, and Miss Potter, all of Titusville, Pa.

Mrs. George F. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Sawyer, Mrs. George A. Plummer and George Plummer, all well-known along the North Shore, were among the first-of-the-season arrivals at the New Ocean House.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Fielding of Boston have registered as season guests of the New Ocean House. Edward L. Fielding will remain with his parents at the hotel during the month of July.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Currier of Boston, guests of the New Ocean House in former years, have returned for another season.

Miss Elise McD. Backus is a guest for the season at the New Ocean House.

Mrs. Ernest W. Diehl of Brookline is to be the guest of the New Ocean House until September.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Brown, Miss Florence E. Brown, and George R. Brown will be season guests at the New Ocean House.

Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Burke, Miss Marion Burke and Fred Burke of Boston have returned to Swampscott for another season at the New Ocean House.

hope, and Swampscott is basking in the sunshine of late June and early July with a will. The New Ocean House is well filled with summer people and it is a pretty sight to see these guests enjoying the beach and motoring over the fine roads about Swampscott.

The beach, however, seems to be the rendezvous of many of the visitors, and the gay and vivid coloring of the ladies sport clothes as they walk about on the beach or sit upon the sands makes a charming picture for the passer-by.

Let us whisper, one morning this week, we saw one lady, rather inclined to stoutness, dressed in a very attractive bathing suit of the latest design, skipping rope on the beach. We wonder if this is to be the fashion this season, or is it merely that this fair one took this means of becoming more willowy. Maybe it is to be the fad this summer,—who knows! and perhaps it would be very exhilarating sport for the feminine who do not play golf or tennis. We shall keep a close watch to see if this very striking and unusual thing happens again.

Miss Miriam Munsey of Swampscott acted as bridesmaid at the wedding of Miss Leita A. Kinsman of Cambridge last week when Miss Kinsman became the bride of Dr. Sterling Nye Loveland of Newtonville.

Among the ladies of Swampscott who are real golf enthusiasts, none are more interested in this sport than Mrs. Mark Temple Dowling of Little's Point. Mrs. Dowling was formerly Miss Florence Williams, a New York society girl, and since coming to the North Shore, about two years ago, has spent a great deal of her time on the course at the Tedesco club. Mrs. Dowling has become quite an expert at this pleasure and is a familiar figure on the links any fine day.

Trap shooting at the Tedesco club is the very popular sport these days, and the members have become very enthusiastic over the same. The shooting grounds at the clubhouse will be quite the busy place during the holiday, and a golf tournament will be on for those who enjoy this sport. A tennis tournament will also be in progress on the 4th, the matches beginning on Saturday, July 1st, and finishing on the holiday. Many entries have been made. The tournament will be in charge of Prof. H. L. Cowles, the club instructor.

Monday and Tuesday afternoons of each week tea will be served the ladies of the Tedesco club either on the veranda or the terrace, whichever they may desire. This is quite a popular event, and is enjoyed by many of the members as well as their guests.

Kings may bestow offices, but cannot bestow the wit to manage them.

CLIFTON.—A very pretty dance was given at the Neighborhood club Friday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Alexander McGregor of Clifton for their beautiful daughter, Miss Claire, about sixty young people enjoying the hospitality of the McGregors. The clubhouse was beautifully decorated in a pink and white color scheme, peonies predominating. Music was furnished by Toye's orchestra of Boston. It was a very pretty scene and one of the most brilliant affairs ever given at the clubhouse Steward L. N. Robinson served a delicious supper at intermission.

PHILLIPS BEACH.—Mrs. E. B. Terhune and family of Ocean avenue left Tuesday for their summer home, "Camp Kingfisher," at Norway, Maine. During August Mrs. Terhune expects to entertain about eight young people from the Phillips Beach vicinity at the camp, friends of the Terhune children. Mr. Terhune will enjoy brief intervals from business at the camp.

Mrs. George F. Schrafft, who with her husband and children is occupying the Bond residence on Puritan road, is entertaining her sister Mrs. Bernice Mason of Melrose and the latter's two children Betty and Archie.

Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Dowling, "The Orchards," Little's Point, Swampscott, entertained a few friends over the week-end at their beautiful home. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Priest, Auburndale, Mr. and Mrs. Merrill of the Copley-Plaza, Boston, and Algy Goodwin of the Somerset.

Among the many enthusiastic horsewomen of the Swampscott summer colony probably none of the ladies enjoy the saddle more than attractive Mrs. George F. Schrafft, who every morning about six takes her before-breakfast morning ride. Mrs. Schrafft rides exceedingly well and always looks so trim in her riding clothes of the latest and most fashionable design. Mr. Schrafft is a golf enthusiast and spends his leisure hours upon the golf course.

The news of the rapid convalescence of Mr. W. W. Thompson of Swampscott, who has been dangerously ill at a private hospital for the past three weeks, will be pleasant indeed to her host of friends. Mrs. Thompson, who takes an active interest in the social affairs of Phillips Beach, has been much missed by her friends, and her complete recovery is anxiously awaited.

Optimism is a good asset if you don't overwork it.

THE PAGEANT, the beautiful woodland interpretation of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" by the society folk and girls of the North Shore at the fine estate of the Percival B. Palmers of Chicago and Swampscott for the benefit of the Lynn Associated Charities, Friday evening and Saturday afternoon and evening, was a brilliant success.

The scenes were most spectacular and gorgeous, and dancing very graceful and poetic by the sweet and pretty society buds in charming robes of nymphic designs with feet unshod.

Some very prominent people were in the cast which included, Dr. Samuel G. Underhill as Theseus, Francis Haseltine as Egeus, Harold F. Dow as Lysander, Irving Doe as Demetrius, Dr. Edward Schon as Philostrates, Lynn M. Ranger as Quince, Olaf Olsson as Snug, Willis C. Perry as Bottom, Vassar Stackpole as Flute, Walter Bell as Snout, Robert Russell as Starveling, Elizabeth Pevear as Hippolyta, Dorothy Faunce as Titiania, Laura K. Dalzell as Oberon, Nora Bresnahan as Hermia, Beatrice Foster as Helena, Sylvia Dreyfus as Puck and Esther L. Harney as the Head Fairy.

The performances were very well attended and witnessed by a fashionable assemblage. The proceeds, which amount will be substantial, will be devoted to the very worthy cause of the Lynn Associated Charities.

Tuesday evening Frank H. Gage of Atlantic avenue entertained a dozen of his men friends at a supper at the Neighborhood club. It was a strictly man affair and a pleasant evening was enjoyed.

Mrs. Frank H. Gage of Atlantic avenue entertained her club, which consists of sixteen ladies, Wednesday afternoon at the Neighborhood club. Luncheon was served, after which auction was indulged in by the ladies.

Swampscott has lost one of her most prominent and respected summer residents in the passing of Jeremiah Williams, Sr., who died at his summer home at Beach Bluff, last Friday. Mr. Williams was a very successful wool merchant with offices at Boston, and he was a director of the National Shawmut Bank. He was president of the North Bank for a number of years until it was merged with the National Shawmut. He is survived by Mrs. Williams, one daughter, Mrs. Henry Taylor of Haverhill, and two sons, Malcom and Gardner B. Williams. Mr. Williams did a great deal of philanthropic work in a very quiet and unassuming way. He was a member of the Algonquin club and the Brookline Country club.

Dr. Joseph Haydn Smith, senior member of the firm, Drs. Smith, Strand Theatre Building, Lynn, was welcomed by many officers and men of the Eighth Regiment, M. V. M., encamped at South Framingham last Sunday. Dr. Smith offered his services with members of the Massachusetts Chiropody association for relief work among the militia encamped at the training quarters. So many of the soldiers were bothered by foot disorders that the voluntary services of the chriopodists were highly appreciated.

The Misses Elizabeth and Sarah Perkins of Beverly Farms had a small picnic party on Chubbs Island this week. Miss Sarah Miller of Boston was a guest.

DEVEREUX

The Rose Garden belonging to Mrs. Henry L. Foote at Beach street, Devereux, is very beautiful now that it is all abud with colors of every hue. The fragrance of the garden as one passes by is delightful, and many a word of admiration is spoken when the first sight is caught of this spot of real beauty. The garden is the work of Mrs. Foote, who devotes considerable of her time to it. There are a great many varieties of bushes each with its particular beauty of fragrance and coloring, but all represent the tender care of the owner, Mrs. Foote.

J. L. Damon of the Thorndike Hotel at Boston have taken the Sherman cottage for the season, at Devereux Rocks.

Hulings C. Brown and family of Brookline are at Devereux Rocks for the summer.

Just Prepared! The bride went downstairs and brought up from the kitchen a flatiron and a rolling-pin, and put them on the floor beside the bed.

The astonished bridegroom looked at the instruments and said with amazement:

"My dear, what in the world are those for? You certainly do not think you need those to defend yourself from me?"

"No," answered the bride, "I do not think so. I believe that you are going to be very kind and sweet toward me. But just the same I believe thoroughly in preparedness."

Variety the divine gift makes a woman charming.

MARBLEHEAD is becoming very lively as the season advances and its narrow, romantic and historic streets are constantly resounding with the toot of the automobile horn and the passing to and fro of the visitors. The hotels are busy and report a bigger reservation list than for many years past. Evidence is shown of the great influx of summer people by the number of houses which have been engaged for the season. The harbor is a pretty sight these days with its array of beautiful yachts and the chug-chug of the motor boats conveying the yachtsmen back and forth to the mainland.

Marblehead is also enjoying the presence of a number of moving-picture artists, who have come here to portray on the screen the streets and scenes so often read about. A company of these people have been in and about Marblehead for many days making pictures on Front street on the picture "Nathan Hale." It is a rare and pretty sight to see the members of the company dressed in Colonial costume going about without the least concern. Douglas Fairbanks and Gail Kane are the principals in the picture.

A musicale for the benefit of the French wounded will be given at the home of Mrs. Frederick McQuesten, Marblehead Neck, Wednesday afternoon, July 19, at 4 o'clock. Miss Lillia Snelling will be one of the artists.

Among the patronesses at the Italian Festa under the patronage of the Italian Ambassador and Countess di Cellere, which will be given on the estate of the Honorable and Mrs. George von L. Meyer at Hamilton on June 29th, from four to seven o'clock, will be Miss Alice L. White and her niece Miss Elizabeth M. Sabin of Peach's Point.

If homekeepers but knew the convenience of a fireless cookstove every home would have one, especially summer homes. Its operation is simple. Prepare the food in the usual way, place in the cooker with the heated disc and close the cooker. When ready for lunch, or dinner take out the perfectly cooked food with all the flavors retained during the process. Cereal cooked this way is a revelation. Perhaps the highest grade cookstove is the "Domestic Science" with its pure aluminum wells that are guaranteed not to rust, its auto-valve, water-seal top and its beautifully enamelled steel walls. The Hill & Welch Company, Munroe street, Lynn, are the representatives of the "Domestic Science" Fireless Cookstove in this vicinity and would be pleased to demonstrate its convenience, utility and economy to you. They also represent the Bohn Syphon Refrigerators and Old Hickory Porch Furniture. Delivery by truck.

RESIDENTS of the North Shore and members of the summer colony will be especially interested in the announcement made elsewhere in this issue concerning the development of the Palmer estate at Phillips Beach station, Swampscott. The rapid development at Phillips Beach station, within the past few years, has been such as to appeal to those who enjoy the sea and the country all the year round in a congenial neighborhood within easy access of the city. The Palmer estate, which extends from the railroad station south on Humphrey st., is practically the last available open land in the more desirable section of this neighborhood. It consists for the most part of high, pleasant land which will furnish attractive material for Professor Henry V. Hubbard of the Harvard School of Landscape Architecture, who has charge of the laying out of roads, walks, planting areas and lots. Professor Hubbard will be assisted by Mr. E. W. Gay of Lynn, who has been connected with the laying out of so many attractive estates along the North Shore.

The work of opening up the property will be undertaken this summer and the preliminary construction of the roadways, walks, etc., it is hoped, will be completed by the middle of August. A private sale of the available land will then be held for two weeks beginning August 12.

The new owners of the property are preparing a statement regarding the plan of development and the general restrictions under which the land will be sold, but they have authorized the statement that the tract will be sold only for high-grade residences in harmony with the present neighborhood at Phillips Beach station. F. W. Norris & Co., of Cambridge, development managers of high-grade suburban property, are co-operating with E. R. Spinney of Lynn in the development and sale of the property.

The desire for a pretty, graceful foot among the ladies of the North Shore summer colonies interested in æsthetic dances in which the foot is bare, has inaugurated a system of foot-beauty culture which has been successfully introduced this summer by the Doctors Smith, Chiropodists, in the Strand Theatre Building, Lynn. There is no pain or disaccommodation to the subject of this new treatment. It is rather an approach to manicure applied to the foot, except that all blemishes are scientifically treated and electric massage for strengthening the muscles adds a complete touch. Each treatment, generally being done a day before the exhibition dances, requires little more than a half-hour and has proven a decided advantage both in appearance and comfort to the subject.

CAPE ANN.—The city of Gloucester is looking forward to a splendid season. Although the weather conditions have interfered with earlier arrivals, people are coming now in large numbers for this time of the season than in some years past. The main streets show to a great degree how many people have come, for the streets are congested with automobiles nearly all day and there is almost a continual flow of people on foot, visiting the various stores. The merchants seem to be doing well.

It is the plan of the Gloucester Day committee to give something of interest the middle of August, at Stage Fort Park, that will be a pleasure to the summer population as well as the citizens, and this year special efforts will be made to have a spectacular affair. The announcement will be made in a few weeks.

A fine Fourth of July celebration will be held in the city. Wingaersheek Tribe of Red Men is busy making preparation for this third annual Cape Ann Day. A parade will be held in the morning of the holiday, consisting of military, civic and trades divisions and a gala midway and attractions at Stage Fort Park in the afternoon and evening, a grand fireworks display to close the festivities of the event. It is expected that many out-of-town orders will come to Cape Ann to participate in the parade and the festivities.

Gloucester harbor presents a lively scene with the United States navy craft. Besides the U. S. S. Baltimore, there are the tenders and five tow boats of the U. S. Mine-laying division, a gunboat and torpedo boat. It is expected that more craft will appear from time to time. The U. S. S. Baltimore admitted visitors on Sunday afternoon and boats landed from the Hawthorne Inn float. The rain interfered with the going of a large number of people, who would have enjoyed seeing this battleship, which was one of Admiral Dewey's fleet at Manila, in the Spanish War and the scars can be seen on the ship's sides.

The yachting season promises to be a brisk and interesting one. The program for club championship races of the Gloucester Yacht club has just been announced, the first race being scheduled for Wednesday. The club will hold its usual Saturday afternoon races, commencing July 1 and concluding September 2. There will also be the customary holiday races in the forenoon on Tuesday, July 4th, and Labor Day, September 4th. The mid-week races for the 18-foot boats, which have proven so popular the past few seasons, are to be continued on Wednesday afternoons. The classes are as follows: Class I—"Onda III," John Greenough, owner; "Nereid," Charles H. Lunt; "Edjaco II," S. Edward Raymond; "Kiowa," Benjamin Pine. Class II—"Elizabeth A.," Scott Parker; "Lila M.," Charles S. Webster. 18-Foot Class—"Arrow," S. Edward Raymond; "Aurora," Roy W. Pigeon; "Jane," Truman E. Fassett; "La Chica," David S. Greenough; "Moslem," Dr. W. A. Rowe; "Privateer II," F. Wilder Pollard; "Scaler," Flye and Colby; "Tid II," Arthur G. Leonard; "Winsome," Myron C. Wick; "Mouse," W. G. Brown, Jr. The starting line as usual will be off Hawthorne Inn and the course is laid in the outer harbor, to the buoy off Eastern Point lighthouse and the breakwater and return around buoys in the harbor and off the clubhouse on Rocky Neck. There are six courses for various classes.

Then upon Norwood's Heights, the view is also varying, when one gets the sweep of Ipswich Bay and the shore line towards Newburyport and the Maine coast, where on a clear day Agamenticus looms up like a giant sentinel through the blue mist, out of the deep Atlantic. Beach, with the West Gloucester hills and Willoughby Park making a wonderful setting behind it, where sand dunes glisten in the noon day sun. Blue sky, blue sea, the latter edged with snowy white, and stretches of woodland to the southward, and we have a picture that never wearies, but refreshes the soul. To the northward is beheld the bold rocks down by the Annisquam lighthouse, and from the height the Lanesville and Pigeon Cove stone quarries are located by the tell-tale derrick tips which appear above the line of trees and the hilltops. On entering the quaint village of Annisquam, one must cross the old wooden bridge, upon which the visitor often pauses to glance up and down the little river. The scenes are picturesque in every direction, but particularly beautiful to the northward, with the old houses at Lobster Cove nestled comfortably upon the bank to the left of the picture, while the long line of trees on the right cast green shadows upon the water. There is a wonderful perspective, at the extreme end, appearing through the green trees, the white spire of the old Annisquam church. One is almost reminded of a bit of the Avon in old England. There are many pretentious summer houses in Annisquam, but in various sections along the river's course are small cottages, occupied by people of wealth and prominence, who prefer the simpler mode of summer living and recreation.

Miss Anna V. Hyatt, the sculptor, who has been in New York City, is now at Annisquam with her family.

Lewis Hawkins and family of Providence, R. I., are occupying the Bent cottage at Pleasure Point, Annisquam, again this season.

Miss Charlotte Munster has joined her mother at the Munster cottage, Annisquam.

Mrs. W. F. Gifford of St. Louis, Mo., has arrived at her new summer residence on Norwood's Heights, Annisquam.

The Residents of the North Shore will remember for years to come that Monday morning that the military call came over the fire alarm system in Beverly and Gloucester. There have been other times that this generation has heard the military call as in the days of the Spanish war and when the troops were called out to go to Lawrence, but these did not have the depressing effect that the call has made this year. The war in Europe has been an object lesson that one cannot shake. There is something inspiring in the bustle of preparedness, the calling of troops, the martial tread of soldiers and the ringing of church bells. A uniform and the unfurled Stars and Stripes in an hour of impending war will thrill anyone, but,—war is more than enthusiasm, and a campaign a stern and sober reality. As the commander said in the Salem armory as they were about to go, "Men, this is no picnic, this is a serious task. We must be loyal to manhood, to our homes, to our chief and to our nation. Some of us will not come home." That is true whether there be a war or not, the young men have responded to the call of duty and when the roll is called after they have come marching home some of them will not respond to the roll-call. They will have laid down their lives for their home and their country.

Commencement Day at Harvard is coming back. There were years when Commencement Day was the great day of the year, but the constantly increasing number of graduates and the limited capacity of Sanders Theatre made it impossible for the institution to issue tickets for all of the candidates to present to their friends and in the academic procession only graduates of twenty-five years' standing were permitted. The result was the day of days in the week of festivities was robbed of its important place. This year the commencement exercises were held in the Stadium. All graduates were invited to join the procession and open house was maintained by the University for its alumni at the noon hour. The weather was auspicious and altogether it was a notable and successful innovation.

Labor Now Enjoys a Degree of prosperity unthought of a few years ago and the demand for labor is likely to increase rather than diminish in the immediate present. But there is a day of reckoning coming in the not far future. When the war in Europe is over, and it connot now long continue, there will be an exodus for America unprecedented. The results of so many men being released for peaceful occupations will undoubtedly be felt by the laboring classes and wages will go down and unemployment will be common. It is a wise laborer who head to provide against the future.

The Manchester Season of Open-air Band Concerts has begun. The policy of the Town in continuing these concerts meets the approval of all. It does much to promote a good community spirit.

It Makes a Difference whose son or brother it is that has to go south to give his life for the country.

With All the Talk that has been made concerning preparedness during the last two years, what a pity it is that the military authorities could not have forevision enough to have issued instructions to their men to always maintain their equipment and to keep their teeth constantly in good condition. The mere question of proper footwear: Every member of the militia should have been warned always to have a well broken in pair of boots in good condition ready for wear. Preparedness! Preparedness that ends in parading is a mere vanity.

Among Those Who Were Called to the colors was Mayor Herman A. Macdonald of Beverly Farms now Second Lieutenant in Battery F, Second Battalion Light Artillery. Despite the fact that he was just getting about after an injury received in the service, he responded to the call, hastily adjusted his personal affairs, transferred his law practice to another and cleared his desk at City Hall and joined the colors and is now in service. Faithful in civil life he has heard the call for military service and responded gallantly.

There are Suspicions abroad of foreign influences being used in Mexico to stir up a strife between our country and Mexico, but it will be well to neglect such insinuations as without real basis in fact. As a matter of fact the Mexicans are naturally belligerent and they need no incentives to quarrel. They are perfectly capable of initiating a strife without outside impulse or influence.

It Will be Well to Remember that the season has made it difficult for the gardeners to meet the season's demands for the table. The wealthy will find their gardeners unable to supply their requirements and the poor will have to pay higher prices for a while for garden stuffs.

Mr. Ford Has Denied that he said that all employees seeking to fulfill their vows to the state militia would be discharged. How unfortunate it is that such a statement should originally have gained currency. Someone blundered, or has someone wilfully sought to injure Mr. Ford?

Carranza May Have Been well intentioned in his original policy with the United States in permitting Pershing to enter Mexican territory, but he is unable to control his own cabinet. He is between two fires and hence his erratic behavior.

Harvard Won a Striking Victory over Yale on the water, but the mobilization of national troops and the possibility of war with Mexico diverted interest from the lesser to the greater.

June Has Not Been Fair nor pleasant, but the last week went a long way toward wiping out the score against it.

A Military Call is no respecter of persons.

May It Be a glorious and peaceful Fourth!

Ex-President Roosevelt has proven himself to be a man of broad vision, unselfish action and shrewd statesmanship in declining the Progressive nomination as President of the United States and in announcing his determination to support the cause of the Republican party and of its candidate, Charles E. Hughes. The Progressive party thus automatically ceases to be and the faithful followers of the Colonel should rally to the colors and support him now in his support of the Republican nominee. This ends a very unpleasant episode in the history of the Republican party. There is no doubt that the secessions of Roosevelt and his party elected Wilson and that without Roosevelt and the Progressive party the Republicans could never have hoped to defeat Wilson and the doctrines for which his party stands. Wilson is stronger than his party; but it must be remembered that while the voter elects the individual he is really supporting the principles and ideals of the party which he represents. President Wilson has proven himself a capable man of broad vision, shrewd diplomacy and enduring patience, but he represents a party whose ideals and principles are in disreput. When this war is over the tariff question and the allied fiscal problems will become issues that must be met and the interests of the American Republic are not being conserved best by the principles and policy of the Democratic party. In supporting Hughes, Roosevelt recognizes that he has succeeded in making the Republican party accept the so-called Progressive policies. Today Roosevelt stands four square to every wind that blows and supports Mr. Hughes, who won the nomination without a contest, not Mr. Hughes as an individual, as honorable a man as he is, but because he stands for the party whose principles he is willing to sustain to defeat the policy of the Democratic party.

There is Every Reason why the United States Government should exhaust every means within its power to prevent a conflict of arms. If mediation and arbitration and peaceful adjustments between nations means anything in these days now is the time to try the matter out. America is committed by its institutions, by its inheritances by its educational interests, by its moral ideals and by its religious impulses to a life of peace and to a war upon war. Pacificism that has no moral will is a figment of the imagination. It can have no real place in modern life; but the strong will that is willing to fight for honor and principle can speak for peace with honor and force. The President is wise in mobilizing the forces of the country. Let the Mexican government and people realize that we mean business, but at the same time our government should exercise every power within its reach to prevent war and settle amicable if possible the differences that have arisen. The Mexican situation is keen and the government seems wilfully to misinterpret every purpose of the United States. There is a question in the mind of many whether the United States will be able to create a spirit of good will toward her in the Mexican States. It will be a hard task to accomplish.

Still Another Reason why every lad in a republic should be taught the first principles of citizenship! With citizenship goes the responsibility of defending the nation.

There Was Nothing Left for the President to do. He demanded an apology and the release of the prisoners. Carranza is under honor; bound to make amends.

Its a Long Long Way to Mexico—but, unfortunately, our boys are on the way.

The United States Should Do everything with honor to mediate our differences with the Mexican people. War is cruel and relentless. It stirs up strife and enmities that cannot be healed readily. Already the Mexican people have abundant reasons for suspecting not only our honesty and principles, but our intentions at this time. There is no doubt that Carranza has acted perfidiously and that the United States Government if seeking war has sufficient provocation. But the real question is what are we to do if we win the war! How much farther ahead will we be in establishing friendly relationships with our bordering nation. The Mexican people have never forgiven us for the theft of Texas, New Mexico and California. These states came to us as a direct result of the contest in America for the maintenance of the slave trade. There is no question about the relation of our modern difficulty with Mexico to the conditions which brought on the Civil War. The South sought and peacefully penetrated Texas with but one purpose in view, that of increasing the slave states in the Union and thus maintaining the cursed slave traffic and the conditions which grew out of the Mexican war were in a small degree contributing influences to the outbreak of the Civil War! If war breaks out it will be a terrible example of national retribution,—the sins of the fathers being visited upon the second generation. This may have but a slight bearing upon the immediate causes of the present difficulties, but the enmity against the United States in Mexico began back in the forties and fifties. America must be careful not to be the offender.

Hughes Has Received Roosevelt's support enthusiastically and it is to be hoped that this will be but the beginning of a strong friendship that will be an honor to both men and a great aid to the nation. Happily now the old days are past and a new era has begun. It would not be surprising if, after the Republican nominee is elected Mr. Theodore Roosevelt received a portfolio. Why would not a place in the cabinet be a way to use the service of such a valiant and resourceful leader?

The Spontaneousness with which the employers of the patriots responded to the call to the colors is in itself a patriotic act. There is no doubt that many of the firms have been impelled by public opinion and the advantages which it affords for the best type of advertising, but nevertheless there are a great number of business interests that have taken up the problem as a patriotic duty.

Not Much Warning was given to the young men when they were called to service, nor was there much time given for hardening up in camp at Framingham. There must have been serious reasons which impelled the Government to move with such haste.

The American Society for preparedness, an organization of women, but recently established, proved themselves valuable helpers in the last movement of the troops on their way to entraining for the South. The soldiers will remember that good supper for many a day.

Massachusetts Had a fair complement of unexpected June brides. A marriage in camp is somewhat different from a marriage in church, but both events are serious and command pause and thought.

The Successes of the Russians on one front and Italians on another front makes life rather uncomfortable if not serious for the Austrian people.

It is Easier to dream peace than it is to maintain it.

SUFFRAGISTS OFFER AID

Stand Ready to Help in Relieving Families of Militiamen.

Dear Mr. Editor,

Will you permit me to make a statement in your columns, in reply to certain inquiries that have come to me?

A headline in the Boston Herald, recently, was at once true and misleading. I have most certainly not volunteered for military service, and I cannot go as a Red Cross nurse because I am not a nurse. I did go to the State House and offer myself to the Governor for special service, in case of war; for I believe that in time of need women must serve as well as men for defense, relief, etc. The fact of believing war to be wrong and the Mexican situation a hideous mess, makes no difference when the need of service comes; and the peace advocates will be found to be as actively loyal as the so-called "Preparedness" people,—if not more so.

Independent Suffragists in Boston are quickly but quietly organizing into a Relief Committee, on constructive lines, in case the great need comes, though still hoping and believing that the Mexican situation can—or could—be treated by arbitration. It is natural for Suffragists to flock together, and we have great experience in organization; also we are the most truly patriotic body of women in the community. But this special work is absolutely non-partisan and is not undertaken officially by any one Suffrage organization. But there is a large number of broad-minded Suffragists today who are ready to act independently and to do any patriotic work that may be needed. Our plans are not yet sufficiently in shape to be announced, nor do we yet know what will be needed. Our immediate need, which was called to my attention at the State House, is assistance to families of Militiamen who have been called away. In this connection let me ask anyone who happens to know of women or children in this region who are in distress because of this situation, to communicate with me at once—(Miss L. R. Stanwood, Manchester, Mass.) in the interval until permanent committees are formed.

The order of the White Cross, which I am trying to get started in this state, signifies that those using it or wearing it protest against war, while at the same time doing all the public service and relief work that is needed, making work for women and children their special duty. This White Cross work should co-operate with the Red Cross, and not clash with it (one may perfectly well belong to both). There should be no partisan feelings at a time of national crisis, no rivalries in works of mercy. Suffragists and Red Cross workers must be loyal to the memory of the great Clara Barton, who founded the American Red Cross and was a strong Suffragist,—in short a Patriot. I should be glad to hear from anyone who is interested in the White Cross idea.

Thanking you for your courtesy,

Very truly yours,

Louie R. Stanwood.

Manchester, June 27.

Manchester's Fourth of July.

Every preparation has been made for a rousing patriotic demonstration next Tuesday in observance of Fourth of July. "How did that happen?"

Rodney H. Dow has received his discharge by reason of expiration of term of service with Co. G of Gloucester, and returned home from Framingham, Monday. Mr. Dow joined Co. G in 1912, served three years, then re-enlisted for a year, which expired June 26. In case the exigencies of the present Mexican crisis makes it necessary to call for an army, he will be one of the first to go to the front, as his years of training and experience will fit him for a position of rank.

In response to the many inquires from parents and children the Manchester Woman's club is glad to announce that Miss Jean Dallett, physical director at the beach, will commence her season on next Wednesday, July 5. After the success of last season under the expert teaching of Miss Dallett there is no longer doubt as to the need of such work. Besides the instruction in games, athletics and swimming, Miss Dallett is also skilled in the industrial work which is done on hot days and in rest times. This year the Woman's club plans to take up basketry, painting and knitting, in addition to last year's schedule of embroidery, hammocks and kite making.

There are many visitors to the immaculate new emergency room, provided by the town in the Blaisdell block, Beach st., but the miniature hospital has yet to receive its first patient. Miss Long, the district nurse, uses a room in the front as her headquarters and the rooms are open for inspection between four and five o'clock each day. Miss Long may be found at those hours for consultation. In the rear room is a new operating table, spacious closets, a sanitary table and chairs and an electrical sterilizer for instruments, the latter being the gift of Dr. Blaisdell. A sanitary container for waste is also a present from Dr. Blaisdell. Behind a screen in the front room is a neat hospital bed.

Shubert Theatre, Boston.

The prevailing enthusiasm of audiences over the thrilling and altogether entertaining features of that spectacular film entitled "How Britain Prepared," which was so noticeable on the occasion of their first presentation in Boston last week, at the Shubert Theatre, has characterized all the performances that have been given every afternoon and evening. The interest in these pictures has been heightened all the more by our own hurried preparedness so recently made necessary by the threatening dangers of the Mexican situation, and there is every indication of a growing and still more lively interest the coming week when "How Britain Prepared" will be presented for a third week at this house.

Manchester Baseball.

A fast game is assured for tomorrow when Manchester will play the crack Lynn Gas & Electric nine at the Brook st. diamond. The original game scheduled for the date was with the Waltham Watch Co. nine, but the opportunity occurred to get a faster team, so the Lynn game was arranged. The teams will line up as follows: Lynn, Powers 3b, Moran rf, Ring 2b, Whalen 1b, Finn ss, Wallace lf, Collins cf, Whalen c and Cummings or Ingals p; Manchester, Collins c, Grover p, Devlin 1b, Cody 2b, Herron ss, O'Leary 3b, Conley cf and Gourley rf. Harty or Francis will take care of left field. Perkins will be unable to catch owing to the injury received in last Saturday's game, but it is hoped he will be in condition for Tuesday's game with Stoneham.

New Teachers Engaged.

The Manchester School Board has selected the three new teachers for next year, succeeding those resigned. Charles P. Savory of Wareham has been selected as principal of Story High school. Mr. Savory is a graduate of Bridgewater Normal School and of Harvard. He has been teaching about seven years, more than half of that time having been in Wareham, where he was highly recommended to the Manchester board. He is married.

Miss Josephine Hart of Everett will succeed Miss Blanche A Bragdon as teacher of modern languages at Story High School. Miss Hart is a graduate of Boston University and has been teaching at Colby Academy, New London, N. H.

Miss Otla Woodbury of Beverly, who is a graduate of Wheelock Kindergarten School, Boston, will succeed Miss Marion Jewett as teacher of the first and second grades. Miss Jewett will teach in the Belmont schools next year.

Ferguson-Bragdon

Announcements were received in Manchester last evening of the marriage of Miss Blanche Arline Bragdon, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick A. No Harbor Lights?

It now appears that lights will not be placed on the channel entrance buoys in Manchester harbor this summer as voted at the March Town meeting on recommendation of the harbor master, Louis O. Lations. It seems that, although the vote of the meeting was an endorsement of the recommendation and expressed approval of project, no money was appropriated to cover the cost of the lighting. Consequently, nothing has been done about it. Another difficulty in the way of lighting the present buoys comes with the announcement that the town has no jurisdiction except by the approval of the U. S. Lighthouse Service. A man identified with maritime interests informs the Breeze that the U. S. Lighthouse Service will not permit the lighting of buoys anchored as are those in Manchester harbor. The buoys may be lighted if fixed buoys, firmly embedded in the bottom, are used, but the danger of accident due to the shifting of an anchored buoy in a storm prevents the use of the latter.

Fashion and Household Suggestions

FOR THE COLONEL'S LADY

Summer Fashions for the Younger Generation

THE smart shops which show the exclusive styles for the rising generation are featuring simple clothes. In a recent visit to the shopping district Judy thought white was taking the lead, although the dainty pinks and blues, checks, plaids and stripes "also ran."

One smart little frock was of white linen in one piece cut low in the neck with short sleeves and wide belt. It was the acme of simplicity with the sprays of hand embroidery upon the sailor collar and belt as the only trimming. This little dress would stand any amount of tubbing; in fact, it seems to be new each time it comes from the hands of the laundress.

The beautiful, silky plaid gingham makes a nice dress for general wear and is, moreover, in the mode. One that has been shown in an interesting shop that makes a study of children's clothes, was made in the prevailing short-waisted style with very full skirt. Two bias ruffles added to the fullness and, incidentally, to the quaint charm of the frock.

A peasant smock for a girl of ten years was in blue chambray with smocking of white. This was shown with a skirt of white cotton corduroy, just like mother's.

Quite as sophisticated, although an older favorite, is the severe little sailor suit that seems to be a leader for the cool days that are bound to squeeze themselves in between the sunnier days of summer. In blue serge, it is a most practical garment and one that will wear indefinitely.

Summer Clothes for the Younger Generation

JUST like the little frocks we used to dream out for ourselves years ago, was a creation in white tulle. It was calculated to make anyone over six years turn green with envy. What little bodice there was, was almost entirely concealed by a puffing of blue taffeta. Close up under the arms the full skirt began with an upstanding ruffle of the tulle. Four bands of the puffing appeared on the skirt and tiny ribbon roses appeared coyly, too, on that adorable skirt. The sleeves, also, were finished with a puffing of the blue taffeta. With this should be worn white socks and boue slippers that lace in front.

Coats are not to be forgotten amid the less practical articles that go to make up the Youngest Lady's summer wardrobe. Over the crispest of frilled frocks may be worn a lightweight coat that will not harm the freshness of the dress. One in old blue faille was a happy combination of all that was attractive and practical. It was very light in weight and very full in cut. Smocking on the shoulders took excellent care of the fullness and the removable lining would be a joy to mothers. A little collar of white organdie completed the garment.

Judy's Jellies and Jams

NOW that the berry season is here and the fruit season well upon its way, the thrifty housewife begins to think of her jellies and jams for the long winter months, and it is to assist her in making these even more delicious and of a greater variety that Judy has collected the following recipes from the best known of New England cooks:

The first week in July is the best time to make currant jelly, without which no winter larder is complete. Do not allow the currants to be gathered after a rain storm and do not wash them, for the moisture impoverishes them. Wipe them carefully and remove whatever leaves and stems may adhere to them. To each pound of fruit, allow one-half pound of granulated sugar. Put a few currants into a porcelain kettle and crush in order to have juice enough to prevent burning and then add the remainder of the fruit. Boil for 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Strain through a jelly bag, putting the liquid into earthen vessels. After straining return the liquid to the kettle and add the sugar; when this is entirely dissolved, the jelly is done and must be removed from the fire immediately. Place in glasses. It will jelly upon the side of the cup as it is taken up, leaving no doubt in the mind of the cook as to the result.

Here is a recipe that may appeal to the labor saving enthusiast, as it requires no cooking. Press the juice from the currants and strain it; allow one pound of white sugar to one pint of juice. Mix until the sugar is dissolved and then put the mixture in glass jars. Seal and expose to the hot sun for a few days.

All along the Shore, stone walls are covered with vivid hedges thick with hanging, crimson berries. These berries may be made to serve a decidedly useful purpose, as well. I refer to barberries, whose acid flavor is a keen delight to many. Following is a true and tried recipe for barberry jam. The berries should be quite ripe. Strip from the stalks, throwing aside the spotted and for each pound of fruit, allow 18 ounces of granulated sugar. Boil with one pint of water to every 4 pounds until it becomes white and falls in thick masses from the spoon. Then throw in the fruit and stir over a brisk fire for six minutes. Take off the scum and pour into jars or glasses.

Strawberries are nearing the end of their best period and the clever preserver will want several jars of strawberry jam to add to her stock. Select firm, ripe berries. Wash and hull, weigh and boil for 35 minutes, stirring constantly. Add 8 ounces of fine sugar to one pound of fruit. Mix well away from the fire, then boil again quickly for 25 minutes.

New England epicures have for many years enjoyed strawberries in wine. It is one of the finest of the old-fashioned preserves. Put a quantity of the best, largest strawberries in a bottle, sprinkle with a few teaspoonfuls of powered sugar and fill the bottle with Maderia or Sherry wine.

Raspberries make excellent jelly and invalids always enjoy their flavor. Crush the raspberries and strain through a wet cloth, add an equal measure of sugar and boil from 10 to 20 minutes. Take out into glasses.

STRAND THEATRE, LYNN.

Next week's Strand theatre (Lynn) programs will be headed the first three days by Ann Pennington in her introductory screen vehicle, "Susie Snowflake," and the last three days of the week by Pauline Frederick in "The World's Great Snare."

"Susie Snowflake" is a delightful comedy-drama of musical comedy life which is peculiarly suited to diminutive Ann Pennington, in view of the fact that her whole theatrical career has been devoted to this branch of stage activity.

Pauline Frederick's feature is an adaptation of the well-known novel by E. Phillips Oppenheim. Sunday fourteen noted screen stars will appear in "How Molly Made Good."

So successful has been Arthur Aldridge's engagement at the Strand that the management has decided to feature this noted New York Hippodrome tenor for an indefinite period.

The Board of Selectmen will meet on Monday night of next week instead of Tuesday.

Some time today or tomorrow, at any rate before Sunday, the floats and ropes at Singing Beach will be installed for the use of bathers. Welcome news!

The big panel depicting the Arbella, Governor John Winthrop's ship, anchored in Manchester harbor in 1630, which was painted some time ago has been mounted in its place in the directors' office of the Manchester Trust Co.

About ten young people from Manchester attended the annual meeting of the Salem Union, Christian Endeavor, in Salem Monday evening. Among the officers elected and installed for the ensuing year were Miss Effie Stidstone, secretary, and Abbott Foster, chairman of ushers.

Lagory ("Tute") Wade is playing this year with the Salem Cadet Band, instead of with the Lynn organization with which he has been connected. The many friends of this former Manchester boy will be given an opportunity of hearing some of his solos in the concerts here this summer, no doubt.

Mrs. Charles P. Goldsmith informally observed her 80th birthday Wednesday, June 28, at her home on Lincoln st. A number of friends called to extend congratulations and well wishes and many others sent postcard greetings. Mrs. Goldsmith enjoys remarkably good health for one of her years and is unusually bright and cheerful and not in the least degree does she impress one as having reached the octogenarian age.

Professor Alfred L. Saben, who resigned as principal of Story High after 17 years in charge of the school, was pleasantly surprised last Friday evening when a number of friends called to bid him farewell. In the course of the evening a purse of gold of approximately $100 was presented in behalf of friends in the Congl. church where Mr. and Mrs. Saben have been active in the work of the Sunday School ever since they have been in Manchester. Mr. Saben was also presented with a gold watch chain on behalf of the pupils of the high school. Mr. and Mrs. Saben leave for their farm in Winchester, N. H., this week.

Charles E. Dodge is home on a vacation for two weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Dodge, School st. Mr. Dodge is an engineer in the employ of the Aberthaw Construction Co. of Boston. The firm has just completed a big contract for the erection of a munitions plant for the Winchester Arms Co., New Haven, Conn., where Mr. Dodge was located.

A. G. Tomasello & Son, who have the contract for the reconstruction of the highway from the Priest School to the Beverly line were unable to finish the work in the limited time allowed by their contract. According to the contract they should have completed the work Wednesday of this week, but owing to bad weather they have been delayed. The work will not be entirely completed until a week from Saturady night although the road is practically all open now for travel. Under the terms of their contract the firm must pay the town $50 a day for every day they take after the 28th of June. However, if it is found that circumstances beyond control of the company were responsible for the delay, it is understood that they will not be held strictly to contract in the matter of the forfeit. It will rest largely with Engineer Coburn of the State Highway Commission, who has been overseeing the work, whether the forfeit clause is enforced. The Town will act upon his recommendation in the matter.

Those who attended had a most enjoyable time and it is to the regret of the committee that a larger fund was not realized for the relief work. Carey's orchestra furnished the music.

Someone has asked why it is that certain individuals are allowed to use the town wharf at Masconomo Park as if it were private property. When several boats are tied to the landing it is practically impossible they say for other boats to land. It is only recently that the Park Board has not compelled the boat owners to moor farther out in the stream, leaving sufficient room for other craft to land, so perhaps the board knows the answer.

AT FRAMINGHAM CAMP

MANCHESTER MINISTER TELLS OF SPIRIT OF MEN CALLED TO BORDER.

Rev. A. G. Warner, pastor of the Manchester Baptist church, paid a visit to the Framingham mobilization camp last week. At his Sunday evening service he preached on "The Call to the Border," touching upon the Mexican trouble and the subsequent call for the militia. He compared the call which went forth on Monday of last week to the call assembling the Scottish clans. Their watchwords were "speed and loyalty," he said, and the same spirit that prompted the Scots of old seemed to personify the militia of today. He said that in Salem every available man was assembled in the armory at 5.30 o'clock Monday morning of last week, ready for service.

"It makes no difference to the men at Framingham," said the speaker, "what has happened in Mexico in the last few months. They cannot ask about the mistakes of the past; they must deal with the present situation."

Speaking of witnessing some of the spectators ridiculing a number of awkward "rookies" at the camp, Mr. Warner asked, "What makes this country free and keeps it free? These men with money in the bank, who laugh at the awkward recruit, should look out for their money and their personal welfare if the day ever comes when the awkward recruit refuses to go out and fight their battles. Business depends upon the stability of government, and the safety of the government depends upon the strength of its army and navy.

"From what I learned at Framingham it is evidently the intention of the government to harden the men at once in preparation for service. The hardening process could be accomplished just as well in Framingham, but the men must also be accustomed to the climate of Mexico in case the need for them arises. This means an early departure for the border.

"I went among the regiments the other day and was impressed by the spirit of the men. They were not depressed, neither were they cheerful, but there seemed to be a quiet reserve that seemed to say, 'we are ready for whatever is before us.' As one of the men told me, 'We are not going on an outing, but for business.'"

Speaking of the crisis confronting America, Mr. Warner said, "There are times when sacrifices must be made, sometimes even a sacrifice of life. We are told that 'without the shedding of blood there shall be no remission of sins.' No great progress in the history of the world has been made without the sacrifice of life."

Mr. Warner's conviction that the militia would be ordered to the front soon was borne out by the departure Monday of the majority of the men at the Framingham camp.

MANCHESTER AGAIN

BASEBALL TEAM ADDS ANOTHER VICTORY TO LIST FOR 1916 SEASON.

"Hal" Grover added a third victory to his unbroken string of wins for the season when Manchester defeated the Gray and Davis nine of Cambridge last Saturday afternoon in Manchester. The score was nine to one. Manchester's nine did not have to exert itself to win, errors by the visitors contributing largely to their defeat. The hitting was noticeably light on both sides. In only one inning, the fourth, did the visitors succeed in connecting with Grover's delivery for anything like real hitting. In that session, which resulted in their only score, Harkins doubled over the right field fence, singles by Hall and Lindbloom bringing him home.

Manchester scored three of its runs in the first inning without making a hit. Collins and O'Leary were walked to first, an error by Lindbloom let Cody arrive. Collins scored when Cockery let one slip through his hands and sacrifice hits by Devlin and Gourley brought in O'Leary and Cody. Perkins made a record for himself by getting around the circuit twice during the game, a record he will not have a chance to equal again right away for he is apt to be out of the game for a time. In the 8th inning he received a fast ball on his bare hand, which split the middle finger in such a manner as to put him out of the game for a week or two. Collins replaced him at his old-time position behind the bat and Walen took the field for the remainder of the game.

One of the features of the game was the fast fielding of Flaherty, short-stop of the Gray and Davis nine. The summary:

MASONS VISIT MANCHESTER.

The Masconomo House in Manchester was the scene of a jolly gathering Saturday and Sunday when 125 Sir Knights of Pilgrim Commandery, No. 9, of Lowell, enjoyed a two-day outing. The party came to Manchester Saturday morning by automobile and stayed overnight at the hotel. In the morning a ball game between the city and country teams resulted in a 17 to 5 victory for the former. Races furnished amusement for the spectators. In the evening Saturday a dinner with cabaret and music was enjoyed. Sunday, music by the Salem Cadet Band was entertainment.

The Manchester school gardens in School st., are in a flourishing condition and present an attractive appearance from the street. The garden products are in an advanced state of growth having been aided by the rains of the past week.

By a coincidence the colors of the class of Harvard '06, which held its decennial reunion at the Masconomo House last week are the same as those of Story High School. An abundance of the colors were used in the decorations for the Harvard men's banquet and were left behind. They were secured by the class of 1915 of Story High School, which held a reunion and dance in Town hall last Friday, and were used in making the hall attractive. Streamers and festoons of green and white added much to the appearance of the affair.

Two new presses have been added to the equipment of the BREEZE printing plant this week—one of which is designed particularly to handle the colored cover of the BREEZE during the six months of the year when the paper is in this form, and the other to take care of smaller job work. With these two new presses and its other small presses, the large cylinder press, power cutting machine, stitcher, linotype and unusual array of type for a town the size of Manchester, the BREEZE plant is as well equipped as any outside of the big cities to handle publications, books, and the multiplicity of job work, colored printing, etc. Few people in Manchester realize the work involved in producing every week a magazine the size of the BREEZE. In addition to its own work the plant handles a generous share of the printing of Beverly Farms and Magnolia, as well as many customers in Boston, Beverly, Salem and Gloucester, and hotels all along the North Shore.

Manchester is not accustomed to the sight of scantily clad athletes jaunting through its streets, and a runner clad in trunks and jersey traveling through the middle of the principal streets one night this week caused a small commotion. The unknown sprinter was evidently preparing for the Fourth of July contests, so Manchester may see some speed if "preparedness" counts.

At the band concert last week the Whisperer stood with a G. A. R. man at the conclusion of the program when the band played "The Star Spangled Banner." Not a man in the crowd was visible who did not stand with uncovered head while the national air was played. Commenting on the unusual display of patriotism the veteran said that it was significant of the times. Americans are criticized more or less unjustly, for lack of patriotism. The Anglo-Saxon, the predominant strain in American life, is not given to demonstration except on occasion. At ordinary times he may seem guilty of coldness toward the flag or the national anthem, but in a national crisis such as America is facing at present his patriotism is always apparent. Those who marched in the big Preparedness parade in Boston a few weeks ago noticed a spirit of enthusiasm and respect for the flag not shown before in years. And no one today has cause to complain that American patriotism is dead after observing the response to the call to the Mexican border.

Moth Supt. Sheahan and his gang of men have been doing some good work of late in spraying the trees along the town highways. Manchester's beautifully shaded streets are a matter of comment and the town can well afford to give the trees every attention against the ravages of moth, or other destructive pests. This is what the moth department has been doing—spraying the trees with a high pressure machine. Next the department will give its attention to private property, spraying trees and shrubbery and other things that the moth adheres to. The work this year has been accomplished in quicker time than every before and at less cost in the end, as Supt. Sheahan has the work down to a most efficient basis.

Federal Inquiry or Railroad Strike?

Faced by demands from the conductors, engineers, firemen and brakemen that would impose on the country an additional burden in transportation costs of $100,000,000 a year, the railroads propose that this wage problem be settled by reference to an impartial Federal tribunal.

With these employes, whose efficient service is acknowledged, the railroads have no differences that could not be considered fairly and decided justly by such a public body.

Railroads Urge Public Inquiry and Arbitration

The formal proposal of the railroads to the employes for the settlement of the controversy is as follows:

"Our conferences have demonstrated that we cannot harmonize our differences of opinion and that eventually the matters in controversy must be passed upon by other and disinterested agencies. Therefore, we propose that your proposals and the proposition of the railways be disposed of by one or the other of the following methods:

1. Preferably by submission to the Interstate Commerce Commission, the only tribunal which, by reason of its accumulated information bearing on railway conditions and its control of the revenue of the railways, is in a position to consider and protect the rights and equities of all the interests affected, and to provide additional revenue necessary to meet the added cost of operation in case your proposals are found by the Commission to be just and reasonable; or, in the event the Interstate Commerce Commission cannot, under existing laws, act in the premises, that we jointly request Congress to take such action as may be necessary to enable the Commission to consider and promptly dispose of the questions involved; or

2. By arbitration in accordance with the provisions of the Federal law" (The Newlands Act).

Leaders Refuse Offer and Take Strike Vote

Leaders of the train service brotherhoods, at the joint conference held in New York, June 1-15, refused the offer of the railroads to submit the issue to arbitration or Federal review, and the employes are now voting on the question whether authority shall be given these leaders to declare a nation-wide strike.

The Interstate Commerce Commission is proposed by the railroads as the public body to which this issue ought to be referred for these reasons:

No other body with such an intimate knowledge of railroad conditions has such an unquestioned position in the public confidence.

The rates the railroads may charge the public for transportation are now largely fixed by this Government board.

Out of every dollar received by the railroads from the public nearly one-half is paid directly to the employes as wages; and the money to pay increased wages can come from no other source than the rates paid by the public.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, with its control over rates, is in a position to make a complete investigation and render such decision as would protect the interests of the railroad employes, the owners of the railroads, and the public.

A Question For the Public to Decide

The railroads feel that they have no right to grant a wage preferment of $100,000,000 a year to these employes, now highly paid and constituting only one-fifth of all the employes, without a clear mandate from a public tribunal that shall determine the merits of the case after a review of all the facts.

The single issue before the country is whether this controversy is to be settled by an impartial Government inquiry or by industrial warfare.

Before calling by telephone, consult the telephone directory and be sure to obtain the correct number. Mistakes often result from taking numbers from letterheads, business cards or private memoranda. Do not re y on memory.

Give the number to the operator distinctly and in a moderate tone of voice. With the lips about half an inch from the mouthpiece, speak clearly the name of the Central office and each numeral, separating the figures of the telephone number; for example, "Oxford, four-one-five-O" (4150).

Listen when the operator repeats the number. Say "Yes" if it is right. If she does not quote it correctly, tell her so at once and repeat the correct number.

The receiver should be held at the ear until the called party answers or some report is given by the operator. As a matter of courtesy, the person making the call should be ready to talk as soon as the line is connected.

The identity of the person calling should be announced as soon as the called station answers. If a wrong station has been called, say to the person answering, "I beg your pardon, you were called by mistake." Signal the operator, state that a wrong connection was made and ask for the correct number.

The party calling should end the conversation by saying "Good-bye," leaving no doubt in the mind of the party called that the conversation has ended.

There are three parties to every telephone message; the person calling, the operator and the person called. Improvement in telephone service can be made, over and above all that the company can do, if the subscriber or user, when making a call, will extend his co-operation.

Rev. F. J. Libby arrived today (Friday) to assume his duties as manager of the Men's clubhouse to which men return from year to year with ever increasing eagerness and delight. That the club has not lost its popularity is seen in the growing membership, the increasing patronage of the dining room, pool tables and bowling alleys. The next dance at the club will be on Saturday night. The indications are that the club will have a very prosperous season.

The new awnings and beautiful flowers of various shades and colors surrounding the railing of the piazza of the Women's clubhouse add much to its attractiveness, and comfort to its inmates and patrons. This is one of the most needed and most useful institutions in the village for here many working girls in the hotels and shops find home-comforts, pleasant surroundings, good reading, free use of sewing machines, a rest-place, and best of all a wise counselor, a kind and helpful friend in its new matron, Mrs. Frederick Pickles. The club is supported by the rental of its rooms, membership fees and gifts from its friends. Just now the club is in need of funds to purchase some necessary furnishings for the convenience and comfort of the girls. Kind reader, will you help a little in this matter?

NEGLECTED RELIGIOUS LIFE

REV. DR. EATON PREACHES AT UNION SERVICE IN MAGNOLIA.

Last Sunday morning the Village church united with the Union chapel in holding the customary union service which was conducted by the pastor of the Village church, Dr. Eaton, who took his text from Hosea X, 12: "Sow to yourselves in righteousness, reap in mercy; break up the fallow ground: for it is time to seek the Lord, till he come and rain righteousness upon you." Among other things Dr. Eaton said,—"The fallow ground to which the prophet refers is the neglected religious life. This was the cause of Israel's captivity.....Herein too lies our danger. Everywhere today people are talking about war. Later men may think more about Christ and His Church; more about the need of reading the Holy Bible; of having communion with God and of cultivating the spiritual life. It is a fact, much to be regretted, that our churches are slimly attended; that the Sabbath seems no longer to be a holy but a holiday; that pleasure with many is the aim and end of life; that men are willing to sacrifice principle for power, goodness for gold and conscience for comforts; that our young people in altogether too large numbers show a lack of religious training; that all churches find difficulty in securing workers in their different activities; that lawlessness, irreverence, and indifference to religion are everywhere visible; and that in our colleges and universities there seems to be little attention paid the soul-culture of their students. ..... Not all church members attend church, or have family worship, or concern themselves very much about the Kingdom of God, the salvation of their fellow-men, the overthrow of evil and the establishment of truth in the world. Too many of us are worldly-minded, self-centered, and not self-sacrificing and self-forgetting. The building of a strong and noble character, the growing of a beautiful soul, the broadening and deepening of the spiritual life, and the becoming Christ-like that we may better serve our day and generation and insure for ourselves a happy home in the world to come, are matters that seem to concern many of us little.

"But what is going to break up this fallow ground? Must some great national calamity overtake men to arouse them to think of their personal accountability to Almighty God? Must sons die on the battle-field before their fathers learn to pray? Must husbands go to war before wives look to Christ for comfort and support? Must friends be separated by the call of their country to make them realize their need of the friendship of Jesus? Must brothers die from fevers, exposure, or shots from ambush to arouse the gay, thoughtless and irreligious sisters to a full realization of the seriousness of life and to turn their feet in the ways of God and duty?

"Will it take war with all its horrors, suffering, and bloodshed to break up the fallow ground of neglected religious lives. God forbid! But even now some people are more serious, more thoughtful, more ready to talk about the kingdom of Christ than they were even a week ago and many are praying for the safety of their sons, husbands, and loved-ones that had almost forgotten how to pray if indeed they had ever learned."

MAJESTIC THEATRE, BOSTON.

A discussion as to the propriety of the exhibition of a moving picture, such as agitated Boston a year ago, is promised for the present summer season. It will be recalled that strenuous objections were made to the presentation of "The Birth of a Nation," on account of the race prejudice said to be involved. The objectors were unable to prevail, and the picture ran the entire summer.

The picture now under discussion is called "Where are My Children," and despite the early refusal of the New York censors to pass it, it has been exhibited there for the past month to crowded houses. "Where are My Children?" will be presented at the Majestic Theatre next week, beginning Monday, July 3d. Four performances daily will be given, two each afternoon and two each evening.

It is the appreciation, not of the indulgent, but of the exacting, that counts.

Aid U. S. Soldiers' Families

Members of the Massachusetts Anti-Suffrage Association and the Public Interests League in Manchester will be interested to learn that at the request of Adjutant General Cole the Association through its president, Mrs. John Balch, and Mrs. B. L. Robinson, president of the League, opened an Emergency Bureau at the Commonwealth Armory, Boston, on Sunday morning. This bureau is to investigate the needs of the dependent families of enlisted men and to provide for prompt relief.

Mrs. Balch and Mrs. A. J. George, in an interview with General Cole Saturday morning of last week, stated that the Association stood ready to provide and equip a hospital ambulance, but General Cole assured them that the relief work was vastly more important at this time and urged that they change their plans and look after that branch of the work. Accordingly a stenographer has been installed at the Armory, and details of women are to be on duty daily from nine in the morning until five at night. Sunday morning Mrs. John Balch, Miss Evelyn Sears, Miss Mary Batchelder, Mrs. C. B. Gulick and Mrs. B. L. Robinson started the emergency work which will be continued as long as there is need for it.

KEITH'S THEATRE, BOSTON.

Louise Dresser, one of the most popular musical comedy stars in the world, and a rarely beautiful woman as well, returns to B. F. Keith's Theatre, "The Amusement Centre of Boston," the week of July 3rd, at the head of a splendid bill of features new to Boston audiences. Thomas A. Wise, America's greatest "Falstaff," will be another tremendously strong feature of this bill. Mr. Wise has just closed a sensational run in New York City in "The Merry Wives of Windsor." He will play "The Christmas Letter," a new one-act comedy written by Roy Atwell, of musical comedy fame. This sketch won the Lambs' club prize cup at their recent gambol for the best one-act comedy of the year. Other features include John and Mae Burke; Mlle.
